It is fairly safe to say that no matter how good that the referees are there will still be someone complaining about them. At times the officiating of our intramurals has not been as good as others, but this is understandable. After all look at some of the referees that we have had for our PC ball games.

This year we have had referees assigned for the game in advance which seemed like a good idea. Yet for some reason about half of the time it was necessary for the score-keeper to ask for volunteers from the crowd to referee in order for the game to be played. In some cases these volunteers have done just as good as anyone else, but much of the time their services have not been satisfactory.

One excuse often heard is that the Blue Hose players cannot referee the night before one of their games. This is common knowledge and therefore these players should not have been assigned games on these nights. Another question which arises is will these regular (?) referees be paid for the games which they did not show up for or will the volunteers be paid?

This problem will present a real challenge to the Intramural Council next year and we wish that we had a solution to the problem, but we don't.

SPORTS NOTEBOOK

Regular season Little Four champions Erskine defeated Davidson 75-66 last week with Tuttle getting 36 . . . It was good to see a good many people at the PC-Newberry game, but the crowd for the game we won the night before was pathetic . . . Congratulations to Jack Williams and Danny Charles on making the All-Tournament Second Team . . . Also congratulations to the entire PC basketball team, especially seniors Captain Jimmy Rakestraw, Jack Williams, and Billy Ray Ladd, on the most successful season in the last three years . . . Watch out for Newberry next year as they have their entire team returning . . . Guard Mike Lowrance of the football team is to have his shoulder operated on Military Ball Weekend . . . The PC rifle team won their first match of the year as they defeated Wofford last week . . . The Blue Hose only had 54 fouls called on them plus two technicals in the two games of the tournament.

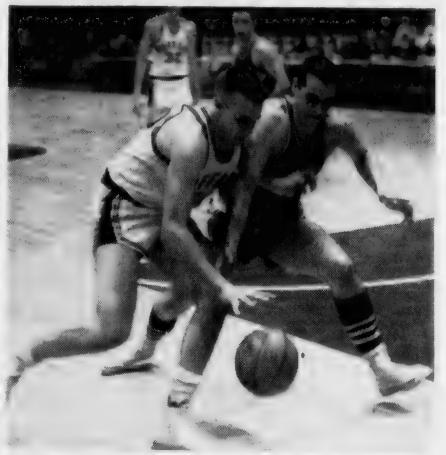
Newberry Tops In Little Four; Indians Down Blue Hose For Title

Williams and Charles On Tournament Team

The Blue Hose of Presbyterian College, who were seeded third in the Little Four Tournament and the fourth seeded Newberry Indians pulled the big surprises in the first night action as they upset the top seeded teams. The Indians upset top seed Erskine 74-71 and the Hose dropped the Terriers of Wofford in overtime 57-55.

The Hose started off their game with Wofford by holding the ball for the first three minutes of the game. Continuing to hold the ball throughout the first half the Terriers held a slim 20-19 lead as the half ended.

The Blue Hose came back after the half to continue to play top defensive ball and outscore the Teriers by one point, 29-28, to tie the score 48-all at the end of regulation play .As usual the Hose suffered from the whistle of the referee and got into foul trouble early in the second half. Due to fouls three of PC's big men, Karlsons, Webb, and Williams, had to sit out much of this half.



The tap was controlled by Williams for the Hose and then Williams scored to give PC the lead, 50-48. Williams added two more field goals before he fouled out with the score 54-52. Forward Danny Charles then hit a free throw to increase the lead before he fouled out. The Hose had lost Karlsons and Webb to fouls in the regulation game.

Guard Billy Ray Ladd then came into the game and made good on two free throws to put the score almost out of reach of Wofford at 57-52. Berry of Wofford then made a three-point play to cut the lead to two, with 32 seconds left. PC guard Jimmy Rakestraw then missed a free throw for the Hose and the Terriers came back but could not score before the time ran out with the score 57-55.

In the night's final action the Fleet of Erskine downed the Wofford Terriers, 80-64, and the cold shooting Hose lost to defending champions Newberry, 75-52. The Indians of Newberry could not seem to miss in the first half and the Blue Hose could not buy a basket as Newberry opened an insurmountable lead of 52-25 by the half.

In the second half the Indians were content to slow the game down and maintaint heir lead. This tended to draw the Hose out of their zone defense and make them commit fouls. The Hose lost Web band Harvard on fouls in the second half. PC still cold in the second half, managed to outscore the Indians 27-23 to make the final score 75-52.

PC placed freshman forward Danny Charles and senior center Jack Williams on the All-Tournament Second Team with guard Bill Tallent gaining Honorable Mention recognition.

Jimmy Rakestraw watches with open mouth as teammate Paul Webb attempts to steal the basketball in Little Four Tournament play.

PiKAs, Tigers Continue Traveling Unbeaten Path

Finishing their regular season with four wins and a single defeat, Pi Kappa Phi outpaced a weakened and weary Kappa Alpha team to a 46-37 victory. "Shovel Shot" McReynolds for the third straight week, led all scorers with 19 points. Teammate Holmes contributed 15 to the PiKapp effort. Joiner's 13 points and Frampton's 11 were high for the losers.

After losing their last three games, Sigma Nu bounced back with a decisive 65-33 win over Alpha Sigma Phi. Welch, Chitty, and Vaughan all scored in double figures to place their Black Shirts in the tournament. Piephoff, the Alpha Sig mainstay, collected 17 points for his cause.

Other games saw the Confederates roll over the Snakes in an easy 33-13 victory, with Saverance, Lynn and Gregg leading their team to a tournament berth.

The Pounders and Tigers continued to dominate Blue League play, as they each posted their fifth win. PiKA (2) were 31-20 victims of Littlefield, Gray & Co., while the Tigers grabbed up the Buckshots 47-35. Firor's 18 points was high for the game. Waldrep scored 13 for the Buckshots.

Hose Drop Newberry at Home Lose To Mercer on The Road

The Blue Hose basketball team defeated the Newberry Indians for the first time in three years last Friday by the score of 58-51. This win enabled the Hose to move into third place in the final Little Four standings with a 2-4 record.

The Blue Hose took an early lead in their last home encounter of the season and maintained a small lead for most of the night. Near the end of the game the Hose had a streak of 11 consecutive points to put the game out of reach of the Indians.

The PC scoring was led by forward Andy Karlsons with 22 points, 14 of these came from the free throw line where he made 14 of 16 attempts. Freshman guard Bill Tallent was second in the Blue Hose scoring with 18 points. PC hit on 20 of 40 shots from the floor for an even 50% shooting accuracy.

The Indians were led in scoring by Phil Musgrave with 18 and Tom Crump with 14. An outstanding defensive performance by forward Andy Karlsons and Center Jack Williams held the Indians' high scoring center, David Hawk, to only 6 points.

MERCER-PC

The following night the Hose traveled to Mercer for their final game of the regular season. There they dropped a 68-56 decision to Mercer. Leading the Blue Hose scoring was guard Bill Tallent with 13, followed by forward Paul Webb and center Jack Williams with 9 and 8 points, respectively.

Blue Stocks Win; Gun Down Wofford

The PC Rifle Team shot its way to a 1372 to 1361 victory over Wofford in a shoulder to shoulder match at PC on Feb. 16. The members of the team who participated in the match against the Wofford team were Ben Margolius, Rollin Butler, John Hemphill, Don Lohman, Benny Hurley, and Bob Phifer.

The team, being coached by Sgt. Daniluk, began the year with a score of 1297 out of a possible 1500 points. The score of the PC team in the match against Wofford was a 75 point increase over the first match of the season.

On March 10 the South Carolina Rifle Match will be held at Furman with all the Army ROTC rifle team in the state participating. The season will close on March 23 at Clemson where PC will meet the Clemson, Davidson, Wofford and Furman teams in the Western Carolina Conference Contest.

Edmunds Retires From Blue Stocking Editorship

Graham Edmunds joyfully retired this week from the post of editor of the Blue Stocking after having served for two semesters.

Edmunds, a native of Decatur, Ga., fulfilled his campaign promise of returning the Sock to its former weekly publication.

He also had said prior to taking office that he hoped to achieve an All-American rating for the Blue Stocking. Results of the Associated Press Collegiate Press judging of the Sock for the second semester last year showed that it ranked as a First-Class newspaper in its size category, missing All-American by only one hundred thirty-five points out of three thousand, four hundred needed for the rating. The Sock's rating was the second highest in the U. S. in its category of colleges with enrollment of seven hundred or less.

Results of ACP's rating of last semester's Blue Stocking have not yet been made available, but Edmunds feels that it was improved over last year's.

Edmunds, a Dean's List student majoring in history, will be commissioned a Second Lt. in the Army Transportation Corps upon graduation this June.

A brother in Alpha Sigma Phi Fraternity, he was honored this year for his leadership by being selected for membership in the Blue Key Honorary Fraternity and by being voted to "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities."

Lifesaving Classes Begin Next Monday

Mr. Bob Fakkema has announced that beginning next week, two Red Cross Senior Life Saving Classes will be started. These classes will run for a period of six weeks.

One class will meet on Mondays and Wednesdays from 3:00-4:30. The other will start a half hour later at 3:30-5:00 on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Enrollment for each class will be limited to 15 students.

Those interested in signing up for these classes are requested to contact Mr. Fakkema in his office, Douglas House, 209. Only those students willing to attend regularly and not currently holding Red Cross Senior Life Saving certificates may participate.

The pool will be open for general swimming on Friday afternoons from 3:00-5:00 if qualified life guards contact Mr. Fakkema and volunteer their services.

Patte is Series Speaker for REW

Dr. Edouard Patte will deliver the fourth in a series of six lectures dealing with man's contemporary position, to be given in chapel on Monday, February 26. In his lecture entitled Contemporary Man As Viewed By the Artist, Dr. Patte will endeavor to help the student gain a deeper perspective in his own evaluation of contemporary art.

Until the beginning of this century, the artist tried to convey on the canvas an exact reproduction of his subject. But with the advent of the camera, movies, and television, the artist was no longer called upon to give a literal and informational representation. Thus the contemporary painter uses the brush to show his environment as he imagines it.

Dr. Patte will emphasize first, that the artist can see that which the untrained eye cannot see, and secondly, that the artist expresses what he sees according to his own personality.

A number of slides will be shown during the lecture illustrating the various types of contemporary art which will be discussed.

The lecturer has done a number of paintings himself, and many of them have been exhibited. His particular interest is abstract art.

Dr. John Stevenson At Canterbury Club

Dr. John Stevenson will be moderator of the Canterbury Club's discussion of the play, Murder in the Cathedral, by T. S. Elliott. It is the story of the exile of the Archbishop of Canterbury by the King of England.

The recently formed Canterbury Club of All Saints Episcopal Church is sponsoring this program for all interested students. The meeting will be held Sunday evening, February 25, at 6:15 in the Parish House adjacent to the church.

Ministerial Club Reorganizes

The Ministerial Club of Presbyterian College has undergone a major reorganization after its last meeting on February 15, it was announced that sweeping changes have been made in the club's program and activities.

The old once a week meetings have been cancelled and the club will start holding its meetings on the first Thursday of each month. These scheduled meetings will be used for worthwhile prgrams that should prove to be intellectually stimulating to those who actively participate.

As the new advisor, Dr. Stevenson, puts it, "there will be discussions about everything from the 'Twist' to Arthur Miller." Some thought-provoking speakers are also on the agenda.

Business will be discussed only at special meetings, but the president has announced that there will be no business meetings unless absolutely necessary.

The student body is reminded that although the name implies ministerial students, every student is urged to come to these meetings and make a contribution to the discussions on these controversial issues.

On Campus with Max Shulman

UNITED WE STAND

The entire academic world is agog over the success of the Associated Colleges Plan—ACP, for short. I mean, you go to any campus in the country these days and you will see students and faculty dancing on the green, blowing tiny whistles, grabbling each other by the elbows and yelling, "About that ACP, Charley—like wow!"

"And who can blame them? The ACP is a plan not only simply brilliant, but also brilliantly simple. All it is, is a loose regional federation of small colleges. Let's say, for example, that in a given region we have a group of small colleges, each with its own academic specialty. Small College No. 1, let's say, has a fine language department; Small College No. 2, let's say, has a fine science department; No. 3 has a fine music department; etc., etc.

Well sir, under the ACP these various colleges federate. A student in any one of the colleges can take courses in the specialty of any of the other colleges and—here's the beauty part!—he will receive credit for the course at his home college. Thus he enjoys all the advantages of a big university without losing the comfy coziness of a small college!

Well sir, you can see what a good idea the ACP is. I respectfully submit, however, that just because a thing is good is no reason not to try to make it better. Like, for instance, Marlboro Cigarettes. Marlboros were good from the very beginning, and people found out quickly and sales zoomed. But did the makers of Marlboro say, "Okay, we've got it made. Let's relax"? Well sir, if that's what you think, you don't know the makers! They did not relax. They took their good Marlboros and kept improving them. They improved the filter, improved the blend, improved the pack. They researched and developed tirelessly, until today Marlboro is just about the most admirable cigarette you can put a match to. There are, in fact, some people who find Marlboros so admirable they can't bear to put a match to them. They just sit with a single Marlboro in hand and admire it for ten, twelve years on end. The makers of Marlboro are of course deeply touched by this—except for E. Rennie Sigafoos, the sales manager.

But I digress. The ACP, I say, is good but it can be better. Why should the plan be confined to small colleges? Why should it be confined to a limited region? Why not include all colleges and universities, big and small, wherever they are?

Let's start such a federation. Let's call it the "Bigger Associated Colleges To Encourage Richer Intellectual Activity"—BACTERIA, for short!

What a bright new world BACTERIA opens up. Take, for example, a typical college student—Hunrath Sigafoos (son, incidentally, of the Marlboro sales manager). Hunrath, a bright lad, is currently majoring in burley at the University of Kentucky. Under the BACTERIA plan, Hunrath could stay at Kentucky, where he has made many friends, but at the same time broaden his vistas by taking a course in constitutional law at Harvard, a course in physics at Caltech, a course in frostbite at Minnesota and a course in poi at Hawaii!

I admit there are still a few bugs in BACTERIA. How, for instance, could Hunrath attend a 9 o'clock class at Harvard, a 10 o'clock class at Hawaii, an 11 o'clock class at Minnesota, and still keep his lunch date at Kentucky? It would be idle to deny that this is a tricky problem, but I have no doubt American ingenuity will carry the day. Always remember how they laughed at Edison and Fulton—and particularly at Walter Clavicle who invented the collarbone.

Three cheers for American ingenuity, which gave us the ACP, the collarbone and MGM . . . that's the Mighty Good Makin's you get in Marlboro, the filter cigarette with the unfiltered taste. Settle back and enjoy one. You get a lot to like.

Clinton Fund Drive Begins

Clinton fund campaign co-chairmen Robert Vance and Tom Addison have announced that the Clinton campaign will get underway this week.

With this drive Presbyterain College begins the second phase of its long-range development program designed to raise $1,-$800,000 in South Carolina for a new science hall, a new dining hall, a women's dormitory, and additional endowment.

A large rally of Clinton citizens, set for mid-March, will serve as the kickoff for general solicitations throughout the area. This local campaign is expected to end during the latter part of March. Vance, who presided over a meeting at which preparations were launched to form a city-wide soliciting organization, pointed out that all residents will be urged to contribute to the program regardless of religious affiliations because of what Presbyterian College means to the business, spiritual, and cultural life of the whole community.

As Clinton moves forward with its plans to precede all other areas in campaigning for the Presbyterian College cause, preparations continue on a statewide basis.

Meetings of ministers and lay leaders continue to be held throughout the synod and enthusiasm mounts for the program designed to secure $1,800,000 for Presbyterian College before next spring. Meanwhile, leadership groups are forming throughout other sections of South Carolina to make this the biggest campaign in Presbyterian College history.

'Operation Swift Strike' Is Military Ball Theme

"Operation Swift Strike" has been named as the theme for this year's Military Ball to be held at the Clinton Armory Saturday night, March 10. "Operation Swift Strike" was the title of the Army's gigantic Airborne maneuver held this past August in the Carolina Sand Hills.

This year's theme will be presented through the use of parachutes and by numerous cutouts of Airborne operations. Music for the dance will be provided by the "Barons Combo" of Greenville.

Captain Heyward Nettles, Commander of Company K, 10th Regiment of Scabbard and Blade Military Fraternity, sponsors of the annual festivities, stated the dance will begin at 8:00 in the evening and last until 12:00 p. m., with the dress being formal. This will include Army Greens with white shirt and black tie for military students and regular formal attire for the young ladies.

Non-Military students may purchase tickets for the occasion from Bill Matthews or Graham Edmunds for the price of $3.50 per couple. These non-military personnel will wear dark suits and ties, with the dress for dates being formal.

This year the Scabbard and Blade is honored to have Gen. Ansel B .Godfrey of Clinton as its distinguished guest. General Godfrey, along with his wife, will head the receiving line which will open at 8:00 p. m. Others in the receiving line include Dr. and Mrs. Marshall W. Brown, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Richard W. Ulrich, Cadet Lt. Heyward Nettles and his escort, Nancy Thackston.

On Friday afternoon, March 9, a parade will be held on Johnson Field beginning at 5:00 p. m. All students and faculty members are cordially invited to attend. At the parade, the Battalion Staff and Company sponsors will be presented.

Musical Comedy Begins Fine Arts Film Series

An outstanding musical comedy, "Seven Brides for Seven Brothers," will open Presbyterian College's Fine Arts Series on March 5, 1962, at 7:30 P. M. in Belk Auditorium.

This award-winning film, considered a milestone in motion picture musicals, stars Howard Keel and Jane Powell in a story based on "The Sobbin' Women" by Stephen Vincent Benet. Johnny Mercer and Gene de Paul wrote the songs, with the dances and musical numbers staged by the celebrated Michael Kidd.

Seven uncouth Brothers in the Oregon Territory get restless, go into town and steal themselves some women "like them old Romans did back in Plutarch's time."

They all get snowed in for the winter on the farm and there are wild goings-on as Jane Powell tries to act as chaperone for the girls while she teaches the boys methods of courtship.

A triumph of musical comedy, it is filled with bright songs and wild, hilarious foot-stompin' dances throughout.

On the same program two all-time great comedies will be shown: "Hurry, Hurry," with W. C. Fields, and "Keystone Hotel," with Ben Turpin and the Keystone Kops.

Admission will be twenty-five cents.

Plans call for one picture each month during the present school year. If the series is well supported by the faculty and student body, a full year of pictures will be scheduled for 1962-63 and a program of the events and dates will be distributed at the opening of school next fall.

Particular attention will be given to outstanding foreign pictures which have won prizes at various international film festivals, as well as the best American films available.

All students, faculty and their families are urged to support the series by attending these fine pictures.

Choir Embarks

This weekend the Presbyterian College Choir, under the direction of Dr. Edouard Patte, will make a trip to Florence and Camden.

Leaving after classes on Saturday, March 3, the choir will arrive in Florence at 5 P. M. This will be the eighth trip that the choir has made this year.

They will return to campus Sunday night.

Pershing Rifles Leave For Mardi Gras Sunday

• Will Return on Thursday

PC's Pershing Rifle drill team will depart Sunday afternoon at 12:00 p. m. for New Orleans by bus to march in the famous Mardi Gras parade.

The unit, which is Company A of the 4th Regiment of National Pershing Rifles, received the invitation in November and since that time has drilled overtime to perfect their intricate maneuvers. Company Commander Skip Saverance announced that the school agreed to pay half of the basic costs in order to allow more of the members to make the trip.

The thirty-four members will return on Thursday morning at 6:00 a. m.

On Saturday night, the unit will perform the honor detail of forming the sabre arch and will present roses to Bn. Commander Stevens' date and to Scabbard and Blade Commander Nettles' date.

Many of those going to New Orleans will be new pledges who were pledged at the start of the semester. Capt. Saverance said that the new pledges have learned the manuals and drill patterns quickly and are "looking sharp."

Capt. Joseph Scott, company advisor and Operations Officer of PC's Military Instructor Group, will also attend the festivities with the unit.

The company also has made plans to compete with other PR units from all over the South in Atlanta in May.

Capt. Saverance stated that the expansion of the unit this year has been very rapid, particularly following fine exhibitions during the halftimes of football games this fall and after the invitation to the Mardi Gras was extended.

PC's company of Pershing Rifles was chartered in 1959.

Paul Woodall and Bill Bartee are platoon leader and platoon sergeant of the unit, respectively.

Seven Graduate First Semester

Seven students received degrees from Presbyterian College at the end of the first semester, January 30, 1962.

Ronald S. Austin of Charlotte, received a BA in Economics. Howard H. Gordon of Bluefield, W. Va., received a BA in English. Carl L. Kessel of Mountain City, Tenn., majored in Psychology and also received a BA degree.

Also receiving degrees were Fred D. Meade of Beaufort, BA in History, and Jack R. Wright of Laurens, in Sociology.

Those receiving Bachelor of Science degrees were Robert A. Collins of Monroe, N. C., and Wilbur S. Douglas of Blackstock. Both majored in Economics.

The Presbyterian College Board of Trustees convenes here on Tuesday, March 6, for it's annual meeting. The meeting will begin at 10:30 A. M. in the trustee room of Belk Auditorium, and allowing for a lunch recess, will adjourn about 3:30 that afternoon. Board members have been supplied in advance with up-to-date reports on the issues to be discussed.

Paramount on the program will be the consideration and possible designation of men to receive Presbyterian College's honorary degrees. Presbyterian College can confer honorary degrees in almost any field related to the academic courses offered here. However, the degrees most frequently given are either Doctorates of Divinity or Doctorates of Law. The degrees are not restricted to alumni or to men from any particular region.

A new member has been named to the Board for a three-year term as an Alumni Representative. He is Mr. Knox Wyatt of Rome, Ga., whose family donated the funds for the Wyatt Chapel in Belk Auditorium. Mr. Wyatt replaces Mr. A. B. Poe of Rock Hill, whose term expired last year.

Senior Placement

Seniors should contact Mrs. Watts, secretary to the Dean of Students, in the administration building for appointments for job placement interviews.

THE BLUE STOCKING PRESENTS

Editorials : Features : Humor

Student Response

As we begin another chapter in the thirty-two-year-history of The Blue Stocking, we recognize the size of the job ahead and the challenge to do it well.

There are probably two main factors which will determine the success of the Sock in meeting the challenge to be progressive rather than static. The first is the staff. We have what we feel is a competent and reliable staff that will be able to present to the students an accurate, varied, and enjoyable newspaper.

A second, and equally important factor, is the responsiveness of the student body to the paper. We cannot hope for substantial improvement of the Sock unless we can feel that students read, judge, criticize, and contribute to it.

If for any reason you disagree with our policies, let us know either through personal contact or a letter to the editor. On the other hand, the greatest stimulus to the incentive of the staff could be the awareness that students are interested in and pleased with the paper.

We hope that this chapter of the Sock's history will continue in the tradition of yearly improvement, and that the students will find it palatable.

Letters To The Editor

Letters to the editor will be welcomed. All letters must be signed. We will withhold names upon request, but would prefer that a person back up the statement of his opinions in print with his signature, also in print. We feel that the most effective letters will be those from people who are willing to publicize their opinions as their own.

How Come?

How come military students will be required to wear their uniforms to drill this Thursday when there is a parade Friday afternoon and the Military Ball is Saturday night? We'll probably have to use spray deodorant on them before picking up our dates on Saturday. Why not just wear them on Friday and not on Thursday?

Our thanks to the maintenance department for starting work on badly needed sidewalks around the Douglas House. How soon can we get rid of the unsightly posts there and in front of the Belk Auditorium?

From Trump . . . . . Re-roasted Chestnuts . . . . .

There's the story where it was to be C. B. DeMille's greatest epic, and today was the final day of shooting. In an Egyptian desert valley, C. B. had the pyramids and sphinxes reproduced, and the mighty Nile itself rerouted to flow through this ideal shooting location. Hundreds of assistants had been busy through the night organizing the 80,000 authentically-costumed Egyptian extras to be used in the grand battle scene to be immortalized today.

"The Ten Commandments" had to be right in every detail. DeMille had already spent millions of dollars on this picture, but it was to be his masterpiece and no expense would be spared. Today's shooting was to start at dawn, and the "battle" would continue until sunset. Every facet of this day's work had been planned with the utmost love and thoroughness, and to put these battle scenes on film would cost $2 million a minute.

The valley was encircled by four mountains, upon three of which C. B. had placed camera crews; the other mountain served as his own location for observation and direction. Signals from the valley indicated that everything was in order and, as the sun rose and provided sufficient light for the action to begin, C. B., trembling with excitement, reached for his intercom phone and contacted camera crew number one.

"Irv," said C. B., "I want you to concentrate on the individuals — give me good, fat close-ups with plenty of expression—catch them registering pain, terror, fury, everything—get as many as you can and make it good—you're the best close-up man in the business and I know you can do it—remember, quality, quality, quality, is the keyword."

"Gotcha, C. B."

Flicking the switch to the second camera crew—"Harry!"

"Yes, C. B."

"Harry, you have all the plans of the movement of all small routes of soldiers as they enter the main body of the battle—I want you to get every foot of that action that's possible. Remember the small groups are yours."

"I'm witcha, C. B."

"Crew number three," continued Demille, as he pressed the remaining button, "Al, I want you to keep the entire valley on your film at all times—listen Al, you've been with me since 'Squaw Man,' so you know how I work. You concentrate on the BIG picture at all times, every bit of action must be in every frame of your film—I know you'll do a beautiful job, O. K., Al?"

"Any time you're ready, C. B."

A tear in his eye, an exciting mixture of awe and pride in his heart, C. B. lifted his arm and shouted, "Lights, action, cameras!"

Immediately 80,000 men charged into action on foot, on horse, in chariot. The spectacle was breath-taking, the movement ferocious: arrows darting through the air, spears hurled amid a din that only so many and so much could produce.

C. B. watched in reverence with tears of extreme joy coursing down his cheeks. This would make the "Ten Commandments" his ultimate masterpiece, and this his greatest single scene of all time. After all, he was now 75 years old and had been considering retirement, so this had to be right, and it was—there, down in that valley, his greatest artistic achievement was going on at this very movement.

It went on a great deal longer than that moment. It went on for 15 hours without stopping and, now as dust grew too heavy to permit any more action, and the wounded and ex-

THE FRATERNITY MAN

The term "big dog" and fraternity man are often used synonymously in describing some college men. Such "dignitaries" get no greater satisfaction than to stand before the mirroor and place their badge of greatness fastidiously upon their shirt. Once the pin is in place and the flask has been filled, "Big Dog" is ready for any situation. The emblem seems to give our boy added self-confidence and if he needs any more, he needs only to reach for his back pocket.

You wear a fraternity pin and presto you are a big wheel. Is the emblem all there is to being a fraternity man? You attend meetings, argue with the brothers, and because no one ever wins an argument, you make enemies. The next day your so-called "brother" says, "Hello." Now you realize the whole show is merely a farce. It is a game. You make an enemy and then make elaborate gestures to show he is not your enemy. Sic transit gloria mundi.

Linksters Post Schedule Clyburn, Sells Lead Team

By Bill Loeble

In less than a month the golf season will be getting into full swing and the Presbyterian College golf team will be in the thick of the action. This year's Blue Hose linksters have 13 matches and two tournaments scheduled and are looking forward to another successful season under new coach Gordon Warden. They will play 7 matches and the two tournaments away, with 6 matches scheduled for the home greens.

During their practice rounds this winter the competition between Co-Captains Max Clyburn and Frank Sells has been keen, with Clyburn usually coming out on top. Clyburn will thusly hold down the number one position on the team, with Sells in the number two spot. Pushing these two closely for the top positions are returning lettermen Bill Brown and Ken Acker who round out the top four. Others expected ot see plenty of action this season on the greens for PC are Fred Meyers, Charlie Clotfelter, Walter Burch and John Morrison.

1962 GOLF SCHEDULE

March 19 — Belmont Abbey, home.
March 20—USC, away.
March 22—Mercer, away.
March 27—Furman, home.
March 31—The Citadel, home.

May 14-15—NAIA Tournament, Boone, N. C.

Rifle Team Wins Six in One Week

Last Friday, the PC ROTC Rifle Team won its second match by defeating Wake Forest in a three-way match at Clemson between Clemson, PC, and Wake Forest. Clemson fired a high score of 1391; PC was second with 1375; Wake Forest fired 1361. While all three schools shot together, the match was counted as two separate matches.

PC's Rollin Butler was high scorer in the entire match with an astounding 287 (out of a possible 300). This was PC's second match with Clemson this year and in the interest of promoting some friendly rivalry, PC put up its Blue Stocking against Clemson's Bengal Tiger. The team has high hopes of rescuing the stocking from the tiger at next week's State Tournament at Furman.

Besides winning its second shoulder-to-shoulder match, the team won five postal matches this week by defeating Texas Tech, University of Richmond, Wake Forest, University of South Dakota, and UCLA. In comparing the relative size of PC with schools such as UCLA (16,000 students), it may be seen that PC can compete with any school in the country.

Netmen Begin Play on March 20; Face Georgia In Opening Match

• Team Returns Intact

The Presbyterian College tennis team begins the 1962 season with a full core of netmen back from last year.

This strong team faces the task of returning PC to its role of state champion while also facing a very hard regular season schedule with the University of Miami heading the list. Other teams expected to be strong in the state are Clemson and The Citadel.

The new coach this year, replacing Coach Jim Leighton who had a spectacular record while at PC, is Gordon Warden. Coach Warden was an outstanding player while at the University of the South and for the past three years, the tennis professional at Chicago's South Shore Country Club.

The members of last year's team who will form the nucleus of this year's team are Tony Wilson, Tom Elliott, Beansie Frampton, Ed Caviness, Harold Hope, Bill Stone and Dave Greenslade. From the looks of pre-season practice, each of the players seems greatly improved over last year. With practice being called every day that it is possible to play, the team should round into excellent shape before the opening of the season.

The schedule listed below points up the fact that there are no easy matches on the slate. Almost every team that PC plays both in state and out of state has been putting greater emphasis on tennis in the last few years with the result that all of them have become stronger.

This year's PC team, it is felt, can be counted on to uphold the tradition of a nationally famous tennis team.

Roundball Recap

The Blue Hose basketball team, although having just completed its third consecutive losing season, has a number of things of which it can be proud. The 1961-62 edition of the PC basketball team won more games than the teams of the two previous years in compiling an 8-14 record.

Three of the four top scorers for the Hose attack this year were newcomers to Leroy Springs Gym and the PC uniform. They were led by forward Paul Webb, who transferred to PC from a junior college, averaged 12 points per ball game, and led the team in rebounds with 149 in 21 ball games. The other newcomers who were high in the scoring column for the Hose were Freshman Danny Charles and Bill Tallent who averaged 9.5 and 8.5 points per game, respectivley.

The top scorer for the Blue Hose this year was sophomore letterman Andy Karlsons, who scored 289 points in 22 games for an average of better than 13 points per ball game. Karlsons also led the team in free throwing precentage with 76 of 92 attempts for an 83% accuracy mark.

The top four scorers on the Blue Hose team this year will be back again next year for another go at the Little Four competition. Newberry is the only one who will be any better off as far as returning personnel is concerned as they don't lose anybody. With a good recruiting job bringing in a couple of good big men and maybe one guard the Blue Hose will be the ones for the others to reckon with next year.

Sorely missed will be big center Jack Williams, captain and guard Jimmy Rakestraw and guard Billy Ray Ladd, but PC will have the personnel returning next year to cause a lot of trouble for somebody next year. Here's looking forward to our first winning season in four years next year.

SPORTS NOTEBOOK

The Spring football practices seem to be progressing to the satisfaction of the coaches . . . It looks like we will have another exciting Intramural Basketball Tournament this season as there are some fine games lined up. Let's all get out and support this tournament . . . The tennis schedule announced in this issue appears to be one of the best in the last few years as well as one of the roughest . . . The Intramural Bridge Tournament is set to begin at 6:00 on March 14, and to be completed that night . . . Want to encourage the independent teams to enter this as it is for all of the intramural teams . . . Getting back to my prognostications again it looks like Erskine to defeat Newberry tonight in the District 26 playoff . . . Glad to see Jimmy King back out on the tennis courts getting them in shape. Let's all give him our cooperation when we are playing.

Three Hose Seniors Depart As Basketball Season Ends

The Presbyterian College basketball team loses three players this year due to graduation. These men will be greatly missed next year and it will take a tremendous effort by the remainder of the team to take up the slack left by the departure of these fine players.

BILLY RAY LADD

guard . . . Billy Ray was Co-Captain of his high school basketball team in Junction City, Ky. He also ran track in high school.

For the last three years Billy Ray has been a letterman on the Blue Hose basketball squad. He saw a good deal of action his sophomore and junior years, but was used only limitedly this season. He proved his clutch playing ability this season as he came through for the Hose with winning baskets in three of the Blue Hose wins.

JIMMY RAKESTRAW

guard . . . Jimmy was an All-Stater in three sports: football, baseball, and basketball at West Fulton High School in Atlanta.

He has been a letterman on the Blue Hose basketball team and a starter for the last three years. In his sophomore and junior years he made the Little Four All - Tournament team. This year he has served as the captain of the Blue Hose.

JACK WILLIAMS

Center . . . Jack came to Presbyterian College after playing service ball for a year.

He has been a starter all three years that he has been on the Blue Hose squad. In the 1959-60 season he received an Honorable Mention berth on the Little Four Team. During this past season Jack was named to the All-Tournament team at the Citrus Invitational Tournament and to the Little Four All - Tournament Team.

New Record Reached For Annual Giving Program

Another new record for annual giving in the form of donations was reached in 1961. The total of $65,254.75 surpassed the old record set in 1960 when the amount of $53,200.91 was donated. The number of donors among alumni and friends increased to 1180.

Further breaking these figures down, 801 alumni contributed $39,492.36 of the total. 340 friends of the college gave $20,578.37 and 39 parents of PC students donated $5,194.02. The average gift was $55.30.

The Living Endowment phase of the annual giving program amounted to $43,318.65. The Walter Johnson Club received $21,936.10 while an additional $4,257 was given to it through the Living Endowment program, bringing the total contribution to the Walter Johnson Club up to $26,193.10, a new record for the club.

Under the Endowment Program, money donated to the college is invested and only the interest gained from it is used during the year. If $100 is donated and the interest on it is $5, this interest of $5 is used.

A different type of appeal is made to donors in the Living Endowment Program. Donors are asked to give an amount equal to the interest on an invested monetary gift.

Whitelaw Is Series Speaker for REW

The fifth in a series of six lectures of man's contemporary position will be given by Dr. Neill G. Whitelaw on Monday, March 5, in chapel.

Dr. Whitelaw sees the problem of relating science and religion today as one of a conflicting dualism. He will present problems such as, "Are we to live in a world of science six days a week and a world of Theology and God one day? Does science really describe what is real? Are the evolutionary processes discovered by our astronomers and the processes of development found by biologists to be accepted and fitted into our concept of God and His universe?"

Printed copies of Dr. Whitelaw's speech will be available in the dining hall next week.

Center Offers Counseling

Dr. Pope, head of the PC guidance center, extends an invitation to all students, especially freshmen and seniors to drop in and discuss the Kuder Preference Test they took upon entering PC.

If you are a transfer student or for some other reason did not take the Kuder preference test, you may make an appointment to take the test, free of charge, almost any time. The Kuder test presents, in graphic form, in what fields your interests lie.

The guidance center, located in Room 215 of the Douglas House, also offers a large variety of qualification tests that will help you decide if you are suited for the occupation of your choice.

Counseling for almost any problem is available in the ecenter. Dr. Pope emphasizes that neither he nor his other counselors will tell you what to do . . . they will, however, guide you to a better understanding of your capacities and opportunities and where these may meet in your "workaday world."

Brochures describing almost every conceivable occupation are available to all students. Graduate school catalogs are available to Seniors.

Most of the brochures and of the guidance center counselo are available to all PC studen free of charge and offer inval able information to the stud regardless of class in school.

'Death of A Salesman' Will Open Annual Religious Emphasis Week

• Starts Tuesday Night

Tuesday night Religious Emphasis Week will open officially at 7 P. M. in the Belk Auditorium at which time the guest speakers will be introduced and the movie, "Death of a Salesman," will be shown, starring Frederick March as Willie Lohman.

The entire program for Religious Emphasis Week this year is based on two thought-provoking themes. The first theme is "What is the position of contemporary man?" For the past five weeks, this question has been put before the student body as prominent members of the college faculty have lectured in chapel concerning the disciplines of literature, economics, history, art and natural science and the part that Christianity has played in each.

Monday, March 12, Mr. Hay will present a sixth discipline when he considers contemporary man and how he is pictured by the theologian.

The second theme which will be under consideration in the program next week will be the problem of, "What does it mean to be a Christian in respect to our contemporary position?" The four guest speakers will present this theme through formal and informal discussions, and lectures. These four guest speakers are Dr. Neely D. McCarter, Mr. Robert S. Busey, Mr. J. Emmett Herndon, and Mr. James A. Stuart.

Mr. Herndon has been studying recently in literature and art. His discussion groups will deal with what it means to be a Christian in respect to what the literary artist has to say about contemporary mean. He will lead two discussion groups

List - Glenn Concert Reset

Dr. John Stevenson announced the following change in community concert dates: "Because of the need to re-schedule the Eugene List-Carroll Glenn concert, scheduled originally for April, the Community Concert will present the List-Glenn concert next Monday, March 12, at 8:15 in the Belk Auditorium. Please note the change of dates. All PC students are eligible for these concerts by using their athletic cards."

Nixon Re-elected As Pi Kappa Alpha Head

The Mu Chapter of the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity recently elected a new slate of officers to serve throughout the present semester. Joe Nixon, a senior from Carrollton, Ga., was re-elected as president.

Mike Jarrett, a senior from Toccoa, Ga., was re-elected vice-president. Juniors David Harrill of Gaffney and Mike Gryder of Atlanta, were elected secretary and treasurer, respectively. Larry Kirven, a senior from Sumter, was elected sergeant-at-arms, and Mark Sullivan of Lancaster was elected IFC Representative.

Davis, Helwig, Henderson Vie For SCA Presidency

Student Christian Association President John Elrod announced today that Kenneth K. Davis of Hamlet, N. C.; John Helwig, Jr., of Tampa, Fla.; and John D. Henderson, Jr., of Miami, have been nominated by the cabinet for the SCA presidency.

The election is set for Wdeneday, March 21, with the balloting to be in the Douglas House. If no candidate receives a majority of the votes cast at this time, a run-off will be held on the following Wednesday.

The three are all members of the junior class and have previously served on the SCA cabinet. Helwig is presently the Treasurer of the Cabinet while Davis and Henderson are committee chairmen.

The candidates will state their platforms in next week's Blue Stocking and will speak in chapel on Monday, March 19.

Results of the presidential primary and the cabinet nomninations for the offices of vice-president, secretary and treasurer will be published in the March 23 issue of the Blue Stocking. Voting for the remaining three executive offices will be Wednesday, March 28.

New Sergeant, Elrod, Joins PC ROTC Staff

Sgt. E-5 Waymon C. Elrod was recently assigned to the PC ROTC Instructor Group. He will serve as training aids assistant.

He has been in the army for six years, his last assignment being at Fort Rucker, Ala. Prior to that he served in Alaska.

A native of Cookeville, Tenn., he is married, a Baptist and a bowling enthusiast.

Barons Combo To Play At Military Ball Tomorrow

The annual Military Ball will be held tomorrow night at 8:00 P. M. in the Clinton Armory. Scheduled to play for the event is the Barons Combo from Greenville. This year's theme has been announced as "Operation Swift Strike."

The formal dance will begin at 8:15, with the receiving line opening at 8:00. Those listed for the receiving line are Major General and Mrs. Ansel B. Godfrey, honored guests, Dr. and Mrs. Marshall W. Brown, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Richard W. Ulrich, and Cadet Lt. Heyward Nettles, head of Scabbard and Blade Military Fraternity, which annually presents the ball, and his escort, Miss Nancy Thackston.

At this afternoon's Battalion parade, the company sponsors presented were Company A, Mrs. Cynthia S. Boland, for Cadet Capt. Dick Boland; Company B, Miss Sara Griggs, for Cadet Capt. Byron Hollingsworth; Company C, Miss Alice Jo Phillips, for Cadet Capt. Bob Beddingfield; and Company D, Miss Patti Tully, for Cadet Capt. Joe Davis.

Also reviewing the parade were Miss Nancy Thackston and Miss Adrian Daniel, sponsors for officers of the Scabbard and Blade.

Tomorrow night immediately preceding the 10:00 intermission, the company and Battalion Staff sponsors along with those of the Scabbard and Blade members and officers, will participate in the Saber Arch. Honor Guard for the Saber Arch will include members of the Pershing Rifles drill unit, under the direction of Sgt. Maj. Paul Woodall.

Film Series...

A WORD OF THANKS to Coach Warden and Mrs. Taylor for getting the ball rolling on a student film series and to the more than 200 students who turned out for the first showing. We feel that PC needs such a series and that students would support it.

In regards to some "rough edges" on the first film, Coach Warden stated that there is no reason to expect similar defects in the future since information about better film companies with which to deal has been obtained from other colleges who sponsor similar series.

There are plans to have several more movies this year, and by next year to have a definite schedule that would be printed in the SCA calender.

A major advantage to students of such a program other than low admission fees is the opportunity it affords to obtain British comedies and foreign art films that the local theatres are unable to show from lack of an audience.

One question which has arisen is whether the series should be financed through the student activity fund or through nominal admission fees. Plans are that admission will be charged for the rest of this semester's films, and we would prefer this capitalistic system over the socialistic next year. Quarters on campus are fairly abundant but fifty dollars in the activity fund aren't.

We hope student enthusiasm for such a series will continue.

A Shoulder Shrug...

(From The Duke Chronicle)

Be casual. That sentence could well be the by-word of the American college student. He worries about making a C average; he worries about himself. But let the subject of the nation or the work of life in general come up—he can't do anything about; so he doesn't bother to think. Let other people come to him with a problem—well, it's not his concern. He commits himself to neither principles nor people. He belives in nothing but getting himself through a decently comfortable life; for everything else he has only a shrug of the shoulders.

Historically, the college student has been the leader of his nation. In Hungary the students fought. In Russia the younger generation is the center of attention. But in Hungary and in Russia there stands an ideal for which to fight, a belief for which to live. A helpless uncertainty toward important things leads American students to turn to their immediate situation, accepting the staus quo with apparent unconcern.

In keeping with college tradition, we must avoid committing ourselves. Let's just live along in our own little way. We must be collegiate, be cynical, and above all—be casual.

A Case History

Table Choosing And Solid Solutions

by TOM MORRISON

The noble purpose of this article is to explain a now resolved personal problem which may possibly affect many college students. I am referring to that tremendous responsibility of choosing at which table in the dining hall to sit when accompanied there by friends.

I usually tried to avoid making the decision myself by staying last in line, but this sometimes became difficult to do because of others' stubborn politeness. Thus have I often had forced upon me utter bewilderment and fear that my choice would not be totally appreciated.

There later happily developed a custom for my usual group of friends to sit always at one particular table which was infrequently frequented by other diners. Our preferred site was sometimes taken over by invaders though, and at such occasions did I often find myself confusedly standing with tray in hand and with dumfounded expression upon face.

Because of the above reasons, I finally decided to make a study of the problem in all its aspects so that a strict guide for table choosing might always be available for consultation.

The first necessary thing to remember is that drafty areas must necessarily be avoided on wet and/or windy days. Comfort of all eatters, in other words, is the main standard by which to go.

Secondly, make sure that the table and chairs are clean. Most people have a fanatical dislike for sitting in catsup, putting elbows in strewn spaghetti, and doing other such routine thnigs.

Then there is congestion. Stay away from noisy confusion and crowded conditions since serenity is required for proper digestion.

Lastly, but very important psychologically, try to select a table with the most beautiful centerpiece available. As can be noticed, some of the dining hall pansies have tended to become wilted.

Ever since following the above outlined method, I have had little trouble in that important pursuit of table choosing. True, the selection now takes longer, but never again will there be the inner fear that a poor choice will be made. Nowadays, I even jump eagerly into line before everyone else so that my new talent might be fully utilized.

It is sincerely hoped that other persons will benefit from my carefully contrived thinking. And, by the way, you certainly are welcome. Good luck and happy table hunting.

ENGLISH INSTRUCTORS

English teachers are the bane of my life. I remember a good-natured fellow who taught me sophomore English in high school. He and I became great friends. Once while we were talking, he offered me a cigarette. Not wanting him to know I did not smoke, I took a cigarette and lit it. The experience was pleasant, and smoking became one of my most enjoyable habits. Nothing seemed to afford me greater pleasure. Another good English teacher friend of mine at Clemson asked me what I read for pleasure. When I told him nothing, he gave me his copy of The Reader's Digest, recommending the magazine highly. I found he was right and I enjoyed my leisure immensely, smoking my cigarette and reading my Reader's Digests. This tranquil diversion lasted for many years. I would sit down every month when my Reader's Digest came, light up a cigarette and read the light articles first, then the more serious ones, and finally the medical advice. This pattern worked fine as long as the medical articles dealt with hernia, hemorrhoids, bunions, bursitis, and pollinosis. But one month the magazine published an article, "Does Smoking Cause Cancer?" I read the article, felt sick ,and laughed it off. Each month thereafter other articles were published linking cancer with smoking. When the article, "More Proof That Smoking Does Cause Cancer," was published, I knew I could not go on as I had; a choice had to be made. Either I must give up smoking or give up reading The Reader's Digest. After careful deliberation, I decided The Reader's Digest was so entertaining ,informative, and enlightening, that I would give up smoking. You may not believe it, but recently I have met another English teacher who does not recommend The Reader's Digest and who says all sorts of ugly things about it. I think I should tell you, however, that he smokes cigarettes.

Blue Hose Gridders Close Out Highly Successful Spring Drills

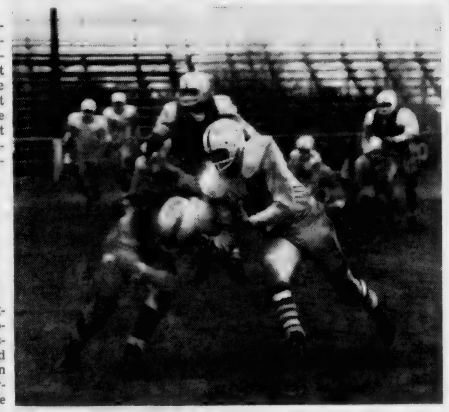
The Presbyterian College Blue Hose have come a long way since the start of spring football practice about four weeks ago. There were 45 candidates out for daily and Saturday workout which Head Coach Clyde Ehrhardt has pushed them through. These included 23 lettermen from last fall; 13 linemen and 10 backs. The Hose lost only one player because of grades, and these 45 lettermen are the largest number of lettermen drilling since the 1959 Tangerine Bowl team.

"I'm well pleased with the progress of spring practice, although it has revealed a lack of depth at several positions," asserted Coach Ehrhardt, as he pointed to the wind-up of off-season football drills this past week. He commended the players for having given 100% effort and spirit during the practice sessions.

Practices under game conditions have been held often in order to help some of the inexperienced players, especially at quarterback, gain some game type experience. For the first time in spring practice the Blue Hose have been three deep at every position, and this has enabled them to have more game-like scrimmages.

In the backfield for the coming season there will be only four players who will not be rising sophomores. These freshmen backs have gained valuable knowledge in fundamentals under game conditions this spring.

There has also been good progress made at the quarterback position during drills. The two rising sophomores, Jackie Nix and Leighton Grantham, have shown great improvement, and Bill Tyson has been very impressive with both his running and passing.



The rest of the backfield has also shown up especially well. With nine lettermen returning at the halfback and fullback slots these look like the strong spots. Halfback Jimmy May has looked particularly good and is in the gest shape he has been in since coming to PC. Halfback Ronnie Hampton and fullback Randy McCranie have also done good work this spring.

The middle of the line appears to be the chief problem facing the Blue Hose with special emphasis at the tackle and center positions. Only Dewey McReynolds returns at the center spot from the lettermen of last fall. There are also only three lettermen nat the tackle position: Mike Marr, Frank King, and John Harvey Edwards.

The return to the squad next fall of Pat Sudduth and Keith "Buffalo" Richardson of the 1959 Tangerine Bowl team is expected to help out in the center of the line. The guard position is in good shape with five lettermen returning. They include Kermit Littlefield, Alvin Coley, Randy Fitzpatrick, John David Harrill, and Mike Lowrance.

The bright spot in the PC line is at the end spot where Coach Ehrhardt says he feels he has five or six boys who can do the job for him. He says the flankers are shaping into one of the most encouraging points of the spring. These ends have been helped greatly by assistant Coach Bill Hill, and they have developed so well that the end position is no longer the question mark that it was at the beginning of the spring.

There has been a number of injuries to some of the key Blue Hose players. Tackle Bernard West has missed the entire spring practice because of an injured ankle. Guard Mike Lowrance with an injured shouder, and fullback and defensive linebacker Ronnie Morris have missed all but two days of the drills. Others who have suffered injuries and missed some of the practice sessions are ends Larry Poppell and Wayne Fowler, and guard John David Harrill.

Sigma Nu Takes Surprise Win Over Unbeaten PiKA

Fourth-seeded Sigma Nu jumped to an early tournament lead by outclassing the Tigers 47-35 and surprising previously unbeaten PiKA 39-37. The determined Sigs trailed the PiKA's most of the game until forward Stone hit 3 consecutive foul shots to tie the score at 31-31. The final minute of play saw Moose Brown tie the score at 37-all on a 3-point play, but Chitty's clutch shot as the horn sounded brought the Sigs a victory.

Stone with 18 points and leading Sig rebounder was the game's outstanding player. Brown's 16 points was high for the losers.

Pi Kappa Phi, after a slow start, easily defeated the PiKA second team 59-24 with Big Dewey scoring 33 points. Other tournament games saw the PiKA's dump the Confeds 83-20 and the KA's stopped the Pounders 36-29. The Tigers bounced back to a 45-35 win, eliminating the Confederates and the PiKA's second team upset the Pounders 44-41.

Forthcoming games find the PiKA's matched with their second team, the Sigs playing the Pi Kappa Phi versus KA game winner, while the loser goes against the Tigers.

Spooner Goes To Mississippi State

Former Presbyterian College end coach and Texas Tech star Vic Spooner recently accepted a position on the football coaching staff of Mississippi State.

Spooner had just prior to this new decision left his position at PC for a post on the coaching staff of the University of Wichita. He spent about a week at Wichita before he moved on to the position with the SEC school.

Spooner had been end coach and also track coach here at PC for the past three years under former Head Coach and Athletic Director Frank Jones. Jones also left PC this winter to take a position on the Mississippi State coaching staff.

The Athletic Director at Mississippi State, Wade Walker, was the line coach at Texas Tech when Spooner starred there.

Spring Practice

FINAL SCRIMMAGE

The Blue Hose football team held their final scrimmage of the spring practice session this past Wednesday. The first team showed its power as it continually moved the ball up and down the field against the "Blue" or second team. The line opened holes in the second team line for a bevy of Hose backs. Large gains were reeled off by halbacks Ronnie Hampton and Jimmy May, and fullback Randie McCranie.

Especially impressive was the running of the option plays of the Blue Hose attack by sophomore quarterback Bill Tyson. Tyson ran the ball extremely well when he elected to keep it and completed most of the passes when he threw it. The highlight of the afternoon for the "Blue" team came when linebacker Norman Snellgroves intercepeted a pass and ran it to the first unit's five-yard line. There the first team's line showed its defensive stamina as it held the second unit to three yards in four plays.

The line play of the Hose first unit was outstanding as they repeatedly stopped the offensive thrusts of the "Blue" team and then provided expert blocking for their own running backs. Demonstrating the depth the Hose have at halfback position was the fact that when the second unit halfbacks Timmons and Riner ran for the first team they usually picked up good yardage also.

This scrimmage seemed to show that the Hose lacked depth in the interior line as the first team line seemed to man-handle the second unit forward wall. One reason for this fact could have been that this was to be the last scrimmage for the spring and a good showing was made by all.

ASSISTANT COACHES

The success of this year's spring football practice must go in large part to the assistant coaches. This is to take nothing away from Head Coach Clyde Ehrhardt who has done a splendid job since taking over the reins from departed Frank Jones. The addition of Bob Waters and Bill Hill to the staff was a move which was very beneficial to the team.

Coach Ehrhardt commended the fine job which Assistant Coach Musselwhite has done with the offense since the end of the basketball season. This was evident in the recent scrimmage in which the offense moved the ball well.

The fact that the new Asssitant Coaches Waters and Hill could return to the team after two years and a year's absence, and move right in without causing the athletic department to become disrupted, is a credit to both them and to Athletic Director Ehrhardt.

These two have done an outstanding job for their alma mater. Since Ehrhardt found it necessary to coach the line and spend a great deal of time with it, these assistants had an added responsibility with the backs and ends. The fact that they have accepted this responsibility is shown by the great improvement in the ends and quarterbacks. The work of student assistant Joe Nixon with the defensive backs has also brought on marked improvement.

The hard work and effort which have been put forth by these young coaches during spring practice should be greatly appreciated by us all. The results of their work will be evident on the football field next season as the Hose take on an extremely tough schedule.

SPORTS NOTEBOOK

Homecoming for the coming football season will be against PC's traditional rival, Davidson, on October 6 . . . Athletic Director Ehrhardt announced that he is in the process of selecting two additional full-time coaches for next fall . . . There have been around 300 high school "stars" to try out here at PC so far and out of these Coach Ehrhardt is trying to get about a dozen with three already signed . . . Looks like we will have a full schedule this spring for intramurals with track, tennis, volleyball, softball, swimming, and the bridge tournament coming up . . . The bridge tournament has been postponed due to Religious Emphasis Week . . . Thursday sports are not included in this week's paper because it went to press Wednesday night.

Hose Cinder Squad Looks To Pembroke Opener

The Presbyterian College track team officially began practice for the coming season this past Wednesday with eleven members of the squad turning out. The remainder of the track team will report to Assistant Coaches Waters and Hill on Monday at the conclusion of spring football practice. This will bring the total members of the team to about 25.

Returning from last year's year's squad will be Sid Acker in the high jump and 880; Fred Cook, Wayne Fowler, and Jim Salvo in the 440; Bob Beddingfield, Byron Gentry in the sprints; and in the field events Jerry Usry and Randy Fitzpatrick.

Taking over the reins of the track team this year after the departure of Coach Spooner will be Bob Waters and Bill Hill.

Assistant Coach Waters is expecting to get top perfromances from newcomers George Salvo in the sprints, Knot Culpepper in the 440, and Dennis Kirk in the field events. Others expected to see service are George Lewis, Garnet Welch, David Welborn, Sandy Hagood, Hugh Wilson, Robert Phifer, Reginald Awtrey, George Taylor, and Randy McCranie in the running events. In the field events there will be Mike Lay, Frank King, and Mike Lowrance if he recovers from his shoulder operation fuliy.

The track schedule for this spring is:

March 23—Pembroke at Clinton; 31—Lenoir Rhyne at Clinton.

April 3—Emory University at Atlanta; 11—Davidson at Davidson, N. C.; 13, 14—Piedmont Relays at Greenville; 19—Catawba at Clinton; 28—Davidson Relays at Davidson, N. C.

May 4, 5—State Track Meet at Columbia.

March 23—Pembroke at Clinton.

REW Speakers

and will give a lecture entitled "Absurdity of the Absurd."

Mr. Busey will deal with the discipline of economics, asking the question, what does it mean to be a Christian in respect to what the economist has to say about contemporary man. He will lead two discussion groups also. His lecture is entitled, "Christian Context for Economics."

The discipline of Theology and the Theologian's point of view as to what it means to be a Christian will be covered by Dr. Neely D. McCarter. His lecture goes under the title of "A New Life for a New Age." He will lead two discussion groups.

Mr. Stuart deals with the disciplines of psychology and sociology, because he feels that they were pertinent to the question involved. He will lead two discussion groups. He entitles his lecture, "Aloneness, Anxiety Among Arid Times."

A detailed schedule will be in a brochure distributed Monday at lunch and supper. This brochure wil also be available for Day Students who desire them. They can pick them up Monday in Mrs. Taylor's office.

John Elrod, SCA President, encourages students "to talk privately with the guest speakers about personal or general problems they may be concerned about. These men will be available any time that there is no formal activity going on and they have encouraged students to talk to them freely."

Mr. Elrod also stated that on Wednesday night at 8:15 informal receptions sponsored by fraternities will be held in their respective suites. Also, a non-fraternity group headed by Paul Woodall will meet then, in the Douglas House Meeting Room.

Navy Aviation Team to Be on Campus

On March 29-30, the Navy's Aviation Information team will visit Presbyterian College. During their visit they will attempt to explain all phases of the Naval Aviation program to those interested.

Young men between the ages of 18 and 26 are eligible to apply for Naval Aviation programs. Upon graduation from college, successful candidates may select pilot training or one of the non-pilot Aviation Specialist programs.

Those who qualify will be provided transportation to Naval Air Station Atlanta, in Marietta, Ga. There they will take all necessary physical and mental examinations.

Cadets receive $161.15 per month while in flight training. After commissioning as an Ensign (or second Lieutenant in the Marine Corps), the monthly wages are $370.18 (single) or $455.68 (married). After completion of 4 years active service it will increase to $533.20 (single) or $627.6 (married).

SHAKESPEARE DOESN'T LIVE HERE ANY MORE

A recent and most heartening development in American college life has been the emergence of the artist-in-residence. In fact, the artist-in-residence has become as familiar a sight on campus as Latin ponies, leather elbow patches, Rorschach tests, hula hoops, and Marlboro cigarettes.

And we all know how familiar that is—I mean Marlboro cigarettes. And why should it not be familiar? Why, where learning is king, where taste is sovereign, where brain power rules supreme, should not Marlboro be everyone's favorite? The same good sense that gets you through an exam in Restoration Poetry or solid-state physics certainly does not desert you when you come to pick a cigarette. You look for a flavor that is flavorful, a filter pure and white, a choice of pack or box, a lot to like. You look, in short, for Marlboro—and happily you don't have to look far. Marlboro is available at your friendly tobacconist's or vending machine, wherever cigarettes are sold in all fifty states and Las Vegas.

But I digress. We were speaking of the new campus phenomenon—the artist-in-residence—a man or woman who writes, paints, or composes right on your very own campus and who is also available for occasional consultations with superior students.

Take, for example, William Cullen Sigafoos, artist-in-residence at the Toledo College of Belles Lettres and Fingerprint Identification.

As we all know, Mr. Sigafoos has been working for many years on an epic poem in rhymed couplets about the opening of the Youngstown-Akron highway. Until, however, he went into residence at the Toledo College of Belles Lettres and Fingerprint Identification, his progress was not what you would call rapid. He started well enough with the immortal couplet we all know: They speed along on wheels of rubber, rushing home in time for supper . . .

Then Mr. Sigafoos got stuck. It is not that his muse deserted him; it is that he became involved in a series of time-consuming episodes—a prefrontal lobotomy for Irwin, his faithful sled dog; fourteen consecutive months of jury duty on a very complicated case of overtime parking; getting his coattail caught in the door of a jet bound for Brisbane, Australia; stuff like that.

He was engaged in a very arduous job in Sandusky—posing for a sculptor of hydrants—when an offer came from the Toledo College of Belles Lettres and Fingerprint Identification to take up residence there, finish his magnum opus and, from time to time, see a few gifted students.

Mr. Sigafoos accepted with pleasure and in three short years completed the second couplet of his Youngstown-Akron Turnpike epic: The highway is made of solid concrete and at the toll station you get a receipt.

"What is truth?" said one.

Then a few gifted students came to visit him. They were a prepossessing lot—the boys with corduroy jackets and long, shaggy beards; the girls also with corduroy jackets but with beards neatly braided.

"What is truth?" said one. "What is beauty?" said another.

"Should a writer live first and write later or should he write and do a little living in his spare time?" said another.

"How do you find happiness—and having found it, how do you get rid of it?" said another.

"Whither are we drifting?" said another.

"I don't know whither you are drifting," said Mr. Sigafoos, "but as for me, I am drifting back to Sandusky to pose for the hydrant sculptor."

And back he went, alas, leaving only a fragment of his Youngstown-Akron Turnpike epic to rank with other such uncompleted masterpieces as Schubert's Unfinished Symphony, the Venus de Milo, and Singer's Midgets. © 1962 Max Shulman

Take cheer, good friends, from one masterpiece that is complete. We, refer, of course, to Marlboro cigarettes. Filter end and tobacco end are both as good as tobacco artistry and science can make them.

Atlanta Symphony Will Play In Belk Tuesday

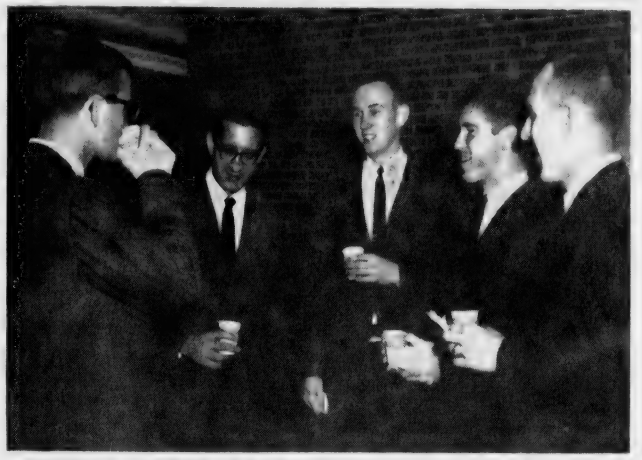
The Atlanta Symphany Orchestra will appear in concert Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in Belk Auditorium in the fourth and final number of the current Community Concert Series.

Mr. Sopkin, conductor of the orchestra, falls into a somewhat elite group of American-born musicians who are conductors of major symphonies. Only nine of the 30 major orchestras in the United States employ Americans on the podium.

Mr. Sopkin has been in Atlanta for the past 15 years and he is credited with having built the orchestra he conducts up through the years to its present high status. The expansion of the symphony has been unequalled in American musical circles, starting with a group of over 100 high school students from all over Georgia and emerging into prominence as one of the major symphony orchestras in this country.

The conductor was born in Brooklyn and received his musical training in the Chicago area.

He started his career in music as a violinist and a teacher and had a reputation as one of the finest conductors of youth orchestras in the country as director of music at Woodrow Wilson College and a member of the faculty of the American Conservatory in Chicago.



Martin Sauser, concert master of the orchestra, has held that post since the beginning of the 1957-58 season. He joined the symphony in 1951.

Prior to coming to Atlanta his professional experience included the violin section of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, concert master of the Arkansas State Symphony, and war-time concert master of the Norwich (England) Philharmonic.

$115,000 Received From Clinton Fund Campaign

The Special Gifts Committee of the Clinton Area reported last Tuesday night that $115,000 has been subscribed by less than fifty major donors in an initial effort of a statewide program to add $1,800,000 to Presbyterian College resources during the next three months.

The Clinton Area aims to produce $300,000 for the construction of PC's first women's dormitory. Special Gift Committee's co-chairmen Robert M. Vance and Tom Addison, have chosen the name Clinton Hall for the proposed structure.

Co-Chairman George Cornelson and R. Edward Ferguson, Jr., submitted a report at a training session for general solicitation workers that the advanced committee, having worked for less than a week, had raised the reported amount after having contacted only one-third of the top prospects. The committee will continue on a special gifts level as general solicitations begin early next week among all Clinton residents.

A reception for an invited group of local people will be held Friday evening in Belk Auditorium. Dr. John McSween of Clinton, popular retired minister and former president of PC, will speak on this occasion.

The program will also include several musical selections by the Presbyterian College Robed Choir, under the direction of Dr. Edouard Patte.

Campus Poll on R E Week

The Blue Stocking associate editors conducted a poll this week to gather samplings of student's opinions of this year's Religious Emphasis Week.

BOBBY PIEPHOFF

"Everything was excellent except for student support. Speakers were interesting and informative."

DAN POWERS

"It helps the student here to realize what his duty is to society. Most of us here don't even take time to think about religion and these visitors who have come seem to quicken our minds to help us think more about this subject. Certainly psychology and religion and their interrelationship helps one to gain a more profound understanding of people and why they are not taking the Church seriously."

BOB STEVENS

"The selection of speakers and subjects was appropriate and needed."

SKIP SAVERANCE

"It is a very fine gesture on the part of the SCA and by means of REW the student religious life is emphasized because most of the time here at PC, we as indivduals don't put enough emphasis on this."

"However, a weak point is that the emphasis is not put on topics that will promote enough interest and participation by the students. We need such speakers as a marriage counselor or a religious banker.

DOUG MILLER

"The message of the speakers was pertinent and thought provoking. The organization of RE Week showed a great deal of initiative."

BILL OLIVER

"I feel it gives you a time to question your religious life. The fraternity discussions were the best because it was informal and it gave the individual a chance to ask pertinent questions."

Clark, King Promoted By Board of Trustees

The promotion of two members of the Presbyterian College faculty has been approved by the Board of Trustees upon recommendation of President Marshall W. Brown.

They are: George W. Clarke, from assistant to associate professor of history; and S. Allen King, former instructor to assistant professor of English.

Clarke has taught at Presbyterian College since 1956. He came to PC from the University of North Carolina, where he served as instructor in history while working toward his doctorate in this field. He received his MA from North Carolina in 1954 after obtaining his BA degree from Baylor in 1947.

King is completing his third year on the Presbyterian College faculty. He arrived here in 1959 after teaching English at Darlington School in Rome, Ga., for seven years. He joined the staff of this preparatory school directly from the University of Georgia, from which he received his Masters' degree in 1952. King also did his undergraduate work at the university.

Wysor Awards Display In Douglas House Case

The Robert E. Wysor awards display has been placed in the trophy case of the Douglas House, announced Lt. Col. Richard W. Ulrich, PMS.

The display contains medals and ribbons presented annually by various components of the Army to outstanding cadets, and features several awards presented by Mrs. Robert E. Wysor, Jr., in memory of her husband, a former PMS at PC, and her son, Robert E. Wysor, III.

A saber is presented by Mrs. Wysor in memory of her husband, to the senior who is selected as the best Company Commander by military officials.

The Robert E. Wysor, III, Medal is presented by Mrs.Wysor in memory of her son, to the best drilled freshman member of the corps of cadets.

Other awards on the display are presented by the Department of the Army, The Reserve Officers Association of South Carolina, the Sons of the American Revolution, and Society of Scabbard and Blade.

Freshman Math Award

Mr. S. T. Martin has announced that the Freshman math award will be presented, for the fifth consecutive year, to the freshman who, in the estimation of the math department, has shown that he is best prepared to continue in the mathematics program here at PC.

The award is a book entitled "Standard Mathematics Table," and is given by the Chemical Rubber Company. The presentation will be made following mid-semester exams.

Last year's winner was Bill Tyson from Bainbridge, Ga.

College Honorary Degree Recipients Announced

The Presbyterian College Board of Trustees has announced the selection of four Presbyterian leaders to receive honorary doctorates at its 81st commencement exercises on June 3. The Rev. Joseph Witherspoon Dunlap of Darlington, the Rev. Joseph Walker Everett of Rock Hill, and the Rev. James Davison Philips of Decatur, will receive Doctor of Divinity degrees. Mr. Charles Glenn Gambrell of New York City, will receive a Doctor of Law Degree.

Mr. Dunlap, an alumnus of PC, has served as pastor of the Darlington First Presbyterian Church for the past seven years. Before going to Darlington, he had served churches in Fountain City, Tenn., Ahaskie, N. C., and LaFollette, Tenn.

Mr. Everett has been pastor of the Rock Hill First Church since 1957, coming from the position as minister to Atlanta's First Associate Reformed Presbyterian Church.

Cary Clyde Brown Memorial Plaque

As one enters the front door of LeRoy Springs Gymnasium he sees on the right wall of the vestibule a bronze plaque. This plaque was given in memory of Cary Clyde Brown, who died Oct. 8, 1923, from injuries sustained on the football field. Engraved on the plaque are the words: "He nobly gave his life for his alma mater."

During an intra-squad game the afternoon of Oct. 5, Cary was taking the defensive tackle out of the play on an off-tackle slant by the fullback. By some stroke of fate the fullback ran up his back and drove his head into the ground.

After being carried to the hospital, Brown was found to be paralyzed from the waist down. He lived through the next three days in mental and physical anguish before passing away on Oct. 8.

A Steady Diet...

The SCA's idea of having professors lecture in chapel in preparation for Religious Emphasis Week turned out to be a good one. It pointed up a need of the college which is no less important than a student or community concert series or Wednesday chapel series—the need for a series of lectures by noted intellectuals, particularly literary figures.

Within the past year Robert Frost spoke at Agnes Scott, Carl Sandburg at Wofford, and Archibald McLeish at Davidson, while at PC we've had a steady diet of preachers with an occasional banker or politician for secular seasoning.

Any self-respecting liberal arts college, even a small, southern, culturally-isolated, intellectually dead liberal arts college could use someone now and then who can do more than criticize the student's lack of concern for the spiritual realm on the one hand or tell him how much of a success one can be as a banker on the other.

Sick, man.

THE STUDENT COUNCIL'S suggested grading system changes followed an increasingly familiar pattern. They were discussed up and down on campus for a week, an opinion poll showed students favored revision, the newspaper beat the subject to death in one issue and then nothing more was heard. In the eyes of the faculty, it was "A tale told by students, full of sound and fury, signifying nothing."

On "Death of a Salesman"

The Blue Stocking asked REW guest speaker, J. Emmet Herndon, to make a statement of his conception of the theme of "Death of a Salesman" and its relevancy to Religious Emphasis Week.

"Willy Lowman, salesman, thought he had the world in the midst of his hand 'with a smile and a shoe shine.' But then the world 'quit smiling back,' and Willy's life, built on phony illusions, began to fall apart.

" 'Death of a Salesman' confronts the average man living in the 'Post-Christian Era' with an image of himself—personified, at least in part, by a sense of loneliness in a world in which man's fondest dreams have been smashed.

"What alternatives or live options do we have? How do we escape, or can we? Is suicide of an individual a part of a man, a culture, or otherwise any kind of answer? I think not, and yet who among us doesn't engage in one form of suicide or another every day?"

Percival Crudely Rides Again

Percival Crudely, the Blue Stocking's ace reporter, came dragging into my room Wednesday with a weary Willy Lowman look on his face and sank down into a chair. The following conversation ensued.

"Say, PC, old buddy, whatcha been doing today to get so down in the mouth?"

"D. P., it was terrible."

"What was, P. C.?"

The whole day. You know, D. P., I don't think I'm gonna like the army."

"What happened, P. C.?"

'Well, I'd been reading these army recruiting posters and pamphlets see, and they talked about what a fine thing it was to serve your country in uniform and how noble a life's work it would be if you felt 'called' to be a gentleman in green."

"Go on, P. C."

"Well, to start off with, the bus driver that drove us down started saying all sorts of things about the WACS they have down there and then he told a bunch of dirty jokes and ..."

"Do you remember any of 'em, P. C.?"

"No. D. P., I couldn't sleep tonight if I told you any of those smutty stories."

"What happened after you got down there, P. C.?"

"Well, this sergeant started swearing at us right off, telling us to get our asses in alphabetical order and shut up and he kept on swearing about having 66 people to examine and then us too. As if that weren't bad enough, the medics all kind of giggled when I took my shirt off and one of 'em said, 'Yon cadet has a leanic and anemic look'."

"Well, to change the subject, P. C., how'd you like last night's 'Death of A Salesman'?"

"D. P., this whole business of REW has got me confused and upset. I think they're trying to shake us up and make us all feel insecure."

"You may be right, P. C. You going again tonight?"

"Naw, D. P., they'll probably talk about college students dying or something, and I felt pretty depressed seing that thing last night and hearing Mr. Hay talk the way he did about the Bible and religion in chapel Monday."

"Yeah, he got wound up all right, P. C."

"I'll tell ya, D. P., I don't think he represented the feelings of the whole Bible department."

"I don't either, P. C."

"D. P., the next phase of REW will probably include burning crosses in front of Neville to attract potential converts."

"Say, P. C., let's see if the chow line's a little shorter by this time."

"O. K., D. P."

I Thought I Wasn't Thinking

by Bob Phifer

The American Negro has a way of aptly sizing up any situation. Just listen to what two Negro men had to say about our Religious Emphasis Week.

"I hear where de Presbyterian College am having him a Religious Emphasis Week."

"Sho nuff?"

"Yas, de is being deep thinkers this week. Why, some 'o dem been thinking so deep that they be passing out whiles the lecturers am speaking."

"Sho nuff?"

"Sho man, and next I gwine tell you about how de moon is made 'o de green cheese."

Presbyterian College is on the spot. Complaints have been lodged to the effect that our institution is hopelessly stagnant intellectually—that the students are apathetic and have no drive, no curiosity. Right now during Religious Emphasis Week, while intelectualism is supposedly at a climax, comes the question, "Just who are we trying to kid?"

In other words, you, the Presbyterian College student, are an intellectual deadbeat.

Well, before we close the school, let's consider a few things.

Despite the complaints that our school is a scholarly void, the attendance at the Religious Emphasis Week discussion groups has represented a goodly portion of the student body. Especially was this true at the night groups, excepting possibly the independents group. The questions asked, the interest shown, the whole general atttiude, was not one that the indifferent student should have. We've discovered a chink in the complainer's armor. In fact,

A Look at RE Week

Dear Editor:

John Elrod and the SCA Cabinet deserve the student body's thanks for presenting an RE Week program which was both interesting and informative. The speakers were carefully chosen to appeal to the student's needs and interests. However, there was a marked lack of student support for the REW activities.

During this year, much has been written and said about the PC student's apathy. First there was the Four Freshmen Concert, then the proposed Highwaymen visit. Both of these events were designed to

HOW TO BECOME A BMOC

Most of us by now have observed the unmistakable characteristics of the B. M. O. C. This article (how to get ahead at PC) is designed to help those deserving and hard working beginners who desire to be known by such imposing initials.

Let me emphasize first the fact that you cannot climb the ladder of success (to coin a phrase) unless you really want to (to coin a platitude). Do not expect the campus suddenly to decide you have leadership and deserve a student office.

You must aggressively form your own political group of either a fraternity block or an anti-fraternity bloc-bloc. A smart politician never expects people to love him, only to hate the other bloc. If you fail at first, do not be discouraged. There is such a thing as luck

As for the handshake, it should be a strange mixture of warm, all-engulfing fellowship and a condescending helping hand to one who needs it.

Above all, you must be intelligent, but not an intellectual; athletic, but not an animal; well-dressed, but not a style setter; drinker, but not a guzzler (at least not in front of Belk); a music lover, but not a long hair; and an all around characterless slob.

THE TV LOUNGER

"Flip it to channel four; there's a good war flick on the late show." The T. V. lounge habitue props his flip-flo pshod feet on the scarred table, flips his cigarette butt toward the trash can (a near hit), guzzles the rest of his Pepsi, and settles back for his fifth consecutive hour of "evening entertainment." The man is hooked.

He is drawn to the television room by the same mysterious force engulfing all America. He is happy among his fellow "aficionados," as they sit in their dim dwellings amidst smoke and trite wisecracks.

He grows restless and disturbed only when a re-run is shown, but he never budges from his favorite chair whatever peril affronts him.

Spring Sports

As we move into the final phase of this year's athletics here at PC the prospects look good for at lest two winning seasons and maybe three. Tennis and golf appear to be the stronger of the spring sports for PC this year with baseball and track promising some exciting competition.

The team with the brightest outlook is the tennis team, which has all nine men returning from last year. The number one position seems to be held securely by junior Tony Wilson, but all of the others appear to be fairly evenly matched and it is still a question as to the exact order in which they will play.

Two weeks from today the tennis team will be in the midst of their Florida tour with some eight or nine matches behind them. By that time everyone should know if this team has lived up to its great potential. The tennis schedule, which is one of the roughest in recent years for PC sports, has 10 home matches and promises a lot of thrilling moments for us all.

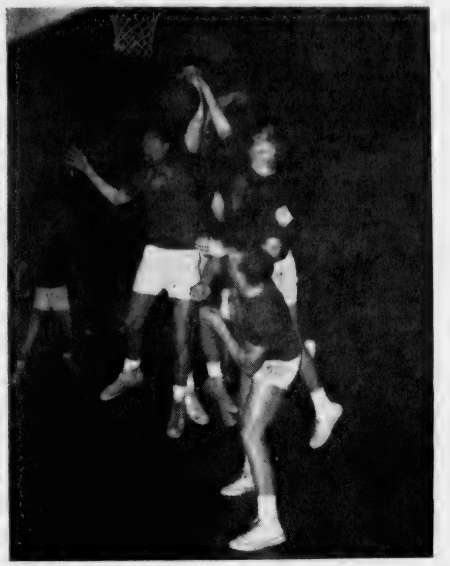
With but two men, Hexie and Harry McDonnold, missing from last season's golf team, we are also looking forward to a highly successful season for it. With the probable top six members for this season all veterans of last year's campaign, the Blue Hose golfers promise to be one of the top contenders for the state championship as well as for the District 26 NAIA Tournament.

Headed by Co-Captain Max Clyburn, who has managed to keep control of the number one position from Co-Captain Frank Sells, the PC golfers open their season next week with three matches. Others returning from last season's team are Charlie Clotfelter, Bill Brown, Ken Acker, and Fred Meyers.

The Blue Hose track squad, under former track stars Bob Waters and Bill Hill, faces a nine-meet schedule with heavy losses from last year's team. Leading the way this spring will be Bob Beddingfield, Jimmy Salvo, Knot Culpepper, and Dennis Kirk. With four home meets, beginning March 23, with Pembroke, PC students can look forward to some exciting track and field events.

Finally, we turn to the 1962 edition of the PC baseballers. Around the diamond this year there is an acute lack of experience as but a handful of last year's squad returns. Besides the graduation losses a number of seniors have decided not to participate during their last semester and some are participating in other sports.

Here, just as in track, the coaches find that they must depend on the speedy development of a host of newcomers to form the bulk of the team around the veteran nucleus. With a nine-game home schedule and a winning record at home from last season, the prospects look fairly good for our share of wins.



As is evident there will be a very active spring here at PC this year, sportswise. This spring will be much more successful if the student body gives these teams good support when they are at home and even on the road when possible. This support should be of a high quality both in spirit and in sportsmanship.

SPORTS NOTEBOOK

Notice the smiles on the faces of PC gridmen as they read of other schools just opening their spring drills . . . Curl "Hercules" King has begun holding daily weight-lifting classes in the gym for many of the PC athletes . . . Halfback Bob Roma and end Roger Gibson have been elected Co-Captains of the Wofford football team for the coming season . . . Belmont Abbey represented District 26 in the NAIA and lost in the first round in overtime, 61-58, to Pan American . . . Thanks to John Watt and Bob Shepherd for their dependability as score keepers in Intramural basketball this winter.

Tournament Fever Strikes KA's Who Strike Sigma Nu's, Pi Kapp's

• Finals This Week

Tournament action has been fast and spirited with many games surpassing varsity competition in excitement and thrills. From an original field of fourteen, four fraternity teams, Kappa Alpha, Pi Kappa Alpha, Pi Kappa Phi, and Sigma Nu, have gained the finals, remaining in contention for the championship.

Unbeaten in tournament play, Kappa Alpha has emerged the top team. Friday night saw the KA's gain sweet revenge for a regular season defeat by trouncing Pi Kappa Phi 56-37. Tommy Williams pumped in 19 points, while teammate Heyward Nettles excelled on defense, holding the league's leading scorer, Dewey "Snuffy" McReynolds, to only 12 points.

On Monday night the "Red Hot" KA's handed Sigma Nu their first tourney loss, 45-35. Bobby Joiner with 16 points and leading KA rebounder was the game's outstanding player. Vaughn and Welch each scored 10 points in their losing efforts.

In other games, Pi Kappa Alpha eliminated their second team 72-40, and the Tigers, after giving the PiKapps a scare, fell 48-42.

Monday night's action dashes the PiKapps with the PiKA's, the winner of which will play Sigma Nu on Tuesday night. Tuesday's winner meets the KA's in the finals and must beat them twice to gain the title.

Blue Hose Baseball Team Seeks Successful Season

The Presbyterian College baseball team has only a half dozen men returning to the diamond this year from last year's team which compiled a 5-11 record. The top hitters this season are Tommy Williams, Leland Vaughn, and Bill Tyson. They will be depended upon to lead the Hose attack.

Others from last year's squad expected to lend added strength to the attack are Alvin Coley, Louis Ridinger, and the leading home run hitter from last season, Paul Love.

With Tommy Williams at third base and Bill Tyson at shortstop, the right side of the infield seems to be in pretty good shape. Vaughn will continue to handle the chores behind the plate this year. In the outfield the Hose have Coley and Love along with a host of newcomers. The pitching staff will be led by Love, who notched two of the five wins of last season, and Ridinger, along with newcomers Jimmy Cape, Leighton Grantham, and Jimmy Elliott.

The Hose notched all five of their victories last season on the home field where they lost only three. This season's schedule shows fifteen games, nine of which are to be played on our home diamond.

SCA Prexy Candidates Give Aims For Office

Next Wednesday, March 21, elections for the office of president of the Student Christian Association will be held on our campus.

Vying for the presidency will be Ken Davis, a member of Pi Kappa Phi and a junior from Hamlet, N. C., and Grif Helwig, also a junior, from Tampa, Fla., and a member of the Kappa Alpha Order. John Henderson had originally planned to run but for personal reasons has decided to drop out of the race.

The ballot box will be located in the Douglas House between the hours of 9:00 and 2:00 under the watchful eyes of the student council.

Following are the platforms of the two candidates.

"The SCA this past year has been well organized and has accomplished the things that it set out to do in commendable fashion. If elected to the office of president, I hope to be able to carry out the work of the SCA as well as John Elrod has.

"There are only a few changes that I would like to propose to put into the organization of the SCA. Anyone who would like to serve on the cabinet would turn his name in and then the officers would pick the cabinet from this list.

"There seems to be a large gap between the SCA cabinet and the student body as a whole. I think this could be helped by proposing that the SCA meetings be open to the whole student body so that the interested students would have the opportunity to know what is going on and at the same time be able to contribute new ideas.

"Also, I would like to have the intramural program set up at the beginning of the year so there could be no conflicts in any part of the program."

HELWIG

"The present Student Christian Association administration and cabinet have done an excellent job of involving the students in the activities of the campus. I would like to see a continuation of this and an improvement where possible.

"Too often the students do not realize that they are members of the SCA, so they do not associate themselves fully with its activities. The SCA exists for the student; therefore I feel more student functions sponsored by the SCA are in order.

"I would like to see more independents participating in the so-called Fraternity Sing. There should be an improvement in the intramural program organization and the intramural rules. Final authority governing decisions of postponements, protests, and such should be with one person, the hired intramural head, Coach Warden. The SCA publications should be continually improved and I would strive to see that they are."

stimulate the students and to entertain them at the same time. Both events were failures.

RE Week was designed to aid the student by answering any questions or doubts which he might have about man's relationship to God. By the lack of student support, one would suppose that the students either know all there is to know about Christianity or just don't want to be bothered with it.

Many students seem to feel that REW was geared only to the so-called "intellectuals" on campus. As a result, the students who felt this way didn't even bother to attend any of the week's activities and to find out that their accusations were completely ridiculous. Other students seemed to object to the attempt to knock off their well-worn seats and to make them think. But after all, is not one of the main purposes of a liberal arts school to stimulate the student's mind?

An evaluation of RE Week would serve as an evaluation of almost every activity on the PC campus, including academics. The majority of PC students seem to have come to college to have a good time and to get a degree. It is good, however, that some organizations, such as the SCA continue to serve the students, even though the student body may not appreciate their efforts.

Thinking

while we're at it, let's really look this complaint over.

A few students have said that they want something more in an education—that they want an intellectually stimulating atmosphere. What does this mean?

This means a preponderance of intellect, and stepped-up intellectualism, for some reason, always seems to have trouble balancing itself. That is, a colony of intellectuals usually tends to be unrealistic and out of touch with what it's all about.

This is not to say to do way with your intellectuals. They are most vital, but only in their place as functioning members of society, not as a separate group off to themselves.

There are other things to be considered, too. Trite as it is, there really is much more to a college education than what can be dug out of a book. But this other part takes time. Now PC is acknowledgedly not as hard as it could be, and one reason is to allow time for that other part. That is not to say that a student cannot get a fine education here, though.

"But what about the interest of the students," ask the complainers—"you don't see it at other times," they say.

But no, if you look for it you can see it. If you start asking questions, you'll see it. But you have to look for it and dig out what you want. Chances are someone is not going to sit down next to you in the lunch room tomorrow and start spouting philosophy. He might, though, if he thought that you were interested.

Grif Helwig Elected New SCA President

The Blue Stocking

Distinguished for Its Progress

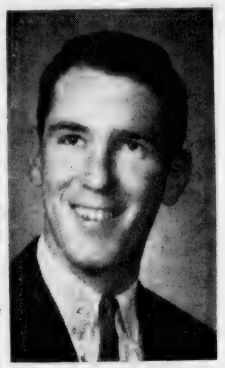
Vol. XL Presbyterian College, Clinton, S. C., March 23, 1962 No. 17

Nominees Named for Remaining Posts; Council Constitutional Change Passes

Grif Helwig, a junior from Tampa, Fla., and a member of Kappa Alpha Order, was elected to the office of president of the Student Christian Association this past Wednesday. Helwig's opponent in the closely contested race was Ken Davis, a junior from Hamlet, N. C.

Yesterday Helwig stated, "I am honored to have been elected to such an important position. I will strive to fulfill the obligations of this office, and I hope that I will receive 100 per cent support from the student body. My sincere appreciation goes to those who backed me in the election, and I will do my best to live up to the trust which has been placed in me."

OTHER NOMINEES



Helwig announced that the nominating procedure for the other offices was the same as in previous years. The Nominating Committee selected the candidates and presented them to the Cabinet. The Cabinet then passed on the nominations and opened the floor for discussion.

Candidates for Vice-President are Christine Wilson, John Henderson, and Harold Hope.

Candidates for Secretary are Linda Traynham, Tom Currie, and Arthur McQueen.

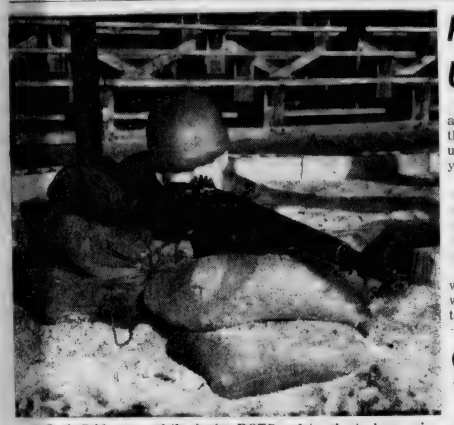
Running for treasurer will be Ed Clowdis, Bill Megathlin, and Gary Crawford.

The voting will be conducted this Wednesday from nine until two o'clock in the Douglas House.

GRIF HELWIG

CONSTITUTIONAL CHANGE

The constitutional change proposed by the Student Council and voted on in the election Wednesday was passed by a vote of 304 to 24. It was necessary for a majority of the PC student body to vote in this election and then for three-fourths of those voting to approve the change to complete the amendment process.



The article of the constitution read prior to the change:

Article VI, Section I—Class officers: Shall be nominated by secret ballot. The nominations shall be held the first Wednesday in October. The final election shall be one week later.

With the change the article now reads:

Article VI, Section I—Class Officers: Shall be nominated by secret ballot. The nominations shall be held during the second week in May and the election held during the third week. Nominations for Freshmen Class officers will be held the first Wednesday in October. The final election shall be one week later.

This change was proposed for a number of reasons. The main reason was so that the person who was elected to the office of President of the senior class would be sure to be considered by the faculty committee making nominations for Who's Who In American Colleges and Universities. This change also gives the newly elected Student Council of each spring one election to run with the supervision of the retiring Student Council members.

Freshmen Lose Unlimited Cuts

Dr. George C. Bellingrath, academic dean, has announced that no freshmen will be given unlimited cuts, effective next year.

The present rule is that any student who maintains a 3.5 or better quality point ratio during a semester will have unlimited cuts the following semester.

The faculty felt that a student who has had a full year of college work would be better prepared to receive unlimited cuts.

Federal Inspection Set for April 3

Lt. Col. Richard W. Ulrich, Professor of Military Science at Presbyterian College, announced that the annual Federal Inspection of the PC ROTC will be held this year on April 3.

He stated that Colonel Reed of Wake Forest College and Colonel Wade of Furman University will head the inspection team. They will be on the campus all day on the third and will inspect the classroom procedure in the morning.

That afternoon between 3:00 and 5:00, they will inspect the entire ROTC unit at the afternoon drill ceremonies. This will be followed by a review parade held on Johnson football field. The inspection team will conclude its tour with the parade and will leave the campus at 5:00.

'The Crucible' Shows April 2

Student Activities Director Gordon Warden announced recently that the second presentation in the student film series will be "The Crucible," based on the play by Arthur Miller, who worte "Death of a Salesman." The showing will be at 8:00 p. m. in Belk Auditorium on Tuesday, April 2. Admission will be twenty-five cents

Scholarship Finalists Arrive Here Today

Finalists of the PC Founders Scholarship program arrived on campus today and took a guided tour of the college grounds. There are eight girls and fifteen boys representing six different states.

Three special guests will be entertained at a banquet in the dining hall tonight where greetings are to be handled by Dr. Brown and Dr. Bellingrath. Several student leaders will also be present at this function to give brief talks.

On Saturday Dr. Pope has charge of final qualifying tests which, together with school records, will determine the top ten finalists. Those selected are to become the first recipients in a newly expanded scholarship program which provides for amounts ranging from $300 to $1395 per year including, new, as of this year, two full scholarships. Final results should be made public within two weeks.

Tom Blackwell is in charge of transportation and John Elrod is in charge of rooming.

Bartee Elected KA President

At the last meeting of Beta Pi Chapter of Kappa Alpha Order the officers were elected to serve the 1962-1963 term of office.

Holding down the top three offices will be Bill Bartee of Atlanta, Ga., serving as No. 1; Joe Harvard of Columbia, serving as No. II; and Bill Bryan of Bainbridge, Ga., serving as No. III. The above officers are all members of the rising senior class.

Rounding out the slate of officers will be: IV—Harold Hope of Union; V—P. W. Goodwyn of Petersburg, Va.; VI—Henry Gordon of Danville, Va.; VII—Bill Neely of Midland, Texas; VIII—Bill Shearer of Macon, Ga., serving also as IFC Representative; IX—Tommy Williams of Pensa-

South Carolinians Rally, Begin Synod Fund Drive

Two outstanding leaders of the Southern Presbyterian Church, Dr. C. Darby Fulton and Dr. Fred Poag, challenged hundreds of South Carolinians who attended the Synod-wide convocation here today to contribute financial support towards Christian higher education through the Presbyterian College Building Fund.

The program, which began at 10:30 this morning, was highlighted by an address from Dr. Fulton, a PC alumnus who recently retired as executive-secretary of the Board of World Missions, Presbyterian Church, US.

The afternoon session, which immediately followed a special luncheon in Judd Dining Hall, featured a talk by Dr. Poag, pastor of New Orleans' St. Charles Avenue Presbyterian Church.

The afternoon devotional was conducted by Dr. W. McLeod Frampton, pastor of the Orange-

Atlanta Symphony Warmly Received By Clintonians

The Atlanta Syhphony Orchestra player to the most phenomenal turnout ever experienced by the Community Concert Series last Tuesday night. And, if an expression may be borrowed from the printed program of that concert, Bravo! A more exciting and pleasurable evening would be difficult to imagine; and, with the possible exception of the Ballet Russe, no one featured here has ever played to a more enthusiastic audience.

The program could not have been more perfect for a relatively unitiated house, as was the one Tuesday. First, a typically resolute Beethoven number, his third "Leonora Overture," fully embellished with trumpet calls from the balcony, was performed with an appropriate brisk, dynamic abruptness.

Second on the program was the major work of the evening, the haunting Frank Symphony in D minor. Though a few discrepan-

Never on Sunday . . .

There's a trite old expression, "You can lead a horse to water but you can't make him drink." This expression has become trite because it contains a world of truth that is applicable to many of our everyday situations. One of our situations at PC that could best be exemplified by that expression is our compulsary chapel program. Granted, there is a group of students interested in what the speaker has to say most of the time, but the huge numbers of those who are not, affect the speaker's view of the PC student body as a whole.

There are two solutions to this problem. The first solution would be to get speakers who could interest all of the student body all of the time. Our Religious Emphasis Week speakers approached this goal closer than any previous group I can remember. The faculty and administrators expressed approval of the REW speakers by their noticeable increase in attendance. After all, if our educators can't appreciate the speaker's message how can they expect us to.

This solution presents another problem, however. How long could the excellence of our REW speakers be maintained . . . could they be equalled? This introduced problem would probably eliminate the practicality of my first solution.

The second solution would be to eliminate compulsary chapel or cut it to one day a week . . . say Wednesdays, leaving the other two days open for worthwhile programs when available.

Two valid reasons could be used for eliminating the compulsary chapel program: first, the administration, faculty, and students can't find enough good speakers to maintain chapel on a "three times a week" basis; and second, that chapel is ruining the student's attitude towards religion and is ruining the speaker's attitude towards the college student.

Since I mentioned in my first solution that the faculty and administrators had expressed their approval of REW by attending the talks, I should also mention that they have expressed their disapproval of our present compulsary chapel by their lack of attendance.

Students should be encouraged, not forced, to attend chapel because I think most speakers would rather talk to a group of ninety interested persons alone than to attempt to reach those same ninety persons past four hundred and fifty closed eyelids, yawning mouths and soft snores.

Just Grin The Afternoon Away

by Jan Rhodes

They laughed at him until they choked on their own tobacco juice. Their toothless mouths spit on the street and they laughed until all their bulging faces looked like a bucketful of old tomatoes.

Maretti thought of them as his tears stained the straw-stuffed mattrees. He crammed his pudgy thumbs in his ears but he could still hear them laughing at him, and worst of all, he could still hear that ever throbbing beat of the bolo-bouncers. All through the night he could feel in his dreams that cluster of little rubber balls pelleting his bruised face and hear the swish of the rubber bands as they whipped the little balls back into place only to release them again with greater violence.

He arose early the next morning and wiped the mucus from his eyes. His clothes smelled from the sweat of the late August night, but he didn't notice that. He let his head fall carelessly into two calloused weathered hands and he began to bite his knuckles until the whole arm ached. Maretti thought if he could only bounce a bolo ball like the rest of the townspeople perhaps, yes, perhaps, they might accept him and even, why even look up to him if he could do it well.

The warm morning sunlig made him forget the people for moment and he once more slipp into his fanciful dream. Ho graceful the human hand seeme to him! It floated back and forc with such rhythmic motion as guided the rubber ball in its path Ah, the delicate tear-shaped pa die echoed with such melodiou resonance as the ball was sent other directions by the paddle commanding tap. He could se the palm and fingertip work spon taneously to make all of the mo tion seem perpetual. Maret thought this a beautiful dream but he was awakened when h rubbed a calloused thumb across his eye. How could he live wit hands like bloated sausages from the corner delicatessen? Oh, if h could only bounce the bolo!

The cuckoo clock had long bee torn off the wall because of it mocking tone so he had no ide of the time he was wasting. H had no desire to walk down th main street again and enter th old white frame elementary schoolhouse that he had occasion ed so many times before. Jeer ing townspeople waited and look ed forward to their daily ridicule.

With his pencil and reader, Ma retti stepped out on the cobble stones and darted for the distan schoolhouse but a beggar's can tripped him. Twelve paddle struck him on the back while a least twenty piercing rubber ball pecked at his squinting eyes. Th crowd heckled him until the were hoarse and this made hi hurt all the worse.

Gasping for breath and holdin his back, he slammed the doo and squeezed behind the las desk. But here, no one laughe at him. A little girl with jet-black hair winked at him as the teache er gave her welcome. The fac that Maretti was going on thirty five and smelled of the fishin docks made no difference to them through the dirty window. Maretti saw out of the corner of his eye a gaping cavity of a mouth laugh ing insanely, and he heard the thump of the bolo ball on the weather boards outside. Suddenly his attention moved to a clock on the blackboard whose pendelum swung back and forth with steady motion. Class would all be over too soon for him. So many pages from the calendar appeared to be torn away and he wondered if he had pulled all of those months from the tablet himself.

Maretti stepped on a piece of wood under his desk and it stuck to the mud on his boot. It was a bolo paddle that had been left

BLACKBALLED

With a resounding crack Sidepocket Sam takes the solids on the break as he and Charlie Cue begin the afternoon's entertainment. The basement boys line the wall eagerly waiting for a chance to shoot against Sidepocket.

Jerry Ping and Larry Pong leave their game and take the vacant places along the wall. The air begins to thicken with smoke and Charlie nervously chalks his stick wondering if he will get a shot before Sam runs the rack.

Crack! Sam sinks another solid. He raises his head, darts a quick glance around the room and smiles to himself, pausing to light a cigarette. He wonders why he doesn't get out of this basement league and join the big boys downtown. Sure' he,s good enough and he might even make some cash for the next dance weekend.

His thoughts are interrupted when Charlie speaks for the first time, "Your shot, Sam."

Sam looks confidentially at his opponent, takes another drag off his cigarette and chalks his cue. Crack! Crack! Crack! The solids sink like gophers diving for the nearest hole. A low murmur sweeps over the on-watching gallery, "Sidepocket has done it again."

Now all eyes are focused on the last solid, the Eightball, and Sam without hesitating points his cue and sounding like a first sergeant calls his shot, "Eightball, sidepocket." With a gleam in his eyes he aims and shoots. The Eightball streaks for the pocket and falls; the cue ball follows only to stop on the very lip of the pocket and then, as if drawn by some strange magnet, plunges after its black mate. The basement boys roar with delight, "He scratched!" And Sidepocket Sam with down cast eyes trudges through the open door and up the basement stairs, his downtown world shattered.

Trial by Fire

As the PC tennis team leaves the campus tonight, most of the members will doubtlessly recall the Florida tour of last year. It had only three matches scheduled while this year's schedule lists eight matches, but the Hose dropped all three last year. The Hose have all of the members of last year's team returning and they will be striving to better their record of last year.

Last spring the Blue Hose racket squad lost to the University of Miami, Rollins, and the University of Florida. The big match of last season was the one with Miami, which the Hose dropped 0-9. While the Hose did not lose anyone from the team which lost this match, Miami lost four men from their team. With an ordinary tennis team this would necessitate a rebuilding year, but not with Miami.

Returning for the Hurricane from last year is their Most Valuable Player, junior John Karabasz, along with juniors Hugh Quinn, Tom Wright, and Joe Schwartz. On top of this they have three sophomores on the team who were as good or better than any of their players of last season. Two of these, John Hammil and Rodney Mandelstam, are from South America and are highly ranked on the national tennis scene.

Although the chances of PC pulling a repeat performance of a few years ago and breaking the Miami win streak, which has now reached 93 consecutive matches, are very slim, the chances for a highly successful Florida trip appear to be good. When the squad returns to the campus the week after next they will definitely have shown what is to be expected of them for the remainder of the season.

Here's hoping that our tennis team comes through with a fine performance while down south and wishing them luck.

KA's Take Intramural Cage Title By Downing PiKA In Finals, 41-39

Pre-tournament favorite Pi Kappa Alpha downed the Pi Kapps 35-29 and Sigma Nu's 47-44 in gaining the finals only to be dropped by the title-hungry KA's, 41-39.

On the court for the third consecutive night, the tired PiKA's could find no defense as the fresh KA's repeatedly drove for easy lay-ups. Trailing by 6 points at the half, the Fowlerled PiKA's came back to tie the score in the waning moments at 35-all but then fumbled away the ball, and with it their championship hopes.

A tight KA defense held usually cosistent Leighton Grantham scoreless and Moose Brown to only one field goal. Joiner's ability to hit from the outside for 18 poits proved the difference as the Harvard - coached KA's gained their first championship since 1959.

Monday night's quarter-finals saw Pi Kappa Alpha jump to a early lead and stall off the cold shooting of Pi Kapps for a 35-29 victory. Grantham's 14 and Brown's 10 were high for the winners while McReyolds contributed 12 points in a losing effort.

Tuesday night the McQuire-coached PiKA's cashed in on 19 of 30 foul shots to slip by the Sigs 47-44. Welch's 14 points was high for the game.

There may not be any leaves on the trees but you know that spring is in the air when there are baseballs in it. Here Leland Vaughn takes a few cuts at the plate while Cole Hatch catches.

MVP Joiner Leads Tournament Team

Forward Bobby Joiner was selected as the Most Valuable Player of the 1962 Intramural Basketball Tournament by a selection board of coaches, referees, and sports writers. Joiner led his fraternity team, Kappa Alpha, to the Tournament Championship over the PiKAs with 18 points.

Joining Joiner on the AllTournament First Team was teammate Tommy Williams along with Bill Brown and Bill Russell of the PiKAs and Jerry Chitty of the Sigma Nus. With but four seniors on the first and second teams there promises to be plenty of exciting basketball left for next year's Intramural season.

Blue Stocks Improving In Conference Competition

Although hampered by lack of depth and greatly improved competition the PC Rifle team has made a great comeback from last year's low by winning 4 out of 10 shoulder matches and over 75% postal matches. Two weeks ago Saturday the team journeyed to Furman for the South Carolina State Rifle Tournament. Unfortunately, this was the day of the Military Ball and the morning after the Friday night parties. The result of the match reflected this with the team finishing in sixth place. Apparently the other teams were not affected and the Citadel won the match with a 1456 out of a possible 1050.

The following week (last Friday) was brighter indeed when the team went to Clemson to fire in the Western Carolina Conference Match. In the match itself PC came in fourth (Clemson, Furman, Wofford, PC, Davidson) with a score of 1373. Rollin Butler and John Hemphill were the high firers with 282 each, followed by Bob Phifer, Ben Margolius, Mike McKenzie, and Bennie Hurley. In the over-all Conference standing PC finished in a very respectable third place (Furman, Clemson, PC, Wofford, Davidson), this being PC's best performance since its entrance into the Western Carolina Conference.

Racket Squad Drops Opener To Georgia In Athens, 5-4

The PC tennis team suffered a defeat in its opening match of the season with the University of Georgia. Presbyterian was leading 4-2 after the singles in the match played at Athens on Tuesday, but were unable to come through with any of the doubles matches needed to win the match.

The results of the singles matches were as follows: PC's No. one man, Tony Wilson, defeated Georgia's Joe Manderson 16, 6-4, 6-2. The other individual scores were: Tom Elliott (PC) defeated Charlie Benedict 6-0, 6-2; Beansie Frampton lost to Griffin 6-4, 6-4; Ed Caviness defeated Carleton Fuller 6-3, 6-1; Dave Greenslade defeated Mack Crenshaw 7-5, 6-3; Harold Hope lost to Charles Gaston 6-0, 2-6, 6-1.

Scores of doubles matches were as follows: Wilson-Elliott, PC, lost to Georgia's Manderson-Crenshaw 7-5, 6-2; Frampton-Caviness, PC, lost to Fuller-Gaston 6-4, 4-6, 6-4; and Greenslade-Bill Stone lost to Griffin-Cowart 3-6, 6-2, 6-3.

PR's Go on Night Problem

At 5:00 P. M. last Monday afternoon the Pershing Rifles of Presbyterian College went to war. As part of their training, all new pledges were required to take part in a tactical problem devised by the old members.

The purpose of this problem was to give the pledges experience in carrying out orders under simulated combat conditions.

The plans originally called for the use of blanks and flares, but the military department felt they would be too dangerous at night. Rifles were carried, however, by all the pledges.

The old members under the leadership of Captain Skip Saverance set up their defense at twilight while the pledges marched to the starting point and ate a hurried supper. As the darkness fell the aggressors began to move toward their objective led by Captain Joe Davis.

After many skirmishes with the defenders and an occasional exchange of fire (Bang, Your're dead! No I'm not, Clank, Clank, I'm a tank!) the problem was solved for the old members. The problem remaining for the pledges, however, was marching back to campus. By 9:00 o'clock the war was over and everyone was relaxing, some alseep and others with other pastimes.

under the open bell tower during the rainy spell. While he pressed his unsure fingers on the buckled plywood surface, that old longing urge did not come to him. Breathing was easier for him and he pulled his shoulders erect in the desk.

The paddle hit the floor with a splintering crash and he turned to sharpen his pencil. Somehow he felt better and while the man outside grinned the afternoon away, Maretti smiled to himself.

cies were noted here and there, especially in the horn section, the rendering was a most polished, professional one. In the second movement, the strings could hardly have been better, and the fine brass chorus really came into its own in the final Allegro non troppo.

The highlight of the evening in the opinion of this author, was played after the intermission. The Barber "Essay" was, both in thematic material and in development, deeply moving and highly pleasurable. The strings showed a high degree of virtuosity here as did the woodwinds.

In the final number, Tschaikowsky's Cappricio Italien, sunny both in inspiration and orchestration, the audience was able to sit back and simply enjoy the music. This is not profound music, but it is most voluptuous.

Dr. J. D. Phillips Is Baccalaureate Speaker for '62

The Rev. James Davison Philips, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Decatur, Ga., will begin PC's June Commencement exercises with the delivery of the baccalaureate address. The sermon is to be given on Sunday, June 3, at 11:0 0o'clock in the Belk Auditorium.

Dr. Philips, who will also receive an honorary doctor of divinity degree, is a former Presbyterian College trustee, and is presently serving on the board of Agnes Scott College. He has held his present pastorate since 1954.

Earlier he served the Thomasville, Ga., First Church for four years after three years as assistant pastor of the Atlanta First Church. An honor graduate of Hampden Sydney College in 1940 and of Columbia Theological Seminary, he received his Ph.D. from the University of Edinburgh. He spent three years as a U. S. Navy chaplain during World War II. This Tallahassee, Fla, native was named moderator of the Synod of Georgia in 1961 and currently serves as chairman of the Synod's Council.

EDUCATIONAL TV: ITS CAUSE AND CURE

A great deal of nonsense has been written about educational television. Following is my contribution:

It has been said that television allots no desirable viewing hours to educational and intellectual programs. This is simply not so. For instance, you can see "The Kant and Hegel Hour" every day at 4 a.m. This excellent show is followed at 5 a.m. by "Kierkegaard Can Be Fun." For such lazy scamps as lie abed beyond that hour, there is a splendid program on Sunday mornings at 7:15 called "Birds of Minnesota, Except Duluth."

So much for the myth that TV gives no prime time to educational programs. Now let us deflate another canard: that TV is not eager to inject intellectual content in all its programs.

If you have sat, as I have sat, with a television planning board, you would know that the opposite is true. I was privileged recently to witness a meeting of two of TV's topmost program developers—both named Binkie Tattersall.

"Binkie," said Binkie to Binkie, "if there is one thing I am bound and determined, it's that we're going to have intellectual content in next season's programs."

"Right!" replied Binkie. "So let us put on our thinking caps and go to work."

"I forgot my thinking cap in Westport," said Binkie, "but I have a better notion: let us light a Marlboro."

"But of course!" cried Binkie. "Because the best way to think is to settle back and get comfortable, and what is the cigarette that lets you settle back and get comfortable?"

"I said Marlboro," answered Binkie. "Weren't you listening?"

"A full-flavored smoke is Marlboro," declared Binkie.

"Rich tobacco, pure white filter, a choice of pack or box. What is better than a Marlboro?"

"A Marlboro and a match," replied Binkie. "Got one?"

Binkie had, and so they lit their good Marlboros and settled back and got comfortable and proceeded to cerebrate.

"First of all," said Binkie, "we are going to avoid all the old clichés. We will have no domestic comedies, no westerns, no private eyes, no deep sea divers, no doctors, and no lawyers."

"Right!" said Binkie. "Something offbeat."

"That's the word—offbeat," said Binkie.

They smoked and cerebrated.

"You know," said Binkie, "there has never been a series about the Coast and Geodetic Survey."

"Or about glass blowers," said Binkie.

They fell into a long, torpid silence.

"You know," said Binkie, "there's really nothing wrong with a cliché situation—provided, of course, it's offbeat."

A Cowboy, a deep sea diver with a law degree plays an M.D.

"Right!" said Binkie. "So let's say we do a series about a guy who's a family man with a whole bunch of lovable kids who play merry pranks on him."

"Yeah, and he's also a cowboy," said Binkie.

"And a deep sea diver," said Binkie.

"With a law degree," said Binkie.

"Plus an M.D.," said Binkie.

"And he runs a detective agency," said Binkie.

"Binkie," said Binkie to Binkie, "we've done it again!"

They shook hands silently, not trusting themselves to speak, and lit Marlboros and settled back to relax, for Marlboro is a cigarette not only for cerebration, but for settling back with—in fact, for all occasions and conditions, all times and climes, all seasons and reasons, all men and women. © 1962 Max Shulman

George C. Bellingrath Will Retire From Academic Deanship In June

Concluding an extensive career in education and the ministry, Presbyterian College's academic dean, Dr. George C. Bellingrath, has formally announced his plans to retire in June.

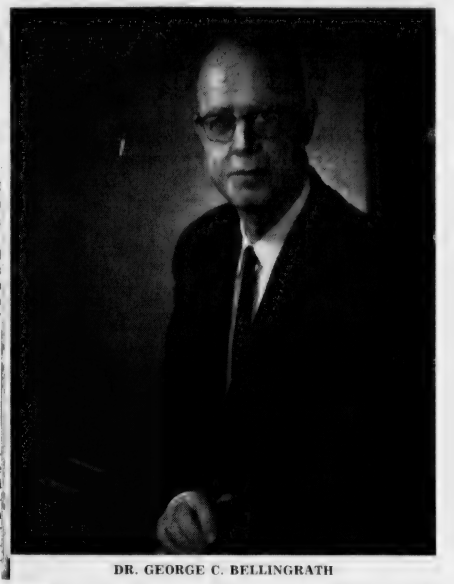
Since coming here in January of 1947, Dr. Bellingrath has played an integral part in the college program. Besides acting in his capacity of academic dean, he also serves as professor in education and psychology.

Dr. Bellingrath has also been instrumental in innovating several changes in school procedure.

During Dr. Bellingrath's deanship, the major-minor system has been altered considerably. The former practice of a 24-hour major and an 18-hour minor has given way to a 30-hour major plus any number of related or associated subjects. This enables students to obtain a better preparation for graduate school.

Since 1952 each succeeding Freshman class has shown a marked improvement in terms of academic ability as shown by entrance examination scores.

In 1939 the grade point system was revised from a 3 point system to a 4 point system. This was part of a national trend to improve the current grading system by making it uniform throughout the country. Many schools have not yet made this change.



After his retirement Dr. Bellingrath plans to remain in Clinton and write a book on the New Testament. He also hopes to teach Bible in some of the area churches.

Asked what he would do with his remaining time, he revealed plans for "converting a certain two acres into the most fruitful nursery in this part of the state."

A native of Atlanta, Dr. Bellingrath received his BA degree from Davidson College in 1918, his BD degree from Union Theological Seminary in Richmond in 1923, and his Ph.D. from Columbia University in 1928. In 1936 he was recognized by Who's Who in America.

Prior to joining the Presbyterian College staff in January, 1949, Dr. Bellingrath was president of Rabun Gap-Nacoochee School in Georgia for ten years. He previously had served Piedmont College of Demorest, Ga., as dean from 1934 to 1936 and then as president, 1936-39.

Much of his early career was spent in this capacity as an ordained Presbyterian minister. He served pastorates in Chattanooga, Tenn., and Flushing, N. Y., before directing religious education for the Synods of Georgia and South Carolina (1928-30), and followed this position with four years in the pulpit of the Westminster Presbyterian Church of Richmond, Va. He went to Piedmont College from Richmond.

Wilson, Traynham, Cobb Elected To Fill Remaining S C A Offices

• Helwig Names Cabinet

Wednesday's elections saw Christine Wilson, Linda Traynham, and Ike Cobb elected to the offices of president, secretary, and treasurer of the Student Christian Association, respectively. On the previous Wednesday, May 20, Grif Helwig, a junior from Tampa, Fla., was elected to the office of president.

Christine, a junior from Monroe, N. C., served last year as Secretary of the SCA, and previously was on the Freshman Cabinet. She is a member of the Sophomore Honor Society.

Linda is a sophomore from Laurens. She was on the dean's list last semester with a perfect grade-point ratio of 4.0.

Ike, a freshman from Decatur, Ga., is president of the pledge class of Kappa Alpha Order. He previously served as President of the Freshman Cabinet.

Wednesday night following the elections, the newly elected officers met with President Helwig, and appointed the following cabinet:

Intramurals—Gene Goodwyn.
Knapsack—Leon Bullard.
REW—John Henderson, Harold Hope.
Projects—Hugh Harris, Keith Robinson.
Chapel Programs—Ken Davis
Freshman Advisor — Tom Currie-
Publicity-Public Relations — Glen Browder, Bill Megathlin.
Freshman Orientation—Sam Clayton.

Miller's 'The Crucible' Is Story of Witch Trials

The PC Fine Arts Film series is proud to announce, as its second presentation, the celebrated French film, "The Crucible," on Monday, April 2nd, at 8 p. m. in Belk Auditorium. Admission will be twenty-five cents.

Adapted for the screen in 1957 by Jean-Paul Sartra, the film is based on Arthur Miller's explosive drama of the Salem, Mass., witch trials. An outstanding cast includes Yves Montand as John Proctor, Simon Signoret as Elizabeth Proctor, Mylene Demongeot as Abigale Williams, and the film's director, Raymond Rouleau, as the deputy governor. The village of Salem as it was in 1692 was recreated for the film after exhaustive historical research.

The New York Times writes of the film that it "comes forth as a part of timeless drama of the unwholesome corruption of a painfully restricted social group. It is a piercing penetration of all intellectual might."

The film is being secured from one of the best film libraries available and is guaranteed to be in excellent condition. It is a French film with English subtitles. A U. P. A. color cartoon, "Captain's Outrageous," will also be shown.

Senior Placement

Seniors should contact Mrs. Watts, Secretary to the Dean of Students, in the administration building for appointments for job placement interviews.

April 4—U. S. Public Health Service.

Chapel Services

Monday—Student Devotional; student body meeting.

Wednesday — Worship Service.

Friday—NO CHAPEL.

Tuesday Labs Will Meet on Thursday

Academic Dean George C. Bellingrath has announced that Tuesday afternoon, April 3, labs will be held Thursday afternoon, April 5. This postponement is to allow for the ROTC Federal Inspection to be held Tuesday, April 3.

Med School College Day

Wake Forest College's Bowman Gray School of Medicine in Winston Salem, N. C., will sponsor its annual College Day program Saturday, April 14, both for college students who are seriously considering the study of medicine and for their college pre-medical advisers. Interested students should make reservations prior to April 6 with Dr. A. B. Stump, Department of Biology.

Jacobs to Teach College Class of Sunday School

A distinguished PC graduate will begin to teach the First Presbyterian Church's College Class next Sunday at 10:00 A. M. He is Mr. Hugh Jacobs, church elder, partner in Jacobs Brothers Printing Co., and great-grandson of PC's founder.

Coffee and doughnuts will be served beginning at 9:30 in the classroom, which is situated just behind the main sanctuary.

CHARLES GLENN GAMBRELL

Gambrell Is Named Graduation Speaker

Charles Glenn Gambrell, vice-president of the Irving Trust Company of New York City, will deliver the commencement address at the graduation exercises on Sunday, June 3. He is also to be the recipient of an honorary Doctor of Laws degree which will be awarded at that time.

Mr. Gambrell is a native of Belton, having attended the Belton schools and Furman University where he received his B. A. degree. His graduate work was taken at the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration.

Mr. Gambrell, his three brothers, and his sister are all listed in Who's Who in America, while his sister and also his wife are included in the Women's Who's Who.

What About Physical Education?

PC is engaged in a building program that will greatly expand its facilities and curriculum in the next few years. Yet, we've heard of no plans to plug a gaping hole in the present program which will grow larger when the college's dreams of expansion become realities: the need for a required course in physical education.

WHY HAVE PHYSICAL EDUCATION?

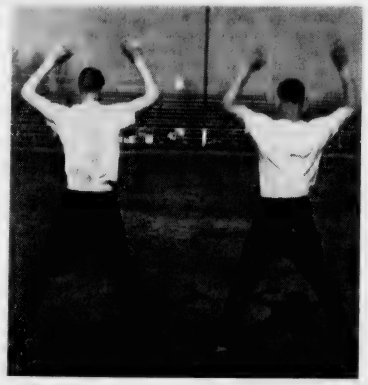
"Believing that the ideal education is physical as well as mental, Presbyterian College supports an extensive program of intercollegiate and intramural athletics." This statement begins the section on athletics in the 1962-63 catalogue, as well it should. Most accredited colleges, even those the size of PC, require a course in physical education for graduating, some two years of it. The attitude that "Some people are scholars and some are athletes," evades the fact that every person is a mechanism whose mental effectiveness is determined in part by his physical health and conditioning.

INADEQUACY OF THE PRESENT PROGRAM

The college's intercollegiate and intramural programs serve their purpose of providing competitive competition for those who are interested, but providing basic training for 100 per cent of the students is not within their scope.

The administration's argument that practically all of the students participate in intramurals is misleading. Perhaps most students do take part in this program, but for many, this is only in one sport, once a week, for a month or two. Those who do participate extensively receive neither adequate coaching and training in body conditioning.

The college physician states that most of the large number of injuries in intramural games can be attributed to poor conditioning. Occasional heavy exertion for an uncondtiioned person breaks down his endurance more than it builds it up.



In short, neither program provides adequate instruction in physical fitness for 100 per cent of the student body.

A SUGGESTED PROGRAM

What PC needs is a required course in physical education to meet three times per week and give 1½ semester hours credit which would provide not just regular exercise, but training in basic body fitness that would benefit one after he had completed the course. At least two semesters should be required for graduation.

Two phases should be emphasized jointly; body upkeep through exercise and participation in team sports.

The program would well include swimming, weight lifting, touch football, basketball, softball, track, and perhaps tennis.

Such a program could best be fitted into the curriculum during the sophomore year since most students take seventeen hours instead of eighteen at this time.

OBSTACLES TO BE OVERCOME

Adequate locker space would have to be obtained. Lockers in the gym are scarce. There would also be the need for good equipment for the classes, quite a lot of it.

The present coaching staff is not large enough to spare any of its members to teach classes. A specialist in physical education who would devote full attention to the program would fill the bill.

Some problems would probably arise in trying to fit the classes into an already crowded curriculum of required courses, but is physical education any less important than Bible, English, or science in the liberal arts education? If the administration thinks so then their statement in the catalog is almost like saying "Journalism is an important part of every student's education, therefore we have a student newspaper.," and having a news paper staff of fifteen students.

The last, or perhaps the first, hurdle would be funds. Equipment, lockers, and instructors are not always bestowed on the college that wants them the most.

It can rightly be said that "Right now we don't have the money," but when will we have?

Unless plans for setting some funds from campaigns aside for such a program are begun, the answer is never. Never, unless some benevolent soul donates a sizable sum for that purpose. Don't count on it.

HOW SOON COULD WE EXPECT RESULTS?

The answer to that question depends on how soon we want them. It is not inconceivable that one could be set up by next year, but in the words of Athletic Director Ehrhardt, who holds a degree in physical education, "A poor physical education program is worse than none." So the question is whether to make an attempt in the near future or to wait until a really well organized program is possible. We must start somewhere and somewhere seems to be by beginning a fund for physical education from the proceeds of the present campaign.

One final consideration is that it now appears that PC will have several hundred coeds within the next five years. For college coeds physical education is not even a recommended option, it is an absolute necessity.

A Study of Profiles

by Spectator O. Birdbrain

While watching my favorite programs the other day (Captain Kangaroo and the riot of re-runs of the week) I started thinking, which is a perverted pastime I participate in on occasion.

Anyway, I started thinking about when Television first started. In those days a tremendous to-do was made about the necklines of Lady Performers, and several enjoyed brief careers merely on the strength of their frontal exposure, which shows how primitive things were in those days.

Personally I think American men spend too much time thinking about women's cleavage. In fact a number of basic industries have been developed solely to exploit this phenomenon.

Industries such as Advertising, Publishing, Scrabble (Young ladies have to lean forward in order to see the words spelled out on the board. Never thought of that, did you? Or did you?) Sunbathing, Marriage, Croquet, (Same as Scrabble, only more so.), Venetian Blind Making, Drive-In Theatres, Renting of Dark Cor (A Hertz business enterpr Miss Elvinia Snodgrass, Elev Manufacturing (Who designs vators? Men. Why are they small? Aha!), Binoculars, etc.

I'm not sure this is ell morally or economica healthy. An overdevelopmen any other part of a woma such as huge ears or gigan elbows—would be conside freakish. And after all, a glu ular condition which might described as Elephantiasis the Decolletage is no guaran that a woman is desirable.

Or even honest! I hate to tion this as it's not well kn but I have heard that many dies who normally have a pr like Jerry Lewis are forced insert teensy bits of padding and there in their costumes in der to attract masculine adm tion. Unfortunately this is 100 cent effective.

Chestiness in women seems appeal to the visual rather t the tactile senses of the male you're under eighteen years age do not look up "Tactile the dictionary). Most men d seem to care whether or women are actually built they look. They're satisfied women look liike they're built they look.

ABOLISHING COMPULSORY CHAPEL

At the risk of becoming unpopular, I feel it my duty to argue against the abolishing of compulsory chapel. If compulsory chapel were abolished, one can judge from the concerts and other such optional affairs, that chapel would have to be entirely abolished from lack of support.

The abolition of chapel would mean only about half as much exercise for most students, and everyone knows that a well developed, healthy body is the secret to good mental development. Moreover, grades could not help going down if this central time of study were eliminated.

We should consider also the effect on the student's health that would result from eliminating such an opportunity for rest. The rest is especially important during Monday chapel after the weekend. Where else would one find time in an already too crowded schedule to read one's mail and hometown newspaper?

The most important aspect to be considered, however, before abolishing chapel is the cost. Abolition of chapel eventually will mean higher tuition for the student and more difficult financing for the administration. Without compulsory chapel, we will no longer have a captive audience before whom our wealthy and influential speakers can be flattered and allowed to feel their importance.

I believe it would therefore be most foolish to abolish compulsory chapel.

Yours,
Isaac Bickerstaff

Racqueteers Run Hot In Florida Before Losing To Princeton, Miami

• Team Improving Rapidly

The Presbyterian College tennis team dropped their second straight match of their Florida tour as they were defeated by the University of Miami 7-1. The day before the Hose had dropped their match with Princeton, one of the top tennis teams in the East, by the score of 7-2.

The lone victor in the Miami match for PC was number five man, Dave Greenslade, who defeated Wright of Miami 6-3, 5-7, 6-2. Ed Caviness and Bill Stone also made good showings for the Hose although each lost in two sets. Miami's number one man, Karabasz, who defeated Tony Wilson 6-1, 6-0, is one of the top collegiate players in the country.

In the Princeton match the PC victories both came in the doubles. Frampton and Wilson of PC defeated Williams and Thompson of Princeton 7-5, 6-3. This was not the number one doubles team for Princeton as Williams played number six in the singles and Thompson did not even play singles. Elliott and Caviness defeated Princeton's number two doubles team 4-6, 7-5, 6-2. Caviness was the only PC player to carry his singles match to three sets before losing.

In their first match of their seven-day Florida tour the Blue Hose tennis team defeated the Naval Academy 9-1. The Hose were forced to battle back in several of the matches to gain wins. Their only loss came in the number three doubles match in which PC's Tyson and Sheffield fell before Coester and Combs of Navy 6-4.

On Monday the Hose defeated the Seminoles of Florida State 6-3.

The Hose next narrowly defeated the Florida Gators 5-4 as most of the matches went to the third set.

Coach Warden said that he was proud of the brand of tennis that the team was playing on the tour and that they were improving with every match. They are expected back late Sunday night.

Beat Rival Citadel Last Friday, 5-4

by Harold Hope

The Presbyterian College tennis team took its first victory of the season last Friday as they came back from a 3-3 tie at the end of the singles matches to defeat the Citadel 5-4.

This was a big win for the team because it was this same team of Cadets that beat PC in the State Tournament by an identical score of 5-4 last year.

Another important aspect of this win was that the PC doubles teams won the deciding matches. PC has needed to gain more confidence in the doubles in order to be a stronger team, and this may have provided just that.

It was the number one and three doubles teams of Wilson and Frampton, and Greenslade and Hope that won their matches almost simultaneously to give PC the match. Elliott, Caviness, and Greenslade came through with valuable wins in the singles to set the stage for the doubles victories.

Track Team Wins Season's Opener With Pembroke

by Mike Smith

Presbyterian College took 10 out of 15 first places Friday to defeat Pembroke College 86-45 in a track and field meet here.

The high individual scorer for the meet was Curley Locklear of Pembroke, with 19 points. Locklear was followed by Sandy Hagood, Dennis Kirk, and Knot Culpepper of Presbyterian, with 10 points each.

Culpepper, a transfer student from South Georgia Junior College, lived up to his pre-saeson prediction of being an outstanding trackman as he won both the 220 and 440-yard dashes.

Baseballers Beat Cornell For First Win of Season

by Ed Clowdis

The Presbyterian College baseball team took their first victory of the season yesterday, as they defeated the Cornell team 10-9. Earlier in the week the Hose had dropped two games, one to Erskine and the other to Guilford.

The Hose drew first blood in their game with Cornell as they scored four runs in the bottom of the first inning. Tommy Williams and Jimmy Elliott blasted back to back tripies and Cole Hatch followed with a double to lead this early attack.

The score was tied up by Cornell in the fifth inning as they scored four runs off of starting pitcher Gordon Timmons. Paul Love relieved Timmons in this inning and finished the game for the Hose, getting credit for the win. The score see-sawed back and forth until the bottom of the ninth inning found the Hose down 9-7. PC rallied in the bottom of the ninth for three runs and the victory.

In the Hose 13-9 loss to Guilford Timmons started on the mound for PC and was relieved by Louis Ridinger in the sixth. Leading the Hose attack in this game were Rudy Hamrick and Cole Hatch.

In the 8-5 Little Four loss to the Flying Fleet of Erskine the Hose were led at the plate by Rudy Hamrick and Leland Vaughn. Paul Love was the starting and losing pitcher for PC. He was relieved first by Jimmy Cape in the fourth inning and then Gordon Timmons came on in the sixth to finish up the game.

A Job Well Done

As the spring sports season moves into full swing, everyone leaves the books and the dormitory for the outside to participate as spectators in the varied sports events scheduled on campus. It was a gratifying sight to see such good crowds of students at the tennis match, track meet, and baseball games recently. As usual the tennis match seemed to be the top drawer.

For those of you who are new to the Presbyterian College campus this year, the many improvements being made on the tennis courts especially for the spectator will not mean as much as they do to those of us who have been here in seasons past. In the past students would continually be coming up during the matches and want to know the score in this match or that one or how PC was standing as to matches won. It was always difficult to find someone who knew how everything was coming at that particular moment. If you had been watching the number one singles match, you did not know how the matches at the other end of the courts were going and vice versa.

Now as soon as everyone catches on to the scoring method which Coach Warden has introduced, which is not all that difficult anyway, they will have no trouble finding out the score of any of the matches which are being played. One only needs to count the white sticks, which stand for games, and the red sticks, which stand for sets, hanging on each court under the respective teams in order to find out the score of that particular match. Then to find out the team score as to matches won and lost, one merely looks to the bright green scoreboard located in front of the number three court.

Another interesting feature of the match last Friday was the introduction of the players in their order of play prior to the start of the matches. Coach Warden and his crew of students have put in a lot of time and effort to make the tennis matches more interesting to the students, and they deserve a great deal of praise from us all.

While we are on the subject of improvements to the tennis matches from the spectator's point of view, we would like to make a couple of suggestions. It would be most appreciated if some form of bleachers could be arranged for the Douglas House side of the courts or along the parking lot end of the courts for the many spectators watching the number one and number two matches. A set of portable bleachers would eliminate the necessity of dragging the chairs from the game room of the Douglas House out into the yard. These chairs are treated bad enough without this outdoor use. Another thing which is most revolting at times is the presence of trash cans in the middle of the spectator area between courts three and four. There must be some neater and cleaner way of collecting the trash at this point.

Let's also remember that tennis is a gentleman's game and this includes YOU the spectator as well as the players. There should be as little noise as possible while play is going on and clapping should be heard only for a good shot or play, of either team, and not for a mistake of the visitors. There should be no yelling at any time. We are all guilty of this, so let's try to remember these few ideas while we are watching the matches.

Linksters Down Citadel

by Bill Loeble

The Blue Hose linksters returned to their expected winning form yesterday as they took a narrow victory from Citadel 14-13. The match went right down to the last green, as Clotfelter and Acker came through with clutch points. The entire team seemed to come into its own as Clyburn of PC and Dick Horn of Citadel were co-medalists with 74s.

Earlier in the week the Hose golfers came closer to defeating the Furman team than they have in a long time as they lost 15½-11½.

The PC golfers also dropped earlier matches to the University of South Carolina and Mercer. In the USC match the Hose were overpowered 26-1 as Frank Sells was medalist for PC with a 75.

Fees Give Revealing Graph Of Presbyterian Student Life

How time flys! And the good American dollar flies with it.

The students of Presbyterian College next year will pay a total fee of $1395 as compared with $1195 for the present academic year. In comparison with past years, this fee is outstanding.

In 1899 the cost of an entire year at PC was only $205. This cost included forty dollars board for the nine-month period and books and laundry at about $15. The fees quoted here apply only to the students who could afford the more luxurious rooms on the campus. The charge was $120 less for the lads who boarded with the professors.

The scene changes to the year 1916, where the fee has jumped to the preposterous sum of $233. Included in this total was a medical fee of $5, a library fee of $2, and a gym fee of $2.50. An athletic fee of $5 was charged to provide a ticket to the student to all athletic events at home.

The students of the 1916 era were blessed with the comparative privilege of boarding in the six-year-old Spencer dormitory for a fee of $48 a year for two rooms, and $40 a year for "one double sized room." As the catalogue for that year states, the price actually included "steam heat, lights, water and janitor service."

It is interesting to note the damage or breakage fee for that year, 1916, was fifty cents. Students must have become quite rowdy during the Prohibition era, the total fee for the year, 1928, was between $450 and $475. Included in this fee was a $50 maintenance fee. The boys must have really gone wild! Individual meters were installed for each student, and the student was made to pay the light and water bill weekly to the City of Clinton.

The "golden ear of the twenties" must have boosted sports, for the athletic charge for 1928 was $10. Of course, the gym fee was excluded in this prelude to the "great collapse."

The charges for 1954 more than doubled those of 1928 and amounted to a total of $848. The yearly total has gradually increased since then and in 1959 rose to $1115.

This year prosperity reigns and the fees have almost tripled the $450 figure of 1928. The one statemnt that remains completely unchanged every year is the one found in the Presbyterian College catalogue. It states, "Presbyterian College is located in Clinton, a progressive little city of 8,000 in the heart of the South Carolina Piedmont."

Britt Spann Gets NSF Study Grant

Britt Spann has recently been awarded a fellowship for summer study by the National Science Foundation. The award is valued at $900 plus tuition, and Spann will do his summer study at Clemson, where he is now working toward an M. S. in mathematics.

Spann, a 1961 graduate of PC, was the only Clemson student to receive the NSF summer study award this year. He majored in mathematics here and was a member of Alpha Sigma Phi fraternity.

Profiles

There are a number of theories as to why we American men tend to idealize the embonpoint. Dr. Kitzenger says it's caused by an atavistic pride in the fact that homo sapiens is the superior mammal.

Mrs. Schwine says it's because so many of us were bottle babies.

Dr. Schwine thinks the Over-developed Front symbolizes the matriarchy we live in and that men subconsciously worship it as evidence of their need to be dominated by women (and he should know).

Miss Elvinia Snodgrass has an interesting theory: She believes this masculine preference for the Bravura Torso has some connection with the fact that most people with large chests are women.

This seems to make more sense than anything else. But who knows?

Presbyterian Robed Choir Leaves Wednesday on Annual Spring Tour

Dr. Edouard Patte, conductor of the Presbyterian College Robed Choir, will take his twenty-nine-man choir on the annual spring tour through Georgia, Florida, and South Carolina.

The tour, which includes seven performances, begins Wednesday night, April 11, with a concert in Waycross, Ga. The tour then continues as follows:

April 12, P. M.—Winter Park, Fla.
April 13, P. M.—Bradenton, Fla.
April 15, A. M.—Fort Lauderdale, Fla.
April 15, P. M.—Fort Lauderdale, Fla.
April 16, P. M.—Sanford, Fla.
April 17, P. M.—Barnwell, S. C.

The well-known choir has previously presented twenty-one concerts during the school year in South Carolina and Georgia.

Using "The Gifts of God" as the theme for their religious program, the choir presents thirteen numbers, most of which are sung a-capello. The variety of music used is for the purpose of making each performance an experience of spiritual meaningness in religious worship. Preceding each song is a relevant scripture reading, done by one of the choir members.

The following music will be used at each program presented on the tour: "Spacious Firmament," "Arise," and "A Mighty Fortress," "Immortal Invisible," Bless the Lord," "Grant Us to Do With Zeal," "Wasn't Dat Ah Mighty Day," "Low How a Rose E'er Blooming," "Take My Mother Home," "Salvation Is Seated," "Balm In Gilead," "Welsh Chorale," "My Shepherd Will Supply," "Let God

These numbers feature two soloists. Bob Morris sings a solo in "Take My Mother Home." Another soloist in the same song (which is a nice trick if you can have two soloists in one song) is Gary Millwood. Millwood also has a solo in the Welsh Chorale. Readers for the choir are Wirt Skinner, Jack Greene, Graham Edmunds, and Paul Woodall.

Officers for the group are: Graham Edmunds, president; Paul Woodall, vice-president; Bobby Piephoff, treasurer; Tom Currie, secretary; and Wilton Hazelwood, custodian.

The choir travels approximately 5,000 miles each year and is completely self-supporting. They are well-known and appreciated throughout the Southland from Washington, D. C., to Florida, and from North Carolina to Louisiana.

Elders Named President Of BEA; Plans Listed

At the last meeting of the Business Economics Association the officers for 1962-1963 were elected. Ted Elders from Valdosta, Ga., President; Bill Bryan from Bainbridge, Ga., Vice-President; and Phil Smith from Gainesville, Ga., Secretary-Treasurer. Mr. John L. Madden was re-elected as the club sponsor.

The club has some big plans for the rest of the school year. April 12th the club will hold its annual banquet, with Dr. James Morris, head of the Economics Department at the University of South Carolina, as guest speaker.

Persons not members of the club and interested in attending the banquet may obtain tickets from any of its officers.

Eight Juniors Tapped By Scabbard and Blade

The National Military Order of the Scabbard and Blade tapped eight new men for membership at the conclusion of last Tuesday's drill ceremonies. They are Robert ert Piephoff, Paul Woodall, Pete Yearout, Marshall Jones, Alex Bosserman, Joe Harvard, Bill Bartee, and Gene Goodwin. Officiating the tap-in was Cadet Captain Heyward Nettles, local commander of the group.

Hope, Henderson Elected Top Officers of State WF

Harold Hope and John Henderson, both rising seniors, were elected to the highest offices of the Synod of South Carolina Westminster Fellowship at the annual conference last weekend.

Hope, a native of Union, was elected moderator of the Synod Council. As such, he will be a member of the General Assembly's Youth Council, composed of representation from sixteen states. Henderson, of Miami, was elected vice-moderator.

Camp Harmony, near Manning, was the scene of this conference, which was attended by eleven PC students. Local WF advisor, Professor R. E. Fakkema, and Professor Tommy Stallworth accompanied the group.

The theme of the conference was "That They May Have Life," dealt with evangelism, specifically evangelism on the college campus. Rev. Al Dimmick of Atlanta, secretary of Evangelism for the Southern Presbyterian Church, was the featured speaker The talks and seminar discussion dealt with the nature, purpose, and need of evangelism.

It was a most stimulating and revealing study. Anyone interested in this subject is reminded that a report on the conference will be given Sunday evening at the WF meeting.

Others elected to the Synod Council include: Ida McCaskill, of Coker, secretary; Susan Snook of Winthrop, treasurer; Jim Anderson of USC, ecumenical relations chairman; and Kay Black of the College of Charleston, editor.

PAC SAC Elections Will Be Held This Wednesday

• Honor Code Change on Same Ballot

Pac Sac editor Frank Sells announced today names of the four juniors nominated for the top two positions on next years Pac Sac staff. Bobby Piephoff and Alex Bosserman are the candidates picked for the position of editor while Sammy Clayton and Loren Eagles will vie for the business spot.

Bosserman is from Waynesboro, Va., and is a member of Sigma Nu fraternity. Piephoff and Eagles are both members of the Alpha Sigma Phi fraternity and hail from Greenville and Florence, respectively. Clayton is a native of Greer and belongs to Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity

Voting will be Wednesday from nine until two o'clock in the Douglas House.

HONOR CODE CHANGE

Sonny Dubose, president of the Presbyterian College Student Council, announced this past Monday in chapel, that next Wednesday, April 11, a change in the Constitution will be voted upon.

According to Mr. Dubose, there would be a change in the Uniform Punishment Clause. At present there is no difference between lying, cheating or stealing as far as punishment goes. The Student Council feels that this is not right.

The Student Council change would follow the idea that there is a difference in gravity of offense and therefore there should be a difference in the punishment meted out. Any violation of the student honor system would be punishable by a minimum of two weeks suspension and a maximum punishment of automatic expulsion.

"This is not really a radical change," Mr. Dubose said, "but it will give the Council something to work with. It will leave room for interpretation of the crime committed."

PC Graduate Schwartz Gets NSF Study Grant

Maurice Schwartz, a graduate student at Vanderbilt University and last year's president of the PC student body, has recently been awarded a National Science Foundation Fellowship.

With this fellowship, Schwartz will spend less time teaching undergraduate students and will be able to conduct more research in his field of Quantum Mechanics.

Schwartz, who is presently attending Vanderbilt on a Woodrow Wilson Fellowship, graduated last June from PC where he consistently maintained a dean's list average. During his junior year here, he took a Standardized Organic Chemistry test and scored one of the top grades, 99 percentile.

Billy Tiller Will Return To PC As Assistant Coach

Mr. Billy Tiller, who formerly served as assistant to Coach Ehrhardt while completing some education courses here at PC in the fall of 1960, will return to PC June 15 to begin duties as assistant football coach and head baseball mentor. Athletic Director Clyde Ehrhardt announced that besides these duties Tiller will be in charge of the Blue Hose forward wall and also will instruct in physical education.

Tiller, who graduated from Presbyterian in the class of '55, has served Manning High School during the present school session in the capacity of athletic director and head coach of football and baseball. His coaching experience also includes three years at Hillcrest High near Sumter.

While he was a student here, Tiller was a star catcher in baseball, was president of the Society of Scabbard and Blade and was a member of the Blue Key.

Tiller's services at Hillcrest High were interrupted by two years service in the army. He is now a member of the South Carolina National Guard.

Tiller, who recently married the former Ruth Pate of Dalzell, comes from a strong PC family since his father and two brothers also attended PC.

THE BLUE STOCKING PRESENTS

Editorials : Features : Humor

Responsible Journalism

In April of 1960 word got out that no new tennis scholarships would be given for the following year and the Blue Stocking literally raised hell. Editorials blasted the administration and the athletic department and rabid letters to the editor filled the feature page for weeks as the stir spread to riots in front of Neville Hall and a hanging of former Athletic Director Frank Jones in effigy.

A Greenville News photographer attended one of the Blue Key sponsored rallies and the wire services spread the news all over the country while the administration's other half of the story that scholarships would be given after some of the six returning players graduated to keep six scholarship holders was lost in the shouting. But the students loved it. That month is still looked back on as the "Golden Age" of the Blue Stocking.

Recruiting outsanding players to fill the ranks of the graduating hasn't been easy this year since most people in the South thought that scholarships had been cut out altogether at PC and that tennis was being de-emphasized. The result of the Blue Stocking's campaign against injustices was to hurt tennis more than it helped it, largely because only half of the story was ever told.

The Sock was named All-American by the ACP that spring, however, and the grader commented on the forthrightness of the paper's stand on tennis. Perhaps this should be a lesson to succeeding editors to sharpen the sword and go to work on the administration's elusive crimes against the student body to win student approval and achieve All-American status, but we're not planning to turn the Sock into a weekly muckrake of half-told stories to do this even though we may joke about libel and muckraking on occasion.

The truth may not be as spectacular as half of it but we feel an obligation to state all of the facts and strive toward responsible journalism rather than irresponsible witch-hunting.

PC Can't Get Over "It"

"Say, D. P., I was just thinking about how sharp our coeds have begun to look lately. Watching them file by in the chow hall at supper tonight was really a joy."

"How long you say it's been since you had a date, P. C.?"

"Too long, D. P., let's face it, I want a date. Spring is here and the smell of women is in the air. I gotta have a date!"

So P. C. took off down the hall to see Ivan Shafted, a friend of his who had connections at one of the neighboring colleges.

He put a spit-shine on his brogans, trimmed his sideburns, put on his tailor-made knit suit with the ministerial club emblem on the pocket, and left to conquer Converse.

I wandered on down to philosophy class downtown and spent several blissful hours there before coming back to our humble abode. I'd been there only a minute or two when P. C. came bursting into the room, dived into the closet, and asked in a meek voice. "Did "it" follow me, D. P.?"

"Did what follow you, P. C.?"

"My date!"

"I don't see any sign of her, P. C., come on out and tell me what happened."

"D. P., she was a real lovely, a combination of Grendel's Dam and Frankenstein's Bride. She was broad everywhere a broad ought not to be broad. Man, I'll never go back even if I have to die single."

"Where did you take them, P. C.?"

"Well, we went to the flick first and saw 'Lover Come Bac.' Then Ivan suggested that we go to a B. S. U. weiner roast that was going to be held on Jacob's Hill. They liked the idea, so we went over there to find that there wasn't anybody out there but us."

Ivan smiled wickedly like Adams does on test days and said that he guessed the others would be along soon, so we had better wait there in the car."

"Then what, P. C.?"

"Well, D. P., I didn't take to the idea too hot. Before I could think how to get out of the car 'The Monster' had wrapped her arms around me in a modified Half-Nelson and cuddled up so close I could see the pupils of her eyes narrowing.

She squeezed me till my backbone started popping. Man, that wasn't a girl, that was an octopus. What arms!

I knew I had to get out fast, so I broke loose and climbed out the window. While I was running back to campus I heard her bellow, 'Lover Come Back'!"

Where Were You When The Lights Went Out

by Jim Barbour

For thirty-two minutes last night the campus (and as far as we know the complete surrounding area) was plunged into utter darkness. From 9:19 until 9:51 o'clock the campus was the scene of dark and sundry activity.

At 9:18 o'clock the student body was nestled all snug in their studies. The over-all picture was one of a typical week night on a busy college campus. I was in the Blue Stocking office working violently, along with several members of the staff, on this edition of the paper.

Scattered cries, whistles, and comments began to pour forth from the dorms. Assuming that the power failure was to be one of brief duration, the students' initial statements were tailored to that effect.

"Somebody cut the lights back on, a body can't shoot pool in the dark!"

A deep voice growled, "Let there be light."

A lone cherry bomb exploded on the plaza.

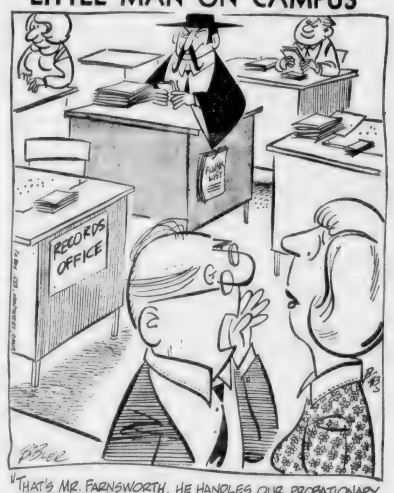
A shout echoed through the night, "It's a raid!"

The darkness remained without alteration for several minutes, and the spirits of the spirited began to fill with Dutch courage.

A bonfire burned higher and higher in front of Spencer Dorm. A red flashlight Dotted (?) the columns of Laurens, and converted brooms became torches of vengeance.

The cherry bombs boomed with constant regularity. From the din the statement was very audible, "Let's raid the Calvert House!!!"

A mass exodus commenced the direction of Hay's Hare The battle cry was heard in and clear—in harmony now—
—'Brighten the Corner Where Y Are . . ."



Four lively cadets donner th uniforms and stationed the selves on the street. As each c was stopped the driver was giv the cadets' explantaion for t darkness. I can hear him rig now. "We're under ballistic m sile attack. The entire nation in a state of blackout. Go to t nearest aid station."

Meanwhile . . . back at the Ca vert House. "We like co-eds, v like co-eds. We like pan-ties, v like pan-ties. Hang'um out t windows, girls."

Then as swiftly and as unex pectedly as the dark had com the darkness was no more. Pan raiders scattered; cadets sh uniforms; fireworks ceased; fir were extinguished: billiard ba clattered once more and studi were resumed.

But you may rest assured th for many days this question wi be asked around Presbyteria College: Where were you wh the lights went out?

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

"THAT'S MR. FARNSWORTH, HE HANDLES OUR PROBATIONARY STUDENTS AND MAILS OUT DEFICIENCY NOTICES."

ONE MAN'S OPINION

If there is anything I like about an all-male society, it's the freedom to say "damn" when I damn well please. To be a man at PC is like being an animal during the hunting season; you never know when you're safe. Have you ever had a very important and violent argument with a fraternity brother while walking through Neville Hall? Well, just about the time you break into very picturesque and poetic vernacular, you pass the center of the building and bang! there she sits, serenely perched on the little, concrete impersonal bench!

More than this invasion is whistling between classes. Darn it. I like to whistle, but when I blissfully walk along whistling a tune inspired by nothing more immediate than Wordsworth's sonnets or the prospect of pulling an "A" out of Dr. Stone, one of these creatures turns her capricious little head and gives me a look that can't be described here. I'd just love to say, "Look, you self-possessed, over-sexed, little wench, I wasn't whistling at you; I was whistling at Wordsworth." But that wouldn't sound right either.

But worst of all is sitting alone in the chow hall worrying about grades and finding yourself staring in the direction of a table filled with girls. One of them inevitably smiles and recrosses her legs. Now that is ridiculous. A man can't even think to himself.

Now if any of you girls have anything to say just write a better article. I'll remain incognito.

Racqueteers Roll On

JIM BARBOUR, Acting Sports Editor

The PC tennis team returned to campus from the Florida trip last week having made considerable improvement over this same trip of last spring. The Hose brought back an impressive record of six matches won and two lost, as compared with last spring when the squad dropped three of three matches.

The Blue Hose lost only to Miami and Princeton. Princeton is regarded as the strongest team in the east, and the University of Miami's lethal powerhouse has not tasted defeat since the spring of 1959 when the Blue Hose, on the campus, lowered the boom to that aggregation.

GREENSLADE LOST FOR SEASON

The loss of Dave Greenslade has been, and will continue to be strongly felt by the Hose. This season Greenslade, the number five man, had regained his effective style of play. He was the only undefeated member of the racket squad, and he was the only PC player to win a singles match against Miami.

The Hose climaxed Wednesday's victory over a worthy Harvard team by pulling a repeat performance yesterday.

WILSON WINS ON DESIRE

In Wednesday's match Tony Wilson, opposing Doug Walter, Harvard's number two man, displayed his usual uncanny skill along with a burning desire for victory. Down 5-4 in the final set, Wilson roared back to take the match 7-5. This match proved to be the deciding factor in the PC victory. Tony really gave the match everything he had. Hats off to a true competitor.

Thinclads Stun Emory 69-62

by Mike Smith

The Presbyterain College track team invaded Atlanta Tuesday and took a 69-62 victory over Emory University.

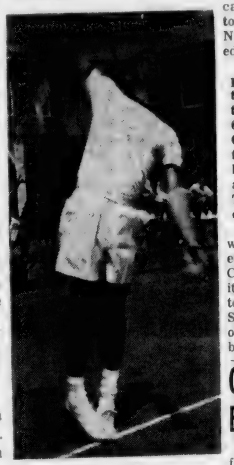
PC's winning record was maintained by anchor man Knot Culpepper in the mile relay. Culpepper overcame a 20-yard difference in the last lap to assure the Blue Hose a victory by 10 yards. Knot was last year's News-Piedmont Relays winner in both the 220 and 440 yard dashes, and his ability was proven again as he placed first in both events at Emory.

Presbyterian also took 7 other first places out of the 15 event meet, followed by 8 second and 2 third places. PC's high individual scorer was Culpepper with 11½ points, who was closely followed by freshmen Reg "Rafer" Awtry and Jack Green with eight points each. Awtry showed fine form as he placed first in the 880 and second in the 2 mile run. Green, performing in his first meet this year, placed first in the 120 high hurdles and second in the high jump.

The field events were dominated by PC's Ronnie Hampton, Jerry Usry, Dennis Kirk, and Donny Ross who all let Emory take only third place in the shot and first in the javelin.

Other members of the track team who placed in the meet were James Salvo, Bob Beddingfield, Byron Gentry, Sandy Haygood, Sid Acker, Rut Galloway, and George Lewis.

KNOT CULPEPPER



The Blue Hose will face Catawba in a home meet Monday afternoon at 2:30. The cancelled Lenoir Rhyne meet has been rescheduled for Monday, April 16. This meet will also be held here.

Wilson-Led Tennis Team Takes 2 From Harvard Before Home Crowd

• 5-4 Wednesday, 6-3 Thursday

by Harold Hope

The Presbyterian College tennis team defeated Harvard in two close matches by the scores of 5-4 and 6-3.

TONY WILSON

The Blue Hose played clutch tennis in the opening match and took two out of the three doubles matches to insure the 5-4 victory. Wilson, Elliott, and Caviness came away with hand-fought victories in the singles and then the No. 1 and 2 doubles teams clinched the match with their wins.

In the second match, the team played excellent tennis to capture four out of six singles and two out of three doubles for the 6-3 win. Wilson, Frampton, Caviness and Hope had wins in the singles while the No. 1 doubles of Wilson and Frampton and the No. 2 team of Hope and Tyson won their doubles matches.

A very strong Clemson team will come to PC on Tuesday to engage the Blue Hose. PC and Clemson are considered co-favorites to win the State Tournament to be held at Clemson Friday and Saturday of next week. Because of this the match Tuesday should be very interesting.

Week's Schedule

BASEBALL

Tuesday, April 12—Mercer University, Macon, Ga.

Saturday, April 14 — Erskine College, Clinton.

TRACK

Wednesday, April 11—Davidson at Davidson, N. C.

Friday and Saturday, April 13-14 — News - Piedmont Relays, Greenville.

GOLF

Monday, April 9—Wofford at Clinton.

Friday and Saturday, April 13-14—State Tournament, Hampton.

TENNIS

Tuesday, April 10—Clemson at Clinton.

Wednesday, April 11—Wofford at Clinton.

Friday and Saturday, April 13-14—South Carolina Tournament, Clemson.

Glovemen Fall To Belmont Abbey, 4-3

Wednesday the Blue Hose nine fought for eleven innings before bowing four to three to Belmont Abbey.

Gordon Timmons, Blue Hose moundsman, did a fine job, yielding only six hits to Belmont Abbey sluggers. The Hose, however, backed Timmons with only four hits.

Cole Hatch drove in two runs in the sixth inning, and PC scored its final run on a squeeze play in the seventh.

DuBose Signs With Steelers

Sonny DuBose, star lineman for the Presbyterian College Blue Hose for the past three years, has signed to play with the Pittsburgh Steelers of the National Football League. He signed a contract for very satisfactory terms.

His signing makes him the fifth Blue Hose gridman in the professional football ranks. Teammate Bobby Joiner earlier signed with the Green Bay Packers, while three other former PC gridmen played in the big time last season—Bob Waters with the San Francisco 49ers, Ken Webb with the Detroit Lions, and Bill Hill with Edmonton of the Canadian Football League.

DuBose, who served as co-captain of the Blue Hose last fall, also serves the college as a leader in many other phases of campus activity. As a first-stringer for three years, he played guard on the 1959 team that went to the Tangerine Bowl and again in the 1960 season before being shifted to tackle last season. He will be used as an offensive guard or defensive linebacker in the Steeler lineup when he reports to the training camp in July.

Military Dept. Does Well On Federal Inspection

Federal Inspectors visited the Presbyterian College campus and rated the PC cadet corps last Tuesday. The team of inspectors was headed by Col. Reed of Wake Forest College. He was assisted by Lt. Col. Wade of Furman University.

Tuesday morning the visitors viewed classroom procedure. They also inspected the general appearance of the military department facilities and reviewed department records and reports.

That afternoon, an individual inspection in ranks was held.

The inspectors stated that the general appearance and neatness of the cadets was good. They also commented favorably on the promptness and accuracy of answers given by individuals. The alertness was also termed good.

At the parade held following the inspection in ranks, the visiting officers chose Company C as the best in parade appearance. Company C was under the command of Cadet Lt. Dick McGaughey.

Commenting on the whole day the inspectors stated the PC ROTC unit presented an excellent apperance. There were no critical comments. The visitors said the over-all appearance of the college as a whole was very good for a college of its size.

Lt. Col. Ulrich, PMS, stated that he was very pleased with the inspection and parade and declared that it would be down hill the rest of the year.

PR's Elect Officers

Last Thursday the Pershing Rifles held their annual election of company officers. Pete Yearout was elected Company Commander and will hold a rank in the PR's of captain. Paul Woodall was elected company executive officer. Toby Garrett is the new platoon sergeant.

Composing the staff are Bill Bartee, S-1, Alex Bosserman, S-2, Loren Eagles, S-3, and Tommy Williams, S-4. All staff officers hold the rank of Second Lieutenant in the PR's.

The new officers will take their oath of office next Thursday.

Clinton Fund Drive Closes

Presbyterian College topped its goal Saturday in the first drive of its current fund-raising campaign with $314,150 raised in the local Clinton area. This is some $14,150 above the $300,000 goal in PC's hometown of 8,000 to provide funds for the first women's dormitory, Clinton Hall.

The local effort was launched in early March as a preliminary to the statewide program to get $1,800,000 for the college this spring.

Dr. Marshall W. Brown, president, said, "This is the greatest day in the history of Presbyterian." He also pointed out that this single effort in the Clinton area amounted to more than PC raised in both supporting synods of South Carolina and Georgia in its 1946 campaign.

Rev. Bob Martin Will Speak in Chapel Monday

Reverend Robert Martin, Jr., assistant to the president of Union Theological Seminary, will be the guest chapel speaker on Monday. At this time, he will seek to put to his audience a presentation of the oportunities and needs for leadership and service within the Church.

The Reverend Martin will be available Monday morning and afternoon to speak with any student who is considering a church-related vocation.

He, of course, will al glad to help with any per problems, and will be gl talk to anyone who is par larly interested in Union i nary.

Those wishing to make a pointment with Rev. M please sign at the appro time on the list which is o Mr. Stallworth's door (Do House 221).

CRAM COURSE NO. 2: BIOLOGY

The grisly shadow of final exams looms over us, so today in this column instead of merry quips and homely saws, you will find hard facts—quick cram courses to help you through the ordeal ahead.

Last week I gave you a rapid survey of Modern European History. Now let us turn to Biology.

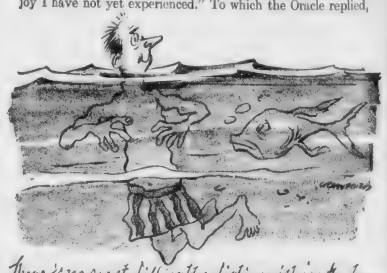
Biology is divided into several phyla, or classes. First is the protozoa, or one-celled animal. All life stems from the one-celled animal. Over a space of millions of years, life slowly evolved until today we have animals with as many as 12 cells. Some larger mammals claim they have 14 to 16 cells, but you know how larger mammals lie.



The second class of animals is the peripheras—a shadowy category that borders often on the vegetable. Take, for example, the sponge. The sponge is definitely an animal. The washcloth, on the other hand, is definitely not.

Next we come to the arthropoda, or insects. Most people, of course, find insects fairly repulsive—and yet, if one will but look, there is exquisite beauty in the insect world. Who does not remember the lovely insect poems of William Cullen Sigafoos—such enchanting lyrics as Tumbling Along with the Tumbling Tumblebug, Fly Gently, Sweet Aphid, and Gnats My Mother Taught Me. Mr. Sigafoos has been inactive since the invention of DDT.

Our next category is the mollusca—lobsters, shrimp, and the like. Lobsters are generally found under rocky projections on the ocean bottom. Shrimp are generally found in a circle around a small bowl containing cocktail sauce. Marlboro Cigarettes are generally found at any tobacco counter or vending machine.

What have Marlboro Cigarettes got to do with biology? Well, actually, not very much. It must be remembered, however, that the makers of Marlboro pay me for writing this column, and they are inclined to get surly if I fail to mention their product.

Mind you, I enjoy singing the praises of Marlboro—and so will you once you try that flavorful tobacco, that fine filter which lets the flavor come through undiminished. It is a great pleasure to smoke Marlboros and a great pleasure to write about them, but sometimes, I must confess, I find it a bit difficult to work the commercial into the column. Some years ago, for example, I did a piece about Alexander the Great, and, believe you me, it took a heap of stretching to drop in a plug for Marlboro. The way I finally managed it was to have Alexander go to the Oracle at Delphi and say, "Oracle, I have conquered the world and tasted all its pleasures, but somehow I am not content. I know that somewhere there must be a joy I have not yet experienced." To which the Oracle replied,

There is no great difficulty distinguishing the two

"Yes, Alexander, there is such a joy, but, alas, the time is not yet. I refer to Marlboro Cigarettes which will not be invented for another 2500 years." Whereupon Alexander fell into a sulk from which he never recovered . . . Well sir, there is no question I sold a lot of cigarettes with this ingenious commercial, but the gang down at the American Academy of Arts and Letters gave me a mighty good razzing, you may be sure.

But I digress. Back to biology, and the most advanced phylum of all—the chordata, or vertebrates. There are two kinds of vertebrates—those whose backbones run horizontally and those whose backbones run vertically. Generally, there is no great difficulty in distinguishing the two varieties. A fish, for instance, has a horizontal backbone, and a man has a vertical backbone. Occasionally, however, you run into a problem—like a fish who swims upright and a man who spends most of his time in the sack. How, in such a case, do you tell one from another? Science struggled with this sticky question for centuries, but finally Sigafoos of M.I.T. came up with a brilliantly simple answer. Offer the creature a Marlboro. If it is a fish, it will refuse. If it is Homo sapiens, it will accept. In fact, the more sapient, the quicker the acceptance.

© 1962 Max Shulman

The makers of Marlboro, upright vertebrates all, remind you that their fine cigarettes are available in pack or box wherever cigarettes are sold in any of the 50 states.

The Blue Stocking

Distinguished for Its Progress

Vol. XL Presbyterian College, Clinton, S. C., May 5, 1962 No. 20

Nine Juniors Tapped By Blue Key This Morning

Blue Key Honorary Fraternity selected eight new members in its annual spring tapping held this morning in Chapel. The new men, chosen on the basis of their leadership, service and character, include: Loren Eagles, Ted Elders, Joe Harvard, Grif Helwig, John Henderson, Harold Hope, Bobby Piephoff, and Paul Woodall, and Bill Bartee. Also tapped as an honorary member of the local Blue Blue Key chapter was Colonel A. J. Thackston, Dean of Students.

A member of Alpha Sigma Phi Fraternity, Loren Eagles has served this year's Blue Stocking as Sports Editor. A member of this year's Student Council, Eagles has been chosen Business Manager of the 1963 PaC SaC.

Ted Elders was this year's treasurer of the Inter-Fraternity Council and has been named president of his fraternity, Theta Chi, for next year. Elders will also be student manager of the canteen for next year and president of the BEA.

A three-year member of the Student Council, Joe Harvard is a member of Kappa Alpha Order. Recently tapped to Scabbard and Blade Military Fraternity, he is a letterman on the Hose basket squad.

Recently elected president of the Student Christian Association, Grif Helwig is also a member of Kappa Alpha Order. He is an English major and hails from Tampa.

John Henderson is a member of Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity and was recently chosen as vice-moderator of the statewide WF conference. Henderson is also in the running for president of the Student Body for next year.

A member of Kappa Alpha Order, Harold Hope is moderator of the state-wide WF conference. A three-year member of the Hose net squad, Hope is a chemistry major and plans to be a doctor.

A top ranking scholar in his class, Bobby Piephoff will edit the 1963 PaC SaC. A member of Alpha Sigma Phi, Piephoff is also Captain of the PC Scabbard and Blade Society.

President of the Robed Choir for next year, Paul Woodall appears to be a strong contender for next year's Student Body presidency. He serves as a proctor and is a member of the Pershing Rifles.

Bill Bartee is a member of Kappa Alpha Order and has been chosen as Secretary-Treasurer; Jan Rhodes and Tommy Williams are the Junior representatives. Bill Megathlin and Gary Crawford will represent the rising Sophomore class.

Paul Woodall is from Whiteville, N. C. John Henderson from Miami, Fla., is a member of the Mu Chapter of Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity. Joe Harvard from Columbia, is a member of the Kappa Alpha Order. Gary Brown, from St. Petersburg, Fla.; Loren Eagles from Florence, and Sammy Clayton, from Greer, were also nominated in the nominations of Wednesday, April 4.

Jan Rhodes, from Decatur, Ga., is a member of Alpha Sigma Phi Fraternity. Arthur McQueen, from Loris, is a member of Sigma Nu, and Tommy Williams, from Cantoma, Fla., is a member of Kappa Alpha Order. Mark Sullvian, from Kershaw; Bill Tyson, from Bainbridge, Ga.; and Aymar Manning, from Marietta, Ga., were also nominated Wednesday.

Bill Megathlin, from Miami, Fla., is a member of Alpha Sigma Phi Fraternity. Gary Crawford, from Greer, is a member of Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity. Ike Cobb, from Decatur, Ga., and Jere Ard, from Atlanta, were listed on the nominations ballot.

Council Will Supervise Athletic Program at PC

The creation of an Athletic Council to supervise the athletic program at Presbyterian College was announced Thursday by Robert M. Vance, chairman of the PC board of trustees.

The Clinton banker-industrialist pointed out the new to give broad representation among those areas of the college constituency most vitally concerned with the sports program — the faculty, alumni and trustees.

Vance named these eight members to serve on Presbyterian College's new Athletic Council:

Faculty representatives — Dr. Joseph Gettys, professor of Bible; Dr. Neill G. Whitelaw, professor of physics. G. Edward Campbell, business manager; Ben Hay Hammet, director of alumni and public relations; and Clyde Ehrhardt, athletic director.

Trustee representative—George H. Cornelson, Clinton textile executive.

Alumni representative — The president of the Alumni Association now Albert W. Brice, Greenwood oil distributor; and the president of the Walter Johnson Club, alumni athletic organization currently headed by Ross Templeton, Charlotte business leader.

Harvard, Henderson, Woodall Will Run For Council Presidency

• Council Posts Filled Today

The results of the Student Council elections held Friday, April 4, in the Douglas House are as follows:

Paul Woodall, John Henderson, and Joe Harvard were elected as Senior representatives.

On Wednesday, April 9, from 9 and 2 o'clock in the Douglas House the elections for President and Vice-President of the Student Council will be held. Paul Woodall, John Henderson and Joe Harvard are the candidates up for this office. The platforms of these three candidates are listed on the back page of this issue.

Choir Elects Officers, Closes Its Season

The Presbyterian College Robed Choir has called it a year. All of the official engagements have been met.

Under the direction of Dr. Edouard Patte, the choir toured through Georgia, Florida, and South Carolina while giving seven performances. They returned on April 19, just in time for spring holidays.

The last performance of the year was a 12:30 p. m. television preformance over WSPA-TV on Sunday, April 29 .The name of the program, which has featured a college of the Piedmont every Sunday, is College Spotlight. This program was the last one of its kind for the year.

The program began with an introduction by Prof. Earl B. Halsall of the PC Political Science Department. The choir then sang, "Bless the Lord," "Salvation Is Created," "Let God Arise," "Welsh Chorale," "Exodus," "Wasn't Dat A Mighty Day," and the Challengers finished out the program with renditions of "P. S. I Love You," "East Virginia," and "Wanderin."

Before singing at the Sanford Presbyterian Church on April 16, the choir held its election of officers for the school year 1962-63. Elected were: Paul Woodall of Whiteville, N. C., President; Wirt Skinner of Decatur, Ga., Vice-President; Tom Knox of Moultrie, Ga., Treasurer; David Worth of Raleigh, N. C., Custodian. Dt. Patte announced that next year's secretary will be Arthur DeYoung of Sanford, Fla., and that Jan Rhodes of Decatur, Ga., will be the chaplain.

Ministerial Club Elects Officers

The Ministerial Club met Wednesday evenin gand elected the officers for the 1962-63 school session. George Reaves was re-elected for the presidency for next year. Also named were Wirt Skinner, vice-president, Raymond Summerlin, treasurer, Raymond Humphries, chaplain, Don Warlick, historian, and Ralph Evan,s chairman for the Fellowship team.

Pi Kappa Phi Holds Annual Election

Last week the Beta Chapter of the Pi Kappa Phi fraternity held elections for the coming year.

John Dickerson of Blair, was elected Archon, and Steve Craig of Atlanta, was elected Treasurer. Don Mucci of Asheville, N. C., was elected Secretary. The Historian for the next year will be Richard Bullock of Eastman, Ga. Jerry Hammack of Moultrie, Ga., will be next year's Chaplain. John Donaldson of Nicholsville, Ky., will be the Warden, Sonny Ross of Augusta, Ga., will be the IFC Representative, and James Salvo of Summerville, was elected Intramural Advisor.

Owens to Head IRC

New officers for the International Relations Club were elected at a meeting of that organization last Wednesday night. These persons are: Jim Owens, President; Rebecca Earnest. Vice-President; and Keith Robinson, Secretary-Treasurer.

The recipient of the Mendenhall award was also chosen. This honor, which was confrered upon Marshall Jones, is given each year to the IRC member who has displayed most interest and put forth most work in club activities.

THE BLUE STOCKING PRESENTS

Rooftop Sunbathing

Mr. Beaty, the head of the maintenance department, requests students to refrain from sunbathing on the roofs of the dorms. The reason for this is very simple and reasonable. Money is being spent to repair the dorm roofs. A new roof has been put on Spencer and plans are underway for work to be done on the roofs of Laurens and Smythe, and in climbing back and forth on the roofs, students unknowingly increase the depreciation of the roofs, substrating from their longevity. These damages can be avoided if students will stay off the roofs.

Letter Jacket Season

With the recent descent of warm weather PC's two week senior letter jacket season came to a close a few days ahead of schedule. We do not contest the policy of reserving the jackets for seniors but would suggest that they receive them in September so that they may wear them all year rather than in late March with but two weeks of warm weather left.

Corrections . . .

It has been brought to the attention of the editor that the editorial "Responsible Journalism" in the last issue of The Blue Stocking made several statements which misrepresented the actual facts of the student protest in 1960 against the alleged removal of tennis scholarships.

The proposed corrections were as follows: (1) The term "riots" was poorly chosen for reference to the single student "meeting" that was held in front of Neville Hall. (2) This "meeting" was sponsored by the Blue Stocking, not the Blue Key. (3) Former Athletic Director Frank Jones was not hanged in effigy at this "meeting." (4) There was no photographer from the Greenville News at this "meeting." (5) Wire services communicated the news to the state of South Carolina rather than the whole country. (6) The administration was, in the opinion of the student leaders of the protest, given ample opportunity to express their answer through a published issue of an intreview with President Brown. (7) The Blue Stocking was not rated All-American in 1960, as the article stated,, but in 1959. It received a rating of "First Class" in 1960.

We feel it ironic that these statements should have appeared under the title "Responsible Journalism." The purpose of this editorial was not to open an old coffin and argue whether one side was right or wrong but rather to make a statement of policy and to contend that the handling of this affair hurt tennis recruiting. We still maintain both the policy and the contention.

Congratulations to Brother Bosserman on being elected President of the Inter-Fraternity Council.

Reminiscences of Friends and Relatives

by Spectator O. Birdbrain

In my day I've had some interesting friends and relatives.

Take Uncle Piep. He finished at PC in English, class of '08. For a time, Uncle Piep was a garbage collector. He didn't work of the Sanitation Department—he just liked to collect garbage. He discovered this unusual hobby through plain "dumb luck" (something Uncle Piep had plenty of.)

One day when leaving home for work he accidentally picked up a package of garbage, mistaking it for his lunch. Uncle Piep didn't realize his mistake until he got home that night and Aunt Maggie told him what had happened. (He had been suspicious when he ate a grapefruit rind stuffed with coffee grounds at the noon hour, but he figured Aunt Maggie had been getting recipes from TV again.)

From that time on Uncle Piep began to collect garbage systematically, even though most of the townspeople—mainly the ones next door—made disgusting comments such as "disgusting!", "unsanitary!", and "too revolutionary!"

Eventually, he found a use for his garbage. He saw a sign urging people to send CARE packages to our friends in Europe. So he took his garbage, made CARELESS packages and shipped them to Communists behind the Iron Curtain.

Then there was Nix McPhobia. I knew him when he was a day student . . . from Joanna. He was the most popular man with the children in Joanna, back then when it was known as Goldville. The kids thought he was a real story-book hero.

You see, Nix was the entire Fire Department and took his job very seriously. He was always studying correspondence courses in fire-fighting techniques such as: "Door Smiting," "Cat Rescuing," and "Checker Playing."

Unfortunately (for Nix) there were never any fires but he was too conscientious to let that stop him. Regular as clockwork, every Monday morning, Nix would bust into someone's house, chop up a couple of pieces of furniture with his ax, squirt water on all the men, and carry the women outside with a fireman's lift.

Nix wasn't so popular with the grown-ups.

My uncle Harold was the smart one in the family. Everyone always said he "really had a head on his shoulders." There's only one trouble—his head is on backward (the result of an ill-advised visit to an incolonic osteopath in Charleston in 1928). But in spite of the fact that he does look peculiar going around with his head on backward, Uncle Harold is congenial and pleasant to have around. Except for one thing—he's awfully messy in the bathroom.

Then there's my cousins, the triplets. I don't know which three were first, cousins or triplets, but anyway they belonged to me. Uncle Elmer who finished at PC in business (Class of '09). He went to Hawaii and opened up a firm called "Hawaiian Aye." Didn't make a go of it though. His girls went into show business, under the name of the Waimeanunanhauhuanna Sisters.

They're known in the mainland as the "Hawaiian Lennon Sisters." This isn't because they resemble the Lennon Sisters, but because no one can pronounce "Wimeanunanhauhuanna."

The girls started their act one evening when they went to the Arthur Murray Dance Studios for the free Introductory Lesson. It was a cold night and Arthur couldn't get the fire going and the isters have been shaking ever since.

Morrison Strikes Again

(EDITOR'S NOTE — The Blue Stocking sent ace feature writer Tom Morrison to gather material for a requested editorial on roof-top sunbathing. We did a little proof reading and published the item which appears in the editorial column but for reader interest, and to illustrate both the trials of proof reading and that you don't turn feature writers into editorial experts overnight, we decided to publish the original which appears below.)

PCuns are like practically all other college students in their enjoyment of continous field days which host gripes against the administration body. Probably more often than not, this distemper stems from mere personal likes and dislikes fostered by that mental anguish common to outstanding students like us.

The tables are now once again turned, but it seems that our authorities have unfortunately dug up a completely logical and almost necessary complaint against us in this propaganda war of minds. The subject concerns man's long devolvement back to sun worshipping as is now practiced on roofs of several campus buildings.

This all should sound rather boring, or at least familiar, since it's an old hodge-podge that's been waded through for several consecutive years now.

The question at hand is unluckily nothing dramatic or sensational like obscenity. Indeed, probably not until we start a nudist camp atop the dome of Neville will an argument of that like be used. Neither are there emphasized such incidentals as broken windows, clogged draining, danger of more good old PC nationwide coverage resulting this time from someone's tumble downward (there already seems to be enough people around here using crutches), removal of screens and the consequent insect stream into human habitations.

No, the main problem concerns that of maintenance in charge of which is a farsighted man who has plans for that 301 Alumination sheeting recently used on Spencer Establishment to be destined sometime soon for Smythe-Sheraton, and still later for Laurens-Statler.

As he well puts it, if this material's potential life expectancy of fifteen years is realized or, in other words, if students are kept off, then future money can be spent on somewhat more useful projects than constant roof repairs.

So, spread the good advice around. Yell it from the housetops!

Glovemen Drop Two; Down Belmont Abbey

Presbyterian's baseball team had a full schedule this week with three games. Mercer edged the Hose on Monday and Newberry defeated them 16-7. Then on Tuesday the Hose got back on the winning side with a brilliant 7-3 win over Belmont Abbey.

Mercer's win came on the strength of Frank Edwards' 8th inning inside-the-park homer which followed one of PC's five errors. Edwards and Arnie White led Mercer with two hits apiece. Jackie Nix and Gordon Timmons had three hits each for PC.

Newberry, in winning their game, moved up in the Little Four standings.

The Belmont Abbey game saw many surprises including four PC home runs, three of which were back to back. Rudy Hamrick had two and Jim Elliott and Jerry Chitty had one each.

The Belmont Abbey contest marked the fifth complete game for Timmons in as many starts. Another freshman besides Timmons, Leighton Grantham, has ably filled in at third base in the past few games.

PC's next game is on Saturday with Wofford. PC then rounds out its season next Wednesday with another game against Wofford.

Track Team Places Third In NAIA District Meet

Presbyterian College took 28½ points Wednesday as they came in third best to place Lenoir Rhyne (46 points), and second place Catawba (37½ points) in the NAIA District 26 track meet held at High Point, N. C.

PC's Dennis Kirk won the shotput with a throw of 43'9½". The former record was 43'-7¾" set in 1961 by Pembroke. (District records are based on figures dating back only to 1960.)

Eight records were broken in the meet and Joe Rhyne (L. R.) contributed in setting two of them by running the 220 in 21.6 and jumping 11'9" in the pole vault. Other new records and the winning times were the 100-yard dash—9.8 sec.; 120 high hurdles 15.2 sec.; broad jump—20'11"; high jump—6'; discus—127'1½".

Other teams and their scores included East Carolina 15; High Point 14½; Guilford 13; Pembroke 12½; and Appalachian 11.

Tennis Team Finishes Season 18-5

The PC tennis team began their four-day tour through Alabama and Florida by defeating the University of Alabama 7-2 in the morning and in the afternoon defeating the Tuscaloosa Racket Club by the same score of 7-2.

The team played two matches on the following afternoon and won both by 7-2 scores. These were against the Pensacola Naval Air Station and Mississippi State University. The win against Mississippi State was especially good since they played 3 freshmen from Chile in their starting six, and PC won two of these three matches and the other went three sets.

Returning to campus, the team had little trouble disposing of Tennessee by the score of 9-0 and Furman by the score of 8-1. Georgia came to PC with a 5-4 win over the Blue Hose in the first match of the season. In one of the closest matches of the year the Hose came out on top after a dramatic win in the number one doubles match after the score had been knotted at 4 all.

The team closed the season with a 9-0 loss to Miami. There were, however, several close matches and the match as a whole was closer than the score indicates.

The record for the year, 18-5, is one of the best ever compiled by a PC tennis team. Seniors Ed Caviness, Tom Elliott, Beansie Frampton, Bill Stone and Dave Greenslade will be sorely missed, but juniors Tony Wilson and Harold Hope will be back along with sophomore Bill Tyson and prospects look for several good freshmen to come in to carry the load.

COACH WARDEN

"As the 1962 tennis season comes to an end, I would like to thank the members of the team and the entire student body for 100% cooperation throughout the year. Many things go into making a season unusually successful, but most important is the spirit and effort of all concerned. The students, faculty and people of Clinton all contributed greatly to the team's success by their presence at all the matches and by their interest in the team's progress during the year."

"I would like to thank the members of the Court Crew who have worked hard to keep the courts in the best condition ever. Their effort and interest has been one of the big factors in making the year an outstanding one. Also thanks to the team manager, who has worked as hard as anyone, handling everything from towels to scoring sticks to running errands all over Clinton for me."

"Finally, I want to thank the men on the team who have worked hard since September to give PC one of the finest seasons in its history. They lost a fine coach last year and the spirit in which they accepted me and worked with me is greatly appreciated. I would like to give full credit to the team itself for its record this year and add that I will greatly miss those seniors who have just played their last tennis for us."

Linksters Down Mercer 16-2

The PC golf team returned from the Easter holidays to defeat Mercer University by a score of 16-2 on Friday, April 27. For the members of the team this was a revenge match as Mercer had beaten them by a single point earlier in the season. Max Clyburn of PC, was medalist for this match with a 72. He was followed closely by the other members of the team who all scored in the seventies.

Tie for Second In State Match

The Presbyterian College tennis team tied for second in the 1962 State Tennis Tuornament with Citadel. They tied with 14 points apiece. The Hose reached the finals in three divisions and managed to take first in two of these.

The PC scores in the Semifinals and Finals were:

Semifinals—Singles:

Tony Wilson, PC, defeated Benny Varn, Citadel, 7-5, 5-7, 6-3.

Stuart Levi, Citadel, defeated Tom Elliott, PC, 2-6, 6-2, 6-0.

Malloy Evans, Clemson, defeated Beansie Frampton, PC., 6-2, 6-4.

Ed Caviness, PC, defeated Roy Strickland, Clemson, 7-5, 6-3.

Dick Pregnell, Clemson, defeated Harold Hope, PC, 6-1, 6-0.

George Christopher, Clemson, defeated Bill Stone, PC, 6-4, 6-4.

Doubles:

Elliott-Caviness, PC, defeated Levi-Carlyle, Citadel, 7-5, 6-0.

Finals—Singles:

Bob Burns, Clemson, defeated Tony Wilson, PC, 6-8, 6-3, 6-2.

Ed Caviness, PC, defeated Stewart Skadden, Furman, 6-2, 6-2.

Doubles:

Elliott-Caviness, PC, defeated Evans-Christopher, Clemson, 6-1, 6-3.

Student Council
Candidates List Platforms

JOE HARVARD

Realizing the tremendous responsibility and challenge which the Presidency of the Student Body presents, if I am elected I shall endeavor to fulfill the duties of this office to the best of my ability.

The present administration has done a great deal to improve our Honor System. I believe that there is still a need for improvement and if elected I shall work to make this system successful.

I favor a shorter "rat" season with a more intensive program as the present period is drawn out over too long a period with both upperclassmen and freshmen losing interest.

I shall seek to have weekly scheduled council meetings with minutes available to the student body by means of the Blue Stocking.

If elected, I shall try as Sonny Dubose to maintain the dignity of this office.

JOHN HENDERSON

I would like to see the new Student Council strive for a more EFFECTIVE STUDENT GOVERNMENT. It is hard to set down definite campaign promises. However, such things that would benefit you, the student body, would come through an effective student government.

I believe that this effective student government could be achieved by a few simple measures taken by the Student Council. The Student Council needs to have REGULAR, FREQUENT MEETINGS. In doing this the Student Government would be active. It would be active in solving the problems which exist on our campus and in our Student Government. These problems are many and varied—including problems ranging from a Freshman Control System to unwritten procedure.

There should be a definite effort on the part of the Student Council to INFORM THE STUDENT BODY about what they are doing. Because of this, I would ask that the minutes of the Student Council meetings be published. This would encourage student opinion and action which our campus is lacking. I will save my remarks concerning the Honor System for my campaign speech in Monday's chapel.

PAUL WOODALL

First I would like to commend Sonny Dubose for the superior job he has done as President of the Student Council this year. The Student Council, as I am sure has been said before, is an roganization through which ideas, complaints, and desires of the student body should be reflected.

There are many new programs that could be established and still others to be improved. This, of course, should not be left up to the Student Council alone.

I, ife elected, have no revolutionary systems or changes to make but will always be glad to listen to each individual student with the same interest and concern.

I would like o see the student council keep its active part on the campus, and where possible, become more active.

Dr. Brown Interviewed On Physical Education

Blue Stocking Associate Editor Christine Wilson conducted a brief interview with President Brown early this week to find out his feelings about the importance of physical education and the likelihood of a proram's being set up in the near future. Listed below are some of the questions and answers.

Has PC ever had PE and how was it received?

"In the early days Coach Walter Johnson not only required PE of the students but also offered PE for young married couples in town. In general, compulsory physical education was not well-received. The fact that it was not particularly liked does not mean that it was not good for the students."

Do we need a PE program in addition to intramural and intercollegiate programs now in effect?

"I feel that compulsory PE is not necessary as long as military is required. Ninety percent of the men students participate in various athletic activities. If students will do this voluntarily it is more likely they will continue physical exercises later when they are not forced to participate."

Do current development plans include setting up a PE program?

"I feel that there is a genuine need for more opportunities in PE for the girls, although this would not necessarily be compulsory. It is expected that more such opportunities will be provided, as formal classes, when the new dormitory is completed.

"We expect to make a greater effort to make non participants in the intramural program become participants. And if there were a real demand (for more quest." formal PE classes) an effort would be made to meet the re-

Fund Campaign Hits One-Third

Presbyterian College's major fund-raising campaign today pushed one-third of the way toward its goal with the first preliminary report from South Carolina churches outside the local Clinton area.

A total of $622,360 has now been subscribed in the drive to secure $1,800,000 for PC from the Synod of Souht Carolina this spring.

Presbyterian churuches in all eight presbyteries of the state turned in preliminary reports today amounting to $305,622 after the first few days of their three-week solicitation period. Combined with the earlier sum of $317,738 raised by the hometown Clinton community last month, this brought the total subscriptions for Presbyterian College to the $622,360 figure.

Records show that some 17 churches throughout the South Carolina Synod already have achieved their goals.

Woodall Elected Council President

The Blue Stocking

Distinguished for Its Progress

Vol. XL Presbyterian College, Clinton, S. C., May 11, 1962 No. 21

Woodall Nominated ROTC Commander Company Commanders Also Named

Major Joseph J. Scott announced that the R. O. T. C instructor group has nominated the company commanders for next year pending their successful completion of this year and summer camp.

Tentative officers are as follows: Paul H. Yearout, commander of "A" company; Robert P. Piephoff, commander of "B" company; Eugene R. Goodwyn, commander of "C" company; and William Fletcher Bartee, Jr., commander of "D" company.

Thirty-seven advanced military students, the largest group from PC, will attend the summer camp from June 23rd to August 3rd.

Among the students at camp there will be two Distinguished Military Students, Skip Saverance and Dick Boland, and six tentative Distinguished Military Students (pending performance at summer camp); Paul Woodall, Bobby Piephoff, Paul Yearout, William Fletcher Bartee, Jr., Gene Goodwyn and Wirt Skinner. William Fletcher, Jr., Gene Goodwyn and Wirt Skinner.

The five top position nominees are recently tapped members of the Scabbard and Blade. Paul Woodall, next year's president of the Student Council and president of the Robed Choir, is from Whiteville, N. C.

Paul Yearout, from Waynesboro, Va., is a member of Sigma Nu fraternity.

Former commander of the Drum and Bugle Corps, Bobby Piephoff, a member of the Alpha Sigma Phi fraternity, is from Greenville.

Both Gene Goodwyn and William Fletcher Bartee, Jr., are members of the Kappa Alpha Order. Goodwyn is from Petersburg, Va., and Bartee is from Atlanta.

Chemistry Dept. Receives Grant

The Presbyterian College Chemistry department received a National Science Foundation grant amounting to $5,680.00 to be used for Undergraduate Instructional Scientific Equipment. This grant will, under an agreement, be matched by Presbyterian College.

Two of the major items in a long list of equipment for the department will be Gas Chromatography apparatus and recorder which will give a very accurate analysis of complex mixtures of gases and materials which can be vaporized at reasonable temperatures, and two Radioactivity Scalers with accessories.

The numerous other items on the list will be used in each of the chemistry labs, thereby benefiting students in all levels of the chemistry program here.

Theta Chi Leads In Fraternity Scholarship

PC fraternities are apparently scholastically static — at least that's the situation that tabulation of first semeter fraternity QP ratios seems to indicate. The simple fact is that the various fraternities are rated academically in exactly the same order for the first semester this year as they were for last semester last year.

Theta Chi, pulling a healthy 2.56, were the number one fraternity again this year. Ranking down in order behind the Theta Chi's were: Kappa Alpha, 2.35; Alpha Sigma Phi, 2.30; Sigma Nu, 2.29; Pi Kappa Phi, 1.95.

The over-all fraternity average for the first semester was again hgiher than the overa-ll students' average. The fraternities posted a 2.26, which just clipped the over-all average of 2.23. Non-fraternity average for the first semester was 2.20.

DuBose to Get Award As Outstanding Senior

Presentation of Senior awards is slated as the program for an upcoming chapel program. All recipients are members of Blue Key Honor Fraternity and have been listed in Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities.

Chosen as the outstanding senior of this year is Sonny Dubose, who has served this year as student body president and as co-captain of the football team. He has also been president of Sigma Nu fraternity.

Winners of the Gold P awards, which are presented in recognition of outstanding service rendered to the college, are: Dubose, who is from Sumter; John Elrod, Sigma Nu, from Griffin, Ga., who served this year as head proctor; Frank Sells, Pi Kappa Alpha, from Johnson City, Tenn., who is co-captain of the golf team and PaC SaC editor; and Graham Edmunds, Alpha Sigma Phi, from Decatur, Ga., who is past editor of The Blue Stocking and currently S-2 on the military staff.

Sanders Read, Theta Chi, from McClellanville, has been selected to receive the American Legion Award.

Alumni Banquet Set for June 7

Mr. DeSaussure D. Edmunds, vice-president of Equitable Life Assurance Society, will receive the alumni Gold "P" which will be given at the third annual alumni banquet June 7. This award is given each year to an alumnus for outstanding achievement in his chosen field.

This year's graduating seniors will be welcomed into the Alumni Association at the banquet, which highlights a program opening at 2:00 p. m. and continuing through the early evening.

Featured speakers for the afternoon and evening programs will be Dr. Newton Jones, professor of History, who will speak on a Civil War theme, and Mr. Edmunds.

Bosserman to Head IFC

The Inter-Fraternity Council met recently and named the council for 1962-63. Karl "Alex" Bosserman, from Waynesboro, Va., a member of Sigma Nu Fraternity, was elected to replace Dick McGaughey as President of the Council.

Mark Sullivan, from Kershaw, was elected to serve as Vice-President. Mark is the Representative of Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity.

Bill Shearer, the Kappa Alpha Representative, was elected to the office of Secretary. Bill hails from Macon, Ga.

Don Lohman, from Jacksonville, Fla., is the new Treasurer. Don is a member of Theta Chi Fraternity.

Bobby Piephoff will represent Alpha Sigma Phi Fraternity. Bobby, originally from College Park, Ga., now resides in Greenville.

Nineteen Seniors Will Be Commissioned at Graduation

Nineteen of PC's Senior ROTC cadets will be sworn in as Second Lieutenants in the Reserve Officers Corps at 3:30 p. m., June 3. The pre-commisioning ceremonies will be part of this year's graduation activities.

Earlier in the year, branch assignments were chosen and final orders will soon be issued. The Artillery will receive six of the new officers. They include: Bob Beddingfield, Phil Bell, Bill Matthews, Joe Nixon, Bob Stevens, and Jim Rakestraw.

Heyward Nettles, Jimmy Thompson, and Gerald Pitts will be new members of the Medical Service Corps, while Joe Davis will be an Army policeman. New Infantrymen will be Gadsden Frampton and Andrew McGaughey.

Dave Waters and Graham Edmunds will head the Transportation school while Dicky Carr and Doug Miller will be Tank Corpsmen. New Signal officers are Tom Elliott and Bland Quantz, and Jerry Chitty is the lone member of the Quartermaster Corps.

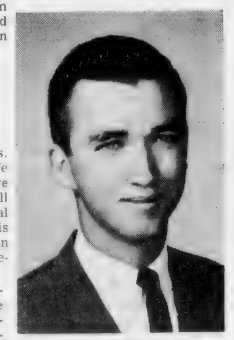
Eleven of the senior cadets will receive their commissions upon successful completion of summer camp in August. They include: Dick Boland, Adjutant General Corps; Charlie Cook, Don Stewart, and Skip Saverance, Infantry; Guy Hancock, Jack Williams, Bob Wylie, and Jim Caddell, Artillery; Ben Margolius, Transportation; David Watts, Armor; and Billy Ray Ladd, Medical Service Corps.

Blue Stocking

The Blue Stocking presses stop rolling with this issue for summer vacation. The next issue of the Sock will come out on September 21, 1962.

GO JOE!! Joe Harvard doggedly pushes on in Wednesday's Blue Key initiates egg roll. He later received the eggs of fellow pledges for losing the race.

John Henderson Is Vice-President



A relative newcomer to the PC political scene stepped into the middle of it in the May eighth election. Independent candidate Paul Woodall, running in his first campus-wide election, easily nosed out his co-centenders to become next year's President of the Student Council. Woodall won over veteran student officeholders Joe Harvard and John Henderson. All nominees for the head council position were rising seniors.

Woodall, an English major from Whiteville, N. C., entered PC as a freshman.

In his sophomore year he was elected class Vice-President. Branching out in his junior year, he served as Vice-President of the choir, as executive officer of the Pershing Rifles, as snapshot editor of the PaC SaC, and as a member of the Freshman Control Board. This year he was tapped by the Scabbard and Blade Honorary Military Society. Just recently he was tapped by the Blue Key Honorary Fraternity. He has been elected as President of next year's choir and will work as Caption Editor on next year's PaC SaC.

Although he had no set platform (other than to broaden Council activities), Woodall has formulated a more or less definite program for the coming school year.

Paramount on Woodall's list of projects will be a fresh approach in developing the Student Concert Series. He hopes to use experience gained this year to guide him through a successful concert presentation next year.

Concerning the selection of next year's Freshman Control Board, Woodall plans to ask for interested upperclassmen to turn their names in to some member of the council. Members will then be picked from the submitted names.

Woodall plans to shorten Rat season to one month and thus cut it off before it begins to drag.

Working with the Student Council, Woodall plans to effect a more conscientious attendance of meetings.

Following a study and a subsequent discussion of the School Constitution by Council Members, it will be decided whether or not to revise the present Constitution.

According to our new President, next year's Council will be encouraged to talk more with the students over vital issues thus providing deeper insight for the Council and also a source of ideas for possible Council action.

Woodall plans to spend time going over the various aspects of the 1961-62 Council with its President, Sonny Dubose. It is hoped that this year's Council experience can be passed on to next year's Council.

Dr. Gettys was heard to say that the Blue Stocking only comments on things that go wrong and overlooks such improvements as the new pool table in the Douglas House game room. This improvement has not gone completely unnoticed by the staff as Tom Morrison reports it to be quite satisfactory. Our thanks to Dr. Gettys, both for being instrumental in obtaining the pool table and for being of service to us in the rectification of this oversight.

The campus grounds look better this spring than ever before with the lawns well-kept and new shrubbery appearing overnight. The maintenance department has done a good job on campus appearance this spring.

To a new IFC we extend our congratulations and hope that they will continue progress toward better fraternity relations. At various times in the past it looked like six boxers in a ring throwing rabbit punches at each other with everyone being hurt.

Peace Corps Bulletin

by Spectator O. Birdbrain

Quote from the news: "Peace Corpsmen live in tiny rooms with primitive-type cots. One electric light bulb. No indoor plumbing. No movies. Rice or beans for breakfast every morning. One of the big problems for many Peace Corps members is just too much hospitality. One volunteer in the Philippines was the guest of honor at parties for 92 consecutive days."—Peace Corps Director Sargent Shriver.

THIS THROBBING little one-act drama takes place in a remote village in the Philippines. As the morning mist dissipates, we see the interior of a tiny room with a primitive-type cot. One electric light bulb. No indoor plumbing. Sacks of bans and rice are in one corner. In an opposite corner sits a native of the village, an impishly handsome young man of about 25 who is writing furiously on a tablet balanced on his knee. An ornate Oriental mother-o-pearl name plaque hangs on the wall just over his head; it says, "Social Secretary." A somewhat older—but still young—man comes into the room. He is impeccably dressed, obviously American and obviously a man of some position and distinction.

VISITOR: Is this where the local Peace Corpsman lives?

SOCIAL SECRETARY: (in a sweeping gesture to point out the stark simplicity of the room). Like maybe you can't tell already?

VISITOR: I take it that he's not at home.

SSS: Like maybe he's hiding under the primitive-type cot?

VISITIR: (maintaining his dignity despite an urge to bend over and peek under the cot). When do you expect him to be back? And who, may I ask, are you?

SS: Man, don't bug me with questions. Cancha see I'm busy? (Returns to frantic scribbling on the tablet)

VISITOR: But I want to see the Peace Corpsman.

SS: You dropped your trolley, daddy? See ole P. C.? Impossible, man, imposible. I got him booked solid for the next six months. Not a chance, daddy.

VISITOR: Do you know who I am, young man?

SS: Like I'll guess. A senator? A congressman? One of them filibuster filberts? So don't bug me. P. C.'s out here to work with the natives, not to play tourist guide to big shots.

VISITOR: Why don't you turn on the light? Maybe you'd recognize me.

SS: You're the original Mr. Chuckles, aincha, daddy We got no juice here, man. Ya know, like no electricity?

VISITOR: What do you have the light bulb for, then?

SS: Regulations, man, regulations. Like straight from Capitol Hill, they say one electric light bulb in every Peace Corpsman's room. Ya can't fight City Hall, pop.

VISITOR: All right, young man, all right. Where is the Peace Corpsman?

SS: He's at a freeload a coupla villages away. He's really draggin', daddy. He wanted to stay home, like to plan a new model latrine for the village, but I tell him, 'P. C., ya been booked for three months for this big blast. What'll you do to Philippine-American relations if ya weasel out now. Like ya gotta make the scene, P. C.' Right now I'm writing a letter to book him as guest of honor for like six months from now when the crazy new village elders take office. That party's always a gasser.

VISITOR: Seems the Peace Corpsman is pretty busy!

SS: Like, pops, he's swingin' from morning till night. It's those night blasts that clobber him. He comes home so full of rich food that all he wants for breakfast is a dish of those crazy beans or rice.

VISITOR: Well, when the Peace Corpsman comes back will you tel him Sargent Shriver was here and I want to see him?

SS: I'll put it down on my calendar, daddy. But I can't give you muc hhope. Like we're busy, P. C. ain't even got time to see generals. No time for sergeants, man, no time for sergeants.

Smyth Paper Syndicate Smashed

By Sanders Read,
Special Correspondent
Clinton, S. C. (Special)

In unprecedented action here last Friday night, a long smoldering crime erupted prematurely. A dangerous ring of paper hoarders, headed by Pill Gulp, had been working undercover on the Presbyterian College campus since early January. While the main body of the crime ring was located on third floor of Smyth B, there were accomplices at work as far away as Bailey Dormitory. The hoarded paper included everything from an organist's ournal to The News and Courier.

The daring syndicate had stashed its ever-growing hoard of paper in a simple trunk closed, not more than a stone's throw from the suite of a high-ranking college official, i. e., a hall proctor. So well kept was the secret of the gang's activities that only a few of the members knew the identity of the boss. But, as in all crime rings, there was a flaw somewhere, and word of the hoard began to appear in too many places for the comfort of Gulp.

with the swinging parties of Greek Weekend to divert attention, the syndicate went to work on the evening of May 4 in an attempt to dispose of the then abundant evidence. The second floor room of another Smyth B undergraduate, more fortunate than those involved (that is, he had a date), was chosen as the most convenient and expedient depository. So, shortly after the unsuspecting undergraduate had left for his party, another party was begun in his room. For, it must be noted, this syndicate enjoyed its work, even this act of destroying their accumulated wealth.

Paper was gleefully carted down from third floor, and the now celebrated Presbyterian Paper Party was underway. Each sheet of newsprint was crumpled and thrown into the room. As the pile grew, passersby in, and word spread around campus. Many made a pilgrimage to old Smyth to witness amazing feat Even a little minded faculty member shirt and rolled in ecstasy at the Then he pitched in a few of the "hot" paper.

When all of the paper had been disposed of, the room was completely filled with crumpled newsprint from wall to wall and from floor to ceiling. The reactions of most witnesses expressed in the following quotations. A meticulous grammarian said simply, "I don't believe it. I just don't believe it." The aforementioned undergraduate, upon opening the door—in the presence of many interested observers—said, "I think it's the funniest thing that's happened here all year.

Rumbles From Russia

Theorosky Bullshynin
University of Moscow Moscow, Russia

Dear Comrade Editor,

As a reader of your excellent, though often slanted, publication, I have followed with interest the discussions of required physical education. I was particularly interested in the viewpoint that if students are not compelled to participate they will be more likely to participate later than if they had been required.

This is precisely what I would recommend since here at the University of Moscow we follow this policy: we do not require physical education, nor foriegn language, nor science, nor Bible, nor (especially) compulsory worship services, as we feel that our students are more likely to participate in these activities after graduation than if they had been required to do so before graduation.

I would also inform you that this system has enabled us to do without large numbers of our faculty here at U of M since those courses which they formerly taught are no longer required and needless to say this saves us quite a lot of money.

Wishing you all success in your advance toward more progressive education, I am

Cordially yours,
Theorosky Bullshynin

ALPHA SIGMA PHI

The brothers and pledges had a most enjoyable dance weekend and are looking forward to the stag supper May 15.

The Beach Party to be held May 30-June 7 is being eagerly anticipated.

Congratulations are due to Brothers Eagles and Piephoff on benig tapped into the Blue Key, and to Brother Jan Rhodes and Pledge Bill Megathlin on being elected to the Student Council.

KAPPA ALPHA

Congratulations are extended to Brothers Bartee, Harvard, Helwig, and Hope on being tapped into the Blue Key, also to Brothers Harvard and Williams on being elected to the Student Council.

THETA CHI

After a very successful Greek Weekend, the brothers and pledges are making plans for next year and also for the National Convention to be held this summer in Seattle, Washington. Bill Culp has been elected as the chapter's delegate, with Arthur DeYoung as alternate.

SIGMA NU

The chapter is looking forward to Greek Weekend. Saturday the party will be held at the Shrine Club, with music furnished by Sam Cook.

Congratulations are extended to Coach "Red" Yearout's volleyball team which is having a fine season.

PI KAPPA PHI

As the year comes to a close, the Pi Kapps are eager to see how the intramural sports will turn out and are looking forward to the remaining sports, tennis and swimming.

Congratulations to our undefeated softball and volleyball teams and to our track team for placing second.

Pounders Win Intramural Track Meet, Pi Kapp's Finish Second

The Pounders won the intramural track meet Tuesday afternoon by a slim margin of ½ point, defeating Pi Kappa Phi 28½ to 28. Pi Kappa Alpha finished third with 26 points, with Alpha Sigma Phi holding down fourth place with 20½ points. The meet was officiated by Coach Bob Waters and Speedster Knot Culpepper.

TRACK MEET RESULTS

Broad Jump—Alpha Sigma Phi, Thompson, 19'6."

High Jump—Pi Kappa Alpha, Anderson, 5'1."

Discus—Pi Kappa Phi, McReynolds, 109'6."

Shot—Pi Kappa Phi, McReynolds, 40'3¾."

100-Yard Dash — Pounders, Jimmy May, 10.6 seconds.

220—Sigma Nu, Yearout, 25.0 seconds.

440 Relay—Pi Kappa Alpha, 50.2 seconds.

880 — Pi Kappa Phi, Holmes, 2:25.2 seconds.

440—Alpha Sigma Phi, Billy Ladd, 58.1 seconds.

120 High Hurdles—Pounders, Hancock, 18.8 seconds.

180 Low Hurdles — Pounders, Hancock, 24.2 seconds.

Pi Kappa Alpha holds a slim lead in the race for the Intramural Trophy, with 17 points. Pi Kappa Phi is running a close second with 11 points. With four events still undecided, volleyball, softball, tennis, and swimming, the outcome is very indefinite. If Pi Kappa Alpha should win, they will retire the trophy. These two fraternities tied for the over-all championship last year and shared the trophy.

Umpire Elmer Bennett is shown in action in his final game last Wednesday, with PC veteran Paul Love catching. The Hose dropped a close ont to Wofford 8-3.

Glovemen Drop Closing Two Games to Wofford

by BILL LOEBLE

The Presbyterian baseball team ended its season by losing two heart-breaking games to Wofford. On Saturday they went nine Innings before finally bowing 8-7. On Wednesday the Hose lost 8-3.

Freshman Jimmy Cape started both games. He was relieved in the second one by Tommy Williams. The Wofford pitcher led the second contest with a perfect five for five day.

This year's team, although not winning many games, has continued to show improvement, the ball club is young with great potential. Many are freshmen who have now gained much experience for the coming year.

Paul Love and Jerry Chitty are the only two seniors on the team. Sophomores Tommy Williams and Alvin Cooley will return next year to keep their starting positions. The remainder of the starting line-up is freshman Cole Hatch, Leighton Grantham, Jim Elliott, Danny Charles, Rudy Hamrick, and Jackie Nix. With all these players returning next year, the baseball season should prove quite interesting.

In the pitching department, Freshmen Jimmy Cape and Gordon Timmons along with Sophomore Louis Ridinger have handled the chores.

This year has seen some clutch hitting along with some power. Rudy Hamrick led the slugging with three home runs this year. Jerry Chitty and Jimmy Elliott also claimed circut blasts.

Closing Out

A familiar face at all of the Presbyterian College baseball games for the last fourteen years made its final appearance in an official capacity on Young Field this past Wednesday. Elmer Bennett, who has been calling balls and strikes since the days of the Walter Johnson coached PC teams, called his last game in the Hose 8-3 loss to Wofford.

Elmer has spent the last twenty-five years umpiring baseball games in the Piedmont area of South Carolina. He has worked in High School, American Legion, and Textile ball as well as college games. He called his only no-hitter in 1947 in Textile ball. He was also chosen to work in the Textile All-Star and playoff games from 1945-1950.

After twenty-five years' service to the game of baseball and fourteen years to PC baseball, we take our hats off to Elmer Bennett for a job well done.

As the 1961-62 Intramural season draws to a close, action is fast and furious in a number of spring sports. The tennis tournament and the softball season are in full swing, with the Pounders and PiKapps both undefeated in softball.

From all reports the track meet run earlier this week was a huge success as its two predecessors had been. Thanks go to all of those who worked hard to make this a success. Congratulations go to the Pounders and PiKapps who finished one-two in the meet. The swim meet is almost upon us, and everyone had better be getting ready so it will be the best one yet.

Another bright spot in this spring's Intramural program has been the excellent attendance at most of the events. This adds a great deal to the program, and as the races go down the wire, the vocal backing will mean a lot to the players.

Cinder Squad Finishes Year With State Meet

by MIKE SMITH

Presbyterian College was represented in both the freshman and varsity competition during the 35th State Intercollegiate Track and Field Meet held in Columbia last week. A field of 171 athletes—90 varsity and 81 freshman — represented South Carolina, Clemson, Furman, The Citadel, and Presbyterian.

Presbyterian has been state track and field champion five times since the meet was started in 1925.

In the Freshman competiton PC took three fourth places: one each by George Lewis in the 20-yd. high hurdles, Rut Galloway in the 220-yd. low hurdles, and Dennis Kirk, shot put. Sandy Hagood won first place in the 220-yd. low hurdles with a time of 25:09.

In the varsity trials, Knot Culpepper was the only PC trackman to qualify as he ran the 440 yard in 49:09 seconds. In competition, Culpepper placed third in that event with a time of 51:07.

Assistant Coach Bob Waters announced the following athletes as 1962 lettermen:

Sid Acker, Reginald Awtry, Knot Culpepper, Rut Galloway, Byron Gentry, Dennis Kirk, George Lewis, Donny Ross, Bob Beddingfield, Fred Cook, Wayne Fowler, Sandy Hagood, Ronnie Hampton, James Salvo, and Jerry Usry.

TILL WE MEET AGAIN

This is the final column of my eighth year of writing for the makers of Marlboro Cigarettes, and this year, as in every preceding year, when I come to the last column of the season, I come to a problem.

My contract with the makers of Marlboro calls for me to write a humor column and, truly, I do the best I can—all things considered, I am not, I should explain, a jolly man by nature. Why should I be? First of all, I am shorter than everybody. Second, there are moths in my cashmere jacket. Third, I work in television.

All the same, when it comes time to write this column, I light a good Marlboro Cigarette, put aside my trauma, and try with all the strength in my tiny body to make some jokes. Sometimes it works better than others, but on the last column of the year, it just flatly doesn't work at all.

Even in the very beginning this was true—and that, you will recall, was eight years ago when I was relatively young and strong and had not yet developed that nasty knock in my transmission. Well do I remember sitting down to write the final column of my first year. Day followed barren day, and not a yock, not a boff, not a zinger did I produce. I was about to give up humor and take a job selling mechanical dogs when all of a sudden, in a blinding flash, I realized why I couldn't think of any jokes!

I leapt up from my typewriter and ran as fast as my little fat legs would carry me to the makers of Marlboro Cigarettes, and I tugged my forelock, and I said, "Sirs, I am well aware that you have engaged me to write a humor column, but today, as I approach the final column of the season, I am far too misty to be funny, for the final column of the season is, after all, a leave-taking, and when I think of saying goodbye to my audience—the swellest audience any columnist ever had—the college students of America—wonderful human beings, every man and woman of them—wise but kindly—astute but compassionate—perspicacious but forbearing—when, sirs, I think of saying goodbye to such an audience, I am too shook up even to consider levity, and so I ask you, sirs, to let me, in the final column of the year, forego humor and instead write a simple, dignified, straightforward farewell."

Then I took out my bandanna, wiped my eyes, ears, nose, and throat and waited for a reply from the makers of Marlboro.

They sat around the polished board room table, the makers, their handsome brows knit in concentration, puffing thoughtfully on the Marlboros in their tattooed hands. At length they spoke. "Yes," they said simply.

I never doubted they would say yes. People who make a cigarette as good as Marlboro must themselves be good. People who lavish such care on blending tobaccos so mild and flavorful, on devising a filter so clean and white, on boxing a flip-top box so flip-top, on packing a soft pack so soft—people like that are one hundred percent with me!

And so from that day forward, the final column of the year—including the one you are, I devoutly hope, now reading—makes no attempt to be funny, but is instead a simple thank you and au revoir.

Thank you and au revoir, makers of Marlboro. The memory of our eight years together will remain ever fresh in my heart, and I would like to state for all the world to hear that if you want me back again next year, I shall expect a substantial raise in salary.

Thank you and au revoir, college students of America. May good luck attend all your ventures. Stay well. Stay happy. Stay loose.

Replacing Dr. James S. Gray as professor of philosophy is Dr. David R. Moorfield. Dr. Moorfield is an honor graduate of PC. He received his bachelor of divinity from Columbia Theological Seminary. Dr. Moorfield went on to obtain has masters from Princeton and his Ph.D. from Duke in 1959. Dr. Moorfield served with the 3rd Infantry Division during the Korean War, where he won the Bronze Star.

Hugh O. Richardson joined PC's history department this fall. He replaces Dr. Jones. Mr. Richardson has been employed as an archivist at the Nation Archives in Washington, D. C. He attended the University of Alabama and George Washington University. His master's thesis "History of Toombs' Brigade" was published by the Georgia Civil War Commission.

Melvin I. Riggs will serve as assistant professor of education. He replaces Mr. Ford. Mr. Riggs received his B. A. from Indiana State Teachers College in 1935 and his masters in 1948. He has also studied at Purdue, Florida State, and The University of Florida. Mr. Riggs has come to us from Palm Beach Junior College where he taught psychology and directed the counseling program.

Robert Bankhead will teach German this year. Dr. Bankhead received his B. A. from Davidson College. He studied theology at Columbia Theological Seminary and earned his Bachelor of Divinity. He has just returned from Switzerland, where he received his Doctor of Theology from the University of Basel. Doctor Bankhead is presently the pastor of the Presbyterian Church in Rocky Springs.

R. B. Huff has joined the Chemistry department of Presbyterian College. He is replacing Mrs. Carter as assistant professor of chemistry. Mr. Huff graduated from Furman and went on to Clemson, where he earned his master of science.

IFC Interprets Rush Rules

(4) No fraternity man is permitted to discourage any freshman or new man from attending socials or smokers of other fraternities. He is not to carry him off or keep him, in any way, from another social or smoker, nor to take him off campus.

(5) A list of students prepared by the registrar of students eligible to be pledged will be furnished the fraternities by the Faculty Committee prior to the first smoker.

(6) Without permission of the I. F. C. no other fraternity will be permitted to have any organized function during the time assigned to the fraternity giving an open social or smoker.

(7) Any I. F. C. member who sees any form of illegal rushing during scheduled meeting must report it, or the fraternity will be subject to a penalty.

Section III

(1) Pledge day will be the Thursday following the last smoker and pledges will be from 2 p. m. until 4 p. m. at a place designated by the I. F. C.

(2) The last fraternity having a smoker will be granted permission to give out bids under supervision of the I. F. C.

(3) Before a student is plenged into a fraternity he must be a regular enrolled student in the college and have at least the equivalent of three (3) C's in three (3) or four (4) hour courses.

Indoctrination

In the meantime, we'll be watching you, Freshmen.

Homecoming Dance

This year the annual Homecoming Dance will be held Friday, Oct. 3, at the National Guard Armory on South Broad Street from 8:00 to 12:00 p. m. Music will be furnished by two bands—the Inkspots and the Catalinas. The idea is to have a "professional" alternation between fast and slow music. The Inkspots will provide slow music, and the Catalinas will handle the fast songs.

There will be no charge to students going to the dance. The dance is financed by school funds.

Dress for the evening will be semi-formal: coat and tie for the men, and dresses for the women. IFC President Alex Bosserman stated, "In order to encourage all those who attend to stay at the dance, fraternity houses will be closed from 8:00 p. m. to 6:00 a. m., Saturday.

Swimming Pool Open, Lifeguards Needed

The swimming pool will open, beginning this week, on Wednesday and Friday afternoons from 3:30-5:00 p. m. to students, faculty, and families.

LIFE GUARDS are needed on a volunteer basis and are asked to contact Marion Boozer, Jim Owens, Bill Culp or Mr. Fakkema.

Those interested in a senior life saving course this fall are requested to contact Mr. Fakkema. A Water Safety Instructors course will be offered next April. It is imperative that those desiring this certificate and who do not have a senior life saving certificate effective at present take this course before the spring semester.

Capt. J. T. Jones has replaced Capt. Robert Hodges as an R. O. T. C. Instructor. Capt. Jones entered the army after graduation from North Georgia College in 1956. Since then he has served three years in Germany and a year in state-wide service.

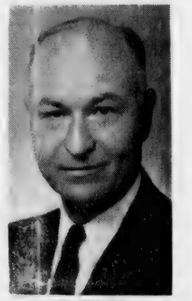
The Blue Stocking

Vol. XLI Presbyterian College, Clinton, S. C., September 22, 1962 No. 1

"I'd heard that the average size of the U. S. soldier had increased lately, but I didn't believe it 'till I saw those WW II pup tents." This shot of a bivouac at ROTC summer camp at Ft. Bragg, N. C., catches PC Cadet Murray White in the center.

College Land Area Will Triple With Addition of 120 Acres

In 1963 Presbyterian College plans to stretch its campus to the Clinton city limits. President Marshall W. Brown announced that through the purchase of about 120 acres of land the campus will more than triple its present 55-acre location.



President Brown added:

"Trustee Chairman Robert M. Vance and I feel that we are fortunate to be able to obtain this land, some of it within the city limits, which adjoins our present campus to the east. The owners are close friends of Presbyterian College who long have shared its dream for the future. With most of the available space in our 55-acres now being utilized, more land was the key factor in our projected plans. The enlarged campus now provided adequate space for all expansion of the foreseeable future."

The 120 acres are composed of two land plots. One, about 20 acres, extends eastward from Young baseball field and the present intramural and practice football field. This land is presently owned by Mrs. Emmie Young Godfrey and her daughter, Mrs. Joy Young Gault. The larger section is being purchased from the family of the late George A. Copeland. This area is of approximately 100 acres and lies adjacent to the Godfrey property.

OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO MEN STUDENTS are the proposed plans for the addition of a woman's campus. There are also numerous new buildings in mind for the development program.

President Brown added this historical note to his announcement: "It is significant to recall that the initial 15 acres of the site we now call Presbyterian College came as a gift from the forebears of those who have made available this latest 120 acres. Two of three staunchest early friends of the College were Newton Young, grandfather of Mrs. Godfrey, and J. W. Copeland, uncle of the late George A. Copeland. Their land-gift in 1881, a year after the founding date, enabled the institution to move from its original location on the Thornwell Orphanage campus."

DR. GETTYS

Gettys Named Acting Dean

Late this summer, Presbyterian College's president, Marshall W. Brown, announced the appointment of Dr. Joseph Gettys to the Academic Deanship. At Dr. Gettys' request, this is to be a temporary appointment — preferably limited to one year.

Dr. Gettys, who has taught Bible here since 1956, replaces retiring Dr. George C. Bellingrath. Dr. Gettys will continue to teach on a limited basis.

Commenting on the appointment, Dr. Brown noted that Dr. Gettys has a vast academic experience gleaned from teaching for twenty-four years. Dr. Gettys was professor of Bible and religious education at Queens College from 1938 to 1944. From there he moved to a Professorship of the English Bible at the Presbyterian School of Christian Education (1944-1952). From 1952 until 1956, he was Minister of Education at the Dallas First Presbyterian Church.

A noted author of Protestant literature, Dr. Gettys wrote: the widely read book, "What Presbyterians Believe"; "How To Teach," and "How To Study" booklets; and an array of Sunday School materials for young people.

Dr. Gettys is a distinguished

PC Summer Session Graduates Eleven

During the 1962 summer school session at Presbyterian College, eleven students completed requirements for degrees. Of these eleven, two students, Cecil Allen Campbell of Owings, and James David Parrish of Statesboro, Ga., were graduated July 18, after the end of the first summer session. Both earned B. A. degrees.

The following students received the B. A. degree August 25: Patricia Hunt Adams, Laurens (cum laude); David Gordon Greenslade, Smith's Parrish, Bermuda; Alice Watkins Clotz, Augusta, Ga.; Margaret Glenn Dedmon, Spartanburg; Patrick Kearns Kelly, Raeford, N. C.; and Alan Frederick Pitts, Langley.

Receiving the B. S. degree were three students: George Milton Lane, Avondale Estates, Ga.; Paul Edgar Neil, Jr., Marion; and John Lovell Smith, Jr., Asheville, N. C.

Cadets Place Fourth At Military Summer Camp

ROTC summer camp saw Presbyterian College ranked fourth among attending colleges. A field of 21 colleges attended the six-week session at Fort Bragg, N. C. The Colleges, all from the Third Army area, included Furman, Clemson, Davidson, and Citadel.

Thirty-four Presbyterian College students went to camp. Of the fourteen seniors present, ten received commissions in officers Reserve Corps. Receiving commissions were: Albert Bell, Richard L. Boland, James A. Caddell, Charles H. Cook, Guy D. Hancock, Billy R. Ladd, Benjamin W. Margolius, Clifton R. Saverance, Donald Stewart and Charles D. Waters.

Boland and Saverance were cited as "Distinguished Military Graduates."

THE REMAINING twenty students at camp were juniors. They were: William F. Bartee, Steven L. Craig, Harry M. Gryder, Marshall G. Jones, James J. Crider, William W. Skinner, Karl A. Bosserman, Robert S. Arrowood, Kenneth K. Davis, Lorenzo D. Eagles, Mark N. Glenn, and Joseph S. Harvard.

Also at camp were: Robert W. Hazelwood, John D. Henderson, Donald E. Lohman, Robert P. Piephoff, George G. Reaves, Murray B. White, and Paul D. Woodall.

New Members Named For Chapel Choir

Passing a rather rigorous testing, seventeen new members were named to the Presbyterian College Robed Choir by Dr. Edouard Patte, the choir director. Most of the new members were freshmen.

Besides testing the voices of the applicants, Dr. Patte also tested their abilities of tonal and pitch recognition and of rhythm perception.

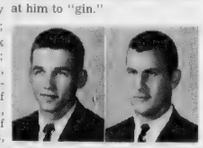
Homecoming Queen Entries Due Tuesday

Pictures for Homecoming Queen candidates are to be turned in to Paul Woodall by 3:00 p. m., Tuesday, September 25. The election will be held Wednesday, September 26. Only the candidates whose pictures are displayed and all coeds are eligible.



Freshman Control Board Headed By Bryan, Coley

Composed entirely of juniors and seniors, the board is headed by co-chairmen Bill Bryan and Alvin Coley, of Atlanta and Bainbridge, Ga., respectively. The other board members are: Marshall Jones of Atlanta, Ga.; Gary Brown of St. Petersburg, Fla.; Joe Prickett of Atlanta, Ga.; Alex Bosserman of Waynesboro, Va.; Dewey McReynolds of St. Paul, Va.; Welborn Gregg of Birmingham, Ala.; Sammy Clayton of Greer; Mike Gryder of Atlanta, Ga.; and Christine Wilson of Monroe, N. C. The members, who nominated themselves, were chosen last April by the Student Council.

Assuming their roles as the directors of freshmen orientation, the board got off to a "whooping" start immediately after the SCA picnic by having the freshmen run and hop about —all amid the shouts and taunts of the upperclassmen. The freshmen were instructed in the wearing of "Rat Signs," large signs worn front and back which tell the wearer's name and hometown.

Graphic illustration was given in the art of "Ginning"—jumping into the air and yelling "Beat Lenoir Rhyne, Sir!" or "Beat Furman, Sir!" — depending on whoever the football team was scheduled to play that week. A freshman performs this operation whenever an upperclassman yells at him to "gin."

BRYAN, COLEY

Following this "orientation" at the SCA picnic, the Board held their first "rat court" at which freshmen are called to task for their various shortcomings—such as not having their freshmen handbooks or failing to gin.

Since then "Rat season" has been in full force with freshmen bedecked with signs and ginning sporadically all over the campus. Operations will continue until November, with Rat Courts every week until then.

Kappa Alpha to Open Fall Social Activities Wednesday

Come September 26, the social season at Presbyterian College officially begins with Kappa Alpha Fraternity holding their open social. Every Wednesday night for five weeks thereafter open socials will be held, one by each fraternity.

The open socials will not be open to all students. The Intra-Fraternity Council rule on open socials states that only freshmen, transfer students, and upperclassmen specifically invited by the fraternity may attend.

Being mainly a dance, the socials give both fraternity men and those invited a chance to study one another better in terms of social graces and social compatibility. Girls are invited by the respective fraternities from area colleges.

As a note to those eligible to go to the socials, IFC President Alex Bosserman, stated, "I certainly hope everybody who can will take full advantage of the socials. Not only do they afford an opportunity to meet the brothers of the various fraternities, but they're also simply enjoyable in themselves."

In November, for a week following the open socials, closed smokers will be held each night to which prospective fraternity pledges will be invited. Attendance is only by formal invitation of the particular fraternity.

The order for open socials is:

Sept. 26—Kappa Alpha.
Oct. 3—Theta Chi.
Oct. 10—Pi Kappa Phi.
Oct. 17—Alpha Sigma Phi.
Oct. 24—Sigma Nu.
Oct. 31—Pi Kappa Alpha.

A Statue For J F K ?

JIM BARBOUR, Feature Editor

Another Committee.

To the Chairman of the News:

We have the distinguished honor of being members of the committee to raise fifty million dollars to be used for placing a statue of John F. Kennedy in the Hall of Fame in Washington, D. C.

This committee was in quite a quandary about selecting the proper location for the statue. It was thought not wise to place it beside that of George Washington, who never told a lie, nor that of Franklin D. Roosevelt, who never told the truth, since JFK could never told the difference.

After careful consideration, we think it should be placed beside the statue of Christopher Columbus, the greatest New Frontiersman of them all, in that he started out not knowing where he was going, and in arriving did not know where he was, and in returning, did not know where he had been, and did it all on borrowed money.

The inscription on the statue will read—"I pledge to John F. Kennedy and to the national debt for which he stands, one man expendable with graft and corruption for all."

Five thousand years ago, Moses said to the children of Israel—"Pick up you shovs mount your asses and cam and I will lead you to the pr ised land." Nearly five th sand years later, Roose said, "Lay down your shov sit on your asses and light u camel, this is the promis land."

Now Kennedy is stealing shovels, kicking your asses, ing the price of camels, and taking over the promised la

Assorted Collectors of Pets

by Spectator O. Birdbrain

I belong to an organization called NAACP—the National Association of Assorted Collectors of Pets. I understand there's a movement afoot to change the name, but be that as it may, we still stand for the rights of people to own unusual pets.

For instance, my pet, "Rover," an oyster, who is a lot of company on lonely evenings and is a never-failing source of amusement with his tricks, the most accomplished of which is "playing dead."

Rover has never been the same, however, since 1951 when I was not premitted to enter him in the big Bivalve Show at Madison Square Garden. The Credentials Committee ruled that Rover was not a thoroughbred when they discovered a nearsighted great uncle in his family tree who had married a dish of lemon jello.

I don't understand why more people don't keep oysters as pets. Although difficult to shell-break, they have many sterling qualities. They are affectionate, docile, loyal and delicious.

Now, take an octopus. If you ask the average man on the street what an octopus is, you'll get a vague answer such as: "A rapacious, carnivorous, marine mollusk with lateral fins and eight sucker-bearing arms which, unlike the squid, has an internal, calcareous shell." At least, that's the silly answer I got from a man who was standing on the street in front of the Oceanic Science Institute.

Actually an octopus is a big, round, home-loving lump who has two arms (not eight) and six legs.

Then there was my pet Clam, Mortimer Baxley. He had an infectious personality and I used to keep him in the house on the coffee table. But he was also very curious and every time I had a party he'd open his shell to see what was going on and always ended up with a face full of cigarette butts. So I moved him to a safer place, back on the piano next to my Spanish shawl, and he eventually came to a bad end. He fell in love wiht a castinet and had a nervous breakdown trying to click his shell back at it in rhumba tempo.

Cows make nice pets and also pay regular dividends. They have been variously described as (1) Bovinus domesticus (Webster), (2) A large animal that carries around a bowling ball with the holes inside out, (3) an animal that, from the front, looks like a catcher signaling for a curve. Cows are gentle creatures and such anti-social activities as murder, hi-jacking, arson* and robbery are unknown among them. The cow is also sensitive and if you should happen to run across one, try to say something flattering to it.

People are always mailing turtles to friends. I think this is rather disrespectful when you consider that the turtle's ancestors first appeared 2,000,000 years ago, which is more than you can say for your ancestors. (Unless you are a pterodactyl, which is highly unlikely. You may think you are, but if so you are either (a) mistaken, (b) suffering from delusions, or (c) an impostor.)

A turtle makes an excellent pet. It will eat anything you have around the house, but prefers Breast of Capon Strongarm off with a tossed green salad and a light Moselle wine (1927.) However, it doesn't pay to get too attached to a pet turtle. You'll have to get rid of it in about 150 years. By then it will weight 2,000 pounds and is likely to become nervous and uncommunicative.

Have you ever thought of the decisions constantly faced by fleas? First, they must decide whether to hang out on a high-class dog or a low-class human. If they pick a dog they must then decide whether to take a short-haired terrier so they can get a suntan or a silky, long-haired collie so their friends will say, "My, what a nice place you have here," when they come to visit. If the flea picks a human, he will gain something in prestige but he will be in constant danger. Humans don't scratch as well as dogs do (especially with their hind legs), but they take a lot of unnecessary baths and the flea could drown. Humans also get hit by cars, stick their fingers in wet paint, and get haircuts. Believe me, a flea leads a dog's life.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

"DO YOU WANT TO BE A 'STUDENT' HERE OR SHALL I PLAN YOUR ACTIVITIES SO YOU'LL MANAGE TO GRADUATE IN FOUR YEARS?"

Run of The Hose

LEON BULLARD, Sports Editor

Coach Clyde Ehrhardt found the going rough in his debut as a head coach. Furman's "horses" proved too much for the PC defense to hold. We have heard a rumor that the Mighty White Man was sick after the game and maybe he will not run too much against Wofford this weekend.

Little Three teams competing last week found that this year in the football wars will be rough. Both Presbyterian and Wofford started the season with repeat losses to the same opening opponents as in the 1961 season. Only Newberry could find a victory by traveling north to defeat Frederick.

Tomorrow night the Hose host the Lenior Rhyne Bears who will be seeking to defeat the Hose for the third time in as many years. PC has won four of the nine games played against the Bears, with two games ending in ties.

PROGNOSTICATIONS

Starting the year with several tough games, we predict that Furman will again be victorious, defeating Wofford by twelve points. Ga. Tech to stop Clemson by six, Davidson to defeat the Citadel by seven.

SPORTS SHORTS

PC has two new coaches in Bill Tiller and Jimmy Vickers. Tiller is a PC grad and Vickers comes to us from the U. of Ga. where he was an All-SEC end in 1960.

Intramural season will begin officially on Monday, Oct. 1. Team rosters are due in to Eugene Goodwyn by Tuesday, Sept. 25.

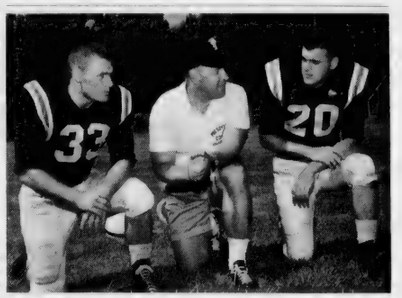
Tennis practice starts Monday. Coach Warden has announced that there will be exhibition matches between the team members this fall. Students are urged to go out and watch next spring's tennis team in action.

Hose To Meet Lenoir Rhyne In First Home Field Engagement

Seek First Win

by Glen Browder

PC will go into tomorrow's game against Lenoir Rhyne as a 20-6 underdog because of LR's powerful single-wing attack and the massacre at Furman last Saturday.



Most experts have picked the Hose to fall by two or three touchdowns to the team which beat us 8-0 and 28-8 the last two years.

The overpowering factor in the Bears' favor is the backfield of All-American Fullback Richard Kemp, potential All-American speedster Odell White, a tailback, and swift wingback Joe Rhyne. Kemp and White, both seniors, scored 132 points together in leading the team to its seventh straight Carolinas Conference championship last year. Coach Clyde Ehrhardt summed up their running power when he remarked today that "any one of those three could break the game open any time."

But PC has a backfield which might just steal the show from the high-riding small college powerhouse. Sophomore Fullback Randy McCranie already has been tabbed as one of the hardest runners in the state, and halfbacks Ronnie Hampton and Jimmy May are capable of going all the way if they can get a couple of good blocks. Add to this the fact that the young runners have been shining in this week's workouts after being sidelined with injuries the past two weeks, and you find that PC could knock the legs out from under the highly touted North Carolina school.

The lines hold the key to the game tomorrow night, with each one featured rugged performers. Jim Edmiston, an All-American candidate at guard for the visiting team, with another All-American prospect, Alvin Coley, anchoring the Presbyterian forward wall.

This battle will be the ninth between PC and LR, with the Hose leading in the series four to two, with two ties. Only three teams have beaten the Bears since 1957, and two of these are Presbyterian and Newberry.

Vickers and Tiller Join Coaching Staff

by Don Warlick

Bill Tiller and Jimmy Vickers, two new assistant coaches, come to the aid of the Blue Hose coaching staff.

Bill Tiller, a native of Mayesville, graduated from PC in 1955. After finishing college, Coach Tiller went to Hillcrest High near Sumter and later on to Manning High School. Along with these high school coaching jobs, Coach Tiller spent one year at PC as an assistant while he took some special courses. In addition to his assistant football coaching job, Tiller will also serve as head baseball coach. His present job is working with the line and he is also instructing classes in physical education.

An All-SEC end for the 1960 Georgia Bulldogs, Jimmy Vickers comes to PC from Terry Parker High School of Jacksonville where he served as an assistant coach. Vickers is a native of Moultrie, Ga. Here at PC Vickers will be in charge of the ends during football season, and will serve as head track coach in the spring.

We of the sports staff welcome these coaches to the Home of the Blue Hose.

Gridders Drop Opener To Paladins, 40 - 6

by Al Pearce

The 1962 edition of the Presbyterian College Blue Hose hopes to snap back from their opening loss to the Paladins of Furman tomorrow night as they play host to the Lenoir Rhyne Bears. Kickoff time has been set for 8:00 at Johnson Field. A good sized crowd is expected to be on hand to watch the Hose take on the perenially powerful small college from Hickory, N. C.

The Paladins of coach Bob King had too much offense for PC to handle and were eager to take advantage of PC's ineffectiveness in moving the ball. The Hose had to surrender the ball nine times on punts, and Furman's three offensive units moved the ball for six points four times they got the ball on punts.

Almost all of PC's offense consisted of passing, with Bill Tyson and Jackie Nix tossing for a combined total of 95 yards.

The Hose, playing their first home game under new head coach and athletic director, Clyde Ehrhardt, will be out to avenge the 28-8 loss to the Bears last season. If the injured players, Alvin Coley, Jimmy Elliott and Ronnie Morris are improved enough that they get to play, the Blue Socks' chances will be greatly improved.

Lenoir Rhyne, fresh from its victory over Wofford, also has a new head coach who has continued to run the single wing attack. Featuring Little All-American Dick Kemp at fullback and candidates for post-season honors, tailback Odell White, and Captain Jim Edmiston at guard, the Bears will prove worthy opponents for the victory-hungry Hose.

Hampton, Littlefield Will Captain Hose Grid Squad

The 37 veterans of last season's campaign elected a hard-running halfback and a rugged, aggressive guard to captain the Hose as they wage the 1962 football wars.

This duo of Ronnie Hampton of Kannapolis, N. C., and Kermit Littlefield of Woodruff, represent six years of college football experience between them.

Halfback Hampton is a three-year letterman this year going after a four-year total of over 1000 yards rushing. Hampton's speed and good hands make him a favorite target of the quarterbacks. Hampton last year led all PC rushers with a 6.3 yard per carry average.

Hampton is married and his wife, Sheila, is a secretary for the Public Relations Department.

Littlefield is one of six returning lettermen guards who is particularly known for his aggressive blocking and vicious defensive play. Littlefield is a brawny, hustling individual, surely a candidate for post-season honors.

Aside from football, Littlefield is active in intramural sports, playing basketball and softball for the Pounders.

Sixty-One Students Named To Semester Dean's List

The Registrar announced recently that sixty-one Presbyterian College students attained the Dean's List for the semester ending the 1961-62 session.

Five students mentioned achieved all-A records for this period as follows: Marion Boozer of Gaffney; Mary Ann Kirkland of Moncks Corner; Orion Perrell of Waxhaw, N. C.; Robert Phifer of Spartanburg; and Wirt Skinner of Decatur, Ga.

Others qualifying for the Dean's List include:

With an average of 3.75 out of a possible 4 — Mrs. Dixie Gooch Sullivan and Mrs. Olive M. Warden, both of Clinton; Fleda K. Earle and Linda Traynham, both of Laurens; Jimmy Owens of Greenwood; and Sanders G. Read, Jr., of McClellanville.

With a 3.50 average—Gary DeLoach and Bill Holderman, both of Clinton; Byron Brown and Patricia Hunt, both of Laurens; Bill Culp of Atlanta; Thomas Davis, Jr., of Columbia; Rebecca Earnest of Macon, Ga.; Henry Knox of Walterboro; Janet Maddox of Spartanburg; Mike Marr of Fayetteville, N. C.; Robert Piephoff of Greenville; and Gary Smith of Camp LeJeune, N. C.

With a 3.20 average—Richard Boland, James Hughes, Mrs. Anne MacDonald Lee, and Heyward Nettles, all of Clinton; Glen Browder and Bertrand Weinberg, Jr., both of Sumter; Gary Brown and Tom Elliott, both of St. Petersburg, Fla.; Bill Gaston and James Simpson, both of Chester; Ponce DeLeon Bullard and Dewitt Hodges, both of Bainbridge, Ga.; Richard Bulloch of Eastman, Ga.; Bill Carmichael of Atlanta; Ike Cobb of Decatur, Ga.; Joe Coleman of Tifton, Ga.; David Cromer of Cross Hill; Tom Currie of Carthage, N. C.; John Elrod of Griffin, G.; and Douglas Gayton of Powder Springs, Ga.

Also making a 3.20 average: Tom Griffin of Plant City, Fla.; James Harris of Laurens; Tommy Hearon of Bethune; Benny Hurley of Clover; Mrs. Janice Joiner of Macon, Ga.; Billy Ray Ladd of Junction City, Ky.; Wesley Lawton of Estill; Paul Layton of Elizabethtown, N. C.; Bill Loeble of Waynesboro, Va.; Henry Manning of Marietta, Ga.; Troy Nobles of Williston; George Powell of Wallace, N. C.; Bruce Pruitt of Bessemer City, N. C.; John Settle of Asheville, N. C.; Jimmy Thompson of Manning; David Waters of North Charleston; Walter Wells of McConnells; and Richard Young of Charlotte.

Alpha Psi chapter merited the books by averaging a greater percentage above the over-all men's average at PC than any other Alpha Sig chapter averaged at its respective college. This was not a "one year proposition," for it was necessary for Alpha Psi to average high for eight consecutive years in order to qualify for the award. Only a few other Alpha Sigma Phi chapters were also able to average above the over-all men's average for eight consecutive years.

ANOTHER YEAR, ANOTHER DOLLAR

With today's entry I begin my ninth year of writing columns in your school newspaper for the makers of Marlboro Cigarettes.

Nine years, I believe you will agree, is a long time. In fact, it took only a little longer than nine years to dig the Suez Canal, and you know what a gigantic undertaking that was! To be sure, the work would have gone more rapidly had the shovel been invented at that time, but, as we all know, the shovel was not invented until 1946 by Walter R. Shovel of Cleveland, Ohio. Before Mr. Shovel's discovery in 1946, all digging was done with sugar tongs—a method unquestionably daintу but hardly what one would call rapid. There were, naturally, many efforts made to speed up digging before Mr. Shovel's breakthrough—notably an attempt in 1912 by the immortal Thomas Alva Edison to dig with the phonograph, but the only thing that happened was that he got his horn full of sand. This so depressed Mr. Edison that he fell into a fit of melancholy from which he did not emerge until two years later when his friend William Wordsworth, the eminent nature poet, cheered him up by imitating a duck for four and a half hours.

But I digress. For nine years, I say, I have been writing this column for the makers of Marlboro Cigarettes, and for nine years they have been paying me money. You are shocked. You think that anyone who has tasted Marlboro's unparalleled flavor, who has enjoyed Marlboro's filter, who has revelled in Marlboro's jolly red and white pack or box should be more than willing to write about Marlboro without a penny's compensation. You are wrong.

Compensation is the very foundation stone of the American Way of Life. Whether you love your work or hate it, our system absolutely requires that you be paid for it. For example, I have a friend named Rex Glebe, a veterinarian by profession, who simply adores to worm dogs. I mean you can call him up and say, "Hey, Rex, let's go bowl a few lines," or "Hey, Rex, let's go flatten some pennies on the railroad tracks," and he will always reply, "No, thanks. I better stay here in case somebody wants a dog wormed." I mean there is not one thing in the whole world you can name that Rex likes better than worming a dog. But even so, Rex always sends a bill for worming your dog because in his wisdom he knows that to do otherwise would be to rend, possibly irreparably, the fabric of democracy.

It's the same with me and Marlboro Cigarettes. I think Marlboro's flavor represents the pinnacle of the tobacconist's art. I think Marlboro's filter represents the pinnacle of the filter-maker's art. I think Marlboro's pack and box represent the pinnacle of the packager's art. I think Marlboro is a pleasure and a treasure, and I fairly burst with pride that I have been chosen to speak for Marlboro on your campus. All the same, I want my money every week. And the makers of Marlboro understand this full well. They don't like it, but they understand it.

In the columns which follow this opening installment, I will turn the hot white light of truth on the pressing problems of campus life—the many and varied dilemmas which beset the undergraduate—burning questions like "Should Chaucer classrooms be converted to parking garages?" and "Should proctors be given a saliva test?" and "Should foreign exchange students be held for ransom?"

And in these columns, while grappling with the crises that vex campus America, I will make occasional brief mention of Marlboro Cigarettes. If I do not, the makers will not give me any money.

The makers of Marlboro will bring you this uncensored, free-style column 26 times throughout the school year. During this period it is not unlikely that Old Max will step on some toes—principally ours—but we think it's all in fun and we hope you will too.

"That horn-blower behind me got my goat . . ."

Even good drivers can be forced into accidents! A hill-climbing truck ahead and a parade of honkers behind can try your patience. Some tailgater with his lights full on you can make you boil. But don't fall for those old "let's you and him fight" routines. Traffic accidents killed 37,000 people last year. Who knows how many died because some good driver let another pressure him into taking a foolish chance? Don't let anger force you to risk lives—yours or others!

Blue Key Members Reply

Dear Editor:

I feel that possibly behind the problem and charges which you made is an ignorance of the Blue Key's purpose. However, I feel that it is not your personal ignorance but is common to most members of the student body. To better explain by idea, let me quote a section from the Blue Key National Publication.

"Blue Key, as a unique, nationally recognized aid to higher education, should never be thought of as a typical honor or service fraternity. Instead of competing for activities of members, it encourages voluntary efforts to coordinate campus programs for the good of all." Therefore, when you look to the Blue Key to take upon it all of the problems of the college and to solve them on its own, you have missed the idea of the Blue Key.

Instead, let me suggest what you should expect from us. Among our membership, you will find most of the leaders of the other organizations on campus. They have both the size and the power to get the job done. Therefore, it should be the responsibility of the Blue Key to see what this campus needs and to work on it. From the Blue Key, you should expect its members to be interested in school problems and needs and for ways to solve them in cooperation with other school organizations.

In closing, I would like to say that the Blue Key cannot do it all on its own. It needs to understanding of the student body as well as its cooperation and help.

TED ELDERS

Dear Editor:

I have read that when James B. Conant was president of Harvard University, he kept among other objects on his desk a little model of a turtle under which was the inscription, "Consider the turtle. He makes progress only when he sticks his neck out." Congratulations to you on the subject matter of your last editorial.

In reply I would say that it is not the Blue Key's responsibility to carry on programs such as last year's Student Concert Series (which you mentioned) but to foster ideas for campus improvements such as this. Since the Blue Key is a small nucleus of the campus leaders, it can function most efficiently by channeling these ideas to the campus organization most capable of developing these ideas. Let us remember that these organizations are usually represented in the Blue Key. Many ideas originating among the Blue Key members have been presented to the student body by other organizations which are led by Blue Key members. However, I recognize and give credit to the manpower of these organizations which have brought to life ideas of their own and those of the Blue Key.

In closing I will ask this question: Should your charges of "lethargy and misrepresentation" be directed specifically to the Blue Key or to the student body as a whole?

JOHN HENDERSON

Dear Editor:

In reply to last week's editorial, I would like to quote from Bobby Joiner's editorial in last year's Blue Key edition of the Blue Sock. This editorial appeared under the headline, "Blue Key Means Service."

"We as Blue Key members realize that we have a tremendous responsibility in promoting intellectual attainment and serving the best interests and progress of the college. However, in order to accomplish this, we must be recognized as the coordinating group between the administration and the students.

"If you are a 'Dissatisfied Student,' we ask you to submit your complaints and suggestions to the Blue Key so that we can " . . . submit them to the administration.

The Blue Key can do nothing without student support. Editorials such as last week's only serve to destroy student support and thus limit the Blue Key's service to the school.

BOBBY PIEPHOFF

Dear Editor:

The editor of the Blue Stocking asked that any replies to last week's well intended editorial aimed at the Blue Key be not just a "pious denial" of the opinions stated but also a positive statement of the future plans of the organization. The editor, unfortunately, failed to ask any Blue Key officer or member what plans were being made for the coming year. He blindly assumed that the organization was lying stagnant, meeting in inconspicuous corners making insignificat plans for the school. He not only neglected to seek out any of the plans the Blue Key has for the new year but he very unjustly and maliciously attacked the regular functions of the group as being unimportant and minor campus affairs.

The editor should stop and consider the irrefutable value of the PC-Wofford exchange program in its effort to eliminate vandalism of the two campuses or not take for granted the work that goes into a Parent's Day program or a Homecoming show. He of all people around here should not take anyone's efforts for granted because his tireless efforts to put out a newspaper often go unsung. If he had thought through these things, I am sure he would not have brushed them aside as trivials.

The editor of the school paper, in an effort to "prod" an organization to positive action, has failed to present, as he seemingly should, any "student problems" to this organization for study. One of the purposes of the Blue Key is to study student problems, to deal with them, and to correct them where possible. It is not a function of the Blue Key to sit and think up the problems. Unless the Blue Key is made aware of the problems, it cannot act on them. The newspaper is an excellent means of presenting the problems. The Blue Key could use, to everyone's advantage, the cooperation of the Blue Stocking and not its "misrepresentations."

GRIFFIN HELWIG

Dear Editor:

I feel that the subject of last week's editorial was a deserving one, but I question your method. Could not this editorial be classed along with the writings of Hearst and Pulitzer prior to the Spanish-American War as "'Yellow Journalism"? Was the writer really trying to prod the Blue Key into positive leadership, service, and joint action as he stated, or was he merely trying to create a sensation on campus and arouse the student's interest in the Blue Stocking at the expense of the Blue Key?

The latter he most assuredly did. The former, which was attempted with no knowledge of present Blue Key plans and activities, he may feel he has accomplished. If he has it was in a most destructive manner.

IFC Interprets Regulations For Annual Fraternity Rush Season

IFC President Alex Bosserman announced the newly revised rush rules to the student body in chapel Monday. The rules, which cover rushing until Pledge Day, Nov. 30, were revised by the Council last week.

Section I

(1) The rushing of new students will begin the first semester and continue to pledge day.

(2) Each fraternity will have one open social beginning the last Wednesday of September and continuing each Wednesday thereafter until each fraternity has had one. The social will last not longer than midnight of said night.

(3) No change in the order, or postponement, of any open social may be made without approval of the I. F. C.

(4) An open social is a social open to only those men who are matriculating at P. C. for their first semester, and it will be conducted under the supervision of the I. F. C.

Section II

(1) Each fraternity will have one smoker beginning the first Wednesday after Thanksgiving and continuing on successive days thereafter with the exception of Saturday and Sunday.

(2) Only brothers and pledges of that fraternity and those having special invitations shall be permitted at the smoker. Brothers and pledges of other chapters of same fraternity will be allowed to attend.

(3) No freshman will be allowed in any fraternity room during the hours of the open socials or smokers (8:00-12:00) except in the fraternity scheduled to have the social or smoker on that

College Resuming Development Drive

Presbyterian College is resuming its development campaign this fall with $1,253,222 already secured toward the record $1,800,000 goal, President Marshall W. Brown announced today.

He said South Carolina Presbyterians, in tackling this greatest fund-raising objective in PC history, moved two-thirds of the way toward completion during the March-May phase of this 1962 program. After suspending work for the summer, another round of activity this fall is expected to bring the campaign to a successful close.

Fifty-four churches already have hit 100 percent, while 123 other congregations have subscribed substantially toward their goals. The follow-up this fall will concentrate primarily on the 82 churches who requested their drives at this time.

President Brown pointed out that a new era begins to unfold for Presbyterian College with the success of this program. Out of it will come PC's first women's dormitory—making the college truly a co-educational school — new dining hall, modern science building and endowment additions to strengthen faculty salaries and scholarship funds.

"THEN in 1959 I . . . " PC Freshmen Allen Callaway (right) and Jeff Fagen gave their spiels (or cast out their nets if you prefer) to attentive Misses at the KA open social Wednesday night.—(Photo by Autry).

Eleven New Professors Join College Faculty

The beginning of the fall term saw eleven new faces among the Presbyterian College faculty. Ten of the college's various departments received new men.

James W. Glenn has joined the Biology department of Presbyterian College. After receiving his masters degree from Appalachian State Teachers College, Mr. Glenn taught Biology at a Charleston High School last year. He also taught the last term of summer school here. Mr. Glenn succeeds Robert McIntyre.

D. Wayne Gunn has joined the faculty of the English department. He received his master's degree from the University of North Carolina, after graduating from Wake Forest in '61. Mr. Gunn succeeds Donald Boyd.

Another instructor of English is Doctor Emett Kilpatrick. He attended Maryville College where he received his B. A. He went on to earn his masters degree at Johns Hopkins University. The University of Paris later awarded him his Docteur es-Letters. Dr. Kilpatrick has been retired for the past two years. Before that time he was head of the English department at Troy State College, Troy, Alabama.

In the economics department is James C. Harris, who replaces Dr. Karl Scheele. He received his B. S. degree from the University of Tennessee. Mr. Harris earned his master's degree from Washington State University. He has just completed a year's tour of duty with the army in the 156th Military Police Battalion.

Hellan W. Mims is replacing Dr. Lewis B Pope as head of the guidance-vocational center. She will also teach psychology. Miss Mims graduated from Winthrop in 1940 and received her master's degree from Columbia University in 1955. Miss Mims has a long record of guidance work. She comes

Student Opinion Poll

Intervention In Cuba Favored

by Wirt Skinner

Monday of this week, "The Blue Stocking" took a campus poll. The questions asked were about the United States' position in international politics and more especially, the Cuban attempt to plant a bull-session-topic-seed in, to get your exchanging ideas of pertinent events.

For simplicity's sake, all answers will be classified as either affirmative, negative, or indecisive.

The first question asked if the US should intervene in Cuba to protect our security even when Latin America resents our history of intervention. Of the opinions expressed:

Affirmative, 83%; NeNgative, 15%; Undecided, 2%.

The second question dealt with the form of intervention should take. The students stasked up like this:

Armed, 36%; Armed if provoked, 30%; No Arms, 18%; Others, 16%.

These are grouped as best the writer could interpret them and he read everyone of them. It seems that 36% made a blanket declaration of war, 30% were willing to fight if Castro and his reds created conditions which would leave us no alternative and make us use force—but strictly defensive. 18% said no arms whatever but most of this 18% had stated that they were in favor of no intervention at all, 16% had their own ideas ranging from verbal threats, to naval and economic blockades, to military force by Latin America and the US.

Whether or not action should be taken without Latin American consent was the third question. T heerplies were:

Affirmative, 33%; Negative, 50%; Not sure, 7%; Inform them and proceed, 10%.

In the fourth question we asked if you simply cared enough to keep up with news events and hash them over with friends. Virtually everyone answered "yes" with a few keeping their opinions to themselves.

What Form Of Intervention?

WIRT SKINNER, Associate Editor

Regardless of what one may think, International Law is a definite reality and has something to do with every nation's foreign policy. My comments in passing would be that by international law the U.S. cannot intervene in Cuba with military forces because to do so would be a violation of her sovereignty; i. e., her right to her own destiny within her borders. But then, too, necessity knows no law.

A naval blockade or embargo would be dandy but we must get the backing of the OAS states and our allies to make it effective. We could do something like this without their consent but it would be only a token effort.

If the U.S. ever started a war it would ruin us in our prestige, diplomatic services and anti-communist efforts—especially in Latin America, Asia and Africa. We'd be the war-mongers Russia makes us out to be. Maybe with an OAS OK we could goad Cuba into a war but we could never start the shooting.

Why go to this trouble over something that seems so remote to our little Christian campus for little Christians, nestled lazily in Clinton, a thriving little Piedmont community? Because really, it's not so remote after all. It's as remote in importance only as much as you make it so. How this "faraway" problem is handled may well determine whether or not you and I should find ourselves in a war, perhaps strafing a farm village in the Ukraine or inching our way through miles of stench and jungle filth, carrying two .81 mm motar shells on our backs to a gun emplacement north of Tra Vinh.

Getting dramatic, aren't we? But my point is that this Cuban situation should be of vital concern to you, the student. It should be much more important to you than it apparently seems—unless of course, you don't mind the prospect of possibly becoming a nice piece of atomic residue.

Stand Up And Be Counted, Blue Key

THERE IS on the campus of Presbyterian College an organization called the Blue Key National Honorary Fraternity whose professed purposes are the "fostering of ambition for intellectual attainment and the desire to render service to the student body and college, the study of student problems, and the enrichment of student life and stimulation of progress in the college." The passage in the 1962 knapsack about the Blue Key further reads that "The Blue Key is the ranking organization on the campus, and each year, it taps a small number of college leaders for membership in the group." (Note the adjective "ranking.")

It is beyond a doubt an organization of the best campus leaders but in the past has not been the leading organization on campus in anything but the prestige which it strives so hard to maintain with elaborate tapping ceremonies and conspicuous initiations. As far as studying student problems and all the other points of their worthy statement of purpose, if the Blue Key ever does much of this they must do so in secret, gathering only at the stroke of midnight at the least conspicious place on campus.

LAST YEAR the Student Council was busy doing the things which one would expect the Blue Key to do, getting the ball rolling on a student concert series and proposing new grading systems for example. Once the council has started these projects, then the Blue Key came forth to "Join hands in service," etc.

It is sometimes argued that social fraternities are bad at PC because they so divide the leadership and therefore are detrimental to cooperation, but the Blue Key has cornered the market on leadership, both from fraternities and independents. One would think that this assemblage would do more than worry about the cup which goes to the PC or Wofford Blue Key Chapter each year, help to organize the Parents Day Program, and be responsible for publishing one issue of the Blue Stocking each year which they fill with pictures of themselves and headlines such as "Blue Key Means Service," "Blue Key boasts colorful past," and "Blue Key stresses Leadership, Service." (Taken from the 1962 Blue Key Edition of the Blue Stocking.)

The purpose of this editorial is not to criticize those present members of the Blue Key who were tapped last spring, but to prod them into the positive leadership, service, and joint action of which they are capable.

WOULD YOU like to reply Blue Key? The charges are lethargy and misrepresentation. We will reserve space in next week's Sock for an answer and would suggest that it contain not just a pious denial of this editorial but some of your current plans and ideas for the "fostering of ambition for intellectual attainment", the service you plan this year to the student body and college, any studies you may presently be making of student problems, how you hope to enrich student life and stimulate progress in the college, and last but not least, why you consider yourselves the ranking organization on campus.

On Your Indoctrination

(A Tale Told By An Idiot)

JIM BARBOUR, Feature Editor

We are now well into that time of the year here at Pickanoodle Colby known as the Great Awakening. You freshmen are being exposed to the Cold Truths; you have attended your first two weeks of classes; you have been through your first wretched series of football games and rush parties. We of the staff feel that it is our boundful duty to dear ole Pickanoodle to advise you to the best of our worthy, experienced ability, and to help you through this time of confusion.

You made your first big mistake when you bought textbooks. If you had consulted an upperclassman before committing this misdemeanor, he would have told you to let it slide, because nobody studies around here anyway. But, since the deed is over and done with, please grant me one favor—remember that this concise accumulation of the product of spruces and aspens bound together by frozen cardboard is a textbook—no more. Treat it accordingly.

The textbook is a unique animal in the world of books. It is many things to many people. It comes off the presses a robust and happy infant, adored by its author and praised to the skies by its publisher.

It was conceived by Scholarship and Patience and nurtured by Effort. However, its future is brief and full of ups and downs.

As an infant, it's worth its weight in diamonds, but the day comes quickly when the publisher won't give a dime for his offspring.

Spanking new, this infant's price outrages students who buy it over the counter.

The new baby matures fast in a world of hard knocks. By turns, it is used and misused. It is handled and mishandled. It is talked about, talked over, talked up and talked down.

By turns, it is a friend and foe. It is taken to dinner and kept up all night. It gets picked up, patted, praised and damned. It gets discussed, cussed, and kicked across the room.

It gets dog eared and dog tor
It gets rained on and sat on is thumbed through, flipp through, and flipped over.

It knows many owners. It bickered over, bargained for, rided, and disowned.

All stomachs growl and in th throes,
Of hunger, we bemoan ou plight.
Now there's the bell; we clos our books;
But wait! His mouth is ope still.

THETA CHI

Beta Psi Chapter of Theta Chi Fraternity is looking forward to its annual Open Social to be held in the Fraternity Suite on Wednesday, October 3. A cordial invitation is extended to all new students at PC.

Congratulations are extended to Bill Anderson, Holmes Overstreet and David Worth upon their initiation into the Brotherhood this week. With these new brothers ,the awards presented to Beta Psi at the National Convention, and a new spirit, Theta Chi is looking forward to a very successful year.

ALPHA SIGMA PHI

The brothers and pledges of Alpha Psi Chapter extend their congratulations to new brothers Robert "Yogi" Jones and David Mabie.

Plans for the Homecoming dance and display was discussed at the last meeting.

Mystery brother of the week: Russel Strange.

KAPPA ALPHA

Final plans have been made for Homecoming Weekend with a party at Lake Greenwood scheduled for Saturday afternoon.

Brother Ed Loring was welcomed back by the Chapter after a leave of absence.

PI KAPPA PHI

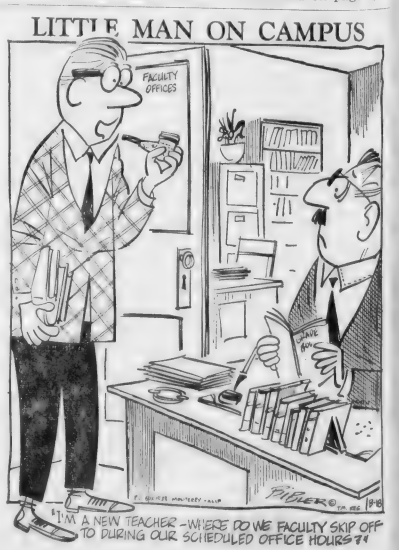
During the past week, Pi Kappa Phi has been making plans for Homecoming weekend. Plans for the display were also discussed.

Congratulations to George Patat and Phil Smith on recently being initiated as pledges.

SIGMA NU

Final plans have been made for Homecoming and work has already begun on the display.

All freshmen, transfer students and their dates are cordially invited to all activities on Homecoming Weekend.



Congratulations to Tommy Estes, Ronnie Collins, and Kent Mitchell who were initiated into the Brotherhood Monday night.

PI KAPPA ALPHA

Plans have been made for Homecoming Dance Weekend which will include Open House Saturday afternoon and a party after the game Saturday night.

Brother McGuire reported that the outlook for intramural football is good.

Brothers of the Week: Singleterry, Morris, Nixon and Gray.

BRUISER Randy McCranie could give PC fans a lot to cheer about Saturday night. A week ago he led the charge against Lenoir Rhyne with 91 yards gained, scoring one touchdown and setting up the other. Whatever the score of the PC-Citadel game, several cadets are likely to fall asleep Saturday night feeling the effects of McCranie's line-shattering running.—(Photo by Autry)

PC Edged Out By Lenoir Rhyne In Final Quarter

Lenoir Rhyne defeated PC by a score of 15 to 14 last Saturday night on PC's home field. The Blue Hose led through most of the game with a touchdown in the first half and another in the third quarter. Lenoir Rhyne scored once in the third quarter and again in the fourth. After their first touchdown, they passed for two points. The next touchdown tied the score an dthe extra point won the ballgame.

A BRIGHT POINT in PC's defeat was the running of Sohpomore fullback Randy McCranie. He carried the ball twenty times for 91 yards. Playing on defense, McCranie was a standout in the secondary. He played most of the game on both offense and defense.

Ronnie Hampton, while sharing the running duties with McCranie, did an excellent job of blocking for the 200 pound fullback. Several of his blocks released McCranie for long gains.

The blocking in the line was led by Alvin Coley, Dewey McReynolds, and Kermit Littlefield. These boys opened some holes in the Lenoir Rhyne line and showed promise for the rest of the season.

THE DEFENSE worked well together, with a lot of gang tackling. Some of the boys were a little too eager as PC drew several penalties for piling on. Alvin Coley again was a standout on defense. He was ably assisted by David Harrill and Pat Sudeth.

Tomorrow night PC goes against The Citadel in Charleston. They have not sustained any major injuries and should be at full strength when they travel to Charleston.

Hose Seek To Change History Of Charleston Defeats Saturday

Look For Win Over The Citadel

Victory-hungry PC journeys to historic Charleston Saturday in hopes of changing one distasteful recent passage of the city's history.

The Hose have not beaten the Cadets there since 1954 when they turned the trick by a score of 20-9.

Since that time the two teams have met on seven occasions and the Citadel has emerged victorious each time, the last being in 1960 by a score of 27-0.

After being romped by Florida State University 49 to 0, The Citadel bounced back last week by defeating Davidson 19 to 0. PC meanwhile is still looking for its first victory after dropping the openers to Furman 40 to 6 and Lenoir Rhyne 15 to 14.

The Cadets have a rugged forward wall both on offense and on defense with tackles Hugh Bradbun and Doug Shaffer as standouts. The defense demonstrated its effectiveness by holding a scoreless Davidson to a mere seven first downs last week.

However, the Bulldogs seem to size up weak on pass defense. At least that's the way F. S. U. made it look as they capitalized on their aerial attack to rack up a 49 to 0 devestation against the Bulldogs 2 weeks ago.

THE PC PASS DEFENDERS will have their hands full with the passing arms of quarterbacks Sid Mitchell and Wade St. John. Both of these boys can throw the short pass for the first down or explode with a touchdown aerial at any point in the game. The ground attack doesn't lack punch, however. Halfbacks Taylor and Brinson are deadly around the ends while fullback Jackson is consistent up the middle.

The Citadel will be hampered by the loss of Dwight Street who son Wildcats out of the stadium last Saturday night. Street sustained a knee injury in the final minutes of the Davidson game. kicked the highly touted David-

Run of the Hose

LEON BULLARD, Sports Editor

The beginning of intramural season on Monday calls to our attention the inter-fraternity competition for the SCA trophy. Last year's winner was the Pi Kappa Phi fraternity. They will return to the wars with a team that placed second last year and because of returning players must be ranked as the number one team to beat this year. The PiKaps have many outstanding players but of these, the most outstanding is James Salvo. Salvo playing either end or halfback will surely be the class of the league in pass catching.

If Salvo plays in the line, he is our pick for Lineman of the Year. He can expect his strongest competition for this post-season honor to come from Bob "Bear" Morris of the KAs. Bob was elected the outstanding lineman of the year last year and could be a repeat performer at his center position. Other competition can be expected to come from the KiKA's Bill Pittard, the Alpha Sig's Bob Arrowood and Robert "Yogi" Jones.

FOR BACK OF THE YEAR, it looks as if Bill Russell of the PiKA's will again lead the field. Russell is a hard runner, similar to a locomotive. Giving Russell a struggle for the position will be Tommy Williams of the KA's, a hard throwing quarterback who will have a good year if he can find a receiver for his passes. Pete Wearout of the Sigma Nus and Rambling Bill Canady of the Alpha Sigs will furnish further competition.

All of the above and many others will combine to make their respective fraternity team capable of beating any other team on any given day. It looks like a good year for intramural football with plenty of action every week.

Sticking our neck out on a limb, we predict that the final standings at the end of the season will be— First: Pi Kappa Phi; Second: Alpha Sigma Phi; Third: Pi Kappa Alpha; Fourth: Kappa Alpha; Fifth: Sigma Nu.

PROGNOSTICATIONS

Last week we hit 2 of 3, with only Davidson's defeat at the hands of The Citadel marring our predictions. This week we pick Wofford over Davidson, Newberry over Lenoir Rhyne, Florida State and "justice" to catch up with the Paladins of Furman, PC and The Citadel is rated a toss-up with PC capable of getting victory number one providing the injuries have healed up.

SPORT SHORTS

Talk about luck—look at Lenoir Rhyne, victorious in two excursions into South Carolina—Sonny Liston, one punch makes him World Champion—Not so lucky, the Yanks—they don't need luck, they have the stuff—Coach Clyde Ehrhardt also seems to have the stuff from which a good winning team can be moulded. The running game was particular impressive in the Lenoir Rhyne game. More so than in any game this writer has seen in his three years here at PC. We hope that the improving defense will muffle the Cannon Roar in Charleston tomorrow night.

Alpha Sigs Meet Bandits In Opening 'Mural Action

The 1962-63 Intramural Athletic Program officially gets underway on Monday afternoon as the Alpha Sigma Phis tangle with the only independent team, the Bandits, at 4:15.

The council has announced that the six teams this year represent five fraternity teams and the one independent. The sole fraternity on campus not fielding a team is the Theta Chi Chapter. The independent team, the Bandits boast of the only team fielding a professor; they have the ever-active Tommy Stallworth.

Eugene Goodwyn, Chairman of the Intramural Council, has announced several major rule changes over last season's regulations; all persons on, or interested in an intramural team are urged to become familiar with these changes. The most outstanding change has been in regard to the gaining of first downs. This year's rule states that a team will be awarded a first down if it gains 20 yards or more in four consecutive downs.

THE RULE last year stated that a team would be given a first down if it completed three straight passes regardless of yardage covered, thus almost eliminating the running aspect of football. Goodwyn stated that the rule change was effected because, "We, on the council, believe it will make the game more like regular football and the running game will be brought back."

It also announced that a constitution to regulate intramural activities had been drawn up. The Constitution of the Intramural activities, gives eligibility regnulations, lists rules concerning forfeits, protests and postponements, and covers the revised point system for intramural awards. Goodwyn expressed his desire for all students to become familiar with this constiution and its regulations. Copies may be seen on the bulletin board in the Douglas House TV lounge or obtained from Coach Gordan Warden, the facultry head of intramural cports.

The games scheduled for next week are as follows:

Monday 4:15 — Alpha Sigma Phi vs. The Bandits.
Tuesday 4:15 — Kappa Alpha vs. Pi Kappa Alpha.
Wednesday 4:15 — Pi Kappa Phis vs. Sigma Nu
Thursday 4:15 — Bandits vs. Kappa Alpha.

(4) No fraternity man is permitted to discourage any freshman or new man from attending socials or smokers of other fraternities. He is not to carry him off or keep him, in any way, from another social or smoker, nor to take him off campus.

(5) A list of students prepared by the registrar of students eligible to be pledged will be furnished the fraternities by the Faculty Committee prior to the first smoker.

(6) Without permission of the I. F. C. no other fraternity will be permitted to have any organized function during the time assigned to the fraternity giving an open social or smoker.

(7) Any I. F. C. member who sees any form of illegal rushing during scheduled meeting must report it, or the fraternity will be subject to a penalty.

Section III

(1) Pledge day will be the Thursday following the last smoker and pledges will be from 2 p. m. until 4 p. m. at a place designated by the I. F. C.

(2) The last fraternity having a smoker will be granted permission to give out bids under supervision of the I. F. C.

(3) Before a student is pledged into a fraternity he must be a regular enrolled student in the college and have at least the equivalent of three (3) C's in three (3) or four (4) hour courses.

Homecoming Dance

This year the annual Homecoming Dance will be held Friday, Oct. 3, at the National Guard Armory on South Broad Street from 8:00 to 12:00 p. m. Music will be furnished by two bands—the Inkspots and the Catalinas. The idea is to have a "professional" alternation between fast and slow music. The Inkspots will provide slow music, and the Catalinas will handle the fast songs.

There will be no charge to students going to the dance. The dance is financed by school funds.

Dress for the evening will be semi-formal: coat and tie for the men, and dresses for the women. IFC President Alex Bosserman stated, "In order to encourage all those who attend to stay at the dance, fraternity houses will be closed from 8:00 p. m. to 6:00 a. m., Saturday.

The Blue Stocking

Vol. XLI Presbyterian College, Clinton, S. C., September 22, 1962 No. 1

"I'd heard that the average size of the U. S. soldier had increased lately, but I didn't believe it 'till I saw those WW II pup tents." This shot of a bivouac at ROTC summer camp at Ft. Bragg, N. C., catches PC Cadet Murray White in the center.

College Land Area Will Triple With Addition of 120 Acres

By 1963 Presbyterian College plans to stretch its campus to the Clinton city limits. President Marshall W. Brown announced that through the purchase of about 120 acres of land the campus will more than triple its present 55-acre location.

President Brown added:

"Trustee Chairman Robert M. Wance and I feel that we are fortunate to be able to obtain this land, some of it within the city limits, which adjoins our present campus to the east. The owners are close friends of Presbyterian College who long have shared its dream for the future. With most of the available space now 55 acres now being utilized, more land was the key factor in our projected plans. The enlarged campus now provided adequate space for all expansion of the foreseeable future."

The 120 acres are composed of two land plots. One, about 20 acres, extends eastward from Young baseball field and the present intramural and practice football field. This land is presently owned by Mrs. Emmie Young Godfrey and her daughter, Mrs. Joy Young Gault. The larger section is being purchased from the family of the late George A. Copeland. This area is of approximately 100 acres and lies adjacent to the Godfrey property.

OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO MEN STUDENTS are the proposed plans for the addition of a woman's campus. There are also numerous new buildings in mind for the development program.

President Brown added this historical note to his announcement: "It is significant to recall that the initial 15 acres of the site we now call Presbyterian College came as a gift from the forebears of those who have made available this latest 120 acres. Two of the staunchest early friends of the College were Newton Young, grandfather of Mrs. Godfrey, and J. W. Copeland, uncle of the late George A. Copeland. Their land-gift in 1881, a year after the founding date, enabled the institution to move from its original location on the Thornwell Orphanage campus."

PC Summer Session Graduates Eleven

During the 1962 summer school session at Presbyterian College, eleven students completed requirements for degrees. Of these eleven, two students, Cecil Allen Campbell of Owings, and James David Parrish of Statesboro, Ga., were graduated July 18, after the end of the first summer session. Both earned B. A. degrees.

The following students received the B. A. degree August 25: Patricia Hunt Adams, Laurens (cum laude); David Gordon Greenslade, Smith's Parrish, Bermuda; Alice Watkins Clotz, Augusta, Ga.; Margaret Glenn Dedmon, Spartanburg; Patrick Kearns Kelly, Raeford, N. C.; and Alan Frederick Pitts, Langley.

Receiving the B. S. degree were three students: George Milton Lane, Avondale Estates, Ga.; Paul Edgar Neil, Jr., Marion; and John Lovell Smith, Jr., Asheville, N. C.

Gettys Named Acting Dean

Late this summer, Presbyterian College's president, Marshall W. Brown, announced the appointment of Dr. Joseph Gettys to the Academic Deanship. At Dr. Gettys' request, this is to be a temporary appointment — preferably limited to one year.

Dr. Gettys, who has taught Bible here since 1956, replaces retiring Dr. George C. Bellingrath. Dr. Gettys will continue to teach on a limited basis.

Commenting on the appointment, Dr. Brown noted that Dr. Gettys has a vast academic experience gleaned from teaching for twenty-four years. Dr. Gettys was professor of Bible and religious education at Queens College from 1938 to 1944. From there he moved to a Professorship of the English Bible at the Presbyterian School of Christian Education (1944-1952). From 1952 until 1956, he was Minister of Education at the Dallas First Presbyterian Church.

A noted author of Protestant literature, Dr. Gettys wrote: the widely read book, "What Presbyterians Believe"; "How To Teach," and "How To Study" booklets; and an array of Sunday School materials for young people.

Dr. Gettys is a distinguished (Continued on page 4)

ROTC summer camp saw Presbyterian College ranked fourth among attending colleges. A field of 21 colleges attended the six-week session at Fort Bragg, N. C. The Colleges, all from the Third Army area, included Furman, Clemson, Davidson, and Citadel.

Thirty-four Presbyterian College students went to camp. Of the fourteen seniors present, ten received commissions in officers Reserve Corps. Receiving commissions were: Albert Bell, Richard L. Boland, James A. Caddell, Charles H. Cook, Guy D. Hancock, Billy R. Ladd, Benjamin W. Margolius, Clifton R. Saverance, Donald Stewart and Charles D. Waters.

Boland and Saverance were cited as "Distinguished Military Graduates."

THE REMAINING twenty students at camp were juniors. They were: William F. Bartee, Steven L. Craig, Harry M. Gryder, Marshall G. Jones, James J. Crider, William W. Skinner, Karl A. Bosserman, Robert S. Arrowood, Kenneth K. Davis, Lorenzo D. Eagles, Mark N. Glenn, and Joseph S. Harvard.

Also at camp were: Robert W. Hazelwood, John D. Henderson, Donald E. Lohman, Robert P. Piephoff, George G. Reaves, Murray B. White, and Paul D. Woodall.

New Members Named For Chapel Choir

Passing a rather rigorous testing, seventeen new members were named to the Presbyterian College Robed Choir by Dr. Edouard Patte, the choir director. Most of the new members were freshmen.

Besides testing the voices of the applicants, Dr. Patte also tested their abilities of tonal and pitch recognition and of rhythm perception.

Homecoming Queen Entries Due Tuesday

Pictures for Homecoming Queen candidates are to be turned in to Paul Woodall by 3:00 p. m., Tuesday, September 25. The election will be held Wednesday, September 26. Only the candidates whose pictures are displayed and all coeds are eligible.

Freshman Control Board Headed By Bryan, Coley

Composed entirely of juniors and seniors, the board is headed by co-chairmen Bill Bryan and Alvin Coley, of Atlanta and Bainbridge, Ga., respectively. The other board members are: Marshall Jones of Atlanta, Ga.; Gary Brown of St. Petersburg, Fla.; Joe Prickett of Atlanta, Ga.; Alex Bosserman of Waynesboro, Va.; Dewey McReynolds of St. Paul, Va.; Welborn Gregg of Birmingham, Ala.; Sammy Clayton of Greer; Mike Gryder of Atlanta, Ga.; and Christine Wilson of Monroe, N. C. The members, who nominated themselves, were chosen last April by the Student Council.

Assuming their roles as the directors of freshmen orientation, the board got off to a "whooping" start immediately after the SCA picnic by having the freshmen run and hop about —all amid the shouts and taunts of the upperclassmen. The freshmen were instructed in the wearing of "Rat Signs," large signs worn front and back which tell the wearer's name and hometown.

Graphic illustration was given in the art of "Ginning"—jumping into the air and yelling "Beat Lenoir Rhyne, Sir!" or "Beat Furman, Sir!" — depending on whoever the football team was scheduled to play that week. A freshman performs this operation whenever an upperclassman yells at him to "gin."

BRYAN, COLEY

Following this "orientation" at the SCA picnic, the Board held their first "rat court" at which freshmen are called to task for their various shortcomings—such as not having their freshmen handbooks or failing to gin.

Since then "Rat season" has been in full force with freshmen bedecked with signs and ginning sporadically all over the campus. Operations will continue until November, with Rat Courts every week until then.

Kappa Alpha to Open Fall Social Activities Wednesday

Come September 26, the social season at Presbyterian College officially begins with Kappa Alpha Fraternity holding their open social. Every Wednesday night for five weeks thereafter open socials will be held, one by each fraternity.

The open socials will not be open to all students. The Intra-Fraternity Council rule on open socials states that only freshmen, transfer students, and upperclassmen specifically invited by the fraternity may attend.

Being mainly a dance, the socials give both fraternity men and those invited a chance to study one another better in terms of social graces and social compatibility. Girls are invited by the respective fraternities from area colleges.

As a note to those eligible to go to the socials, IFC President Alex Bosserman, stated, "I certainly hope everybody who can will take full advantage of the socials. Not only do they afford an opportunity to meet the brothers of the various fraternities, but they're also simply enjoyable in themselves."

In November, for a week following the open socials, closed smokers will be held each night to which prospective fraternity pledges will be invited. Attendance is only by formal invitation of the particular fraternity.

The order for open socials is:

Sept. 26—Kappa Alpha.
Oct. 3—Theta Chi.
Oct. 10—Pi Kappa Phi.
Oct. 17—Alpha Sigma Phi.
Oct. 24—Sigma Nu.
Oct. 31—Pi Kappa Alpha.

S. C. License Laws Apply to Wives

The wives of several students have been stopped by the State Highway Department for illegal procedure concerning driver's licenses, license plates and automobile registration. A fine will be imposed for continued violation.

According to the South Carolina law, if a student's wife is not going to school and is working and if she has a car registered in her name, she must: get a South Carolina driver's license; get South Carolina license plates and get the car registered in South Carolina. When her car is registered in South Carolina this also means that she must pay South Carolina taxes. Bue she will not have to pay taxes in the state of former registration, too.

Technically, the working out-of-state wife must have seen to all this within ten days of her arrival here. However, local authorities gave their assurance that they will not be strict about a failure to comply strictly according to the law since there are "real" extenuating circumstances involved.

If the car is not registered in the wife's name and she is working then she need only get a South Carolina driver's license. Cost is the same for a four years license. It can also be obtained in South Carolina by her parents or South Carolina kin and then she need not do anything, even if the car is in her name. She also need do nothing if she is attending college.

To get a South Carolina registration, the wife must show proof of liability coverage.

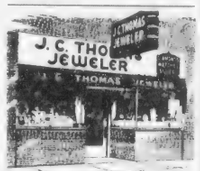
Licenses may be procured at Lynn Cooper's Rambler Sales any time during the day every Thursday and every other Friday. Registration and tags may be obtained from the State Highway Department in Laurens. It is suggested that those concerned have their cars registered and in the husband's name. Being a student, the husband is not bound by the above restrictions.

Art Studio Is Now Open

Students interested in the arts may now follow up their inclination. An Art Studio will be open to all comers, both faculty and students. The studio is situated on the second floor of Dr. Edouard Patte's home on Calvert Avenue. Hours are every afternoon from 2-5 p. m. Keys to the studio may be secured from Dr. Patte.

Rather extensive, the studio consists of one room with easels and chairs for oil painting, one room with tables and chairs for water colors, and one room for sculpture and carving.

No instruction will be given, the idea is for a purely club-like organization where every would-be artist could develop his talents with the help of other young painters.



No fee will be charged for use of the studio. Canvas, colors, brushes and other art necessities will have to be self supplied. Students may keep their materials at the studio.

Classic Film Series Will Be Shown Here

The Broadway Theatre will begin a series of classic films on October 19 with the one-day showing of "Little Women."

The project, entitled "The World Heritage Film and Book Program," will encourage those attending to "See the film, read the book."

All the films are of lasting interest. Others scheduled include "David Copperfield," with W. C. Fields in November, and "Captains Courageous," featuring Spencer Tracy in December.

Belk's

Everyone puts them on alike: one foot at a time.

The important thing about slacks for the college student is good looks, and quality at a reasonable price.

Belk's has them.

Our Manstyle automatic wash and wear in orlon and wool, $8.88 reduced from $10.99.

There are others in a range from $5.99 to $12.95, in a full selection of styles, fabrics and colors.

In Support of Language Labs

Many colleges have within the past five years begun requiring students of foreign languages to attend afternoon laboratories once a week for a half-an-hour to an hour in which they listen to tape recorded lessons on pronunciation and reply to questions on the tape in the language. The benefits to the students from such labs are a better pronunciation and the development of thought in the language by response to the questions. By listening to the tapes, the professor can see the weaknesses of his students and stress these in class.

At Presbyterian College, foreign language study poses a major obstacle to graduation for many a student. Language study is decidedly difficult and many have the opinion that it should not be required for graduation since most people will never use it anyway. The reason that many do not use the language again, is because they do not have a useable knowledge of the language they are trying to speak; they merely cram in a minimum amount of vocabulary and grammar to finish the two-year requirement and then promptly forget it for all practical purposes.

Instead of diminishing in importance, knowledge of a foreign language in our times becomes increasingly more important and in many cases, essential.

We badly need language labs at PC. The addition of these would make language study much easier, more beneficial, and would give the student a more workable knowledge of the language he studies. Both the good and the poor language student would benefit greatly from the short period of time spent each week in language lab .It would cut study time in half.

It is our understanding that thought has been given to the procuring of tape recorders and other such equipment needed and that we expect to have language labs soon. "SOON" is rather indefinite.

PC needs language labs for all three languages by next fall. Student support for this project might do much to increase its priority with the administration. The Blue Stocking urges you, the students, to talk it up and to write to the administration and to the Board of Trustees for their support.

As For The Blue Key

The eight members of PC's Blue Key Chapter chose to reply individually to last week's editorial, "Stand Up and Be Counted, Blue Key." The replies appear on this page and may be read and judged by the reader. They bring out some good considerations. Some, unfortunately, express righteous indignation and little else.

Although some of the letters make statements which tempt us to reply, we will not, feeling that our opinions were expressed adequately last week and the letters do more to strengthen these opinions than to refute them.

At least one Blue Key member suggests that the editorial had a negative "ring" because it do not suggest any new projects or endeavors for the Blue Key. In private we shall be happy to do so but for the paper to assume sufficient superiority over the ranking organization on campus to publish a list of projects on which its members should begin work is absurd and out of the question.

The opinions of the student body, about which the Blue Key is so suddenly concerned, will be resolved ultimately not by further editorials or letters but by the actions which speak louder than words.

Going Out On Limbs

The Blue Stocking shall through its editorials "go out on several limbs" this semester. To agree or disagree is your prerogative. If you agree with the viewpoints expressed, we ask that you join us on a particular "limb" through a letter to the editor. We issue a standnig invitation to any person of dissenting opinion to attempt to saw off these limbs from behind us through your letters. The first sounds of attempted sawing are heard even on this page.

Blue Key Members Reply

The Blue Key plans to continue the activities of last year which were presented in last week's Blue Stocking in a very unjust manner in regard to their value to the student body. Anyone who cannot see the importance of the exchange series with Wofford which has improved relations and cut down on vandalism would appear to me to be dodging the real issue in order to create interest.

If a true picture of the activities of the Blue Key had been presented, I am sure all would agree that they have been a great service to the students. I deeply regret that former Blue Key members who worked so diligently for our school have had their record subjected to such a harsh "misrepresentation" of the truth.

Without the full cooperation, support, and constructive criticism of the student body, the Blue Key could not function. And so in closing I would like to appeal to the students for their assistance.

From An Old Friend

Dear Editor:

I read with interest today your editorial of September 29 in which you discussed the Blue Key National Honorary Fraternity. I must comend you for the editorial, as well as for your recognition of the need for a stronger Blue Key.

Maybe the organization's members have always felt there was no work to be done in an honorary fraternity as it was merely a recognition of their "outstanding leadership." On the contrary, there is a definite need for such a student group. It would then be "the ranking organization." It should be pointed out here that the Blue Key did not write the passage in the Knapsack and therefore, to a degree, cannot be held responsible for what someone would like for them to be.

During my four years at PC the service performed by the Blue Key steadily declined. In the past couple of years, the group, within itself, lacked leadership as the officers did not have enough time to devote to the organization. Consequently, the functions of the Blue Key, and certain activities which the group had always performed, were carried out by a few of the more dedicated members. These few received no recognition for their work, as it was carried on quietly and behind the scenes. It should be pointed out here that for a few members to perform the functions of such an organization as the Blue Key should have been and should be.

All your facts concerning the Blue Key are correct. You probably know not what activities the Blue Key has planned for this year. Neither is this important in your editorial, as you so nicely pointed out that your purpose was not to criticize, but to urge the present members to do what their fellow students expect of them. It was a nice way of stating that the recent Blue Key members have not done their job and have let down the students, and unless the present members want to be remembered in the same manner, they better get on the stick.

It is now the job of the present Blue Key members to state what they plan to do this year, if anything. This will be good. The only thing you will have to do then is sit back in your chair and see if they do what they say they will. If they don't, then feel free to criticize the hell out out of them.

As a past editor and Blue Key member, I must say that Blue Key editions of the weekly student newspaper usually carried the same stories, year after year, as well as the same headlines. I must point out, however, that the 1961 and 1962 editions were NOT filled with pictures of members of the organization.

The Blue Key can and should be the leading, strongest, and ranking student organization. It should be the link between the administration and the student body. However, it will not be anything unless its members get on the ball and set new precedents for PC Blue Key chapters. It might do them good to read the national constitution, rules and charter, as well as their little books which tell them what other chapters are doing. They would be amazed.

Dear Editor:

Oftentimes in the life of a person or a group of persons comes a completely undeserved and unjustified attack, who matter how they may feel or wise, must be answered so those who do not know the may be enlightened. The Key has been attacked in a manner and so an answer be given.

While it may be said that Blue Key is automatically a ponent part of all the accomplments good and bad of its bers, nevertheless as a Blue member I would go farther in swering the editorial in week's "Blue Stocking." I simply say to the student bo a whole, "Open your eyes the facts, add your encourment and your help to the of the Blue Key, (many of are already in operation), then judge the Blue Key what it is doing for you and PC."

—HAROLD HOPE,
Vice-President

Dear Editor:

Your article of this past not only misrepresents the Key's purpose but lightly pa over the worthwhile work Blue Key has done for years. Does doing a job for eral years make it unimpor and not worthwhile? If you inclined (which undoubtedly are) to feel this way, poss these could be handled by so one else and the Blue Key move on to better things. It so clearly evident no one as about our future plans or our present undertakings.

The Blue Key is not an ganization to compete with er clubs for "busy awards.") to be of assistance when are called upon, be it stud or administration.

If you feel you have to "p us into positive leadership, again I must strongly objec don not gather material a "Stroke of midnight" as evidently believe, but we are ways willing to listen to problem of the student body.

To correct one error. The dent Concert Series was sta by two Blue Key members, the Student Council. Sorry, like to give credit where is due!

DuPONT SMITH, Editor

This week's front page feature article on Coach E hardt satisfies one of the personal hopes I had when I for editor. For many months, I have planned to pu this story when a good opportunity came along and this homecoming weekend seemed to be an appropriate time.

As an eighth grader at Decatur High School, I took physical education from Coach Ehrhardt. I remember one simple incident in particular from that year.

It took place when my squad of eight other eighth graders took part in some horse-play at the expense of a senior who assisted in the class. Coach Ehrhardt addressed the whole class (while I hung my head) and them that "DuPont comes one of the finest families in catur. but when he gets from them, he's a Holy Te Now squad five, he can lead good or he can lead you bad Don't let him lead you to Those words stuck with me quite a while and still do.

To me, and I am sure t PC student body as well, Ehrahardt rates as a man an men.

Blue Hose Tackle Davidson In Annual Battle of Presbyterians

The Presbyterian College grid squad will be out to uphold an old tradition when they meet the Wildcats of Davidson College in the annual Homecoming game tomorrow night. The Blue Hose have not lost a homecoming game in five years, and in that year the Davidson squad upset the Hose to play the spoiler role. Last year the Hose went into their Homecoming game seeking their first win, and they won big, by a 37-0 count. This year the situation is similar, and PC hopes to duplicate the win of last year.

The PC-Davidson rivalry dates back to 1919, when the teams battled to a 0-0 deadlock. In nineteen games since then, Dvaidson holds a 10-9 edge. The rivalry was discontinued in 1926 by a gridiron disagreement, but resumed in 1949. Since then PC has won seven of the last twelve games to close the gap in the series. Davidson won last year's game up in North Carolina, but the year before that PC won by a 6-0 score.

THE WILDCATS are led by quarterbacks Earle Cole and Kent Tucker who like to throw the ball a lot, and by Alex Gibbs and Bob Cordle, two outstanding halfbacks. The Davidson squad defeated Wofford last week 15-0 while PC was losing to the Citadel 28-8. The teams have played one mutual opponent, the Citadel, and each was beaten by the Cadets. Davidson lost to them by 19-0, and PC 28-8, so it should be an interesting game.

The Hose were encouraged by the return of letterman quarterback Bill Tyson who has been sidelined for a week with an injured ankle.

The running game appears to be improving, too, and senior halfbacks Ronnie Hampton and Jimmy May will be in top shape to assist fullback Randy McCranie who has had to take most of the PC offense this year. A good homecoming crowd is expected to be on hand for "The Battle of the Presbyterians" as the series is known.

Run of the Hose

AL PEARCE, Sports Editor

With the advent of the year's intramural activities, it may be well to take a good look at the program and examine its value.

It is a well known fact that the Presbyterian College intramural program ranks among the best in the South, and some think in the nation. Reliable sources have said that the participation has been well above the 85% mark for many years. It would be hard to find a college or university, regardless of size, that could boast of such participation. This is a tribute both to the students, with their interest in the program, and to the excellent planning and publicizing of each phase of the activities.

The six national fraternities on campus have co-operated in every way to help make the intramural program what it is today. Their fielding teams in every season of competition, and their supplying of capable officials has done much to make the program the success that it is. The reliable entering of independent teams in all sports shows that the program is not restricted to fraternities.

The program has been set up as to allow the greatest amount of participation possible. The efficient planning and running of a program this large is put mainly upon the shoulders of the Intramural Council. Gordon Warden, faculty advisor, and Eugene Goodwyn, co-chairman of the council, have done a commendable job in drawing up of a new constitution to regulate intramural activities and to interpret rules of play. The college has done much to promote good sportsmanship and clean competition among participating teams, the council has done much to keep the program on a sound foundation, and now it is up to us, the students, to see that the 85% mark is reached again this year and surpassed if possible.

From the results of a small campus poll, we offer these statistics on the upcoming World Series play: 60% of the students interviewed favored the Yankees over the Giants In about five games . . . Of particular interest to tennis fans will be the training rules of Whitney Reed, ranking US amateur player who trains on beer, hot dogs, and late hours . . . The LA Dodgers really choked when the chips were down, didn't they? They lost seven out of their last eight regularly scheduled games, including their last five. The Giants refused to be counted out as they won six out of their last eight to tie the Dodgers on the last day of the season, and went on to sweep the National League flag in the playoff. They are National League champs, but not many think they will be world champs . . . Some don't think it will last, but the lowly Washington Redskins have given impressive performances in their first three NFL games. Could it be Bobby Mitchell? . . . Lenoir Rhyne pulled another one out last week, beating Newberry in the final minute of play. They have won three games by a grand total of three points, but they all count . . . Many students have commented on the fine sportsmanship and clean, hard play in the KA-PiKA football game last Tuesday. Congratulations to both these teams on the fine example they have set.

Hardee, Green Are IM Players of Week

This year, for the first time, the sports staff of the Blue Stocking will pick two intramural players to be honored as Players of the Week. These players will be picked on the basis of their all-around play in games played that week. For the first two players selected this year, we honor DONNIE HARDEE, back of the Alpha Sigma Phi's, and JACK GREEN, end of the Kappa Alpha's.

Hardee accounted for 19 of his team's 21 points as they defeated the Bandits. He passed for two TDs, ran another over, and passed for an extra point, to easily win the poll.

Greene, tall end for the KAs, caught the game-winning TD pass as the KAs upset the Pi Kappa Alpha's 18 to 13. Jack's all-around end play won him this week's honor for the lineman.

Hose Fall To Citadel

by Dick Wilkinson

Citadel defeated the Blue Hose last Saturday night in Charleston, capitalizing on PC's mistakes to win by a score of 28 to 8. Citadel's first touchdown came on an intercepted pass. The second touchdown came on a long pass as did the third. The fourth was set up by a PC fumble late in the game. PC's only score came on a four-yard plunge by McCranie. He also ran for the two points after the touchdown.

Presbyterian lost an opportunity to score when Dewey McReynolds recovered a fumble deep in cadet territory. The Hose lost the ball on a pass interception.

McCranie and Hampton led the Blue Hose ground attack again last Saturday. McCranie gained 45 yards in twelve carries, and Hampton picked up 23 yards in five carries. Grantham, playing in the place of the injured Tyson, completed six passes for 63 yards.

The ofensive line was led by Frank King and Alvin Coley.

Defensively Ronnie Hampton led the secondary with two intercepted passes. In the line Alvin Coley and Pat Suddeth were the defensive standouts. Tomorrow night PC goes against Davidson in their Homecoming game, looking for their first victory of the season.

FIRST DOWN pass from intramural Back of the Week Donnie Hardee was snagged for Alpha Sig by Jack Crider, a first team end on last year's all-star team. Wiley Jones of the Bandits was a moment too late as the Alpha Sigs went on to win the season's opener, 21-0, Monday.

Alpha Sig's, KA's, Pi Kapp's Take Early Intramural Lead

by Al Pearce

Inramural football play got underway this past week, and at the conclusion of one series of games, three undefeated teams emerge. The Alpha Sigma Phi's, the Kappa Alpha's, and the Pi Kappa Phi's all sport 1-0 records, with the remaining teams winless. These teams were picked to end near the top in league play, and their performances showed why.

In the first game of the year, the Alpha Sigs defeated the Bandits by a 2-0 count. The Alpha Sigs were led by Donnie Hardee, who scored one touchdown, pased for two scores, and passed for an extra point. Bill Canady, Tom Blackwell, and Don Warlick were on the receiving end of Hardee's passes. The Bandits were led on defense by Wiley Jones.

In the game played on Tuesday, the Kappa Alphas defeated the Pi Kappa Alphas in a thriller by an 18-13 score. The KAs scored in the final minute on a pass from Tommy Williams to Jack Greene. Williams also scored on an end run, and Lorme completed the KA scoring. The PiKAs were paced by Moose Russell who passed for two TDs and ran for an extra point. The game was a hard fought one, with both teams displaying good sportsmanship.

In the final game of th week, the Pi Kappa Phi's defeated the Sigma Nus 8-0. The game was played on a wet field which accounts for the low score. Gordon Mayhugh scored the only TD of the game on a pass from James Salvo. A safety accounted for the other two points.

In games this week, the following schedule will be followed:

Monday—PiKA vs Sigma Nu
Tuesday—ASP vs Pi Kappa Phi.
Wednesday—Bandits vs PiKA
Thursday—Pi Kappa Phi vs KA.
Friday—ASP vs Sigma Nu

Dear Editor:

I feel that possibly behind the problem and charges which you made is an ignorance of the Blue Key's purpose. However, I feel that it is not your personal ignorance but is common to most members of the student body. To better explain by idea, let me quote a section from the Blue Key National Publication.

"Blue Key, as a unique, nationally recognized aid to higher education, should never be thought of as a typical honor or service fraternity. Instead of competing for activities of members, it encourages voluntary efforts to coordinate campus programs for the good of all." Therefore, when you look to the Blue Key to take upon it all of the problems of the college and to solve them on its own, you have missed the idea of the Blue Key.

Instead, let me suggest what you should expect from us. Among our membership, you will find most of the leaders of the other organizations on campus. They have both the size and the power to get the job done. Therefore, it should be the responsibility of the Blue Key to see what this campus needs and to work on it. From the Blue Key, you should expect its members to be interested in school problems and needs and for ways to solve them in cooperation with other school organizations.

In closing, I would like to say that the Blue Key cannot do it all on its own. It needs to understanding of the student body as well as its cooperation and help.

TED ELDERS

Dear Editor:

I have read that when James B. Conant was president of Harvard University, he kept among other objects on his desk a little model of a turtle under which was the inscription, "Consider the turtle, He makes progress only when he sticks his neck out." Congratulations to you on the subject matter of your last editorial.

In reply I would say that it is not the Blue Key's responsibility to carry on programs such as last year's Student Concert Series (which you mentioned) but to foster ideas for campus improvements such as this. Since the Blue Key is a small nucleus of the campus leaders, it can function most efficiently by channeling these ideas to the campus organization most capable of developing these ideas. Let us remember that these organizations are usaully represented in the Blue Key. Many ideas originating among the Blue Key members have been presented to the student body by other organizations which are led by Blue Key members. However, I recognize and give credit to the manpower of these organizations which have brought to life ideas of their own and those of the Blue Key.

In closing I will ask this question: Should your charges of "lethargy and misrepresentation" be directed specifically to the Blue Key or to the student body as a whole?

JOHN HENDERSON

Dear Editor:

In reply to last week's editorial I would like to quote from Bobby Joiner's editorial in last year's Blue Key edition of the Blue Stock. This editorial appeared under the headline, "Blue Key Means Service."

"We as Blue Key members realize that we have a tremendous responsibility in promoting intellectual attainment and serving the best interests and progress of the college. However, in order to accomplish this, we must be recognized as the coordinating group between the administration and the students.

"If you are a 'Dissatisfied Student,' we ask you to submit your complaints and suggestions to the Blue Key so that we can " . . . submit them to the administration.

The Blue Key can do nothing without student support. Editorials such as last week's only serve to destroy student support and thus limit the Blue Key's service to the school.

BOBBY PIEPHOFF

Dear Editor:

The editor of the Blue Stocking asked that any replies to last week's well intended editorial aimed at the Blue Key be not just a "pious denial" of the opinions stated but also a positive statement of the future plans of the organization. The editor, unfortunately, failed to ask any Blue Key officer or member what plans were being made for the coming year. He blindly assumed that the organization was lying stagnant, meeting in inconspicuous corners making insignificat plans for the school. He not only neglected to seek out any of the plans the Blue Key has for the new year but he very unjustly and maliciously attacked the regular functions of the group as being unimportant and minor campus affairs.

The editor should stop and consider the irrefutable value of the PC-Wofford exchange program in its effort to eliminate vandalism of the two campuses or not take for granted the work that goes into a Parent's Day program or a Homecoming show. He of all people around here should not take anyone's efforts for granted because his tireless efforts to put out a new paper often go unsung. If he had thought through these things, I am sure he would not have brushed them aside as trivials.

The editor of the school paper in an effort to "prod" an organization to positive action has failed to present, as he seemingly should, any "student problems" to this organization for study. One of the purposes of the Blue Key is to study student problems, to deal with them, and to correct them where possible. It is not a function of the Blue Key to sit and think up the problems. Unless the Blue Key is made aware of the problems, it cannot act on them. The newspaper is an excellent means of presenting the problems. The Blue Key could use, to everyone's advantage, the cooperation of the Blue Stocking and not its "misrepresentations."

GRIFFIN HELWIG

Dear Editor:

I feel that the subject of last week's editorial was a deserving one, but I question your method. Could not this editorial be classed along with the writings of Hearst and Pulitzer prior to the Spanish-American War as "Yellow Journalism"? Was the writer really trying to prod the Blue Key into positive leadership, service, and joint action as he stated, or was he merely trying to create a sensation on campus and arouse the student's interest in the Blue Stocking at the expense of the Blue Key?

The latter he most assuredly did. The former, which was attempted with no knowledge of present Blue Key plans and activities, he may feel he has accomplished. If he has it was in a most destructive manner.

IFC Interprets Regulations For Annual Fraternity Rush Season

IFC President Alex [illegible] announced the newly revised rush rules to the student body in chapel Monday. The rules, which cover rushing until Pledge Day, Nov. 30, were revised by the Council last week.

Section I

(1) The rushing of new students will begin the first semester and continue to pledge day.

(2) Each fraternity will have one open social beginning the last Wednesday of September and continuing each Wednesday thereafter until each fraternity has had one. The social will last not longer than midnight of said night.

(3) No change in the order, or postponement, of any open social may be made without approval of the I. F. C.

(4) An open social is a social open to only those men who are matriculating at P. C. for their first semester, and it will be conducted under the supervision of the I. F. C.

Section II

(1) Each fraternity will have one smoker beginning the first Wednesday after Thanksgiving and continuing on successive days thereafter with the exception of Saturday and Sunday.

(2) Only brothers and pledges of that fraternity and those having special invitations shall be permitted at the smoker. Brothers and pledges of other chapters of same fraternity will be allowed to attend.

(3) No freshman will be allowed in any fraternity room during the hours of the open socials or smokers (8:00-12:00) except in the fraternity scheduled to have the social or smoker on that

College Resuming Development Drive

Presbyterian College is resuming its development campaign this fall with $1,253,222 already secured toward the record $1,-[illegible] goal, President Marshall W. Brown announced today.

He said South Carolina Presbyterians in tackling this greatest fund-raising objective in PC history, moved two-thirds of the way toward completion during the March-May phase of this 1962 program. After suspending work for the summer, another round of activity this fall is expected to bring the campaign to a successful close.

Fifty-four churches already have hit 100 percent, while 123 other congregations have subscribed substantially toward their goals. The follow-up this fall will concentrate primarily on the 82 churches who requested their drives at this time.

President Brown pointed out that a new era begins to unfold for Presbyterian College with the success of this program. Out of it will come PC's first women's dormitory—making the college truly a co-educational school — new dining hall, modern science building and endowment additions to strengthen faculty salaries and scholarship funds.

Eleven New Professors Join College Faculty

The beginning of the fall term saw eleven new faces among the Presbyterian College faculty. Ten of the college's various departments received new men.

James W. Glenn has joined the Biology department of Presbyterian College. After receiving his masters degree from Appalachian State Teachers College, Mr. Glenn taught Biology at a Charleston High School last year. He also taught the last term of summer school here. Mr. Glenn succeeds Robert McIntyre.

D. Wayne Gunn has joined the faculty of the English department. He received his master's degree from the University of North Carolina, after graduating from Wake Forest in '61. Mr. Gunn succeeds Donald Boyd.

Another instructor of English is Doctor Emett Kilpatrick. He attended Maryville College where he received his B. A. He went on to earn his masters degree at Johns Hopkins University. The University of Paris later awarded him his Docteur es-Letters. Dr. Kilpatrick has been retired for the past two years. Before that time he was head of the English department at Troy State College, Troy, Alabama.

In the economics department is James C. Harris, who replaces Dr. Karl Scheele. He received his B. S. degree from the University of Tennessee. Mr. Harris earned his master's degree from Washington State University. He has just completed a year's tour of duty with the army in the 156th Military Police Battalion.

Hellan W. Mims is replacing Dr. Lewis B Pope as head of the guidance-vocational center. She will also teach psychology. Miss Mims graduated from Winthrop in 1940 and received her master's degree from Columbia University in 1955. Miss Mims has a long record of guidance work. She comes

Intervention In Cuba Favored

by Wirt Skinner

Monday of this week, "The Blue Stocking" took a campus poll. The questions asked were about the United States' position in international politics and more especially, the Cuban attempt to plant a bull-session-topic-seed in, to get your exchanging ideas of pertinent events.

For simplicity's sake, all answers will be classified as either affirmative, negative, or indecisive.

The first question asked if the US should intervene in Cuba to protect our security even when Latin America resents our history of intervention. Of the opinions expressed:

Affirmative, 83%; NeNgative, 15%; Undecided, 2%.

The second question dealt with the form of intervention should take. The students stasked up like this:

Armed, 36%; Armed if provoked, 30%; No Arms, 18%; Others, 16%.

These are grouped as best the writer could interpret them and he read everyone of them. It seems that 36% made a blanket declaration of war, 30% were willing to fight if Castro and his reds created conditions which would leave us no alternative and make us use force—but strictly defensive. 18% said no arms whatever but most of this 18% had stated that they were in favor of no intervention at all, 16% had their own ideas ranging from verbal threats, to naval and economic blockades, to military force by Latin America and the US.

Whether or not action should be taken without Latin American consent was the third question. The replies were:

Affirmative, 33%; Negative, 50%; Not sure, 7%; Inform them and proceed, 10%.

In the fourth question we asked if you simply cared enough to keep up with news events and [illegible] over with friends. Certainly everyone answered "yes" with a few keeping their opinions to themselves.

What Form Of Intervention?

WIRT SKINNER, Associate Editor

Regardless of what one may think, International Law is a definite reality and has [illegible] nation's foreign policy. My comments in passing would be that by international law the U.S. cannot intervene in Cuba with military forces because to do so would be a violation of her sovereignty; i. e., her right to her own destiny within her borders. But then, too, necessity knows no law.

A naval blockade or embargo would be deadly but we must get the backing of the OAS states and our allies to make it effective. We could do something like this without their consent but it would be only a token effort.

If the U.S. ever started a war it would ruin us in our prestige, diplomatic services and anti-communist efforts—especially in Latin America, Asia and Africa. We'd be the war-mongers Russia makes us out to be. Maybe with an OAS OK we could goad Cuba into a war but we could never start the shooting.

Why go to this trouble over something that seems so remote to our little Christian campus for little Christians, nestled lazily in Clinton, a thriving little Piedmont community? Because really, it's not so remote after all. It's as remote in importance only as much as you make it so. How this "faraway" problem is handled may well determine whether or not you and I should find ourselves in a ware, perhaps strafing a farm village in the Ukraine or inching our way through miles of stench and jungle filth, carrying two .81 mm motar shells on our backs to a gun emplacement north of Tra Vinh.

Getting dramatic, aren't we? But my point is that this Cuban situation should be of vital concern to you, the student. It should be much more important to you than it apparently seems—unless of course, you don't mind the prospect of possibly becoming a nice piece of atomic residue.

Army Language Schools Open to All Graduates

Study at the United States Army Language School is now available to non-ROTC college graduates.

The Department of the Army has announced that it will accept a limited number of college graduates for enlistment in the United States Army Security Agency Reserve and language training at the United States Army Language School in Monterey, California.

Personnel participating in this program will be enlisted under the Reserve Forces Act of 1955. complete eight weeks of basic training, and then spend about ten months studying at the United States Army Language School. Upon completion of the language training, the remaining portion of the six-year Reserve obligation will be completed in the 297th United States Army Security Agency Company at Atlanta, Georgia, or Columbia, South Carolina.

Students interested in this program should contact the office of the Professor of Military Science.

PR Nominees Listed

This year's selections for Pershing Rifles were announced last Wednesday. The potential PR's were selected by competitive drill by the military staff of Presbyterian College. These cadets cannot officially become members of the PR's until they take their pledge tests and hold a certain grade ratio for one semester.

Pete Yearout, captain of the Pershing Rifles, was quoted as saying, "We welcome any other interested students. They should see me for details."

PC Given $10,000 Scholarship Grant

One of the largest individual alumni gifts made to Presbyterian College has been presented by J. Melvin Thompson, Olanta business leader and active church layman, President Marshall W. Brown announced today.

His $10,000 check, directed through PC's present development program, is designated for endowment purposes. The income will be used to provide scholarship aid for qualified, needy students attending Presbyterian.

Thompson, an active student leader and star athlete during his college days, received his BS degree from Presbyterian College in 1916 and later sent his son, Robert, here. He is president of the Citizens Bank of Olanta and owns the Thompson Mercantile Company and the Thompson Oil Company in addition to having farming interests.

Dr. Carter Announces

Grad School Aid Available For Seniors

Dr Kenneth Nolan Carter has been made responsible for drawing up pertinent information concerning fellowships and for working with interested students.

Seniors need not necessarily disregard the idea of graduate school simply because they lack the necessary funds. A senior with an overall "B" or better average, planning on doing graduate work, can often receive the funds he needs.

The most common way in which students support themselves through graduate school is by taking a teaching assistantship. Here the student is paid to assist in the teaching of undergraduates at the particular school.

Many competitive fellowships are offered by various foundations, which furnish from 1,500 to 3,000 dollars per year with no work. The most famous ones for study in the U. S. are:

1) the Woodrow Wilson Fellowship available to those who plan to teach. There are 1,000 given each year. Several students from PC have won this in the past.

2) the Danforth Graduate Fellowship—for prospective teachers—there are 100 given yearly.

3) the National Science Foundation Fellowship—for all science majors. These are highly competitive.

For foreign study:

1) the famous Rhodes Scholarship—to Oxford University in England. This is for the all-around student, and is the most highly competitive in the world.

2) the Fulbright Fellowship given to deserving students over the world to graduate schools in many countries.

All seniors interested in graduate study fellowships should get in touch with their major professors at once. The deadline for application for many of these is Nov. 1.

As a last note on the scholarships, Dr. Carter is quoted saying, "This should add a incentive to all of you underclassmen who are planning graduate work, and whose grades are not too high.

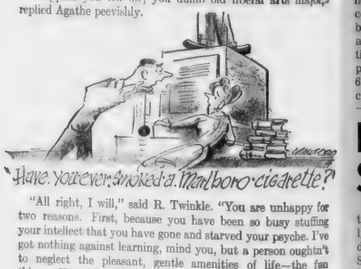
HAPPINESS CAN'T BUY MONEY

Can education bring happiness?

This is a question that in recent years has caused much lively debate and several hundred stabbings among American college professors. Some contend that if a student's intellect is sufficiently aroused, happiness will automatically follow. Others say that to concentrate on the intellect and ignore the rest of the personality can only lead to misery.



I myself favor the second view, and I offer in evidence the well-known case of Agathe Fusco.

Agathe, a forestry major, never got anything less than a straight "A", was awarded her B.T. (Bachelor of Trees) in only two years, her M.S.B. (Master of Sap and Bark) in only three, and her D.B.C. (Doctor of Blight and Cutworms) in only four.

Academic glory was hers. Her intellect was the envy of every intellect fan on campus. But was she happy? The answer, alas, was no. Agathe—she knew not why—was miserable, so miserable, in fact, that one day while walking across campus, she was suddenly so overcome with melancholy that she flung herself, weeping, upon the statue of the Founder.

By and by a liberal arts major named R. Twinkle Plenty came by with his yoyo. He noted Agathe's condition. "How come you're so unhappy, hey?" said R. Twinkle.

"Suppose you tell me, you dumb old liberal arts major," replied Agathe peevishly.

"Have you ever smoked a Marlboro cigarette?"

"All right, I will," said R. Twinkle. "You are unhappy for two reasons. First, because you have been so busy stuffing your intellect that you have gone and starved your psyche. I've got nothing against learning, mind you, but a person oughtn't to neglect the pleasant, gentle amenities of life—the fun things. Have you, for instance, ever been to a dance?"

Agathe shook her head.

"Have you ever watched a sunset? Written a poem? Smoked a Marlboro Cigarette?"

Agathe shook her head.

"Well, we'll fix that right now!" said R. Twinkle and gave her a Marlboro and struck a match.

She puffed, and then for the first time in twelve or fifteen years, she smiled. "Wow!" she cried. "Marlboros are a fun thing! What flavor! What filter! What pack or box! What a lot to like! From now on I will smoke Marlboros, and never have another unhappy day!"

"Hold!" said R. Twinkle. "Marlboros alone will not solve your problem—only half of it. Remember I said there were two things making you unhappy?"

"Oh, yeah," said Agathe. "What's the other one?"

"How long have you had that bear trap on your foot?" said R. Twinkle.

"I stepped on it during a field trip in my freshman year," said Agathe. "I keep meaning to have it taken off."

"Allow me," said R. Twinkle and removed it.

"Land sakes, what a relief!" said Agathe, now totally happy, and took R. Twinkle's hand and led him to a Marlboro vendor's and then to a justice of the peace.

Today Agathe is a perfectly fulfilled woman, both intellectwise and personalitywise. She lives in a darling split-level house with R. Twinkle and their 17 children, and she still keeps busy in the forestry game. Only last month, in fact, she became Consultant on Sawdust to the American Butchers Guild, she was named an Honorary Sequoia by the park commissioner of Las Vegas, and she published a best-selling book called I was a Slippery Elm for the FBI.

The makers of Marlboro are pleased that Agathe is finally out of the woods—and so will you be if your goal is smoking pleasure. Just try a Marlboro.

College Receives Challenge Grant

The Richardson Foundation of New York City has made a $150,000 challenge grant to the Presbyterian College development program, President Marshall W. Brown announced today.

He said the gift is contingent upon the college's securing $450,000 additional through its capital funds campaign which already has raised more than $1,200,000 in the Synod of South Crolina this year.

Under terms of the challenge grant, the Richardson Foundation will provide funds in three annual payments of $50,000 each, the first to be paid when the college has added $450,000 to its present development total.

Dr. Brown, in expressing his appreciation for the gift, said:

"This challenge grant of $150,000 will be of immeasurable value in aiding the success of our campaign which was approved by a unanimous vote of the South Carolin aSynod. Mr. H. Smith Richardson, Sr., through his foundation, thus continues his record of distinguished service to many good causes and especially to Christian higher education and to the work of the Presbyterian Church."

Blue Key Will Collect For Community Chest

The Blue Key will canvass the campus Monday and Tuesday of next week raising funds for the community Chest. Members will be in the dining hall at the dinner and supper meals to receive donations. There will also be a campaign in the dormitories between 6:30 and 7:30 Monday night. Your contributions will be appreciated.

511 Students Enrolled For PC Fall Semester

As Presbyterian College opend its doors for the eighty-second term 511 students were enrolled. These students hail from 19 different states, the District of Columbia and one foreign country. Their choices of professions cover 30 different occupations. Enrolled at PC this year are 64 seniors and juniors. The sophomore class, which is the largest, boasts of 196 students, while the freshman calss contains 170 students. There are nine special students.

Business and teaching top the choices of listed careers with 55 each. Ministry and medicine follow with 48 and 46, respectively. Twenty-two students want to be lawyers, while 16 are going into dentistry. The coaching field has attracted eight students, and seven students wish to be chemists. Banking and engineering each claim six students, while five are looking toward the insurance business.

Four students each have chosen military, psychology, public relations, social work and accounting. Contracting, IBM, journalism, missions and research each have interested three students.

Two students each are interested in being biologists, industrialists, mathematicians, merchants, and salesmen. The fields of advertising, drugs, forestry and photography have one hopeful each.

A great portion, however, is still undecided. These students number 189.

Geographically, South Carolina leads with 214 students, while Georgia and North Carolina have 147 and 55 students respectively. Forty-five students hail from Florida, while 11 and 10 hail from Virginia and Alabama.

Kentucky boasts four students, and there are three students each from Indiana, Maryland, New York and Tennessee. Two students each hail from Illinois, Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

Those states claiming one student are California, Maine, Mississippi, New Jersey and Texas. One student also represents the District of Columbia, while one is from Seoul, Korea.

Keith Robinson Elected State SCA Treasurer

Keith Robinson, a member of the Junior class, was unanimously elected Treasurer of the Student Christian Association of South Carolina at its annual fall convention at Camp Long. Presbyterian College also had two other delegates, John Burgess and G. Wardlaw.

The convention began Friday afternoon and ended on Sunday with a worship service. The keynote speaker was the Rev. Colt R. Troutman, Jr., pastor of the Oakland Baptist Church in Rock Hill, who spoke on "Christians in a Pagan Society."

After each address by Mr. Troutman, the delegates divided into five discussion groups. Mr. Carlton Parker of the Southern Area YMCA, led one group on "Techniques of Leadership." A group studying "Emotional Problems of College Students" was led by Dr. Hal Cooledge of Clemson College.

"Why Christianity" was the topic of the discussio ngroup led by the Rev. Bob Riegel of the St. James Episcopal Church of Greenville. The Rev. Bill Reid of Asbury Methodist Church of Columbia led a group in a discussion entitled "After the Count Down," while a group discussing "It Ain't Necessarily So" was led by Dr. G. H. Aull of Clemson College.

The conference was a valuable experience for all who attended, and it is hoped that more PC'uns can attend the Spring Convention.

Trustees Visitors To Convene Tuesday

The Presbyterian College Board of Visitors and Trustees will arrive on Campus Tuesday, October 16. Plans are for these representatives to remain until the next day. Both groups will meet in the Henry Belk Auditorium for dinner, following which they will be greeted by the president, Dr. Marshall Brown, and thirty student leaders .

The trustees and their wives or husbands will be assigned to a student or students with whom to have breakfast on the morning of October 17. The visitors will also be present Wednesday morning for the chapel service. After chapel, the Board's members will wind up their visit with a meeting with President Brown and the Chairman of the Board of Trustees. Ideas and observations of how the Board's members can work for the interest of the college will be discussed.

College Catalogues Are Now Available

Presbyterian College Catalogues for the school year 1963-64 have just come in. People desiring one should see Mrs. Watts in the Administration Building. There is no charge for the catalogue.

Davies, Waters Claim Student Council Posts

Leland is Freshman President

Last Monday morning freshman class officers were elected in what Student Council President Paul Woodall described as a very close race.

David Davies of Panama City, Fla., and Sam Waters of Charleston, vaied by their opponents in the race for Student council positions.

In the other contests, campaigned for vigorously all week, Tommy Leland of Summerville, was chosen President; Dave Dunlap of Jacksonville, Fla., was elected Vice-President; Pat Goldsmith of Lancaster, was named Secretary; and Peggie Marion of Scotland, Ga., was elected Treasurer.

Campaigning this year was much more extensive with posters dotting the whole campus. One campaigner even came forth with printed cards bearing the motto, "Be Chewsy, vote for . . ." Affixed to each card was a pice of Wrigley's Spearmint to further convey the point.

Other contestants in the election were:

for Student Council—Carroll Jones of Atlanta, Ga.; Dick Hughes of Indianapolis, Ind.

for President—Pat Brown of Atlanta, Ga.; Erik Johnson of West Palm Beach, Fla.

for Secretary—Steve Watson of Atlanta Ga.; Jeff Fagen of St. Petersburg Fla.

for Treasurer—Scott Smith of Qincy Fla.; Allen Callaway of Atlanta, Ga.

William F. Buckley To Address SCCPA

The South Carolina Collegiate Press Association will hold its annual fall seminar program at Wofford College on October 19-20. The association will present Mr. William F. Buckley in a public lecture on "The Decline of the Intellectual" at 8:00 p. m., October 19, in the Wofford College chapel. This is the first of a proposed series of public information programs to be presented by the S. C. C. P. A. this year.

Mr. Buckley is the founder and editor of "The National Review," a conservative magazine. He is also the author of such notable political works as God and Man at Yale and Up From Liberalism. A graduate of Yale University, Mr. Buckley is in constant demand on college and university campues all across the nation. His lectures have been described as "sharp," "devastating" and, to say the least, "provocative."

The lecture will be open to the general public, and reservations for seats may be made by contacting Pat Zimmerman at Box 548, Wofford Colle, Spartanburg.

MR. GLOVER'S LETTER gives some thought-provoking sides to the question of Language Labs at PC and throws quite a lot of light on some previously hazy corners of the picture. It pleases us very much to be able to print these statements which were based on careful study for some years.

Last week's editorial was written by a student who has tried twice unsuccessfully to pass first year foreign language and his viewpoint is understandably influenced by previous experiences. The purpose of the editorial was to plant a discussion seed and this it seems to have done.

Let us hope that these discussions may increase the priority of language labs, give the student a clear understanding of the ways which he can be helped by such practice and at the same time dispell illusions that the labs can teach the student a language without any effort on his part.

THE LADIES of Clinton who so kindly keep dates at their homes over dance weekends deserve at least a note or personal word of appreciation from the student. If you have not already thanked the hostess for keeping your date this weekend it is not too late to do so.

A UNANIMOUS feeling among the student body which many have mentioned as needing attention is that meals in the dining hall this year lack the good quality of those last year by a considerable degree. This seems especially strange since the charge for meals is up ten per cent over last years' fee.

We realize that this is probably all the ersult of extenuating circumstances, that the way of the meal planner and cook is fraught with hardships and that the American Farm Association's withholding strike is now several weeks old, but all the same the slogan of Nally's Chevrolet in Atlanta comes to mind, ". . . and just because Nally is charging less doesn't mean he's giving less." At Judd it seems to be ". . . and just because we're charging more doesn't mean we're giving more."

Btea Psi Chapter of Theta Chi enjoyed a very successful Homecoming Weekend. At the party on Saturday evening Miss Jerry Lynn Bowling was presented with a bouquet of red carnations upon being chosen as Chapter Sweetheart for 1962-1963. Miss Bowling is a freshman at Lander College.

A Traumatic Experience

By Vigil Clairvoyant

I have always been a rath ardent television watcher. In fa last year I was awarded the Oswald for best supporting a dience. However, of late I ha had to give up my practice TV viewing due to a conflict wi my religion. You see, I am rather dogmatic Coward. Th doctrines of Cowardism are sic ple. We believe in draft dodgin abolishment of honor, fighting arguing with no one over the n of six, etc. But I digress.

The conflict arose last nigh as I was watching "Empire in a marathon race with a fo eign exchange student from M ami. We'd been watching T for 26 hours and as he was e his seventy-sixth cup of coff and I only on my forty-nine

I knew that another victory fo me was in sight. It was the that it happened. A sign read ing "NBC News Bulletin" wa flashed on the screen and a solemn voice anounced, "W interrupt this program to brin you a special news bulletin.

It was followed by a ghast pause which I am convinced done to satisfy the sadistic d light that newsmen take in seei others suffer. Anyhow, you c imagine what my reaction wa being a devout Coward. I w frozen to my seat. I broke into a cold sweat. Rapid fire thoughts flashed through my mind: somebody sunk Cuba and we're going to war over it, Boston has taken over the Union, Dave Gardner is dead, "The Untouchables" have lost their sponsor. The voice spoke again. "Liston has knocked out Patterson in the first round."

Of course I was relieved to hear it was nothing of world-wide importance, but by that time it was too late. I had already broken into peals of hysterical laughter that left me sobbing on the floor. It was such a traumatic experience as I have never had before. I shall never watch TV again.

Language Professor Talks About Labs

Department of Romance Languages Presbyterian College
Clinton, S. C.
8th October, 1962

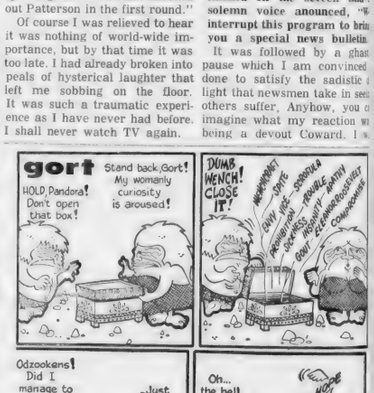
The Editor,
The Blue Stocking.
Dear Sir,

The Language Department warmly welcomes your editorial in the October 5th "BLUE STOCKING" — "In Support of Language Labs." There is no doubt that such a lab would be an asset to the college as well as an aid to the serious language student and a rquest for this facility was made two years ago. However, a little matter of cost (some $10,000 to $15,000) has been an obstacle and we have not pressed the matter as we fell that there are other unsatisfied needs more prssing than this particular project, the advantages of which are all too easily exaggerated or misrepresented, as they have been— in one particular at least—in your editorial.

I refer to the statement that "it would cut study time in half"—an argument which will certainly appeal to the student but with which I must—at the risk of alienating those whose support you seek—take issue.

The lab merely provides opportunity, under circumstances more favorable than the large classroom group, for intensive familiarization with the material which has to be learned; it will thus, as you correctly state, "make language study much easier" but only in terms of the extra time spent in concentrated attention in the lab; it will (through repetition) facilitate, but not eliminate, the learning process, the memorization of vcabulary and verb forms, the understanding and ability to use the rules of grammar and syntax.

Furthermore, like any "tool" the language lab may be used intellingently and efficiently, on the part of the staff responsible for language instruction, or it may be used unintelligently and ineffectively; moreover, as in any teaching-learning relationship the learner may contribute or deny his full cooperation and attention.



I cannot imagine an electronic device summoning the wandering mind of an inattentive student with quite the same emphasis as that to which some of our students of Spanish (and now French, too!) are exposed, and the inquiries which we have been making over the past two years make it clear that the mere existence of a language lab, without the use of efficient techniques on the part of both instructors and students contributes little, if anything to the learning process, and the substantial investment made appears, in many cases, to have been a waste of money on a mere "status symbol."

We are now hopeful of securing a language lab in connection with or as a result of the current Capital Funds Campaign and we would most certainly be grateful for any support which the BLUE STOCKING and the student body can give to our request; we feel that we can operate the facility efficiently (with some experience); that it can make the language "come alive" for the student improving his oral-aural skills and giving him a working, practical knowledge and experience of the theory that he learns in the classroom and through his own diligent preparation; our objective— and, we hope, the result—will be what we are always seeking to promote, namely, higher standards of knowledge and greater competence in the use of the language.

Let us not, however, "sell the student a bill of goods" on the grounds that the language lab will do half his work for him. It will, indeed, do almost everything else that you reditorial claims, but not all this "and Heaven too," and the dissemination of this erroneous idea is not only a disservice to the student, but—unless the student is convinced otherwise—can constitute (by encouraging the wrong attitude) a considerable psychological impediment to deriving the fullest possible benefits from the learning processes upon which the pre-lab system is predicated, and which it alone (other than residence abroad) can make available.

I would like to add that we have no plans for the purchase of standard model tape recorders as a stop-gap measure; however, the Department has made in the past and will continue to make tapes of appropriate lesson material for any student who has access to a tape recorder and requests this service. This will enable him to listen and repeat as often as he cares to, but—except on a spec-

New Men Boost Hopes For Good Tennis Year

Although most of the sports attention on campus has been focused on the football team at this time of year, there is another PC athletic team preparing for another year of tough competition.

The PC tennis team, in its second year under Coach Gordon Warden, has been hard at work preparing for the long spring season of matches that always commands much attention from students, faculty and local tennis fans. Coach Warden has had his squad practicing almost daily since school began a month ago, and he is pleased with their showing to this point. Much interest ahs been shown in the four new members of the squad who will be vying for high positions on the team ladder, and a series of intra-squad matches has been arranged to let the students see the team in action. These matches will not be just for exhibition, but will help Warden decide on tentative positions for the boys.

The four new members of the squad, Bob Harris of West Palm Beach, Fla., Howdy Letzring of St. Petersburg, Fla., Tommy Liles of Jacksonville, Fla., and Dodge Fredrick of Daytona Beach, Fla., come to PC as four of Florida's best young tennis players. Their play thus far has caused Coach Warden to be optimistic about this years' season, despite the schedule. Students and faculty have shown a lot of interest in these boys' play, good crowds often watching them practice in the afternoon.

Harris, a freshman, is from a tennis playing family. His brother is National 15 and Under Champ, and although he has had no professional lessons his father coaches him as much as possible. He reached the finals in the first tourney he entered at Ocala, Fla., and he has played in over 100 tournaments since then. Bob has traveled extensively in his bid for tennis honors. His travels include Phoenix, St. Louis, Atlanta, Kalamazoo, and Springfield, Ohio. He was rated 5th in Florida last year and plays almost constantly while home.

Howdy Letzring started playing tennis when he was 11, and had a little pro instruction. He entered his first tournament when he was 12, and has played in many since then. He once played with famous tennis star Rod Laver when he stayed at Howdy's Florida home. He has traveled a lot, going from coast to coast to play in tournaments. He was 10th in Florida last year and has met and played with such stars as Bill Tarbert, Lou Hoad, and Ponhco Gonzalos.

Dodge Fredrick began playing at 13, having no pro instruction but a lot of advice from the Florida players. He has traveled from Florida to New England to play and give lessons at a Connecticut country club. He was one of Florida's best last year, and has entered mank big tournaments.

Tommy Liles from Jacksonville, began playing at 15 and had no pro instructions, but many hours of practice have made him a steady player. He has traveled a lot to play in sta teand national tournaments, and Tommy feels honored to be given a chance to play on the "famous" PC tennis team.

Alpha Sigs Blitz Pi Kapp's 33-0, Meet Rugged KA's Next Tuesday

As the intramural football season heads into its third week, only two undefeated teams remain. The ASP's and the KA's both are undefeated, although the KA's have tied one game. The Bandits have a one an one record, the PiKapps have a one and one record, followed by the PiKA's with one win in three games and the Sigs who are winless in two games.

In games played this week, the scoring went from very high to very low with all games having their high points of excitement. In the game played Monday, the PiKA's defeated the Sigma Nu's by a 14 to 6 score. "Moose" Russell threw two TD passes to lead the PiKA's, while Pete Yearout scored the Sig's only TD on a 50-yard punt return. A PiKA safety accounted for the other points recorded.

In Tuesday's game, the ASP's blitzed the PiKapps by a 33 to 0 count. Donnie Hardee continued his bid for "Intramural Player of the Year" as he threw for a record setting 4 TDs and ran the other to account for all of his team's scoring. Blackwell caught two of the TD passes, Canady hauled in one, and Crider caught the other. Aside from running for the six-pointer, Hardee passed for three conversions.

The game on Wednesday saw the Bandits edge the PiKAs by a 6 to 0 score. The only score came on a TD pass from Dodge Fredrick to Professor Tommy Stallworth. The game was mainly a defensive battle with the Bandits scoring on one quick pass.

In the week's final game, played on Thursday, the KA's and the PiKapp's battled to six-all tie. The KA's scored on the last play of the game as Jack Green and Tommy Williams teamed up on a T Dpass. The only PiKapp score came on a pass to Gordon Mayhugh from James Salvo.

The leading scorers thus far are as follows: Singleton of the Pi-KA's with 18 points; Blackwell of the ASP's with 14 points and Canady of the ASP's with 13 points. Hardee of the ASP'S with 12 points, Greene of the KA's and Mayhugh of the PiKapp's each have 12 points.

The leading passers are Hardee of the ASP's with 6 TDs and extra points, Russell of the PiKA's with 4 TD passes, Williams of the KA's with two TDs, and Salvo of the PiKapp's with two TD tosses.

The complete schedule of games this week is listed below.

Monday—Bandits vs PiKapps
Tuesday—KA's vs ASP's.
Wednesday—PiKA's vs Pi. Kapp's.
Thursday—Bandits vs Sigma Nu.
Friday—PiKA's vs ASP's.

The feature game next week should be Tuesday's showdown between the league's last two unbeaten teams and two of its quarterbacks, Williams of KA and Hardee of Alpha Sig.

Stallworth, Jones Earn I-M Players of Week

Popular halfback TOMMY STALLWORTH and hard-hitting guard "Yogi Bear" Jones have been selected as Intramural Back and Lineman of the Week respectively. Their selections were based on their all-around play in their team's games.

Stallworth running from a flanker back position, caught the only TD pass of the game as the Bandits defeated the Pi-KA's by a 6-0 score. This "seasoned veteran" scored the only points of the game in the upset of the week, taking a pass from QB Dodge Fredrick.

"Yogi" led the powerful Alpha Sig line as it repeatedly held off the defensive charge of the PiKapps in the ASP's overpowering win. "Jones and Company" did a fine job as QB Hardee had plenty of time to find receivers for his pin-point passes.

Davidson Slips By Blue Hose, 13 to 9

by Dick Wilkinson

PC lost its fourth football game to Davidson last Saturday night by the score of 13 to 9. This Homecoming loss was the first in five years for the Blue Hose. This game was similar to PC's earlier loss to Lenoir Rhyne. PC won the first half and was leading by a nine-point margin. In the second half the Wildcats came back and scored two touchdowns.

The only touchdown PC scored came in the second half when a Tyson pass intended for Wayne Fowler was caught by Donny Ross who scooped the ball up and zig-zagged his way through the Davidson secondary for the TD.

STATISTICS SPOTTY

Since the football team has a week off from the gridiron wars, now would be a good time to look at the statistics of the first four games and analyze them.

In the games with Furman, Lenoir Rhyne, The Citadel, and Davidson the Blue Hose have shown a good aerial game, but a weak ground attack. The team has run the ball on 145 plays in the first four games, gaining a net total of 286 yards. (Net yards are yards gained minus yards lost). This averages out to just under 72 yards per game rushing, which is not enough to score many points in college football.

The passing game has been able to take up the slack, so the over-all statistics are not as bad as they might seem at first glance. The ball has been thrown on 82 plays, PC completing 39 for a total of 322 yards. This averages out to just over 10 yards gained per pass, and just over 80 yards per game.

As far as individual statistics go, sophomores Randy McCranie, Leighton Grantham and senior end Donnie Ross along with junior Bill Tyson have accounted for all of PC's touchdowns. McCranie, a fullback, has carried the ball on 55 occasions, gaining 228 net yards for a four yards per carry average and 3 touchdowns. "Bruiser" has also scored on a two-point conversion to lead the team in scoring with 20 points. End Donnie Ross has caught two TD passes to hold down second place with 12 points. Quarterback Leighton Grantham has attempted 33 passes, completing 14 for 140 net yards. He has not yet thrown a TD pass, but has moved the team well when he was at the helm. Junior quarterback Bill Tyson has attempted 32 passes, completing 9 for 135 net yards and two touchdowns. Tyson has had two passes intercepted, while Grantham has not yet lost one.

PIGSKIN PICKS

I was pretty lucky last week as far as picks were concerned, hitting six out of nine (including one tie game that does not count either way. So, sporting a 75% mark, I'll go out and pick again. Teams in capital letters are again the home tems.

S. C. License Laws Apply to Wives

The wives of several students have been stopped by the State Highway Department for illegal procedure concerning driver's licenses, license plates and automobile registration. A fine will be imposed for continued violation.

According to the South Carolina law, if a student's wife is not going to school and is working and if she has a car registered in her name, she must: get a South Carolina driver's license; get South Carolina license plates and get the car registered in South Carolina. When her car is registered in South Carolina this also means that she must pay South Carolina taxes. Bue she will not have to pay taxes in the state of former registration, too.

Technically, the working out-of-state wife must have seen to all this within ten days of her arrival here. However, local authorities gave their assurance that they will not be strict about a failure to comply strictly according to the law—since they feel that students probably were not aware of the law. They will, however, prosecute in event of continued violation.

If the car is not registered in the wife's name and she is working then she need only get a South Carolina driver's license. Cost is 60c for a four-year's license, By law, she has 90 days from the time of her arrival in South Carolina to get her license. If she is not working, then she need not do anything, even if the car is in her name. She also need do nothing if she is attending college.

To get a South Carolina registration, the wife must show proof of liability coverage.

Licenses may be procured at Lynn Cooper's Rambler Sales any time during the day every Thursday and every other Friday. Registration and tags may be obtained from the State Highway Department in Laurens. It is suggested that those concerned have their car's registration put in the husband's name. Being a student, the husband is not bound by the above restrictions.

Art Studio Is Now Open

Students interested in the arts may now follow up their inclination. An Art Studio will be open to all comers, both faculty and students. The studio is situated on the second floor of Dr. Edouard Patte's home on Calvert Avenue. Hours are every afternoon from 2-5 p. m. Keys to the studio may be secured from Dr. Patte.

Rather extensive, the studio consists of one room with easels and chairs for oil painting, one room with tables and chairs for water colors, and one room for sculpture and carving.

No instruction will be given, the idea is for a purely club-like organization where every would-be artist could develop his talents with the help of other young painters.

No fee will be charged for use of the studio. Canvas, colors, brushes and other art necessities will have to be self-supplied. Students may keep their materials at the studio.

Classic Film Series Will Be Shown Here

The Broadway Theatre will begin a series of classic films on October 18 with the one-day showing of" Little Women."

The project, entitled "The World Heritage Film and Book Program," will encourage those attending to "See the film, read the book."

All the films are of lasting interest. Others scheduled include "David Copperfield," with W. C. Fields, in November, and "Captains Courageaus," featuring Spencer Tracy, in December.

Templeton To Receive Alumni Service Award

Ross Templeton, Class of 1924, has been selected by the board of directors of the PC Alumni Association to receive Presbyterian College's Alumni Service Award for 1962. This award is given each year to an alumnus for outstanding service to the Association.

Mr. Templeton, a Charlotte business executive, was chosen president of the Walter Johnson Club, the alumni athletic group. Under his leadership, the club raised more than their goal of $26,000 for support of the athletic program at PC. He is presently engaged in a campaign to secure even more for this purpose in the coming year.

A native of Owings, Mr. Templeton is supervising sales manager of the Carolinas Division of Field Enterprises Educational Corporation.

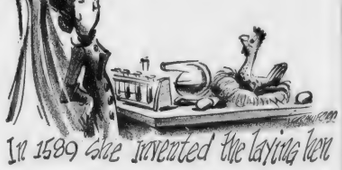
WHAT TO WEAR TILL THE DOCTOR COMES

Now that you have enrolled and paid your fees and bought your books and found your way around campus and learned to hate your roommate, it is time to turn to the most important aspect of college life. I refer, of course, to clothes.



What does Dame Fashion decree for the coming school year? (Incidentally, Dame Fashion is not, as many people believe, a fictitious character. She was a real Englishwoman who lived in Elizabethan times and, indeed, England is forever in her debt. During the invasion of the Spanish Armada, Dame Fashion—not yet a Dame but a mere, unlettered country lass named Moll Flanders—during the invasion, I say, of the Spanish Armada, this dauntless girl stood on the white cliffs of Dover and turned the tide of battle by rallying the drooping morale of the British fleet with this stirring poem of her own composition:

Don't be gutless,
Men of Britain.
Swing your cutlass,
We ain't quittin'.

Smash the Spanish,
Sink their boats,
Make 'em vanish,
Like a horse makes oats.

For Good Queen Bess,
Dear sirs, you gotta
Make a mess
Of that Armada.

You won't fail!
Knock 'em flat!
Then we'll drink ale
And stuff like that.

In 1589 she invented the laying hen

As a reward for these inspirational verses Queen Elizabeth dubbed her a Dame, made her Poet Laureate, and gave her the Western Hemisphere except Duluth. But this was not the extent of Dame Fashion's service to Queen and country. In 1589 she invented the laying hen, and she was awarded a lifetime pass to Chavez Ravine. But she was not to end her days in glory. In 1591, alas, she was arrested for overtime jousting and imprisoned for thirty years in a butt of malmsey. This later became known as Guy Fawkes Day.)

But I digress. Let us get back to campus fashions. Certain to be the rage again this year is the cardigan (which, curiously enough, was named after Lord Cardigan, who commanded the English fleet against the Spanish Armada. The sweater is only one product of this remarkable Briton's imagination. He also invented the glottal stop, the gerund, and the eyelid, without which winking, as we know it today, would not be possible).

But I digress. The cardigan, I say, will be back, which is, I believe, cause for rejoicing. Why? Because the cardigan has nice big pockets in which to carry your Marlboro Cigarettes—and that, good friends, is ample reason for celebration as all of you will agree who have enjoyed Marlboro's fine, comfortable, mellow flavor and Marlboro's filter. So why don't you slip into your cardigan and hie yourself to your tobacconist for some good Marlboros? They come in soft pack or flip-top box. Cardigans come in pink for girls and blue for boys. © 1962 Max Shulman

Cardigans or pullovers—it's a matter of taste . . . And so is Marlboro a matter of taste—the best taste that can possibly be achieved by experienced growers and blenders—by science, diligence, and tender loving care. Try a pack.

Pat Brown, a freshman from Atlanta, Ga., will sponsor Miss Smartt at the climax of the halftime entertainment at the football game between Davidson and Presbyterian Saturday night. Members of the Blue Key will escort the Queen and the sponsors onto the field, where she will be presented. President Brown will crown her during the ceremony. The dates of the Co-Captains will be maids of honor.

Susan is blonde and stands 5'5". She likes to play tennis, and ride horses and watch football games.

PC Athletic Director

A Man of Courage

The following article is partially reprinted from the book, My Life With The Redskins, by Corinne Griffith.

In Baltimore, before the Washington Redskins' last pre-season game of 1946, players Jim Peebles, John Koniszewshi and Clyde Ehrhardt were talking. Peebles was carrying some extra weight in his leg—several pieces of shrapnel. "Just keeping it for a souvenir," he said. John Koniszewski had been wounded at Saipan, with the Marines, Clyde Ehrhardt had been wounded twice, the las ttime almost for good. But now Ehrhardt was holding his burgundy jersey in his hand. On it was a simple white number—31. "To think I'm wearing this," Ehrhardt mused—"Actually wearing it again."

On December 17, 1945, Army Captain Clyde Ehrhardt lay seriously wounded in an oxygen tent in the 120th General Hospital, England. "He keeps asking for some football game, Redskins—Rams, something, I can't quite understand," a Red Cross nurse told the doctor. "Give him whatever he wants," the doctor answered.

Through a semi-conscious, half-gray, fuzzy dream, Clyde Ehrhardt listened to a blurred voice on a small radio placed in his oxygen tent. It was the far-away voice of Harry Wismer broadcasting the World's Championship game from Municipal Stadium in Cleveland, Ohio. "I used to play football," Clyde Ehrhardt mumbled slowly, almost indistinctly. "My number was 31," he turned to his nurse, "but I guess my number's up now."

Ehrhardt had pieces of shrapnel lodged next to his heart. English doctors, fearful of rupturing his heart, refused to take it out. Coming to the U. S., Ehrhardt was told by U. S. doctors that the shrapnel would either move into his heart, which could prove serious; or, the shrapnel might move away, in which case they could operate. The bullet moved away, the doctors operated, and Ehrhardt returned to the game he loved. Now he stood by his teammates.

Perhaps it was because these memories were running through his mind that he looked so reverently at the burgundy number 31 jersey in his hand. Big Clyde continued his musing—"But I am back . . . and now I'm going to meet the great Chicago Bears socially," he told his teammates. "Come on, boys, let's go."

Ehrhardt left the Army as the second most decorated American soldier of World War II, and returned to the Redskins to center for the great Sammy Baugh. During the time they played together, Ehrhardt and Baugh never fumbled a snap.

As Athletic Director at PC, Ehrhardt unfailingly impresses all whom he meets. He truly ranks as a man among men.

Tonight's Dance Will Begin Annual Homecoming Activities

• Display Judging Tomorrow

The annual Homecoming Weekend commences tonight with this year's dance being held at the armory. Music will be provided by the natianally known Inkspots and The Catalinas.

A visitation by hundreds of alumni upon the campus has spurred plans for a meeting of the alumni board of directors at 11 a. m. at which time there will be discussed business of the Presbyterian College Alumni Association. President A. W. Brice of Greenwood will preside over this meeting in the trustee room which is located in Belk Auditorium.

The afternoon schedule will shift to the Douglas House student center, beginning with registration at 2:30 p. m, An alumni reception will be held at 3:30 p. m., and then the group will move to the second floor assembly room at 4:30 p. m. for the installation of newly elected 1963 officers.

Homecoming displays will be presented on or around the plaza Saturday. Following the display judging at about noon of the same day, some fraternities have scheduled pre-game teas.

Saturday evening at 8:00 begins the football game between PC and Davidson College begins. During halftime the 1963 Homecoming Queen and her court will be announced.

six of PC's fraternities have planned informal drop-ins as a final celebration for the Homcoming Weekend.

Following the football game all

Twenty '62 Alumni Are in Grad School

Twenty of Presbyterian College's 1962 graduates are beginning graduate studies this fall in a wide variety of fields. The seven areas of study represented are education, English, history, law, medicine, psychology, and theology. These graduate students represent 29% of the class of 1962.

This is far from the total of all of last year's class who will eventually attend graduate school since many plan to go after completing military service and still others are teaching for a year or so before going on further to study.

Nine students are in theology. They are: Richard L. Boland, David H. Cromer, William F. Holderman, James T. Hughes, Paul A. Layton, James S. Lowry, Sanders G. Read, Jr., Frank R. Sells, and Howard H. Gordon.

Charles H. Cook, William H. DuBose, Maurice R. Stevens, Jr., James R. Thompson, and Robert C. Williams are enrolled in law schools. Those studying medicine are Harry H. Nettles and William S. Ogden, Lynn D. Hudgins is doing graduate work in biology.

There are two English students, and they are Robert L. Bethea and Bertrand A. Weinberg, Jr. Jesse F. Fuller is studying education, while Fred D. Meade is studying history. The psychology student is William H. Oliver, III.

MR. THOMAS STALLWORTH

Stallworth Is Named Blue Key Advisor

Blue Key President Joe Harvard recently announced that Professor Thomas Stallworth has been named faculty advisor to the PC Blue Key Chapter.

Mr. Stallworth was a Blue Key member while an undergraduate here at PC and also served as SCA President. He graduated in 1955 with a BA in Bible and received his BD from Columbia Seminary in Decatur, Ga.

In addition to his teaching Bible, he is the only faculty member presently engaged in intramural football and reports have it that he exemplifies Christian charity as a gridder.

Business Office

The business office has announced that its hours are 8:30 until 12:00 and 1:00 until 4:00 on Monday through Friday, and from 8:30 until 12:00 on Saturday.

possible consequences of not doing so.

If the Russians were allowed to continue plugging in missile sites all over the island, it would be virtually impossible to forewarn America of possible warm and cloudy weather. In the North lie the DEW and BMEWS outposts, thatlabryinthian Maginot line allowing us 15 minutes notice to crawl in our havens away from home designed to save Nikita the trouble.

have been blown away.

"A drastic step has been taken; it might lead to war. If war comes, some of us may not see the outcome. I believe Mr. Kennedy thought of this, and he thought it better to die in a free country than to live under cancerous Communism. I'll string along with him.

JAN RHODES said, "In view of the fact that missile sites for surface to surface, nuclear-tipped bissiles have apeared in threatening numbers, the Western Hemisphere is in great danger of stumbling into a war which could pass for an Armageddon. Because of this I feel that President Kennedy was absolutely correct in declaring United State's intensions to quarantine Cuba. And the blockade is applicable only to implements of war.

At the onset of World War I, Chancellor Bethmann von Hollwegg defended the violation of Belgium's nuetrality by stating in effect that necessity knows no law. Feeling that German security was threatened and an attack on France necessary, the Junker-led armies swept through Belgium, the easiest route to take, because speed was essential. Russia was on her back too.

Such an argument would not hold up in a court and it may seem that we are saying that might makes right. But certainly such a checking action as this is a small violation of law compared to the violation of humanitarian rules pon which civilization rests and which the Soviet Union and Cuba so gravely threat.

Theta Chi Leads In Fraternity Scholarshi

Once again Theta Chi was the top scholastic fraternity on campus with a healthy 2.66 QP ratio for the second semester of the 1961-62 school year. They were followed by second place Alpha Sigma Phi with a 2.40 and then Kappa Alpha with a 2.34. Pi Kappa Alpha and Sigma Nu were next with a tie of 2.15. Last was Pi Kappa Phi with a 2.09 QP ratio.

The top fraternity, Theta Chi, was .10 higher second semester than first semester. Pi Kappa Phi, the low man, also came up —bettering their first semester average by .14.

Despite these gains though, the over-all fraternity average for the second semester was lower than the over-all men's average. It was vice-versa for the first semester with the frats coming out on top of them. All averages were over-all higher second semester than for the first. Over-all men's for the first was a 2.26, for the second it was a 2.32. Over-all fraternity average for the first was a 2.23, for the second a 2.30. The over-all non-fraternity average for the first was a 2.20. For the second it was a 2.34.

PI KAPPA ALPHA

The chapter agreed to have a tea in the fraternity suite for the parents of brothers, pledges, and freshmen on Saturday afternoon preceding the Chattanooga game.

Congratulations to Ben Crabtree, Randy McCranie, Bill Degner, and Jimmy Stewart, who were initiated into the brotherhood last week. Brothers of the week: Pittard, McCranie, Cook, Crawford, and Hardin.

ALPHA SIGMA PHI

Final plans have been made for the drop-in to be held before the Chattanooga game and to the party afterwards. Plans were completed on the informal party to be held in Rock Hill.

KAPPA ALPHA

The chapter is looking forward to the party which will be held in Spartanburg on Saturday afternoon preceding the Wofford game. It will be held on Lake Spivey from 3:00 till 6:00.

SIGMA NU

The Sigma Nu's enjoyed entertaining the freshmen and transfer students at the Open Social Wednesday night and invite them to return at any time.

Congratulations to Sherrod Rhodes who was pledged Monday night.

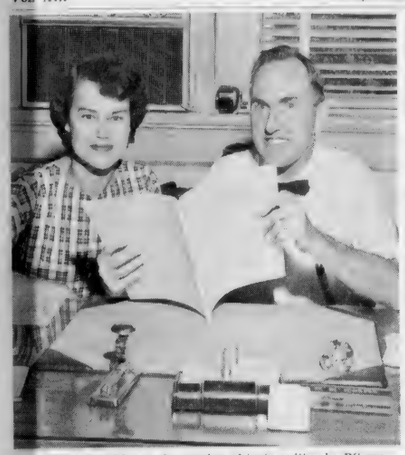
...for a life of pride and purpose

Among the young people being graduated from college in these times, there are some who think and feel—perhaps a little more deeply than the others—about the world we live in, the future we face. They ask, "How can I make my career really meaningful? More than just personally rewarding?"

And many of today's most successful young people are finding a fulfilling answer to these questions as officers on the Aerospace Team... the United States Air Force. They can tell you that no career could better combine the opportunity for achievement—and the deep inner satisfaction of knowing that they are helping preserve the very future of America.

How can you become an Air Force Officer?

If you are a college senior and not currently enrolled in ROTC, Air Force Officer Training School provides an opportunity to qualify for a wide variety of career fields. The graduate of this three-month course receives a commission as a second lieutenant. As the Air Force continues its technological advance, officers with college training will move into positions of increasing importance.



For full information—including the opportunity to earn graduate degrees at Air Force expense—see the Air Force Selection Team when it visits your college, visit your local Air Force Recruiting Office, or write: Air Force Officer Career Information, Dept. SC210, Box 805, New York 1, New York.

Dr. and Mrs. K.N. Carter Author New Lab Manual

Presbyterian College Chemistry teachers Dr. Kenneth Carter and his wife, Mrs. E. G. Carter, finished work this summer on their own Chemistry Laboratory Manual for general chemistry. Recently published, the manual is now being used by PC students in general chemistry.

The manual is titled Basic Laboratory Chemistry and its main objective, states Dr. Carter, "is to develop the student's laboratory technique, his powers of observation, and his ability to draw conclusions, as it adds insight to the general chemistdy course."

Mrs. Carter says that the main spark that moved them to publish their own manual was that the larger manuals "contain too many experiments, many of which were never used. A student paid for many experiments he never had a chance to perform."

The Carters started the manual last year by mimeographing different experiments and assigning them to the class. By this method they determined which were the most pertinent and worthwhile experiments.

Dr. Carter and his wife, both graduates of Vanderbilt University, have many original experiments in the manual. Assignment Number 7 was published in the Journal of Chemistry, Volume 39, page 310, June, 1962. The experiment originated during the last school year.

Basic Laboratory Chemistry was printed by Edwards Brothers of Michigan. The manual has 86 pages and is in offset printing.

Art Studio Getting Good Participation

by Dr. Edouard Patte

At the recently opened PC Art Studio, five canvases are now in progress showing the originality and talent of each painter. There is a still-life in expressionist style, an amusing painting of toads and a toadstool, a dancing silhouette among festive garlands, a bunch of yellow and orange marigolds and an abstract canvas in bold colors.

The Art Studio, open to all PC artists every afternoon except Sundays is a fine addition to the College facilities and extra-curricular activities program.

Faculty Plans Re-evaluation of PC Program Over Two Year Period

• Ten Areas Will Be Considered

Plans for a two-year reevaluation study of Presbyterian College's entire program have come out of the October faculty meeting. This action was prompted by a belief that the college's total program can be improved and that PC's service to the supporting synods can be even more highly significant in the future than it has been in the past.

The studies will follow a general pattern set up by the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. This committee's study will take place simultaneously with similar studies being made at other institutions which are members of the SACSS. To guide this study, a steering committee is now being selected by the faculty and administration.

The ten major areas which the SACSS recommends for consideration are: the purposes of the institution; the institution's financial resources; the institution's organization (Administration, Faculty, and Student Body); the institution's educational program (curriculum and total life on campus); the library (faculty and student use); the faculty (training, experience, degrees, salaries, teaching load, equipment, teaching, testing, and grading); student personnel (social, physical and religious activities; student-faculty and student-administration relations); physical plant (adequacy or inadequacy); research (that done by the faculty — publications or articles or books, graduate study); and special activities (athletic program, Student Council, SCA, fraternities, extension courses, and outside faculty activities).

The Executive Director of the SACSS will meet with the faculty early in 1963, and at the end of the study a SACSS committee will visit the campus to make further recommendations. It is believed that this program—consisting of our own findings plus those of the SACSS—will result in many improvements for Presbyterian College. This will be the first such study in over ten years.

Choir Inducts New Members

Fourteen men were inducted into the Robed Choir in the traditional induction ceremony Thursday evening in Wyatt Chapel. This impressive robing ceremony formally inaugurates the traveling Robed Choir of each season.

Additions to the Tenor Section include Jeff Fagen, Woody McGinn, and Scott Smith with Whit Blount, Tim Grey, John Guest, Jim Loyd, and Buddy Troutt completing this section of fifteen men.

To the ranks of the Bass Section this year were added Bill Humphries, Sam Waters, Marion Boozer, Arch Hudgins, Jim Murchison and G. Wardlaw.

The choir, with this complement making a total of thirty voices, will travel close to six thousand miles this year making 28 appearances in four states and the District of Columbia.

Halsey Will Speak In Chapel Friday

Mr. Ashley Halsey, Saturday Evening Post Associate Editor now on leave, will speak to the student body during chapel on Friday, October 26. Mr. Halsey, whose topic is to be the Cuban Situation, has been recognized as an eminent authority on Latin American countries and is now writing a book about the Spanish-American War period.

Mr. Halsey is originally from Charleston, but now resides in Surf City, New Jersey. He was a classmate of Mr. Earl Halsall, PC Professor of Political Science and Economics, while at the High School of Charleston, and is a son-in-law of former PC Philosophy Professor Dr. Dudley Jones.

Mr. Halsey is appearing under the sponsorship of the International Relations Club in keeping with their aim of informing the campus on the events of our time.

Drama Group Is Organizing

Many students have expressed an interest in organizing a Dramatics Club at PC.

A small group has met and discussed the possibilities of such an organization and are promoting it on campus.

Anyone who has an interest in dramatics, acting, stagecraft, art, or just "hamming it up" should be at a meeting on Thursday night, October 25, at 8:00 in the Douglas House Meeting Room. If you are interested but are unable to attend this meeting, contact Jerry Blasingame, Smyth A 214 or John Burgess, Smyth C 133.

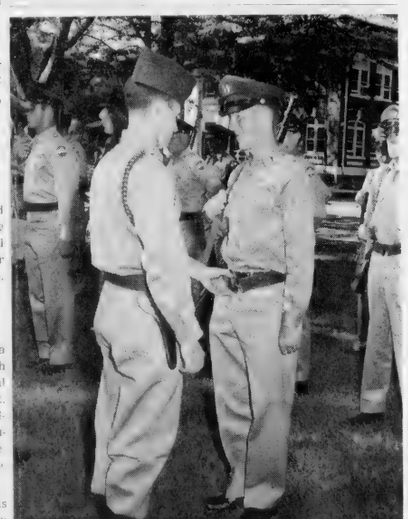
New Members Chosen For Frosh SCA Cabinet

The freshman cabinet of the Student Christian Association was chosen Wednesday night. The members are: Buddy Troutt, Bubba Hodges, Erik Johnson, Henry Lovett, Dave Veneklasen, Nancy Harvey, Glen Barlow, John Burgess, G. Wardlaw, Carroll Jones, Sam Waters, and Amelia Nichols. Melinda Gains was also appointed secretary, replacing Lynda Traynham, who transferred from Presbyterian College last year.

The cabinet was voted upon from nominations made by the present SCA Cabinet. The freshmen members each were unanimously elected.

The new members met Thursday afternoon for the purpose of electing their own officers and getting acquainted with their duties. Carroll Jones was chosen to fill the office of president. Henry Lovett will serve as vice-president, and the secretary will be Erik Johnson.

The duties of the newly elected group include publication of the student directory and the school calendar. They will work under the direction of Tom Currie, whose job is to organize them.



Blue Stocking Deadline

The deadline each week for articles by organization secretaries concerning meeting dates or other news should be turned in at the Blue Stocking office by 9:00 p. m. on Thursday night of each week which the paper is published. Notice should be given the editor by Wednesday that an article is forthcoming.

Open Social

Zeta Theta chapter of Sigma Nu Fraternity will stage the fifth open social of this year's social season next Wednesday night. Brothers and pledges will welcome freshmen and transfer students in their fraternity house below the baseball field. The house has recently been done over.

Starting at 7:30, the social is to run to 12:00. Girls have been invited from neighboring colleges. Sandwiches and punch will constitute the refreshments.

The Honor Code, The Student Council, And The Student Body

In the last four years there has been a noticeable change in the attitudes of the students toward the Honor Code and in the manner which the Student Council has upheld it against violation. When the present juniors and seniors came to campus the move had already begun with many student leaders voicing the need for genuine adherence to the code and rigid disciplinary action against infractors. Mention was often made of former student council members' having been told of cases of cheating and their replying not to worry or be concerned about it, the implication being that such actions were accepted by student opinion rather than rejected.

SINCE THEN the trend has been in the other direction. This year's student council has acted when called to do so with the firmness, fairness, and good judgment needed to protect and uphold the standards set forth in the Student Honor Code. Since their election the members have been called to act in more than one situation in which circumstances have doubtless made it hard to decide whether students being tried should be suspended for two weeks as a corrective measure or whether their infractions were serious enough to warrant permanent expulsion. There are living examples of the value of temporary suspension. It must be difficult and not at all enviable to have to sit in judgment of fellow students who have allowed a basic weakness of character which all have felt to get the upper hand.

The overall character of the student body has improved greatly in the past few years and this has been an important factor in the strengthening of the honor system. It is much easier to encourage honesty among students for whom it is a personal habit than among those for whom it is not.

THE MAIN AREA for improvement is in indoctrinating new students into the honor code and developing an awareness among the student body at large of a certain standard of honesty owed both to oneself and to his fellow students. The student council has given thought to this subject of late and hopes to make definite steps toward this end in the near future.

While it is doubtful that a crusade for the honor system would do more than stir the emotions of a few and the skepticism of many, interest and support does need to be stimulated and maintained.

Cheating was once commonplace on the PC campus and it is now quite rare due to positive council leadership and student body support. This same combination could in the immediate future make it virtually non-existant as it is on some few other college campuses.

Good Ole Time Wasting

by Spectator O. Birdbrain

A few years ago I wrote a brilliant thesis outlining a new way of life called Avoidism. Eventually the Avoidist becomes a Complete or Advanced Avoidist and learns to avoid everything and so becomes a happy, non-functional bum. Descartes said, "I think, therefore I am." The Avoidist says, "I won't, therefore, I ain't gonna!"

I sent my thesis to Director I. M. Idealist at the NFFBLEEU, (New Frontier Foundation for Better Life for Everybody Especially Us). It was promtply returned with a kind covering letter but the secretary forgot to remove a penciled note: "Unimportant, waste of time."

But wasting time is important!

Today, 90 per cent of Americans are still wasting time in the same old unoriginal ways that were in vogue at the turn of the century (i. e., working, talking, listening, walking, standing, scratching, stealing, gossiping, kibitzing, etc.). A few pioneers, driven by desperation, have worked out some novel, though ill-advised methods of time wasting.

For example:

When my Cousin Greenly was only twelve years old he started chewing on toothpicks and kitchen matches. At school he chewed on his pencil, his ruler and occasionally the corner of his desk. Eventually his metabolism developed a need for wood and Greenly became an addict.

He began openly to sprinkle sawdust over his breakfast cereal. One day his family came home and found one arm of a antique maple chair missing. The next day they caught Greenly pouring catsup over knotty-pine window sill.

His parents consulted psychologists and pressed cigars, gin, and phenobarbital on Greenly in futile attempts to destroy his unnatural craving. They even tried to wean him gradually on wood alcohol—but to no avail. Within eight months Greenly had eaten them out of house and home. (And garage)

Leaning out of windows is another time-wasting device which was originated by my friend, Tern Reddus, who began by watching parades from his fifth Avenue office window.

After a while he found he enjoyed it even when there were no parades. Although it seems ridiculous, Tern maintains that this harmless bit of foolishness gave him "quite a boost and that he was leaning out of all different sorts of windows with great satisfaction.

I haven't heard from Tern recently.

Then there is mouse carrying. This is not strictly a method of wasting time. It is more of a habit and isn't really much fun. The best I can say is that it is inexpensive.

Finally, there is playing with food.

Adults will naturally scorn the desultory messing about with peas and potatoes that appeals to three- and four-year olds, but if you are resourceful you can use your food as a means of emotional release. For example—make a replica of the Hoover Dam with chopped liver, using barbecued rib bones for the sluice gates. Then fill it with tomato soup.

One of the most interesting contributions in this field was originated by Miss Elvira Twiceover of Altoona, Pa. She activated in herself an uncontrollable urge to patronize Italian restaurants and knit her spaghetti into a little Argyle sock.

I Can't Believe It

By BRUCE SHERMAN

Dear Cohorts,

This is, most likely, a new column to most of you readers, but my roommate, Herman and I thought all of you would like to hear about some of the more intimate happenings in and around Hose Hill. We hope to probe into your private lives and bring out those special thoughts both evil and good, so let's call it a sort of "Candid Column." Here, you will see, over the weeks to follow, a few of the more exciting moments among our Campus Charlies and Plaza Peggies. Now, isn't that coincidental?

The other evening, as Herman and I were in the midst of our weekly Buckle Shining session, preparing for the Thursday afternoon Leadership Laboratory with Great Scott!, we began to relate some of the heart-warming scenes and experiences we witnessed over the past Homecoming Dance Weekend. "B. S.," as Herman affectionately calls me, "what do you think about this new deal the school now has about paying for the entertainment for the dance?" "What do you mean," I asked. "Well, the Catalinas weren't bad, but the Ink Spots sounded sorta sick." "Yeah, Herman, but don't feel too bad, we could have had Bubbles Welk or the Foggy Mountain Boys." "That's right, let's wait til next time and see what Puzzle Palace comes up with."

Other than this we were very happy to see that Giggles finally got herself pinned. Congratulations, Asbury, Seagrams can do wonders, can't it? We were real excited about the nice gift Rat Adams received from home the other day. They wrap cookies in the right stuff now-a-days, don't they?

Well, Rat season has officially ended. We wonder if the faculty had something to do with this, since the command, "Gin, Freshman!" has proved very rewarding, especially during parties and such. It was observed that the best thing about the end of Rat season is the fact that some of the Freshman Control Board received their first shower of the semester. Too bad Dirty Al missed out . . .

"Herman, are you planning on getting a date for Parents' Day weekend"? "I don't know," he answered, "but why don't we"? That's right, WHY DON'T WE??

I then asked him how his date for the weekend was and the only answer I got was after he turned out the light, rolled over, grabbed his pillow, made some sort of noise and went to sleep . . .

Alpha Sigs Down Sigma Nus, KA's To Remain In'Mural Football Lead

• Bandits Move Into Second Place

by Dick Wilkinson

The Alpha Sigma Phi's, led by quarterback Donnie Hardee, continue to make shambles of the rest of the Intramural Football League as they remain undefeated after three weeks of play. The ASP's have a 4-0 record to lead the league, followed by the Bandits with a 2-1-1 record, the Pi Kapp's with a 2-1-2 record, the KA's and their 1-1-1 slate, the Pi KA's who are 1-3 and the Sigma Nu's who are winless in four games. In action of the past week, things went as expected and the standings saw little change over last ratings.

In the game played last Friday, the ASP's ran over the Sigma Nu's by a 24 to 6 score. Donnie Hardee continued his leadership by example as he threw for two TD passes. Blackwell and Warlick scored once each, while Canady scored twice. Yearout scored the only Sigma Nu points on a short run.

Monday's game saw the Bandits and the Pi Kapp's battle to a 7-7 tie. Salvo passed to Davis for the PiKapp score and then ran the extra point. Todd scored the Bandits' only score on a pass from Fredrick. Anders then caught the extra point pass from Fredrick to tie the score. From then on the game was a defensive battle.

The ASP's continued their winning ways last Tuesday as they easily defeated the KA's by a 26-0 score. Donnie Hardee ran for two TDs, passed for two more, and passed for two extra points. The Alpha Sig line was again superb as it allowed the KA's very little rushing yardage.

The game on Wednesday saw the PiKapp's defeat the PiKA's by a 19 to 12 score. Salvo looked good as he passed for two TDs, ran over another, and passed for an extra point. The PiKA scoring came on two passes, one each to Burch and Brown. "Moose" Russell threw the TD passes to account for all the PiKA scoring.

In the final game of the week, the Bandits defeated the Sigma Nu's by a 14-0 score. The write-up on the scoring was not gotten in early enough, so all we had on that was the score. The scoring and outstanding players will be written up next week.

The Alpha Sigma Phi team has looked very good all year, and the word is out that "football fever" has hit the Broad Street boys. A good reason for the success of the team has been the passing, running, and field control of quarterback Donnie Hardee. Donnie has accounted for almost all of the ASP points thus far, and is a good bet for post-season honors. The Alpha Sigs in their first four games have scored 104 points while allowing only six.

LEIGHTON GRANTHAM MOVES UP

In a pre-season sports bulletin concerning the 1962 Presbyterian College football personnel, Leighton Grantham was listed as the number three man for the quarterback position. With 4 games already played, it is interesting to note that Grantham is no longer the third team leader, but is considered the number one quarterback of the Blue Hose. He is expected to start in the Saturday afternoon encounter with the University of Tampa.

Grantham is a 6-1, 200-pound product of Easley, S. C., and the versatile sophomore has had to battle his way from the "Dog Team" to his present ranking. Leighton, who was held out last year, won a starting job after his fine showing in the closing minutes of the Davidson game. In that game he took over the team on the PC 20-yard line with just over 3 minutes to play and moved the team down the field to the Davidson 29 before being replaced. He completed 5 straight passes in that drive, and won the admiration of fans and coaches alike.

GRANTHAM

Grantham's record indicates that he is one of the best passing quarterbacks on the squad. In the three games in which he has appeared, he has attempted 33 passes, completing 14 for 140 yards, to take the lead in the aerial departmnet. Backfield coach Charles Musselwhite has said, "Leighton has a lot of poise for a young boy who has played so little, and he has a chance to be a great quarterback." Leighton looked real good in practice this past week, and all hope he will be able to lead the Blue Hose to their first victory of the year this Saturday.

PIGSKIN PICKS

The regional collegiate football schedule this week will see some old rivalries, and trying to pick winners will be a matter of comparative records. Hitting on 6 out of 10 last wek, including the tie game that did not count either way, I now have a 12-5-2 record. Again with home teams in capital letters, it looks like:

Duke over CLEMSON
SOUTH CAROLINA over U. N. C.
E. CAROLINA over Newberry
VIRGINIA over Wake Forest
N. C. State over MISS. SOU.
WM. and MARY over Furman

Citadel over ARKANSAS STATE
E. TENNESSEE over Wofford
AUBURN over Georgia Tech
Fla. State over GEORGIA
MIAMI of FLA. over Maryland

Tennis Team Will Play Tough Foes In Spring

Head tennis coach Gordan Warden has announced the 1963 tennis schedule for the PC netters. The schedule does not include specific dates yet, but the dates will be set a little later in the year.

The netters will again face some of the best tennis teams in the South and East as they continue to carry the tradition of great PC teams of the past. The schedule will include nationally famous University of Miami, a team that was last beaten by PC over 100 matches ago.

PC will also face Florida State and the University of Florida as they make their annual Florida tour. Warden said the team will face any big Eastern teams that are in Florida at the time of the trip. Warden also announced that he is trying to arrange a match with the powerful University of North Carolina team and with the University of Georgia and Citadel.

Harvard University is scheduled for two matches here on successive days. The South Carolina Intercollegiate Tennis Tournament will be included on the schedule of the netters. Some practice matches with Furman and Clemson are also in the planning stages and nothing definite has been decided as of yet.

Coach Warden is very optimistic about the success of the squad this year and the four new players on the team will help brighten the future of PC tennis teams for at least four more years.

Army Language Schools Open to All Graduates

Study at the United States Army Language School is now available to non-ROTC college graduates.

The Department of the Army has announced that it will accept a limited number of college graduates for enlistment in the United States Army Security Agency Reserve and language training at the United States Army Language School in Monterey, California.

Personnel participating in this program will be enlisted under the Reserve Forces Act of 1955. complete eight weeks of basic training, and then spend about ten months studying at the United States Army Language School. Upon completion of the language training, the remaining portion of the six-year Reserve obligation will be completed in the 297th United States Army Security Agency Company at Atlanta, Georgia, or Columbia, South Carolina.

Students interested in this program should contact the office of the Professor of Military Science.

PR Nominees Listed

This year's selections for Pershing Rifles were announced last Wednesday. The potential PR's were selected by competitive drill by the military staff of Presbyterian College. These cadets cannot officially become members of the PR's until they take their pledge tests and hold a certain grade ratio for one semester.

Pete Yearout, captain of the Pershing Rifles, was quoted as saying, "We welcome any other interested students. They should see me for details."

PC Given $10,000 Scholarship Grant

One of the largest individual alumni gifts made to Presbyterian College has been presented by J. Melvin Thompson, Olanta business leader and active church layman, President Marshall W. Brown announced today.

His $10,000 check, directed through PC's present development program, is designated for endowment purposes. The income will be used to provide scholarship aid for qualified, needy students attending Presbyterian.

Thompson, an active student leader and star athlete during his college days, received his BS degree from Presbyterian College in 1916 and later sent his son, Robert, here. He is president of the Citizens Bank of Olanta and owns the Thompson Mercantile Company and the Thompson Oil Company in addition to having farming interests.

Dr. Carter Announces

Grad School Aid Available For Seniors

Dr. Kenneth Nolan Carter has been made responsible for drawing up pertinent information concerning fellowships and for working with interested students.

Seniors need not necessarily disregard the idea of graduate school simply because they lack the necessary funds. A senior with an overall "B" or better average, planning on doing graduate work, can often receive the funds he needs.

The most common way in which students support themselves through graduate school is by taking a teaching assistantship. Here the student is paid to assist in the teaching of undergraduates at the particular school.

Many competitive fellowships are offered by various foundations, which furnish from 1,500 to 3,000 dollars per year with no work. The most famous ones for study in the U. S. are:

1) the Woodrow Wilson Fellowship—available to those who plan to teach. There are 1,000 given each year. Several students from PC have won this in the past.

2) the Danforth Graduate Fellowship—for prospective teachers; there are 100 given yearly.

3) the National Science Foundation Fellowship—for all science majors. These are highly competitive.

For foreign study:

1) the famous Rhodes Scholarship—to Oxford University in England. This is for the all-around student, and is the most highly competitive in the world.

2) the Fulbright Fellowship given to deserving students over the world to graduate schools in many countries.

All seniors interested in graduate study fellowships should get in touch with their major professors at once. The deadline for application for many of these is Nov. 1.

As a last note on the scholarships, Dr. Carter is quoted as saying, "This should add an incentive to all of you underclassmen who are planning graduate work, and whose grades are too high.

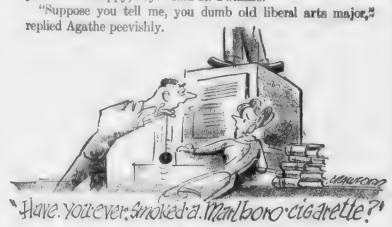
HAPPINESS CAN'T BUY MONEY

Can education bring happiness?

This is a question that in recent years has caused much lively debate and several hundred stabbings among American college professors. Some contend that if a student's intellect is sufficiently aroused, happiness will automatically follow. Others say that to concentrate on the intellect and ignore the rest of the personality can only lead to misery.



I myself favor the second view, and I offer in evidence the well-known case of Agathe Fusco.

Agathe, a forestry major, never got anything less than a straight "A", was awarded her B.T. (Bachelor of Trees) in only two years, her M.S.B. (Master of Sap and Bark) in only three, and her D.B.C. (Doctor of Blight and Cutworms) in only four.

Academic glory was hers. Her intellect was the envy of every intellect fan on campus. But was she happy? The answer, alas, was no. Agathe—she knew not why—was miserable, so miserable, in fact, that one day while walking across campus, she was suddenly so overcome with melancholy that she flung herself, weeping, upon the statue of the Founder.

By and by a liberal arts major named R. Twinkle Plenty came by with his yoyo. He noted Agathe's condition. "How come you're so unhappy, hey?" said R. Twinkle.

"Suppose you tell me, you dumb old liberal arts major," replied Agathe peevishly.

"All right, I will," said R. Twinkle. "You are unhappy for two reasons. First, because you have been so busy stuffing your intellect that you have gone and starved your psyche. I've got nothing against learning, mind you, but a person oughtn't to neglect the pleasant, gentle amenities of life—the fun things. Have you, for instance, ever been to a dance?"

Agathe shook her head.

"Have you ever watched a sunset? Written a poem? Smoked a Marlboro Cigarette?"

Agathe shook her head.

"Well, we'll fix that right now!" said R. Twinkle and gave her a Marlboro and struck a match.

She puffed, and then for the first time in twelve or fifteen years, she smiled. "Wow!" she cried. "Marlboros are a fun thing! What flavor! What filter! What pack or box! What a lot to like! From now on I will smoke Marlboros, and never have another unhappy day!"

"Hold!" said R. Twinkle. "Marlboros alone will not solve your problem—only half of it. Remember I said there were two things making you unhappy?"

"Oh, yeah," said Agathe. "What's the other one?"

"How long have you had that bear trap on your foot?" said R. Twinkle.

"I stepped on it during a field trip in my freshman year," said Agathe. "I keep meaning to have it taken off."

"Allow me," said R. Twinkle and removed it.

"Land sakes, what a relief!" said Agathe, now totally happy, and took R. Twinkle's hand and led him to a Marlboro vendor's and then to a justice of the peace.

Today Agathe is a perfectly fulfilled woman, both intellectwise and personalitywise. She lives in a darling split-level house with R. Twinkle and their 17 children, and she still keeps busy in the forestry game. Only last month, in fact, she became Consultant on Sawdust to the American Butchers Guild, she was named an Honorary Sequoia by the park commissioner of Las Vegas, and she published a best-selling book called I was a Slippery Elm for the FBI.

The makers of Marlboro are pleased that Agathe is finally out of the woods—and so will you be if your goal is smoking pleasure. Just try a Marlboro.

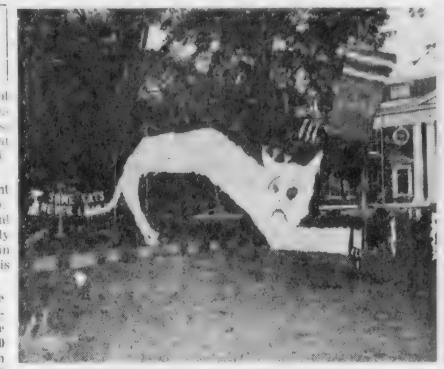
College Receives Challenge Grant

The Richardson Foundation of New York City has made a $150,000 challenge grant to the Presbyterian College development program, President Marshall W. Brown announced today.

He said the gift is contingent upon the college's securing $150,000 additional through its capital funds campaign which already has raised more than $1,200,000 in the Synod of South Carolina this year.



Under terms of the challenge grant, the Richardson Foundation will provide funds in three annual payments of $50,000 each, the first to be paid when the college has added $450,000 to its present development total.

Dr. Brown, in expressing his appreciation for the gift, said:

"This challenge grant of $150,000 will be of immeasurable value in aiding the success of our campaign which was approved by a unanimous vote of the South Carolin aSynod. Mr. H. Smith Richardson, Sr., through his foundation, thus continues his record of distinguished service to many good causes and especially to Christian higher education and to the work of the Presbyterian Church."

Blue Key Will Collect For Community Chest

The Blue Key will canvass the campus Monday and Tuesday of next week raising funds for the community Chest. Members will be in the dining hall at the dinner and supper meals to receive donations. There will also be a campaign in the dormitories between 6:30 and 7:30 Monday night. Your contributions will be appreciated.

511 Students Enrolled For PC Fall Semester

As Presbyterian College opened its doors for the eighty-second term 511 students were enrolled. These students hail from 19 different states, the District of Columbia and one foreign country. Their choices of professions cover 30 different occupations. Enrolled at PC this year are 64 seniors and juniors. The sophomore class, which is the largest, boasts of 196 students, while the freshman calss contains 170 students. There are nine special students.

Business and teaching top the choices of listed careers with 55 each. Ministry and medicine follow with 48 and 46, respectively. Twenty-two students want to be lawyers, while 16 are going into dentistry. The coaching field has attracted eight students, and seven students wish to be chemists. Banking and engineering each claim six students, while five are looking toward the insurance business.

Four students each have chosen military, psycology, public relations, social work and accounting. Contracting, IBM, journalism, missions and research each have interested three students.

Two students each are interested in being biologists, industrialists, mathematicians, merchants, and salesmen. The fields of advertising, drugs, forestry and photography have one hopeful each.

A great portion, however, is still undecided. These students number 188.

Geographically, South Carolina leads with 214 students, while Georgia and North Carolina have 147 and 55 students respectively. Forty-five students hail from Florida, while 11 and 10 hail from Virginia and Alabama.

Kentucky boasts four students, and there are three students each from Indiana, Maryland, New York and Tennessee. Two students each hail from Illinois, Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

Those states claiming one student are California, Maine, Mississippi, New Jersey and Texas. One student also represents the District of Columbia, while one is from Seoul, Korea.

Davies, Waters Claim Student Council Posts

• Leland is Freshman President

Last Monday morning fresh man class officers were elected in the Student Council President Paul Woodall described as a very close race.

David Davies of Panama City, Fla., and Sam Waters of Spartanburg, nosed by their opponents in the race for Student council positions.

In the other contests, campaigned for vigorously all week, Tommy Leland of Summerville, was chosen President; Dave Dunlap of Jacksonville, Fla., was elected Vice-President; Pat Goldsmith of Lancaster, was named Secretary; and Peggie Marion of Scotland, Ga., was elected Treasurer.

Campaigning this year was much more extensive with posters dotting the whole campus. One campaigner even came forth with printed cards bearing the motto, "Be Chewsy, vote for . . ." Affixed to each card was a pice of Wrigley's Spearmint to further convey the point.

Other contestants in the election were:

for Student Council—Carroll Jones of Atlanta, Ga.; Dick Hughes of Indianapolis, Ind.

for President—Pat Brown of Atlanta, Ga.; Erik Johnson of West Palm Beach, Fla.

for Vice-President—Doug Allen of Sumter; and "G" Wardlaw of Atlanta.

for Secretary—Steve Watson of Atlanta Ga.; Jeff Fagen of St. Petersburg Fla.

for Treasurer—Scott Smith of Qincy Fla.; Allen Callaway of Atlanta, Ga.

William F. Buckley To Address SCCPA

The South Carolina Collegiate Press Association will hold its annual fall seminar program at Wofford College on October 19-20. The association will present Mr. William F. Buckley in a public lecture on "The Decline of the Intellectual" at 8:00 p. m., October 19, in the Wofford College chapel. This is the first of a proposed series of public information programs to be presented by the S. C. C. P. A. this year.

Mr. Buckley is the founder and editor of "The National Review," a conservative magazine. He is also the author of such notable political works as God and Man at Yale and Up From Liberalism. A graduate of Yale University, Mr. Buckley is in constant demand on college and university campues all across the nation. His lectures have been described as "sharp," "devastating" and, to say the least, "provocative."

The lecture will be open to the general public, and reservations for seats may be made by contacting Pat Zimmerman at Box 548, Wofford Colle, Spartanburg.

Keith Robinson Elected State SCA Treasurer

Keith Robinson, a member of the Junior class, was unanimously elected Treasurer of the Student Christian Association of South Carolina at its annual fall convention at Camp Long. Presbyterian College also had two other delegates, John Burgess and G. Wardlaw.

The convention began Friday afternoon and ended on Sunday with a worship service. The keynote speaker was the Rev. Coit R. Troutman, Jr., pastor of the Oakland Baptist Church in Rock Hill, who spoke on "Christians in a Pagan Society."

After each address by Mr. Troutman, the delegates divided into five discussion groups. Mr. Carlton Parker of the Southern Area YMCA, led one group on "Techniques of Leadership." A group studying "Emotional Problems of College Students" was led by Dr. Hal Cooledge of Clemson College.

"Why Christianity" was the topic of the discussio ngroup led by the Rev. Bob Riegel of the St. James Episcopal Church of Greenville. The Rev. Bill Reid of Asbury Methodist Church of Columbia led a group in a discussion entitled "After the Count Down," while a group discussing "It Ain't Necessarily So" was led by Dr. G. H. Aull of Clemson College.

The conference was a valuable experience for all who attended, and it is hoped that more PC'uns can attend the Spring Convention.

College Catalogues Are Now Available

Presbyterian College Catalogues for the school year 1963-64 have just come in. People desiring one should see Mrs. Watts in the Administration Building. There is no charge for the catalogue.

Trustees Visitors To Convene Tuesday

The Presbyterian College Board of Visitors and Trustees will arrive on Campus Tuesday, October 16. Plans are for these representatives to remain until the next day. Both groups will meet in the Henry Belk Auditorium for dinner, following which they will be greeted by the president, Dr. Marshall Brown, and thirty student leaders.

The trustees and their wives or husbands will be assigned to a student or students with whom to have breakfast on the morning of October 17. The visitors will also be present Wednesday morning for the chapel service. After chapel, the Board's members will wind up their visit with a meeting with President Brown and the Chairman of the Board of Trustees. Ideas and observations of how the Board's members can work for the interest of the college will be discussed.

Wretched Wednesday Afternoon

M BARBOUR, Feature Editor

It was depressing—Wednesday afternoon October 31, 1962 it really was.

Just the fact that the day was Wednesday was enough, but it was Wretched Wednesday wretched because it precedes Bloody Thursday and two tedious hours of Slut Scott's Military Lab —and the only element that kept us going was the exotic anticipation of Good Friday—which always means no more playing soldier for a whole week.

In addition to the fact that we knew our brass had to be polished (damn brass), and that our black cordivans had to be spit-shined (Great Scott)—it was raining, not that I dislike rain—I don't—it was just this particular kind of very depressing rain.

If it had only been a light, sweet rain, falling out of a high sky, the kind that barely whispers with a silky sound on the surface of the campus paths, which are like snakes weaving through the tunnels of seclusion formed by and drowned in the drooping, now dripping boughs of oak trees— (sorta like Monsieur's right arm speaking through those French test papers).

As the dripping from the spongy sky established its perpetual existence—John Spalding Sheffield, Dee Hodges and I took it upon ourselves to conduct the weekly meeting of the Wanderer's Club. The Wanderers originated last spring when the first charter member, in sudden pits of depression, began to wander aimlessly to and fro from various and sundry points of interest on campus.

The enrollment of the club increased and consequently the range of wandering expanded also. Today members venture on impulse from Charlie's Palace to Iva's Tea Room, from the Toddle House to the Sands, from Player's Retreat to the 'top of the Mart," and from the Hornet's Nest to the Plantation.

Wretched Wednesday, John, Dee, and I, after undergoing "Hurricane Tommy's" latest pseudo-religion quiz, wandered from Spencer, to Smythe, to Laurens, to Bailey—and the observations we made were astounding. We entered and investigated every room on campus (except those which were locked) and emerged from the expedition with this result—between the approximate hours of two and three P. M. 43% of the student body was asleep.

Here is the rundown:
Spencer Dorm—55 sleepers.
Smythe Dorm—62 sleepers
Bailey Hall—53 sleepers.
Laurens Dorm—12 sleepers.
Calvert House—?
Vetville—?

Percentage wise, Spencer led all competitors. 55% of Spencer's occupants were engaged in slumber.

We must admit, however, that this tabulation was, to an extent, based on assumption. When we were confronted with the one barrier to a perfectly accurate survey—a locked door—we branded that room as having at least one occupant in the rack.

Once our figures were tabulated, we wrapped up the case and retired to our respective racks to participate in and enjoy that favorite pastime and necessity for life—sleep.

Mrs. Taylor Named As Career Woman of Year

Mrs. George W. Taylor has been chosen as the Citizen Career Woman of the year in a project of the Business and Profesional Woman's Club of Clinton.

Nominated by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, Mrs. Taylor will be recognized at the November meeting of the local B&PW Club. Nominations were given by various local civic groups. Mrs. Taylor will be entered in state-wide competition by the Clinton Club.

Currently serving as hostess of Presbyterian College, Mrs. Taylor's career has included stints as teacher, missionary, institutional treasurer and dietitian as well a mother of four children.

Mrs. Taylor attended Converse College. She accompanied her husband to Brazil when he went there as a Presbyterian missionary. There she found herself involved as a teacher of English, home economics, and typing, helping her husband with his work and teaching her own children.

She returned to the United States in 1936 upon the death of her husband. In 1938 she began work with the Presbyterian College business office. Her apointment as business manager followed in 1942.

In 1956 an emergency call came from the Presbyterian Bible School at Garanhuna Pernambuco, Brazil, the same station she had previously served with her husband.

Mrs. Taylor returned for three years as dormitory housemother, treasurer and dietitian for the school.

She returned to the United States in 1959. In 1960 Presbyterian College once more called upon her for her services and she became hostess for the college. She is also active in several phase of church work.

THE W. F. WILL MEET AT 6:15 THIS SUNDAY IN THE WYATT CHAPEL. PROGRAM WILL BE ON PRAYER.

rearranged. The stacks are now arranged in sequence acording to the Dewey Decimal System. Two weeks ago the card catalog was moved from the North Reading Room to the Rotunda.

During the last five years a listening room has been set up in conjunction with a record collection of aproximately 3000 discs. This facility is used primarily by the students, but faculty members and others may use it.

The policy of ordering Library of Congress cards with the books was initiated last year. The Library is now open 79 hours per week, and the main stacks are open to everyone.

Students and faculty members have a voice in the composition of the Library since they have the privilege of recommending books to be purchased by the Library. These recommendations are considered in buying the books, and most requests are granted.

EAT, SLEEP, AND MATRICULATE

The trouble with early morning classes is that you're too sleepy. At late morning classes you're too hungry. At early afternoon classes you're too logy. At late afternoon classes you're too hungry again. The fact is—and we might as well face it—there is no good time of day to take a class.

What shall we do then? Abandon our colleges to the ivy? I say no! I say America did not become the hope of mankind and the world's largest producer of butterfats and tallow by running away from a fight!

If you're always too hungry or too sleepy for class, then let's hold classes when you're not too hungry or sleepy: namely, when you're eating or sleeping.

Classes while eating are a simple matter. Just have a lecturer lecture while the eaters eat. But watch out for noisy food. I mean who can hear a lecturer lecture when everybody is crunching celery or matzo or like that? Serve quiet stuff—like anchovy paste on a doughnut, or steaming bowls of lamb fat.

And kindly observe silence while lighting your post-prandial Marlboro Cigarette. Don't be striking kitchen matches on your jeans. Instead carry an ember from the dormitory fireplace in your purse or pocket. Place the Marlboro against the ember. Light it quietly. Smoke it quietly. Oh, I know I ask a great deal! I know that one's natural instinct upon encountering Marlboro's fine flavor and filter is to throw back one's head and bellow great, rousing cries of joy. But you must not. You must contain your ecstacy, lest you disturb the lecturing lecturer. You can, if you like, permit yourself a few small shudders of pleasure as you smoke, but take care not to wear garments which will set up a clatter when you shudder—like taffeta, for example, or knee cymbals.

Let us turn now to the problem of learning while sleeping. First, can it be done?

Yes, it can. Psychologists have proved that the brain is definitely able to assimilate information during sleep. Take, for instance, a recent experiment conducted by a leading Eastern university (Stanford). A small tape recorder was placed under the pillow of the subject, a freshman named Glebe Sigafoos. When Glebe was fast asleep, the recorder was turned on. Softly, all through the night, it repeated three statements in Glebe's slumbering ear:

1. Herbert Spencer lived to the age of 109 and is called "The Founder of English Eclectic Philosophy."

2. The banana plant is not a tree but a large perennial herb.

3. The Archduke Ferdinand was assassinated in 1914 at Sarajevo by a young nationalist named Mjilas Cvetnic, who has been called "The Trigger of World War I."

When Glebe awoke in the morning, the psychologists said to him, "Herbert Spencer lived to the age of 109. What is he called?"

Glebe promptly replied, "Perennial Herb."

Next they asked him, "What has Mjilas Cvetnic been called?"

Replied Glebe, "Perennial Serb."

Finally they said, "Is the banana plant a tree?"

But Glebe, exhausted from the long interrogation, had fallen back asleep, where he is to this day.

Students Comment on Cuba, U. S. Military Quarantine

Several students were asked to ions of President Kennedy's action against Cuba this week. Those that we were able to publish are printed below.

JOHN HENDERSON said, "We have seen this week the long awaited positive action and firm stand by the U. S. Furthermore we've more followers than anyone expected. Perhaps it shows that the U. S. is not lagging as far behind as some have said.

"Let's continue this leadership for things which we believe in."

JOHNNY DICKERSON said, "I think that President Kennedy's deployment of this quarantine was set off with utmost skill and precision, but I believe that without the aid of the European Powers and the Organization of American States it would have been futile.

I think that because of these united powers, Khrushchev will think twice before starting an offensive action against a country of the Western Hemisphere.

My main opinion as to the Cuban situation is that the United States should have stepped in earlier and tried to do something about this menace at our back-door. As to what action should have been taken, I don't know, but I think it should have started after the Bay of Pigs battle.

BOB MORRIS said "It's about time that the United States Government took action against Communist Cuba and Russia. I sincerely hope that our well taken actions are not too late.

"President Kennedy took about the only action that he could possibly have taken. I only hope that Premier Khrushchev understands that the U. S. Government means what it says — "Search or Sink,"—and that Khrushchev's "No rash Decisions" will not lead to World War III.

"If Khrushchev thinks that he can get back at the United States through the Berlin situation, I personally think that he is sadly mistaken. President Kennedy most certainly took the Berlin crisis into consideration when he issued his ultimatium and has made plans for the defense of Berlin in his strategy."

ARCH HUDGINS said, "Mr. Kennedy's remarks on television seem to have evoked a great many comments, and since most of those I've heard seem bad I'd like to take a positive approach.

"My first reaction to his quarantining of Cuba was the questioning of the right we have to do such a thing. This question was answered when I realized the

Noted Writer Halsey Suggests Forming Cuban Exile Goverment In Address At PC This Morning

Ashley Halsey, Jr., author and editor, proposed today that Cuban exiles in the United States be encouraged to elect a "free Cuban" government-in-exile as a global example of democracy at work, in contrast to Fidel Castro's refusal to conduct any elections.

Halsey further suggested that, with the overthrow of Castro and Cuban Communism, all Cubans be given an early opportunity to re-establish their own government by election, and then be permitted to vote on whether they want a commonwealth affiliation with th United States such as Puerto Rico now enjoys.

Speaking to the student body of Presbyterian College as the guest of its International Relations Club and of Dr. Marshall W. Brown, president of the college, Halsey said his proposals would lay the groundwork for a "healthy political atmosphere" in Cuba and strengthen its future relations with this country.

"The U. S. Immigration Service now has a record, with name and address, of nearly every bonafide Cuban in this country," Halsey said. "It should be relatively simple to certify this as an election list to the Orgnization of American States, and let them hold an election by an absentee-ballot system. The results would establish an official Cuban government by election — something Castro never has dared to do— and would show up the dictatorship of the Communist regime.

"The United States Government, for reasons best known to the State Department, has persistently refused to recognize any Cuban government-in-exile. This is in strange contrast to World War II, when we recognized many governments-in-exile representing the European countries conquered by Nazism. This policy helped us to overthrow rightwing dictatorship in Europe. Why cannot it be applied to to our cold war against leftwing dictatorship in Cuba?

"Once Castro is ousted, as he must be, the Cuban government-in-exile could become a temporary government serving as the vehicle for Cuba's first free national election in more than a decade. After the bitter dose of Communism that the Cuban people had to swallow, it is almost a certainty that they would overwhelmingly elect some form of anti-Communist government—and that should be enough to satisfy us.

At one point he remarked "I speak to you essentially as a South Carolinian and a conservative," he smiled and added, "this does not mean that I am politically retarded.

Concerning the recently publicized Cuban missile sites, Mr. Halsey said that "The announced fact that construction is continuing on the missile bases in Cuba does not necessarily indicate Soviet determination to complete and use them. It may merely be a move to increase Soviet bargaining power at negotiations."

Mr. Halsey, for thirteen years an associate editor of The Saturday Evening Post, is now writing books including a history of the Spanish-American War period touching on the Cuban background. One of his Civil War books, Who Fired the First Shot? is to be published shortly by Hawthorne Books, Inc., New York City.

Blue Stocking Joins S.C. Collegiate Press Assoc.

The Blue Stocking, this past weekend, was granted membership into the South Carolina Collegiate Press Association.

At the Fall Seminar of the SCCPA held at Wofford College, The Blue Stocking rejoined after an absence of almost twenty years. The highlight of the seminar was a lecture given by William F. Buckley, who is the founder and editor of "National Review."

The SCCPA is an organization of collegiate publications including newspapers, yearbooks, and magazines. Its members benefit from the association with other staffs from over the entire state. Once a year its member papers are judged and prizes are awarded.

The Blue Stocking dropped out of the SCCPA in 1942 while under the editorship of Ben Hay Hammet. During that year the paper won national recognition as All-American and as Pacemaker, which placed it among the top ten college newspapers regardless of size or frequnecy of publication. The SCCPA failed to recognize this merit by any awards and as a result the Blue Stocking withdrew from membership.

Editor DuPont Smith said, 'I feel that The Blue Stocking will benefit from this association with the members of other college newspaper staffs. Our rejoining the SCCPA was long overdue. In the past our non-participation has put The Blue Stocking out of the mainstreams of publication ideas. This re-association cannot help but improve the paper."

Major Fields Sought Have Changed Little In Ten Years

The present student body of Presbyterian College as compared with the studnt body of 1952 shows that in the past ten years the various interests in selected majors have changed but little.

In 1952, 148 students were aimed at a major in economics. English and history ran next with 70 and 54 students respectively.

Fifteen students chose Chemistry and 9 claimed Mathematics. Two students decided to study physics.

Ten students sought Bible and biology each; and one student was headed toward education. Of the 465 students, 146 were undecided in 1952.

This year Economics leads again with 97 interested studnts, and history and English follow with 47 and 45 students interested respectively.

There are 41 pre-med students and 28 studnts are working toward psychology and mathematics majors. Biology has interested 26 students while sociology has drawn 16.

Fifteen students are concentrating on chemistry with 12 students studying in Bible. Physics has attracted 8 students and Christian education, 6.

Three students are majoring in French and one in Spanish. However, the majority of students remains undecided, and they number 138, mostly under classmen.

From these students, 225 are seeking the Bachelor of Arts degree, 154 the Bachelor of Science degree and the Bachelor of Science in Business Administration degree has attracted 56 students.

Sock Poll Cited

The Blue Stocking's poll of student opinion on Cuban Intervention in the issue of September 29 drew notice in several ways this week.

On Friday night, founder and editor of the National Review William F. Buckley read the poll and Associate Editor Wirt Skinner's editorial and commented favorably on both.

On the 6:30 news over a Charlotte TV station, a commentator mentioned the Blue Stocking poll's showing that the PC student body thought action was necessary.

The Greenville News gave notice in its Monday morning edition of the poll and titled it "PC Students Want Action."

And then, of course, the events of this week have further emphasized the topic's pertinence to the student body.

Editor's Notebook

THE INTRAMURAL COUNCIL, headed by Gene Goodwyn, has done a tremendous job this year in organizing and conducting the football season. Many students have voiced their admiration of the fine job and we would like to express ours as well.

* * * * * * * * * * *

WHILE AT WOFFORD last weekend the editor noticed that they have lined their walks and lawns with rows of thick shrubs which improve the appearance of the campus and effectively discourage "pathmaking." If they were found practical, PC could plant similar shrubs in front of the Douglas House and the Auditorium and thus remove the unsightly but needed posts and wire.

* * * * * * * * * * *

THE WOFFORD BLUE KEY'S PROGRAM in Chapel Monday was enjoyed and appreciated by the student body, but many left the auditorium shaking their heads at the poor sound effects. It's truly a shame that Belk is so lavish without having a good mike system. We understand that work is in progress to eliminate this incongruity; lets' hope that it will be soon.

* * * * * * * * * * *

MANY STUDENT SPEAKERS in Chapel demonstrate poor speaking technique perhaps from their embarressment or nervousness. They need to speak to the back row of the auditorium, enunciating clearly. Occasionally one comes along who does this and thereby commands the attention of his listeners whether his topic is "red-hot" or not.

* * * * * * * * * * *

IT WOULD BE OUTRAGEOUS for the Blue Stocking to come out in actual support of that terrible atrocity re-required chapel. Chapel has gotten more tolerable lately, however. (We didn't say it was good now, just slightly more tolerable.) As a matter of fact the word must have gotten around since many faculty members now attend. That new clause in their contracts must rally have sparked up their spiritual interest.

Monroe Doctrine Modern Style

DuPONT SMITH, Editor

When the Monroe Doctrine was first pronounced by President James Monroe in 1823, it served notice on European powers that "we should consider any attempt on their part to extend their system to any portion of this hemisphere as dangerous to our peace and safety."

In the years that have passed since Monroe's historic statement of policy, many a President has felt compelled to reassert the determination of the United State to prevent the political colonization of Latin America.

President Kennedy's bold action this week to remove the threat posed by Cuba's suddenly acquired offensive missiles met with approval of virtually every Latin American Country and we discovered how comforting it is to have others back us in a touchy situation.

The question foremost in veryone's mind is what the o ome of the whole affair will b t now appears that the U. S. w e successful in thwarting furth oviet missile shipments to Cub ut when this immediate end h een attained, the United Stat nay find herself with much t ame problem she faced befo he present affair of having allo d a foreign system to prevail Latin American country. Th s in direct conflict with the Mo roe Doctrine and cannot but t termine the interests of U. S. n curity.

In a sense the discovery that C ba had acquired nuclear missil rom Russia helped Kennedy i measureably since it gave him valid reason for the forceful a tion which is needed to neg the communistic tendencies Cuba's government. Prior to th discovery President Kennedy o viously felt that he could not ju afiably use U. S. forces to ov throw Castro's government.

If the present crises dies wit out our having removed th foreign-dominated governmen then the thorn in our side an in that of the Monroe Doctrin shall remain to vex us later.

If the United States, on the o er hand, took advantage of t situation to deploy troops to ov throw the Cuban governme (and there may never be anoth chance so inviting) the hardpn sed Castro might in desperati use missiles he now has in rea ness and the result would be t tal elimination of all problem Cuban, American and Sov since the U. S. has committed self to retaliate against Russia any such Cuban missile attack

Despite this risk, it seems th to defend the Monroe Doctri Castro's pro-Communist govern ment must be eliminated, it ca not simply be contained.

The next ten years will brin the sternest tests yet to the h toric but not outdated docume The greatest changes will be the complexion of South Amer can political currents since t more than one underdevelope country, communism may in th next decade look like the needy extrication from poverty an backwardness. Through the changing times, the United State must inject the Monroe Doctri if necessary, perhaps in the fa of Latin American opposition rat er than the current support whic Kennedy has enlisted.

The Modern Style Monroe Do trine must continue to cultiva the willful acceptance of thes countries if it is to prevail years to come, and prevail must if South America is to "safe for democracy."

Letter-to-the-Editor

Mr. Adams on Language Labs

Dear Editor:

It is with a great deal of interest that I read your editorial in the Blue Stocking concerning your views on the need for a language laboratory at Presbyterian College. I appreciate your service to the Romance Laguage Department in so effectively presenting this need.

I know that you have received already a letter from Professor Glover in which he has set forth his responses to various aspects of you editorials; so, I shall not reiterate those points. I should like, however, to deal with only one aspect of a language laboratory in this letter; namely, a foreign language program based on the use of the laboratory in conjunction with such a course.

The absolute minimum amount of time that would be required in class and laboratory work would be five hours each week, whereas we now meet for only three hours. This means that a certain amount of extra time would be necessary for the student to prepare for the extra class hours. (I should like to illustrate what I mean by simply comparing our present book and program with the book and program at a famous university. At Presbyterian College we meet classes three hours each week, the student having familiarized himself with the material outside of class. Our textbook is standard size and contains 235 pages. At the university the students meet five hours each week, having spent additional time in preparation for those extra hours. The book used is much larger and contains 450 pages.)

You may ask why so much time is needed for a foreign languae when it is taught in conjunction with a laboratory. The answer lies in the philosophy inherent in the use of such a laboratory; namely, that the student is now expected to learn to speak the language and to understand it. It is very doubtful that anyone could adequately do those two things simply by attending three hours of classes each week.

Almost every book prepared especially to be used in conjunction with a language laboratory has a dialogue that must be memorized by the student on his own time in the laboratory. In this way one can learn to respond to language situations as they normally occur in the dialogues. Also, it is during this preparatory work that one may practice pronunciation of the language until he can speak almost like a native.

As you can see, the use of a language laboratory r e q u i r e s more time on the part of the student; but the rewards are greater. Let's have a lab!

Very truly yours,

RICHARD O. ADAMS,

Associate Professor of Spansih

I Can't Believe It

By BRUCE SHERMAN

Dear Cohorts,

It seems as if the fall always brings a little extra something with it, a feeling of spirit and excitement and a leaning of hearts towards the nearing holidays. This feeling has really caught up with Herman, and last Wednesday he decided to take his girl, Gertrude Grubgood, to the Laurens County Fair for an evening full of fun and fellowship.

It seems as if Gertie is quite the girl, for, during the recent run of events, she has won such awards as, "Miss Mack Truck of 1962," "Miss Swill of 1963," not to mention being voted "The Girl We'd Like to Clean Sewers the Most With." Herman and Gertie arived at the Fairgrounds around 8 o'clock, just in time for the livestock judging, which made Gertie SO proud to have another Blue Ribbon for her scrapbook.

After this presentation, they decided to take a walk down the midway and see what was going on. Herman says that there was a lot of PC students out this night, mainly to extend their knowledge of Agriculture, Farming and Animal Anatomy. I asked him if he and Gertie went to any of these shows, but he said that she wasn't feeling too good after such an exhausting evening so I decided to take her home. It was almost feeding time, anyway.

"Herman, how did you like the Wofford College Chapel program last Monday?" "Boy, I really liked it, but I do regret the fact that one of our facultuy members had to leave so suddenly, right after the tailwind came." "He had to answer a phone call, Herman, but I think some of his pals let him in on the rest of the program."

"Bruce, did you ever hear of anybody stopping their car right in the middle of Spartanburg for a few minutes, with a date?" "No, why?" "Well, it seems as if Mr. Snipes pulled something like this last weekend, but no one seems to know exactly what was wrong. All his date could say was, 'I can't believe it'."

When I asked Herman if he was taking Gertie to the Wofford game this weekend, he only smiled, shivered, gave a few shakes and left the room.

P. S.—HAPPY HALLOWEEN, COEDS!

Bandits Steal Lead From Alpha Sigs

Darkhorses Have Inside Title Track After Surprising Alpha Sigs, 18-13

The Bandits swept into the lead of the intramural football league this week by defeating the Alpha Sigs. With the Sigma Nu's winning their first ball game and the Alpha Sig's losing their second game, the league has tightened up a great deal. There are still six more games and any team could win.

The Bandits, led by Bill Frye who intercepted one pass and scored two touchdowns, defeated the Alpha Sig's 18 to 13. The Bandits were also ably assisted by Prof. Stallworth and his rip-away shorts. Earlier in the week The Bandits defeated the Sigma Nu's by a score of 14 to 0.

The PiKA's, the first to defeat the Alpha Sig's, won 20 to 19. Bill Russell passed for all of the PiKA points. Brown, Ard and Jacobs caught Russell's passes for the touchdowns. The Alpha Sig's scored two touchdowns on the running of Canady. He also passed to Crider for their other touchdown. During the week, the Pikas also fought the Pi Kapp's to a 6 to 6 tie. Burch caught a pass from Russell for the Pika touchdown and Salvo passed to Mayhugh for the Pi Kap score.

The Sigma Nu's played the games this week. Losing first to the Bandits, they next tied the KA's in a scoreless game. This Thursday they won their first game 19 to 7 over the PiKapps. Yearout led his team by scoring all three of the Sigma Nu touchdowns.

Standings at the end of the week.

	W	L	T	%
Bandits	3	1	1	70
ASP	4	2	0	67
PiKapp	2	2	3	50
KA	1	1	2	50
PiKA	2	3	1	42
Sigma Nu	1	4	1	25

Next week the Sigma Nu's play the PiKA's on Monday. The GA's play the PiKapps on Tuesday.

On Wednesday and Thursday the Sigma Nu's play the Bandits and then the Alpha Sig's play the Pi Kapps.

Frye, Ellisor Are I-M Players of Week

Two members of the league-leading Bandit's have taken the Intramural honors this week as BUDDY ELLISON and BILL FRYE were named as Players of the Week. For their all-around play in the Bandits defeated the Alpha Sig's, 18-3.

Ellisor, tall end, won the honor for the lineman as he intercepted two Alpha Sig passes to set up scores in the week's big upset. The second pass interception proved to be the clincher as the Bandit's went on from there to score and put the game on ice. In addition to his fine defensive play, Buddy caught a TD pass in the first half to start the Bandit's drive.

Frye, little Bandit scatback, caught two second half passes to lead all scorers in that game. Bill was running for good yardage as well as catching passes, and his defensive play was outstanding. Frye, the smallest man on the field, made the biggest difference in the week's intramural play.

Run of the Hose

AL PEARCE, Sports Editor

BLUE HOSE-TERRIER RIVALRY LONG ONE

When the 8:00 kick-off gets the Presbyterian College-Wofford College football game underway tomorrow night at Spartanburg, it will mark the continuation of one of South Carolina's oldest rivalries.

The Terriers and the Blue Hose have been battling now since 1914, and 45 games have been played since that first game. In that game, Wofford beat the Hosemen of the great Walter Johnson by a 7-0 score. That was the first game that year that PC had been held scoreless, and was the first team to score on the Hose in four games. The teams have played on a fairly even basis since then, with PC winning 25 games, Wofford winning 17, and 3 games ending in ties. The teams played each year from 1914 until 1943 when PC replaced Wofford on the schedule with the University of Miami. PC played the University of Havana the next year and Wake Forest College in 1945, but PC and Wofford have played every year since that break.

The closest margin of victory for either team has been one point, this margin being seen in four games. The largest margin of victory for either team was in 1941 when the team coached by Lonnie McMillian defeated the Terriers 44-0. Last year Wofford defeated PC here by a 14 to 8 count. This year, PC and Wofford have faced three mutual opponents with each team losing to the three. Wofford lost to Lenoir Rhyne, Furman, and Davidson as did PC. Each team lost to out of state opponents last week.

Most football experts have picked Wofford by just over a point, but when old conference rivals meet, comparative records and past performances are seldom of much value, so maybe this is the week for PC to explode its sputtering ground game and add another victory to the long list of conquests over the Terriers of Wofford College.

PIGSKIN PICKS

It was a sad week for South Carolina colleges as not one of the seven teams in the state could manage a win. The two big Georgia teams also had a hard time, with both Tech and Georgia losing. The teams of the three big Florida schools did well with 4 North Carolina squads breaking even. I was pretty lucky myself as I hit on 8 out of 11 to push my record for the year to 20 right, 8 wrong, and 2 ties. This week I'll try on 10 more games of interest to PC students. Teams in capital letters are, as usual, the home teams.

Auburn over CLEMSON
MARYLAND over South Carolina.
CITADEL over Furman
DUKE over N. C. State
LSU over Florida
NORTH CAROLINA over Wake Forest.
William and Mary over VMI
TENNESSEE over Chattanooga.

Hose Fall To Spartans In Defensive Contest

by DICK WILKINSON

The University of Tampa Spartans defeated the PC Blue Hose last week in Tampa by a score of 10-0. This win was the first for the Tampa team, and marked the fifth straight loss for the Hosemen. This also was the first game in which the Blue Hose had been held scoreless this year and was the first PC shutout since the fifth game of the 1960 season. Before this, the Blue Hose had scored in their last 18 ball games.

Although Tampa had 7 first downs to PC's 6, the Blue Hose outgained the Spartans in rushing yardage 128 yards to 109. Both of Tampa's scores came within the last three minutes of the first half. A Bill Tyson pass was picked off by a defensive back who simply ran a few yards for the TD. The pass had been thrown from the PC two-yard line. The conversion was good, and Tampa led by a 7-0 score.

The Spartans drove down from the Presbyterian 39 into field goal range with the first half almost over, and from the 25-yard line, the three-point field goal kick was good. PC faced a 10-point deficit at half-time, and couldn't make it up in the defensive second half.

As in most past games, Fullback Randie McCranie led the PC ground attack by carrying for over twenty yards. Jimmy Bankhead, freshman end, and Mike Lay, senior end, led the pass receiving by hauling in two each for 30 and 26 yards gained, respectively. Guard Alvin Coley and Center Snuffy McReynolds played well on both offense and defense.

"A drastic step has been taken; it might lead to war. If war comes, some of us may not see the outcome. I believe Mr. Kennedy thought of this, and he thought it better to die in a free country than to live under cancerous Communism. I'll string along with him.

JAN RHODES said, "In view of the fact that missile sites for surface to surface, nuclear-tipped bissiles have apeared in threatening numbers, the Western Hemisphere is in great danger of stumbling into a war which could pass for an Armageddon. Because of this I feel that President Kennedy was absolutely correct in declaring United State's intensions to quarantine Cuba. And the blockade is applicable only to implements of war.

At the onset of World War I, Chancellor Bethmann von Hollwegg defended the violation of Belgium's nuetrality by stating in effect that necessity knows no law. Feeling that German security was threatened and an attack on France necessary, the Junker-led armies swept through Belgium, the easiest route to take, because speed was essential. Russia was on her back too.

Such an argument would not hold up in a court and it may seem that we are saying that might makes right. But certainly such a checking action as this is a small violation of law compared to the violation of humanitarian rules pon which civilization rests and which the Soviet Union and Cuba so gravely threat.

Theta Chi Leads In Fraternity Scholarshi

Once again Theta Chi was the top scholastic fraternity on campus with a healthy 2.66 QP ratio for the second semester of the 1961-62 school year. They were followed by second place Alpha Sigma Phi with a 2.40 and then Kappa Alpha with a 2.34. Pi Kappa Alpha and Sigma Nu were next with a tie of 2.15. Last was Pi Kappa Phi with a 2.09 QP ratio.

The top fraternity, Theta Chi, was .10 higher second semester than first semester. Pi Kappa Phi, the low man, also came up bettering their first semester average by .14.

Despite these gains though, the over-all fraternity average for the second semester was lower than the over-all men's average. It was vice-versa for the first semester with the frats coming out on top of them. All averages were over-all higher second semester than for the first. Over-all men's for the first was a 2.26, for the second it was a 2.32. Over-all fraternity average for the first was a 2.23, for the second a 2.30. The over-all non-fraternity average for the first was a 2.20. For the second it was a 2.34.

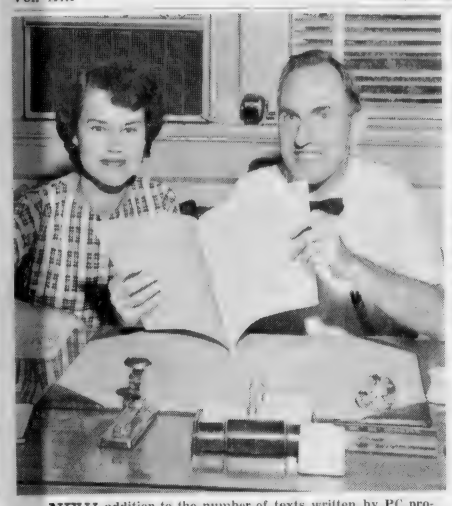
Among the young people being graduated from college in these times, there are some who think and feel—perhaps a little more deeply than the others—about the world we live in, the future we face. They ask, "How can I make my career really meaningful? More than just personally rewarding?"

And many of today's most successful young people are finding a fulfilling answer to these questions as officers on the Aerospace Team... the United States Air Force. They can tell you that no career could better combine the opportunity for achievement—and the deep inner satisfaction of knowing that they are helping preserve the very future of America.

How can you become an Air Force Officer?

If you are a college senior and not currently enrolled in ROTC, Air Force Officer Training School provides an opportunity to qualify for a wide variety of career fields. The graduate of this three-month course receives a commission as a second lieutenant. As the Air Force continues its technological advance, officers with college training will move into positions of increasing importance.



For full information—including the opportunity to earn graduate degrees at Air Force expense—see the Air Force Selection Team when it visits your college, visit your local Air Force Recruiting Office, or write: Air Force Officer Career Information, Dept. SC210, Box 805, New York 1, New York.

Dr. and Mrs. K.N. Carter Author New Lab Manual

Presbyterian College Chemistry teachers Dr. Kenneth Carter and his wife, Mrs. E. G. Carter, finished work this summer on their own Chemistry Laboratory Manual for general chemistry. Recently published, the manual is now being used by PC students in general chemistry.

The manual is titled Basic Laboratory Chemistry and its main objective, states Dr. Carter, "is to develop the student's laboratory technique, his powers of observation, and his ability to draw conclusions, as it adds insight to the general chemistdy course."

Mrs. Carter says that the main spark that moved them to publish their own manual was that the larger manuals "contain too many experiments, many of which were never used. A student paid for many experiments he never had a chance to perform."

The Carters started the manual last year by mimeographing different experiments and assigning them to the class. By this method they determined which were the most pertinent and worthwhile experiments.

Dr. Carter and his wife, both graduates of Vanderbilt University, have many original experiments in the manual. Assignment Number 7 was published in the Journal of Chemistry, Volume 39, page 310, June, 1962. The experiment originated during the last school year.

Basic Laboratory Chemistry was printed by Edwards Brothers of Michigan. The manual has 86 pages and is in offset printing.

Art Studio Getting Good Participation

by Dr. Edouard Patte

At the recently opened PC Art Studio, five canvases are now in progress showing the originality and talent of each painter. There is a still-life in expressionist style, an amusing painting of toads and a toadstool, a dancing silhouette among festive garlands, a bunch of yellow and orange marigolds and an abstract canvas in bold colors.

The Art Studio, open to all PC artists every afternoon except Sundays is a fine addition to the College facilities and extra-curricular activities program.

Faculty Plans Re-evaluation of PC Program Over Two Year Period

• Ten Areas Will Be Considered

Plans for a two-year re-evaluation study of Presbyterian College's entire program have come out of the October faculty meeting. This action was prompted by a belief that the college's total program can be improved and that PC's service to the supporting synods can be even more highly significant in the future than it has been in the past.

The studies will follow a general pattern set up by the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. This committee's study will take place simultaneously with similar studies being made at other institutions which are members of the SACSS. To guide this study, a steering committee is now being selected by the faculty and administration.

The ten major areas which the SACSS recommends for consideration are: the purposes of the institution; the institution's financial resources; the institution's organization (Administration, Faculty, and Student Body); the institution's educational program (curriculum and total life on campus); the library (faculty and student use); the faculty (training, experience, degrees, salaries, teaching load, equipment, teaching, testing, and grading); student personnel (social, physical and religious activities; student-faculty and student-administration relations); physical plant (adequacy or inadequacy); research (that done by the faculty — publications or articles or books, graduate study); and special activities (athletic program, Student Council, SCA, fraternities, extension courses, and outside faculty activities).

The Executive Director of the SACSS will meet with the faculty early in 1963, and at the end of the study a SACSS committee will visit the campus to make further recommendations. It is believed that this program—consisting of our own findings plus those of the SACSS—will result in many improvements for Presbyterian College. This will be the first such study in over ten years.

Choir Inducts New Members

Fourteen men were inducted into the Robed Choir in the traditional induction ceremony Thursday evening in Wyatt Chapel. This impressive robing ceremony formally inaugurates the traveling Robed Choir of each season.

Additions to the Tenor Section include Jeff Fagen, Woody McGinn, and Scott Smith with Whit Blount, Tim Grey, John Guest, Jim Loyd, and Buddy Troutt completing this section of fifteen men.

To the ranks of the Bass Section this year were added Bill Humphries, Sam Waters, Marion Boozer, Arch Hudgins, Jim Murchison and G. Wardlaw.

The choir, with this complement making a total of thirty voices, will travel close to six thousand miles this year making 28 appearances in four states and the District of Columbia.

Halsey Will Speak In Chapel Friday

Mr. Ashley Halsey, Saturday Evening Post Associate Editor now on leave, will speak to the student body during chapel on Friday, October 26. Mr. Halsey, whose topic is to be the Cuban Situation, has been recognized as an eminent authority on Latin American countries and is now writing a book about the Spanish-American War period.

Mr. Halsey is originally from Charleston, but now resides in Surf City, New Jersey. He was a classmate of Mr. Earl Halsall, PC Professor of Political Science and Economics, while at the High School of Charleston, and is a son-in-law of former PC Philosophy Professor Dr. Dudley Jones.

Mr. Halsey is appearing under the sponsorship of the International Relations Club in keeping with their aim of informing the campus on the events of our time.

Drama Group Is Organizing

Many students have expressed an interest in organizing a Dramatics Club at PC.

A small group has met and discussed the possibilities of such an organization and are promoting it on campus.

Anyone who has an interest in dramatics, acting, stagecraft, art, or just "hamming it up" should be at a meeting on Thursday night, October 25, at 8:00 in the Douglas House Meeting Room. If you are interested but are unable to attend this meeting, contact Jerry Blasingame, Smyth A 214 or John Burgess, Smyth C 133.

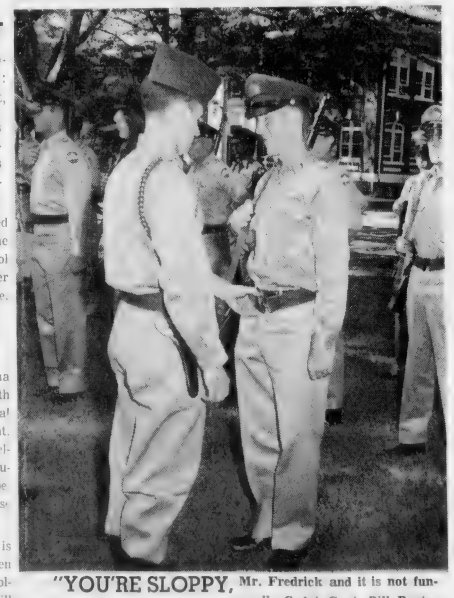
New Members Chosen For Frosh SCA Cabinet

The freshman cabinet of the Student Christian Association was chosen Wednesday night. The members are: Buddy Troutt, Bubba Hodges, Erik Johnson, Henry Lovett, Dave Veneklasen, Nancy Harvey, Glen Barlow, John Burgess, G. Wardlaw, Carroll Jones, Sam Waters, and Amelia Nichols. Melinda Gains was also appointed secretary, replacing Lynda Traynham, who transferred from Presbyterian College last year.

The cabinet was voted upon from nominations made by the present SCA Cabinet. The freshmen members each were unanimously elected.

The new members met Thursday afternoon for the purpose of electing their own officers and getting acquainted with their duties. Carroll Jones was chosen to fill the office of president. Henry Lovett will serve as vice-president, and the secretary will be Erik Johnson.

The duties of the newly elected group include publication of the student directory and the school calendar. They will work under the direction of Tom Currie, whose job is to organize them.



Blue Stocking Deadline

The deadline each week for articles by organization secretaries concerning meeting dates or other news should be turned in at the Blue Stocking office by 9:00 p. m. on Thursday night of each week which the paper is published. Notice should be given the editor by Wednesday that an article is forthcoming.

Open Social

Zeta Theta chapter of Sigma Nu Fraternity will stage the fifth open social of this year's social season next Wednesday night. Brothers and pledges will welcome freshmen and transfer students in their fraternity house below the baseball field. The house has recently been done over.

Starting at 7:30, the social is to run to 12:00. Girls have been invited from neighboring colleges. Sandwiches and punch will constitute the refreshments.

Letter From The Guidance Committee

TO: The Student Body
FROM: The Faculty Guidance Committee
SUBJECT: The Guidance Center's Services

"We, the Guidance Committee, wish to assure the Student Body of our continuing interest in serving the students. We have set aside Fridays and Saturday mornings for the purpose of serving Presbyterian College students and adults. This does not restrict you to these days, for when schedules permit, appointments may be made throughout the week also.

"Our purpose is to help you gain knowledge of yourself. This can be done through measuring devices, commonly called tests, which measures one's interests, aptitudes, and personality traits. One does not "pass" or flunk these tests, for one's score is based on comparison with 100 other students' scores.

"In considerating one's grades, in addition to information which is obtained from such tests, one may be helped in planning for the future, vocational-wise and educational-wise. Perhaps you will be interested in knowing that in many businesses and professions one is required to take a series of tests before employment or admittance.

"In previous years, students have found that having had experience in taking standardized test has been very helpful. Self-knowlege can also come through 'talking out' problems with a person in whom one can confide.

"In conjunction with the faculty, another service which is offered by the Center is in the area of personal problem counseling. Then, too, you might be interested in seeing the vocational and educational material here at the Center.

"We extend a warm welcome to all of you to visit the Center. Center services to our college students are free. Office hours are from: 8:30 to 12:00 A. M., and 1:30 to 5:00 P. M., Mondays through Fridays: and 8:30 to 12:00 A. M. on Saturdays."

"Just A Thought"

by John Sheffield

In this perilous era of growing corruption and cynicism it would seem that the American people would be seeking for things in which they could believe. In reality, however, we find that an adverse attitude tends to characterize the nation's population.

Judging from appearances, things no longer seem to be real, they "just ain't real." Rather than being able to believe even the simplest of everyday occurrences, we "just can't believe them." Everything has become negative rather than positive in an extremely critical period of our history. Rather than taking the responsibility of facing life, we tend to rationalize and minimize our problems by pretending that they are only imagination and "just couldn't possibly b real."

This is a terrific surface approach to the liquidation of our problems but does this actually terminate them? Why are we turning rearward in a period of constantly changing conditions and forward motion? It would seem that during these times we would be most decided in what we do believe and not in what we don't believe.

Some even go so far as to say that we seem to be turning back the centuries of time and identifying ourselves with a group that was in evidence during the ancient Greek civilization who called themselves "Epicureans."

As we probe further into the observations of this ancient "group" we find this interesting if not tragic result—These Epicureans turned from a progressive direction and the responsibilities of life to the theory that there are no real problems as long as they can be avoided or mentally disintegrated.

It was not too long ago after the original Epicurean philosophies had been perverted and established in Greece that the entire nation fell to the subjection of their enemies.

Blue Stocking Staff To Meet Monday Night

There will be an important meeting of the entire Blue Stocking staff in the Sock office Monday night, November 19, at 7:30. Plans for the staff banquet in January will be discussed as well as some revisions of style.

Blue Key Presents Program at Newberry

The Presbyterian Blue Key fraternity went to Newberry the past Wednesday in keeping with the traditional Blue Key Chapter Exchange Programs.

Attending were Joe Harvard, Pres., Harold Hope, Ted Elders, John Henderson, Paul Woodall, Bobby Piephoff, Leren Eagles, Louis Powell, and Grif Helwig. Absent on the trip was Wirt Skinner.

After the opening introduction and welcome by the Newberry Blue Key President, Harvard spoke briefly about the exchange programs and the annual competition among the Little Three for the Wofford, Newberry, Pfor trophies. Following this, Hope delivered a short devotional, the Woodall, Pres. of the Student Body, made a talk and preached his Negro sermon.

Note of Appreciation

"I would like to express my sincere appreciation for the cooperation and generosity shown by the students, staff, faculty and administration of Presbyterian College in their gifts to the Community Chest, and also to the Blue Key Fraternity for their good work in canvassing the student body.

In addition to the canvassing done in town by members of the college group, and gifts made in their area, the amount contributed at the college totaled $546.45. Thank you for your help."

COMMITTEES:
AN AGONIZING RE-APPRAISAL

To those of you who stay out of your student government because you believe the committee system is just an excuse for inaction, let me cite an example to prove that a committee, properly led and directed, can be a great force for good.

Last week the Student Council met at the Duluth College of Veterinary Medicine and Belles Lettres to discuss purchasing a new doormat for the students union. It was, I assure you, a desperate problem because Sherwin K. Sigafoos, janitor of the students union, threatened flatly to quit unless a new doormat was installed immediately. "I'm sick and tired of mopping that dirty old floor," said Mr. Sigafoos, sobbing convulsively. (Mr. Sigafoos, once a jolly outgoing sort, has been crying almost steadily since the recent death of his pet wart hog who had been his constant companion for 22 years. Actually, Mr. Sigafoos is much better off without the wart hog, who tusked him viciously at least once a day, but a companionship of 22 years is, I suppose, not lightly relinquished. The college tried to give Mr. Sigafoos a new wart hog—a frisky little fellow with floppy ears and a waggly tail—but Mr. Sigafoos only turned his back and cried the harder.)

He only turned his back and cried the harder

But I digress. The Student Council met, discussed the doormat for eight or ten hours, and then referred it to a committee. There were some who scoffed then and said nothing would ever be heard of the doormat again, but they reckoned without Invictus Millstone.

Invictus Millstone, chairman of the doormat committee, was a man of action—lithe and lean and keen and, naturally, a smoker of Marlboro Cigarettes. Why do I say "naturally"? Because, dear friends, active men and women don't have time to brood and bumble about their cigarettes. They need to be certain. They must have perfect confidence that each time they light up they will get the same gratifying flavor, the same Selectrate filter, the same soft soft-pack, the same flip top flip-top box. In brief, dear friends, they need to be sure it's Marlboro—for if ever a smoke was true and trusty, it's Marlboro. Get some soon. Get matches too, because true and trusty though Marlboros are, your pleasure will be somewhat limited unless you light them.

Well sir, Invictus Millstone chaired his doormat committee with such vigor and dispatch that when the Student Council met only one week later, he was able to rise and deliver the following recommendations:

1. That the college build new schools of botany, hydraulic engineering, tropical medicine, Indo-Germanic languages, and taxidermy.
2. That the college drop football, put a roof on the stadium, and turn it into a low-cost housing project for married students.
3. That the college raise faculty salaries by $5000 per year across the board.
4. That the college secede from the United States.
5. That the question of a doormat for the students union be referred to a subcommittee.

So let us hear no more defeatist talk about the committee system. It can be made to work!

© 1962 Max Shulman

Sixth Parent's Day Highlights Weekend

Presbyterian College's annual Parent's Day on Sat., Nov. 3, will feature an afternoon program sponsored by the Blue Key and a football game between PC and the University of Chattanooga tomorrow night.

Formal registration for parents begins at 2 P. M. As soon as the visitors have registered they will be given a tour of the campus conducted by members of Blue Key.

Following registration at 3 P. M. the official program of welcome will begin at Belk Auditorium. Members of Blue Key, all of whom are campus leaders, will give talks on various phases of campus life.

Following a welcome address by President Brown, a review of student life will be given in four parts. The topics will be Athletics, Activities, Academics, and Fraternities.

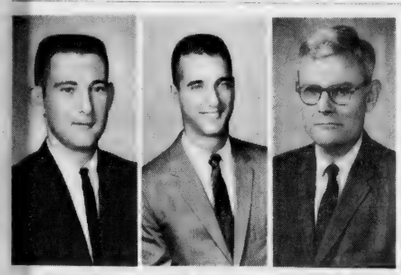
Entertainment by members of the student body is also on the program. Featured will be the Double Quartet, a group of PC choir members; "Preachin'" a "foot-stomping-back-country" sermon by Paul Woodall; singing by the Fifths, a group who will sing folk songs and barber shop; and the Happy Three, otherwise known as the "Poor Man's Kingston Trio."

The faculty will give a reception for the parents in Douglas House at 4 P. M. This will give the parents a better chance to become acquainted with the faculty members. After the reception the fraternities will have drop-ins at their respective houses.

The climax of the day will be the football game between Presbyterian and Chattanooga on the home field at 8 P. M. Finishing off the day's activities the fraternities will have open houses.

This marks the sixth year that Parent's Days have been held at PC.

Parent's Day Schedule



2:00 P. M.—Registration in the Douglas House.
2:00-3:00 P. M.—Campus tours, directed by Blue Key.
3:00 P. M.—Program of Welcome in Belk Auditorium.
4:00 P. M.—Faculty Reception in the Douglas House.
5:15 P. M.—Supper in Judd Dining Hall and Leroy Springs Gym.
7:00 P. M.—Fraternity drop-ins in the quarters of the social fraternities.
8:00 P. M.—PC vs University of Chattanooga Johnson Field.
10:30 P. M.—Open Houses in the fraternity suites.

LOUIS POWELL WIRT SKINNER DR. ALEX STUMP

Powell, Skinner, and Dr. Stump Tapped by Blue Key This Morning

Chapel today was the scene of the fall Blue Key tappings. Seniors Wirt Skinner and Louis Powell and Professor Alex Stump were in turn dubbed in the traditional Blue Key Manner.

The Blue Key is a National Honorary Fraternity designed to recognize leadership, character, and scholarship. Blue Key Members must have an academic average above the overall men's average.

To tap the unsuspecting nominees, Blue Key members descended from the stage and walked among the "nominated tappees." Then suddenly, the traditional clap on the back would be given and the new members sent to the stage to be congratulated by the other members.

A chemistry major, Louis Powell is president of the Tau Phi Pi Presbyterian Science Society. He was on the Dean's List last semester and is a platoon leader in ROTC. Powell is from Wallace, North Carolina. He plans to do graduate work in chemistry after graduating here.

Skinner, from Decatur, Georgia, is a history major who has been consistently on the Dean's List and is in the Sophomore Honor Society. He is Supply Officer on the ROTC Battalion Staff, and holds the rank of Cadet Captain. He has been active on the Blue Stocking and is currently an Associate Editor. He is also Vice-President of the Choir. A pre-ministerial student, Skinner plans to attend Columbia Seminary in Decatur, Ga., after leaving PC.

PC's Professor of Biology, Dr. Stump came here in 1947. He is well known on campus for his ability as a teacher and for his readiness to be of aid to his students. Dr. Stump has his B. S., M. S., and Phd. in Biology—all from the University of Virginia.

Library Receives Grant Of $10,000 for Books

by G. Wardlaw

The Presbyterian College Library is the recipient of a Kellogg grant of $10,000 which will be used for the purchase of new books. Miss Marian A Burts, Librarian, announced that new shelves have been ordered for the books, and expansion of the Library will continue as the third floor is opened in the latter part of this semester.

The PC Library of today, which boasts 51,175 volumes, has evolved from very humble beginnings. Around the turn of the century, while PC was on the present Thornwell campus, a collection of books was housed on the top floor of the three-story building there.

When Neville Hall was completed in 1907, a room was set aside for this collection of books. In 1912 Dr. W. S. Bean, a professor, volunteered his services as Librarian. He did this in his spare time and thus the Library had no definite hours of operation. The collection of books was still quite small, although no exact figures as to the number of volumes can be obtained.

The Library was moved to Jacobs Science Hall in 1915. It remained in this building until September of 1942 when the Administration Building was completed. The land for the building was furnished by the college, the funds were provided by a bond issue of the Town of Clinton, and the labor was furnished by the United States Government under the W. P. A. The Town of Clinton holds the title of this building. By 1942 there were approximately 21,000 volumes in the Library, when it was transferred to its present location.

The College Library and the Clinton Library were merged in 1939. About thirty years after the college was founded, the citizens of Clinton founded a community library. At first the Jacobs Building in downtown Clinton housed this library, but it was later moved to the Clinton High School. They remained there until the merger in 1939. Thus the present library is both the college and the community library.

Since 1942 there have been no drastic changes in the Library, but rather this period has been one of constant refinement. One of the most important changes was made last year when the main stack floor was completely

MacDonald Opens Fine Arts Series

The first program in the Presbyterian Fine Arts Series was presented Monday, October 29 Presenting the program was pianist Robert MacDonald, a former PC student. Mr. MacDonald gave two concerts. His first was given in chapel before the student body, faculty, and guests from Thornwell Orphanage and Clinton.

Mr. MacDonald played a selection by Chopin and a selection by Mrorsky. The second concert was presented at 8:00 p. m. in Belk Auditorium. Six selections were played, ranging from Schumann to Prokofieff.

After the concert, Dr. and Mrs. Marshall Brown were hosts to a reception for Mr. MacDonald Members of the choir, the student body, and friends of the Browns attended.

IRC Will Debate On United Nations

The IRC will sponsor a forthcoming debate on the question of the U. S. remaining in the U. N. and whether the U. S. should purchase $100 million dollars of U. N. bonds.

Jim Murchison and George Lewis will represent the affirmative while Jack Westall and G. Wardlaw represent the negative.

A delegation, to be selected, plans to attend again this year the second South Carolina Collegiate Model U. N. Security Council meeting to be held at U. S. C. in the spring. Delegates to this Security Council paragon are to select a country and defend its viewpoint concerning international issues.

Dr. Moorfield Will Address Tau Phi Pi

The Tau Phi Pi Science Society recently announced plans for their first program of the year. Dr. David R. Moorefield, PC's Professor of Philosophy, will speak on "The non-scientific responsibility of the scientist."

Dr. Moorefield feels that scientists have a responsibility outside the laboratory to help society use the fruits of the laboratory. The talk will be given in Douglas House meeting room 206 at 7:30 p. m. on Monday, November 12. The program is open to all who may wish to come .

A PC student himself, Dr. Moorefield studied Chemistry and Physics here. He has studied with Emile Cailliet, renowned authority on the relation of science and culture at Princeton Seminary. He hopes to offer a course on "The Philosophy of Science" within a few years.

THE BLUE STOCKING PRESENTS

Revision of Required Bible

Few students except those planning to enter the ministry ever enroll in any of the wide variety of advanced Bible courses offered at PC. This is not because of lack of interest, but by the time most students have finished the required four semesters of Bible, they do not have room in their schedule for any more Bible electives since major courses and related subjects are their primary concern during the junior and senior years.

WE PROPOSE that the Bible requirement for graduation be changed from the present four semester sequence of "Survey of Old Testament," "Life and Philosophy of Christ," "Acts and Teachings of the Apostles," and "The Christian Life," to a similar four semester requirement of "Survey of Old Testament," "Survey of New Testament," and the remaining two semesters to be filled by any two advanced Bible courses the student might elect.

THIS WOULD cause the creation of a survey course for the New Testament and the probable dropping or breaking into several parts of the "Acts and Teachings of the Apostles," while the "Life and Philosophy of Christ," and "The Christian Life" could be retained as advanced courses. Other courses which would fill the requirement would include "Contemporary Religions and Cults," "Apocalyptic Literature," "Christian Doctrine," "Classics of Protestantism," "Introduction of Modern Christian Thought," and several others. A course on Church History would also be appropriate.

AS SWEEPING as such a revision would be, its merits justify consideration for use next fall. One of the results would almost certainly be a greater willingness on the part of the second year Bible student who would be able to choose two courses from a wide range to complete his requirement.

PC Ballads — Part 1, "The P.C.A."

The Blue Stocking is pleased to publish this week the first in a series of "PC Ballads" that will continue indefinitely. Any persons having a song they would like to submit or an idea for one should see Jim Barbour who is editing the series.

"The P. C. A."

c. 1962 by DuPont Smith and George Reaves.

Occasion—the raising of PC annual fees from 1200 dollars to 1400 dollars, effective Fall, 1962.

"Throughout the course of our nation's history, the students of America have rallied bravely whenever the rights of men anywhere have been threatened. Today, a new crisis has arisen. The Presbyterian College Administration, better known as the P. C. A., has attempted to levy another burdensome tax upon the students in the form of a tuition increase. Students hear me out! This could happen to you. (To be sung to the tune of "The MTA")

"Well let me sing you the story of a student named Charlie on that tragic and fateful day,
He took 1200 dollars of his hard-earned savings and went to pay it to the P. C. A.

Chorus—"Well did he ever return: NO, he never returned and his fate is still unlearned.
He may say forver in the Bursar's office, a prisoner of the PCA.

"Charlie went down to the Bursar's office just a strollin' at a leisurely pace,
And there to meet him was smilin' Ed Campbell with a grin upon his face.

Chorus

"Charlie took out his wallet and gave 'em 1200, thinkin' that was all he had to pay,
But Ed said 1400 dollars is the price of education which you're gettin' from the PCA

Chorus

"Well now all day long Charlie sits in the office singin'
'What will become of me?'
How will I ever see my girl at Converse or my buddies back in Smyth C?

Chorus

"Now you fellow students don't you think it's a scandal how we all have to pay and pay?
Fight the tuition increase, Vote for Workman for senate, help get Charlie from the PCA.

"Or else he'll never return. No he'll never return and his fate will be unlearned.
He will stay forever in the Bursar's office, a prisoner of the PCA."

ALPHA SIGMA PHI

Alpha Psi Chapter invites all freshmen ,transfer students and their parents to an Open House in the fraternity suite from 2:00-8:00 on Saturday and to a party following the game.

Congratulations are extended to Brothers Cinder and Eagles on recently being tapped into the Scabbard and Blade, and to Brother Skinner who was tapped for Blue Key membership, as well as by the Scabbard and Blade.

KAPPA ALPHA

Brothers and pledges of Beta Pi Chapter are looking forward to meeting the parents of the freshmen and transfer students this weekend. Saturday, Open House will be held from 5:00-8:00 and again immediately following the game from 10:00-11:00. New students and parents are invited to drop by at these times. After 11:00 an informal party will be held at the house, all new students and their dates are invited.

Last weekend the chapter enjoyed the party in Spartanburg given by Rho Chapter of Wofford.

Congratulations to Brother Heyward Nettles who will be married tonight in Wyatt Chapel.

PI KAPPA ALPHA

The Open Social was held Wednesday night in the fraternity suite. At the last meeting, the Christmas dance weekend was a topic of much discussion; tentative plans for an unprecedented dance weekend are now being incorporated. The chapter also elected a new dream girl.

Brothers of the week: Burch, Nixon, Harrill, and Singleton.

THETA CHI

Beta Psi Chapter of Theta Chi fraternity extends a cordial invitation to all freshmen and their parents to attend the annual Drop-In in the fraternity suite of Neville Hall after the game on Saturday evening.

The chapter is busy making final additions to its rush program for this year. Many ideas were gathered during the summer and are now being put into practice.

During the week we obtained a new set of furniture for the fraternity room. With this much needed addition and other improvements now under study by the chapter, we are anticipating a completely new look in the suite.

SIGMA NU

Freshmen and their parents are invited to the Drop-In to be held Saturday from 6:00-8:00 and after the game from 10:00-12:00.

Congratulations to Charles Hopkins and George Taylor who were initiated into the brotherhood on Tuesday, and to Brother Lamar Williams on his recent pinning to Miss Roberta Mathis.

PI KAPPA PHI

Plans have been made for Parents Day and the party to be held at the lake next weekend.

Congratulations to Brother Salvo on his fine showing in the ball game this week.

I Can't Believe It

By BRUCE SHERMAN

Dear Cohorts,

This week has really been an exciting one around ole P College. Our gridiron eleven defeated Wofford, Parent's Day is almost here and the most surprising thing is that the PiKaps finally played a clean football game. Wonders never cease.

It seems as if each year finds a number of PC students succeeding in finding ways of making a little extra money to help Dad out with the college bills. We were all happy to see that "Eager Eagles" has finally found his calling in life as a Bingo Barker.

He says he made a pretty good bit at the fair, but how in the world did he lose half of it in the last tent on the left? I don't believe they sold cigars—maybe they gave out ASP stamps . . .

"Herman, did you and Gertie go Trick or Treating the other night?" "Yes, Bruce, we did, but I'm afraid she is teed off at me now." "What happened, roomo?" "Well, after a nice evening of tricks, I saw her the next morning and told her to take off her mask. She is really mad now!" "Well, Herman, I think that after you take her to the curb market for supper, she'll forget all about it."

For those of you who don't believe in ghosts, ask Buddy Barnwell. He was seen doing the 50-yard dash on third floor Bailey Wednesday night.

"Herman, are your parents coming up for the weekend?" "Yeah, B. S., they are, and is Gertie ever excited. I told her I would introduce her to them then. She should impress them quite a bit with her new sack she just bought herself." "But I thought sack dresses were out." "I didn't say dress, she does her shopping at Joanna Mills."

Cohorts, if any of you have been offended by any of our innocent remarks, we're sorry. If your girl is anything like Gertie, you're lucky—she has more than most. Happy test week, all!

Since 1890

Local Fraternities Have Varied and Colorful Past

Fraternity history at PC dates back to 1890 when Mu Chapter of Pi Kappa Alpha was founded. Except for the brief period of inactivity from 1912-1924, when there was a national anti-fraternity movement, Presbyterian has had an active and vigorous fraternity system. Local chapters are proud of their histories, which we hope will prove to be of interest to all PC students.

Alpha Sigma Phi

Alpha Sigma Phi came to PC's campus in 1946, when Alpha Kappa Pi Fraternity and Alpha Sigma Phi Fraternity voted to merge at their separate conventions. The AKP chapter at Presbyterian became Alpha Psi Chapter of Alpha Sigma Phi. Earlier, the fraternity suite was located above Belk's, but is now located on Broad Street in a comfortabl suite of rooms.

Kappa Alpha

Beta Pi of Kappa Alpha Order was chartered on December 29, 1929, with charter members Joe Finney Mason, P. S. Bailey, Porter H. Bomar, Benjamin F. Knowles, William O. Player, Jr., and Thomas M. Robinson. The chapter room was located on the third floor of Neville Hall, and at the close of the Second World War, the chapter was moved to its present location behind Laurens Dormitory.

Pi Kappa Alpha

Mu Chapter ranks as the oldest chapter on the campus, having first been established here in 1890. Fraternities were outlawed at PC in 1912 and Mu went out of existence until 1924. Mu has continually ranked among the top chapters of Pi Kappa Alpha and three times in the past ten years it has been judged the top chapter in the fraternity.

Pi Kappa Phi

At the first meeting of Pi Kappa Phi at the College of Charleston, the first Pi Kapps set as their goal to become a national organization. Andrew Kroeg was elected the "Supreme" Archon in 1906.

At this time PC was the only school in the state that did not prohibit fraternities. By dint of much personal effort on the part of Kroeg, through contacts made by members of the mother chapter while visiting Presbyterian for athletic and forensic competition, a group of men became interested in affiliating, and on March 9, 1907, the Supreme Chapter received its first application for a charter, and Beta became into being.

Sigma Nu

Iota Chapter of Alpha Lambda Tau was organized on the PC campus in 1926 as a local club, called the Rapier Club. It affiliated nationally in 1927. The strength shown by Iota Chapter during the war years enabled it to maintain a place of leadership in the post-war period when five other fraternities were reactivated on the campus. In 1950, after again becoming a local group, Iota declared themselves a local chapter of Sigma Nu, and in 1951 were installed as a national chapter.

Theta Chi

Organized at Presbyterian College on December 4, 1942, the Beta Psi Chapter of Theta Chi Fraternity was known as Beta Kappa. Bill Shields served as the first president, while the alumni advisor was William P. Jacobs, III.

Reminder . . .

Students are reminded that they are responsible for keeping their own class attendance records. They are notified of overcuts only, after the seven day period has lapsed in which an excuse may be turned in.

Class attendance cards may be checked at the receptionist desk in the Administration Building during the hours of 8:30 and 1:00; 2:00 and 5:00.

Council Correspondence

PAUL WOODALL, Student Council President

The student council has so far this year had an unusual amount of correspondence with other schools. Through this we hope to help other student councils solve some of their problems and at the same time improve our own government.

Recently the council received a letter from Maryville College in Tennessee. A committee had been formed to study the feasibility of having automobiles on campus. We felt that this was something offered to the PC students that was very beneficial to them. The council sent car registration material, stickers, and regulations concerning cars on campus. This should help them evaluate their project.

This week we received a letter from Clemson. They are seeking ways to improve their election system and voting procedure. They are also trying to get better student participation in voting. In this we share the same concern.

On Nov. 10 members of our council will meet with the student council of Appalachian prior to the game in Charlotte. We will have supper with them and then attend the game. In this way we will have an opportunity to better understand their council government and problems.

Please don't feel that the council only gives advice to other schools. We have also learned much through this correspondence.

The council's first effort to our student body is to enforce the rules set forth in the constitution and Honor Code. Though this is our primary concern we feel there is much more we can do. We learn many things from other schools, but it is also necessary to have suggestions from our own student body. Please give your council the suport it needs to have a successful year.

Looking to PC's Future Expansive Development

By Arthur McQueen

What will Presbyterian College look like in 1980? This is a question many students have been wondering and asking among themselves.

The present campaign was started in 1955 and is hoped to be completed by 1980. It is set up in four phases. The first phase has already been accomplished. The total assets expected are $10,500,000.

Here is an outline of the program that provides a quick look at the additional buildings, endowments and the date the phase is supposed to be completed.

Phase One	Belk Auditorium-Wyatt Chapel	$ 500,000
1955-60	Douglas House Student Center	250,000
1,250,000	Bailey Hall Dormitory	250,000
Accomplished	Endowment Additions	250,000
		$1,250,000
	South Carolina (1,800,000 in 1962)
	Science Hall	$ 500,000
	Women's Dormitory	300,000
Phase Two	Dining Hall	300,000
1962-65	Endowment Additions	700,000
3,000,000	Georgia
	Men's Dormitory	250,000
	Campus Additions and Improvements	150,000
	Endowment Additions	800,000
		$3,000,000
	Endowment Additions	$2,000,000
	Women's Dormitory	300,000
Phase Three	Fine Arts Building	200,000
1970-73	Faculty Apartments	150,000
2,900,000	Student Apartments	150,000
	Infirmary	100,000
		2,900,000
Phase Four	Endowment Additions	$2,750,000
1978-80	Women's Dormitory	300,000
3,350,000	Field House	200,000
	Library Expansion	100,000
		$3,350,000

The first three buildings that are expected to be built are the Women's Dormitory, Dining Hall and the Science Hall.

FOR THE PAST SEVERAL YEARS, Presbyterian has provided resident quarters of a sort for 15 women students. They are situated in a three-story wood-frame home adjacent to the campus, supervised by a faculty family but inadequate even for the needs of so small a group.

The overall plan calls for three women's dormitories at the end of the east plaza. The plaza will be extended out to the practice football field. One dormitory will be at the end of the extended plaza facing the back of Neville Hall. The other two will be situated on either side of the plaza facing each other. In the middle will be a large fountain with paved walks leading to each of the dorms.

The main portion of the present dining hall, which will be torn down after completion of the new one, was erected in 1908 and is, therefore, one of the oldest structures on the Presbyterian College campus.

The Science Building in use is one of the oldest on campus, having been erected in 1915 as a combination science hall, library and gymnasium. The old basketball court long since has been converted into two floors of laboratories, and the library also moved to its own separate building in 1942. This present building is very crowded—right down to the basement where the physics laboratory is located.

The new science hall will provide better facilities for the Science Department and additional classroom space for the other departments and the expected increased enrollment.

When will construction start on the girl's dormitory? This is a question that has been asked many times, but no one seems to come up with a suitable answer. The truth is no one knows the answer except the trustee building committee, and many factors have to be considered before they can make their decision public.

The main problem now is money. Contrary to public belief, the campaign does not have $1,300,000 in actual cash. They have raised $1,300,000 in pledges with a small percentage of this actual cash. The pledges will be paid over a four-year period. While it is almost certain that the pledges will come in, it is impossible to start construction with nothing but pledges as a financial backing.

To hurry up construction the committee has been considering the possibility of borrowing money from the Federal government. Many schools have followed this plan for improving their crowded situation.

Many students have been wondering about Neville Hall, Jacobs Science Hall and Smythe Dormitory. Because these are old landmarks, they will remain. Neville Hall will be remodeled. The bottom floor will probably be finished in tile, and an ultra-modern lighting system will be installed. The auditorium on the second floor will be divided into four new classrooms thereby providing more classroom space for the increase of students.

Jacobs Hall will be turned completely into classrooms and remodeled to keep up with modern trends and therefore give a sharp contrast to the 1920 facilities now in use.

Smythe Dormitory is the next dormitory on the list to be remodeled.

Soldier, Teacher, Adventurer

English Prof. Kilpatrick Has Varied Background

Dr. Emmett Kilpatrick, [illegible] of PC's Department of English, has long been [illegible] career as a soldier, a teacher [illegible] to PC after a brief retirement from teaching at Troy State [illegible] Teachers College, Troy, Alabama, where he served as chairman of the English Department for twenty-five years. Dr. Kilpatrick has also taught at other [illegible] throughout the South, including the University of South Carolina, where he taught English and French for eleven years. He earned his B. A. degree at Maryville College, his M. A. at Johns Hopkins University, and his Docteur es lettres at the University of Paris.

When Dr. Kilpatrick retired from the faculty of Troy College, he was chosen as the dedicatee of the college yearbook. He was described in the dedication as a man of universal interests, "... a world traveler, historian, political philosopher, raconteur, soldier, conversationalist, gentleman, virtuoso, linguist, scholar, teacher, friend."

Throughout both world wars, Dr. Kilpatrick served as an army officer. During World War I he held the rank of captain of Field Artillery. After the war, he was an interpreter on President Woodrow Wilson's staff at the Paris Peace Conference.

Dr. Kilpatrick was a [illegible] Colonel in Military Intelligence during World War II, and he saw active duty in North Africa. Ita[illegible]

Canteen Checks

Dear Editor:

What is wrong [illegible] teen? Is it going bankrupt? I remember when a guy could cash a small check and get some cigarettes or stamps or whatever he happened to need at night. Do you supose Mr. Madden could allow us the privilege of cashing a small check, say not over $2.00 at night. This sure would save a lot of trips to the curb market. How about it, Mr. Madden?

Run of the Hose

AL PEARCE, Sports Editor

MOCCASINS AGAIN TALKING BIG

It's an angry bunch of Moccasins that invades Walter Johnson Field tomorrow night to do battle with the Blue Hose in the annual Parents' Day game. These Mocs are from the University of Chattanooga, and they have vengeance on their minds—big vengeance.

It was the Homecoming game for Chattanooga last year about this time, and they were playing host to "tiny Presbyterian College" in the annual occasion. The week before the PC encounter they had played the tough University of Tennessee and the next week they were to play th equally tough Ole Miss team. With PC showing only one win in their first six games, Chattanooga was obviously looking past us to the Ole Miss game. Looking past us or not, they were caught looking the wrong way when Larry Madden dashed for five yards and Louis Ridinger kicked the PAT to give "tiny Presbyterian College" a 7-0 lead in the first half.

They weren't looking a second time when the toe of Ridinger was called on again, this time to kick a field goal to send PC into the second half sporting a 10-O lead over the Mocs of Coach "Scrappy" Moore. The Chattanooga squad came out for the second half fired up, but the touchdown, extra point, and safety they tallied were not quite enough as the elated Blue Hose came back to Clinton with a 10-9 upset win.

All this after a Chattanooga area newspaper had picked the Mocs by as many as 40 points. The entire PC team played an inspired game that cold, rainy night in Chattanooga. They hope to duplicate that kind of play here tomorrow night.

The situation this year is much the same as the one last year. PC has only one win to show for six efforts, and the Mocs are between major football powers. Last week they were soundly beaten by a poor University of Tennessee team. Next week they will face Ole Miss, a Southeastern Conference giant. We have no reports on any Chattanooga area newspapers' predictions on this gme. They would again make the Mocs heavy favorites, but last year's results show how anything can happen.

It is reported, unofficially, that the Chattanooga coaching staff has said that they will run over us by a 76-0 score. If this statement is true, and the Moc coaches think their team is 76 points better than PC, somebody is going to be awfully embarrassed after the game Saturday night. PC, of course, will be playing the role of the underdog as they did last year.

If the Mocs are again defeated by "tiny Presbyterian College" they will return to Tennessee to wonder just what hapened. If they defeat PC, which most observers think they will do, they will have proved very little. If they defeat PC by the 76-0 score they have predicted, they will have to come up with a good deal more than they showed in the defeat to Tennessee last week.

The Moccasins are talking big again this year. They talked big last year, but not much was heard from them after the PC game. They have a good team, and this team has a score to settle. It is very doubtful if that score will resemble 76-0.

PIGSKIN PICKS

This week looks like it will be a tough one insofar as picking winners is concerned. Teams this week are pretty evenly matched, and maybe the home field advantage will play an important role. I hit on 8 out of 10 last week to push my record thus far to 28-10-2, or a .730 mark. (Tie games do not count either way). With the home team in capital letters, it looks like this:

FURMAN over Davidson.
SOUTH CAROLINA over Virginia.
CLEMSON over N. C.
Georgia Tech over DUKE.
CITADEL over V. M. I.
TENNESSE over Wake Forest
GEORGIA over N. C. State.
Newberry over ELON.
WOFFORD over Catawba.
AUBURN over Florida.

PICK - A - WINNER

The winner of this week's contest will receive a complimentary pass to the BROADWAY THEATRE in downtown Clinton compliments of the management.

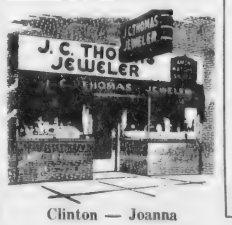
Hose Beat Wofford For First Win, Ridinger's Kick Is Margin, 3-0

by Dick Wilkinson

Presbyterian won its first ball game in six outings as it defeated the Wofford Terriers 3-0 last Saturday night. Both teams had other opportunities to score but neither was able to capitalize. PC failed to recover the ball after Alvin Coley and Dewey McReynolds blocked a Terrier kick. Wofford lost a chance in the second half when a pass into the end zone was batted into the air and finally intercepted by Randy McCranie.

The only scoring of the game came when Louis Ridinger came in during the second quarter and kicked a twenty-five-yard field goal. The kick was set up when Dewey McReynolds recovered a Wofford fumble in their own territory. After three tries at a first down failed, Ridinger came in and booted true for the winning margin. The rest of the game was a fine defensive struggle with neither team generating much offense.

Two defensive plays late in the game probably saved PC from defeat. The first was the interception by McCrame on the Wofford pass that appeared to be a TD toss. Bill Rinner parred the ball loose from the Wofford receiver, and McCranie picked it oil to thwart the drive. The other came when Wofford started a dangerous drive late in the game and Frank King broke through the Wofford line to drop the Terrier quarterback for a big loss. Wofford had to punt then, and PC took the ball and held on for the win.



The kicking of Ridinger was the most effective weapon of the night for the Blue Hose. Louis kicked the winning field goal, but he also punted for a forty-two-yard average in eight tries to keep Wofford deep in their own territory. Jimmy May stood out in the PC backfield although PC could not generate a consistent offensive drive, and Mike Lay and Frank King, along with Randy Fitzpatrick, played well on the line. The pass defense was the weak point of the PC performance, with several Wofford receivers getting behind the secondary, only to have the passes overthrown or dropped.

Alpha Sigs Lead Bandits By One Percentage Point

The Alpha Sigs moved back into first place but the Bandits are only one percentage point behind in second place. The PiKA's moved into third place by defeating the KA's 7 to 6 and the Sigma Nus 6 to 0. The Alpha Sigs defeated Pi Kaps 20 to 12 dropping them to fourth place. Before this loss the Pi Kapps came back from a 20 to 6 deficit to defeat the KA's. The Bandits remained idle and dropped into second place. The Sigma Nus remained in last place.

Salvo is the back of the week. He either threw or ran for all of the Pi Kapps' points in their come from behind victory over the KAS. He also threw for one touchdown and ran for the other one in their loss to the Alpha Sigs.

Tommy Williams and Don Hardee were both standouts for their teams, the KA's and the Alpha Sigs, respectively. They either scored or threw for all of their team's points.

The intramurals should finish before the Thanksgiving holidays.

Wretched Wednesday Afternoon

J. M BARBOUR, Feature Editor

It was depressing—Wednesday afternoon October 31 1962. It really was.

Just the fact that the day was Wednesday was enough, but it was W r e t c h e d Wednesday—wretched b e c a u s e it precedes Bloody Thursday and two tedious hours of Slut Scott's Military Lab—and the only element that kept us going was the exotic anticipation of Good Friday—which always means no more playing soldier for a whole week.

In addition to the fact that we knew our brass had to be polished (damn brass), and that our black cordivans had to be spit-shined (Great Scott!)—it was raining, not that I dislike rain—I don't—it was just this particular kind of very depressing rain.

It it had only been a light, sweet rain, falling out of a high sky, the kind that barely whispers with a silky sound on the surface of the campus paths, which are like snakes weaving through the tunnels of seclusion formed by and drowned in the drooping, now dripping, boughs of oak trees—sorta like Monsieur's right arm snaking through those French test papers).

As the dripping from the spongy sky established its perpetual existence—John Spalding Sheffield, Dee Hodges and I took it upon ourselves to conduct the weekly meeting of the Wanderer's Club. The Wanderers originated last spring, when the first charter member, in sudden pits of depression, began to wander aimlessly to and fro from various and sundry points of interest on campus.

The enrollment of the club increased and consequently the range of wandering expanded also. Today members venture on impulse f r o m Charlie's Palace to Iva's Tea Room, from the Toddle House to the Sands, from Player's Retreat to the 'top of the Mart," and from the Hornet's Nest to the Plantation.

Wretched Wednesday, J o h n, Dee, and I, after undergoing 'Hurricane Tommy's" l a t e s t pseudo-religion quiz, wandered from Spencer, to Smythe, to Laurens, to Bailey—and the observations we made were astounding. We entered and investigated every room on campus (except those which were locked) and emerged from the expedition with this result—between the approximate hours of two and three P. M. 43% of the student body was asleep.

Here is the rundown:
Spencer Dorm—55 sleepers.
Smythe Dorm—62 sleepers.
Bailey Hall—53 sleepers
Laurens Dorm—12 sleepers.
Calvert House—?
Vetville—?

Percentage wise, Spencer led all competitors. 55% of Spencer's occupants were engaged in slumber.

We must admit, however, that this tabulation was, to an extent, based on assumption. When we were confronted with the one barrier to a perfectly accurate survey—a locked door—we branded that room as having at least one occupant in the rack.

Once our figures were tabulated, we wrapped up the case and retired to our respective racks to participate in and enjoy that favorite pastime and necessity for life—sleep.

Mrs. Taylor Named As Career Woman of Year

Mrs. George W. Taylor has been chosen as the Citizen Career Woman of the year in a project of the Business and Profesional Woman's Club of Clinton.

Nominated by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, Mrs. Taylor will be recognized at the November meeting of the local B&PW Club. Nominations were given by various local civic groups. Mrs. Taylor will be entered in state-wide competition by the Clinton Club.

MRS. GEORGE W. TAYLOR

Currently serving as hostess of Presbyterian College, Mrs. Taylor's career has included stints as teacher, missionary, institutional treasurer and dietitian as well a mother of four children.

Mrs. Taylor attended Converse College. She accompanied her husband to Brazil when he went there as a Presbyterian missionary. There she found herself involved as a teacher of English, home economics, and typing, helping her husband with his work and teaching her own children.

She returned to the United States in 1936 upon the death of her husband. In 1938 she began work with the Presbyterian College business office. Her apointment as business manager followed in 1942.

In 1956 an emergency call came from the Presbyterian Bible School at Garanhuna Pernambuco, Brazil, the same station she had previously served with her husband.

Mrs. Taylor returned for three years as dormitory housemother, treasurer and dietitian for the school.

She returned to the United States in 1959. In 1960 Presbyterian College once more called upon her for her services and she became hostess for the college. She is also active in several phase of church work.

THE W. F. WILL MEET AT 6:45 THIS SUNDAY IN THE WYATT CHAPEL. PROGRAM WILL BE ON PRAYER.

rearranged. The stacks are now arranged in sequence acording to the Dewey Decimal System. Two weeks ago the card catalog was moved from the North Reading Room to the Rotunda.

During the last five years a listening room has been set up in conjunction with a record collection of aproximately 3000 discs. This facility is used primarily by the students, but faculty members and others may use it.

The policy of ordering Library of Congress cards with the books was initiated last year. The Library is now open 79 hours per week, and the main stacks are open to everyone.

Students and faculty members have a voice in the composition of the Library since they have the privilege of recommending books to be purchased by the Library. These recommendations are considered in buying the books, and most requests are granted.

EAT, SLEEP, AND MATRICULATE

The trouble with early morning classes is that you're too sleepy. At late morning classes you're too hungry. At early afternoon classes you're too logy. At late afternoon classes you're too hungry again. The fact is—and we might as well face it—there is no good time of day to take a class.

What shall we do then? Abandon our colleges to the ivy? I say no! I say America did not become the hope of mankind and the world's largest producer of butterfats and tallow by running away from a fight!

If you're always too hungry or too sleepy for class, then let's hold classes when you're not too hungry or sleepy: namely, when you're eating or sleeping.

Classes while eating are a simple matter. Just have a lecturer lecture while the eaters eat. But watch out for noisy food. I mean who can hear a lecturer lecture when everybody is crunching celery or matzo or like that? Serve quiet stuff—like anchovy paste on a doughnut, or steaming bowls of lamb fat.

And kindly observe silence while lighting your post-prandial Marlboro Cigarette. Don't be striking kitchen matches on your jeans. Instead carry an ember from the dormitory fireplace in your purse or pocket. Place the Marlboro against the ember. Light it quietly. Smoke it quietly. Oh, I know I ask a great deal! I know that one's natural instinct upon encountering Marlboro's fine flavor and filter is to throw back one's head and bellow great, rousing cries of joy. But you must not. You must contain your ecstacy, lest you disturb the lecturing lecturer. You can, if you like, permit yourself a few small shudders of pleasure as you smoke, but take care not to wear garments which will set up a clatter when you shudder—like taffeta, for example, or knee cymbals.

Let us turn now to the problem of learning while sleeping. First, can it be done?

Yes, it can. Psychologists have proved that the brain is definitely able to assimilate information during sleep. Take, for instance, a recent experiment conducted by a leading Eastern university (Stanford). A small tape recorder was placed under the pillow of the subject, a freshman named Glebe Sigafoos. When Glebe was fast asleep, the recorder was turned on. Softly, all through the night, it repeated three statements in Glebe's slumbering ear:

1. Herbert Spencer lived to the age of 109 and is called "The Founder of English Eclectic Philosophy."

2. The banana plant is not a tree but a large perennial herb.

3. The Archduke Ferdinand was assassinated in 1914 at Sarajevo by a young nationalist named Mjilas Cvetnic, who has been called "The Trigger of World War I."

When Glebe awoke in the morning, the psychologists said to him, "Herbert Spencer lived to the age of 109. What is he called?"

Glebe promptly replied, "Perennial Herb."

Next they asked him, "What has Mjilas Cvetnic been called?"

Replied Glebe, "Perennial Serb."

Finally they said, "Is the banana plant a tree?"

But Glebe, exhausted from the long interrogation, had fallen back asleep, where he is to this day.

Noted Writer Halsey Suggests Forming Cuban Exile Goverment In Address At PC This Morning

Ashley Halsey, Jr., author and editor, proposed today that Cuban exiles in the United States be encouraged to elect a "free Cuban" government-in-exile as a global example of democracy at work, in contrast to Fidel Castro's refusal to conduct any elections.

Halsey further suggested that, with the overthrow of Castro and Cuban Communism, all Cubans be given an early opportunity to re-establish their own government by election, and then be permitted to vote on whether they want a commonwealth affiliation with th United States such as Puerto Rico now enjoys.

Speaking to the student body of Presbyterian College as the guest of its International Relations Club and of Dr. Marshall W. Brown, president of the college, Halsey said his proposals would lay the groundwork for a "healthy political atmosphere" in Cuba and strengthen its future relations with this country.

"The U. S. Immigration Service now has a record, with name and address, of nearly every bonafide Cuban in this country," Halsey said. "It should be relatively simple to certify this as an election list to the Orgnization of American States, and let them hold an election by an absentee-ballot system. The results would establish an official Cuban government by election — something Castro never has dared to do— and would show up the dictatorship of the Communist regime.

"The United States Government, for reasons best known to the State Department, has persistently refused to recognize any Cuban government-in-exile. This is in strange contrast to World War II, when we recognized many governments-in-exile representing the European countries conquered by Nazism. This policy helped us to overthrow rightwing dictatorship in Europe. Why cannot it be applied to to our cold war against leftwing dictatorship in Cuba?

"Once Castro is ousted, as he must be, the Cuban government-in-exile could become a temporary government serving as the vehicle for Cuba's first free national election in more than a decade. After the bitter dose of Communism that the Cuban people had to swallow, it is almost a certainty that they would overwhelmingly elect some form of anti-Communist government—and that should be enough to satisfy us.

At one point he remarked "I speak to you essentially as a South Carolinian and a conservative," he smiled and added, "this does not mean that I am politically retarded.

Concerning the recently publicized Cuban missile sites, Mr. Halsey said that "The announced fact that construction is continuing on the missile bases in Cuba does not necessarily indicate Soviet determination to complete and use them. It may merely be a move to increase Soviet bargaining power at negotiations."

Mr. Halsey, for thirteen years an associate editor of The Saturday Evening Post, is now writing books including a history of the Spanish-American War period touching on the Cuban background. One of his Civil War books, Who Fired the First Shot? is to be published shortly by Hawthorne Books, Inc., New York City.

Blue Stocking Joins S.C. Collegiate Press Assoc.

The Blue Stocking, this past weekend, was granted membership into the South Carolina Collegiate Press Association.

At the Fall Seminar of the SCCPA held at Wofford College, The Blue Stocking rejoined after an absence of almost twenty years. The highlight of the seminar was a lecture given by William F. Buckley, who is the founder and editor of "National Review."

The SCCPA is an organization of collegiate publications including newspapers, yearbooks, and magazines. Its members benefit from the association with other staffs from over the entire state. Once a year its member papers are judged and prizes are awarded.

The Blue Stocking dropped out of the SCCPA in 1942 while under the editorship of Ben Hay Hammet. During that year the paper won national recognition as All-American and as Pacemaker, which placed it among the top ten college newspapers regardless of size or frequncy of publication. The SCCPA failed to recognize this merit by any awards and as a result the Blue Stocking withdrew from membership.

Editor DuPont Smith said, 'I feel that The Blue Stocking will benefit from this association with the members of other college newspaper staffs. Our rejoining the SCCPA was long overdue. In the past our non-participation has put The Blue Stocking out of the mainstreams of publication ideas. This re-association cannot help but improve the paper."

Students Comment on Cuba, U. S. Military Quarantine

Several students were asked to ions of President Kennedy's action against Cuba this week. Those that we were able to publish are printed below.

JOHN HENDERSON said, "We have seen this week the long awaited positive action and firm stand by the U. S. Furthermore we've more followers than anyone expected. Perhaps it shows that the U. S. is not lagging as far behind as some have said.

"Let's continue this leadership for things which we believe in."

JOHNNY DICKERSON said, "I think that President Kennedy's deployment of this quarantine was set off with utmost skill and precision, but I believe that without the aid of the European Powers and the Organization of American States it would have been futile.

I think that because of these united powers, Khrushchev will think twice before starting an offensive action against a country of the Western Hemisphere.

My main opinion as to the Cuban situation is that the United States should have stepped in earlier and tried to do something about this menace at our backdoor. As to what action should have been taken, I don't know, but I think it should have started after the Bay of Pigs battle.

BOB MORRIS said "It's about time that the United States Government took action against Communist Cuba and Russia. I sincerely hope that our well taken actions are not too late.

"President Kennedy took about the only action that he could possibly have taken. I only hope that P r e m i e r Khrushchev understands that the U. S. Government means what it says — "Search or Sink,"—and that Khrushchev's "No rash Decisions" will not lead to World War III.

"If Khrushchev thinks that he can get back at the United States through the Berlin situation, I personally think that he is sadly mistaken. President Kennedy most certainly took the Berlin crisis into consideration when he issued his ultimatium and has made plans for the defense of Berlin in his strategy."

ARCH HUDGINS said, "Mr. Kennedy's remarks on television seem to have evoked a great many comments, and since most of those I've heard seem bad I'd like to take a positive approach.

"My first reaction to his quarantining of Cuba was the questioning of the right we have to do such a thing. This question was answered when I realized the

Major Fields Sought Have Changed Little In Ten Years

The present student body of Presbyterian College as compared with the studnt body of 1952 shows that in the past ten years the various interests in selected majors have changed but little.

In 1952, 148 students were aimed at a major in economics. English and history ran next with 70 and 54 students respectively.

Fifteen students chose Chemistry and 9 claimed Mathematics. Two students decided to study physics.

Ten students sought Bible and biology each; and one student was headed toward education. Of the 465 students, 146 were undecided in 1952.

This year Economics leads again with 97 interested studnts, and history and English follow with 47 and 45 students interested respectively.

There are 41 pre-med students and 28 studnts are working toward psychology and mathematics majors. Biology has interested 26 students while sociology has drawn 16.

Fifteen students are concentrating on chemistry with 12 students studying in Bible. Physics has attracted 8 students and Christian education, 6.

Three students are majoring in French and one in Spanish. However, the majority of students remains undecided, and they number 138, mostly under classmen.

From these students, 225 are seeking the Bachelor of Arts degree, 154 the Bachelor of Science degree and the Bachelor of Science in Business Administration degree has attracted 56 students.

Sock Poll Cited

The Blue Stocking's poll of student opinion on Cuban Intervention in the issue of September 29 drew notice in several ways this week.

On Friday night, founder and editor of the National Review William F. Buckley read the poll and Associate Editor Wirt Skinner's editorial and commented favorably on both.

On the 6:30 news over a Charlotte TV station, a commentator mentioned the Blue Stocking poll's showing that the PC student body thought action was necessary.

The Greenville News gave notice in its Monday morning edition of the poll and titled it "PC Students Want Action."

And then, of course, the events of this week have further emphasized the topic's pertinence to the student body.

Hunter Recalls

Bell Tower Boasts Colorful Past

The tall, fairly recently repaired structure that is the Presbyterian College bell tower stands its post to the side of Neville Hall and looks back on a full and colorful past.

The bell is now used to proclaim PC athletic victories and as the death knell to freshmen undergoing rat service. But it hasn't been too long—under two decades—that the same bell summoned students to classes, drill and chapel.

Mr. John Holland Hunter, former business manager of the college, a member of the late Walter Johnson's first football team, and currently serving as treasurer of the Joanna Foundation, recalls many incidents surounding this PC tradition.

There seems to be no record of the first construction of the bell tower. Mr. Hunter, who entered PC in 1914, says he remembers hearing the ringing of the bell as a youth in Clinton.

Chapel was held then the first thing in the morning. The bell was rung five minutes, after which the student knew he was late.

Dr. John McSween, who served as president of the college from 1928-1935, personally paid for the present tower and bell which replaced a smaller structure.

No one seems to know when the tradition of the victory bell was begun, or when the bell was first used to call out the freshmen. Many humorous incidents have been related concerning the bell.

One is told of the watchless, yet precisely accurate Negro maintenance employee who rang the bell for the early morning chapel. When questioned as to his method of telling the time ,he said that he started ringing the bell as Dr. Brimm, a former head of the Bible department who was noetd for his methodical punctuality, turned into the plaza, and continued ringing it until the professor reached Neville, which was exactly five minutes.

A former Marine officer, who served as business manager of the school for one year, decided one day, after the installation of the electric bell system in 1941, that the bell tower served no purpose and should be removed. He gave the order and the tower would have been razed, except for the stubborn refusal of the same Negro employee.

for the state. In addition to maintaining the duties of this position, he had special assignments, one of which was coverage of the Sugar Bowl in 1949.

Five months after his marriage to Miss Jane Jenkins, whom he met in Montgomery, he returned to Presbyterian College in September, 1949, to assume his present position in the college administration.

As Director of Public Relations and Alumni Affairs, he is responsible for all news and sports releases, college publications, material concerning all phases of the various development programs of the college, all promotional material, alumni publications, and special projects, such as Homecoming and Parents Day.

Largely because of Mr. Hammet's capable direction, the annual giving program of the college has set successive records in 1959, 1960, and again in 1961. Also, the present development drive launched a blazing opening in the Clinton area, with pledges for over $300,000 for the women's dormitory.

Mr. Hammet's honors while at PC include his being listed in the first and second editions of Who's Who in Public Relations and the current issue of Who's Who in American Education; in 1953 he was selected as the best public relations director in South Carolina. Also, he will be listed in the forthcoming South Carolina Lives.

Chemistry Dept. Gets Ice Machine

The Chemistry Department has recently purchased an ice-making machine. Dr. Nolon Carter, head of the Chemistry Department, commented that such a machine was felt to be necessary, since certain experiments require a large, constant, and reliable supply of ice. Cost of the machine was $1000.

The machine was bought with the aid of a National Science Foundation Matching Equipment Grant. Under the terms of the grant, the foundation met half the cost and the school the other half.

Who's Who In American Colleges Selects Eight PC Seniors For Outstanding Work

Eight Presbyterian College Seniors have been given the highest honor which an undergraduate at Presbyterian College can receive of being listed in the 1962-63 edition of Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges. Chosen were: Lorenzo Dow Eagles, Jr., Joseph Sherwood Harvard, John Griffin Helwig, John Daniel Henderson, Jr., Harold Pagan Hope, Jr., Robert Pressley Piephoff, William Wirt Skinner, and Paul DeBernier Woodall, Jr.

Selection by Who's Who starts with the Faculty-Students Activities Committee, which is headed by Mr. George Clarke and composed entirely of faculty members. The committee draws up a list of outstanding seniors and submits the list to the faculty for approval. Then the names approved are sent to Who's Who, which makes the final selection.

Eagles, from Florence, S. C., is a member of the Blue Key and is on the ROTC Battalion Staff. He is Business Manager of the PaC-SaC and a former Sports Editor of the Blue-Stocking.

Harvard is President of both the Student Council Honor Court and the Blue Key. Harvard is a letterman on the basketball squad and is a member of the Scabbard and Blade. He is from Columbia, S. C.

Also a Blue Key member, Helwig, from Tampa, Florida, is President of the SCA.

Vice-moderator of the state-wide Westminster Fellowship Council, Henderson is also Vice-President of our student body. Henderson, from Miami, Florida, is in the Blue Key and the Pershing Rifles.

Tennis player Hope, from Union, S. C., is moderator of the state-wide Westminster Fellowship is also in the Blue Key.

A resident of Greenville, S. C., Piephoff is editor of the PaC-SaC this year. He is in the Blue Key, the Robed Choir, and is Captain of the Scabbard and Blade.

Skinner, from Decatur, Ga., is in the Blue Key, on the ROTC Battalion Staff, associate editor of the Blue Stocking, and Vice-President of the Robed Choir. He received the distinguished military student award.

Woodall is President of the Student Body, ROTC Battalion Commander, and President of the Robed Choir. From Whiteville, N. C., Woodall is also in Blue Key and the Pershing Rifles.

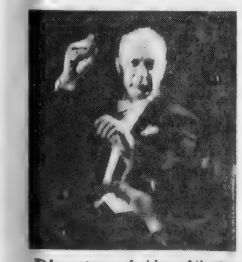
Atlanta Symphony Plays Here Tonight

The Atlanta Symphony Orchestra will present a concert tonight at 8:15 in Belk Auditorium. This event will be the first concert attraction of the season for the Clinton Community Concert Association.



HENRY SOPKIN, one of nine American born musicians directing a major United States Symphony, will conduct the 80-man orchestra. He has been music director of the group since it was formed 18 years ago.

INCLUDED IN the concert program this evening are: Overture to "A Midsummer Night's Dream" by Felix Mendelssohn; "Symphony No. 1, in C Minor," Opus 68 by Brahms; "Rodeo Suite" by Aaron Copland; "Poem for Flute and Orchestra" by Charles T. Griffes, and "Masquerade Suite" by Khatchaturian.

Those planning to attend are asked to be in their seats by 8 p. m.

PERFORMANCES OF the symphony are not limited to those given on tour. A series of 12 subscription concerts featuring famous guest artists is given in Atlanta. Also included in the Atlanta series are two full-orchestra concerts, a special production of "Hansel and Gretel" and a closing choral program.

THE SYMPHONY is well known for it's children's concerts and 60,000 Atlanta youngsters hear the fourteen such concerts given each year. A children's concert, sponsored by the Clinton Music Club, was scheduled for this afternoon.

Director of the Atlanta Symphony Orchestra which will perform tonight in the Belk Auditorium is Henry Sopkin.

Spring Semester Sock Gets ACP Rating of First Class

The Blue Stocking has been rated First Class for the second semester of the 1961-62 school year. It was judged by critics of the Associated Collegiate Press, which is recognized as the best judge of college journalism in America. This is the third consecutive semester that The Blue Stocking has been rated First Class. The Presbyterian College newspaper was in competition with other weekly newspapers from schools with an enrollment of 750 students or less.

THE JUDGING consisted of three general departments: coverage, content, and physical features. In coverage The Blue Stocking scored 600 points from a possible 800. Content received 1240 points from a possible 1400, and physical properties rated 1260 points from 1400 possible points. From a total possible score of 3600 points, The Blue Stocking scored 3100 points.

THE STAFF of The Blue Stocking during this judging was led by DuPont Smith as Editor with Murray White acting as Business Manager. Marshall Jones and Christine Wilson were the Associate Editors. Wirt Skinner and Loren Eagles served as News Editor and Sports Editor, respectively. Richard McFadden was Feature Editor, while Bill Bryan was the Greek Editor.

THE BLUE STOCKING originated in 1920, with the now Rev. Carl M. McMurray as founder, and is now in its forty-second year. All-American honors were won for the first time in 1941 under the editorship of Charles McDonald.

Opinion Poll

Change of Requirements In Bible Draws Support

Some surprising student ideas and opinions were discovered in a poll conducted by the Blue Stocking Associate Editors last week on Required Bible.

The major portion of the poll concerned the Bible requirements for graduation from PC. Most ballots were for one of three ideas which were (a) leaving the requriements in Bible for graduation exactly like they are, (b) changing the requirements so so that only two Bible courses could be named for graduation and any two other semester courses offered by the Bible department chosen as electives, making in all four semesters of Bible required for graduation, and (c) neither—no Bible being required for graduation.

23% of the Student Body favored requiring the usual four courses entitled "Survey of Old Testament," "The Life and Philosophy of Christ," "The Acts and Teachings of the Apostles," and "The Christian Life."

Unquestionably the second, which called for "two semesters of 'Survey of Old Testament' and 'Survey of the New Testament,' and two more semesters of advanced Bible courses to complete the requirement," was the most favored of the plans presented. 65% of the students polled favored this.

The remaining 17% thought first, that neither of the plans presented was good enough or adequate; or second, that there should be no Bible requirements for graduation.

Some of the comments were, "We had to go through it so everyone else must do it too," 'Selected courses would give the student the oportunity to select his professor," "More initiative and desire to learn would result from elective Bible courses," "Bible should only be required for ministerial students — not business majors," "I don't think Bible should be required at all," "More Bible electives would broaden the shape of knowledge," and last but not least one said that it was none of the Blue Stocking's business. The whole business was for God and the professors to decide.

Pre-Registration To Follow Holidays

Students returning from Thanksgiving will find the schedule for the Spring Semester ready for them and will be required, in the course of the following week, to select and submit to their Advisors, the schedule of courses which they intend to take in the second semester, announced Dr. Joseph Gettys, Acting Academic Dean.

The new schedule will be made available to students on Monday, November 26th, and a special announcement will be made in Chapel on that date. Most of the Juniors and Seniors who have already selected their major field will be requested to contact their Major Advisor in the course of that week, by special appointment.

All other students, including all Freshmen and Sophomores, will meet with their Advisors on Monday, December 3rd, during the Chapel period in classrooms to be designated. There will be no chapel exercises on that date, but Advisors will call the roll of their advisees and students who are not present (as well as any Juniors or Seniors who fail to keep appointments made for them during the preceding week) will have a "Chapel absence" recorded against them.

The schedule is being presented in a more compact form on a single sheet and students will indicate their proposed schedule simply by circling the appropriate items. The sheet will be left with the Advisor and will be available to the student when he presents himself for official registration at the beginning of the Spring Semester, at which time any necessary adjustments may be made in his original choice of courses.

While "Pre-registration" will not eliminate the registration procedures at the beginning of the Spring Semester it is expected to simplify and expedite these procedures and it will enable the Advisor and the advisee to make a more thorough and efficient appraisal of the student's program than is possible during Registration Day at the beginning of the semester. Students are therefore urged to give their full and careful cooperation to this new project.

Senior Lifesaving Course Will Start on November 27

Mr. Robert Fakkema has announced that a Red Cross senior lifesaving course will be offered at the college pool on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons, from 4:00 to 5:30, beginning on Tuesday, November 27. Interested students should register with the athletic office or talk with Mr. Fakkema, room 209 of Douglas House. The cost is 65c for the textbook.

A Red Cross water safety instructor's course will be offered in April. It is important that those desiring to take this advanced course be qualified in senior lifesaving at the time. It is also necessary for them to participate in the 15-hour course on strokes which will be offered following the completion of the senior lifesaving course.

Are you interested in a fifty-mile swim? The Red Cross is conducting a new program in connection with President Kennedy's physical fitness program which is being made available to our students. Those participating are required to swim at least a quarter mile each time he swims.

A cumulative record is kept of the swimming and certificates issued at the completion of every ten miles. Those interested should register with the life guard on duty or with Mr. Fakkema.

The pool is now open on Monday, Wednesday and Friday afternoons from 3:30-5:00 for studenst, faculty, staff and their families.

On Required Bible

THE POLL taken by the Sock Associate Editors on Required Bible showed strong support for last week's proposed change that could allow the student some choice in the two courses to complete the requirement for graduation.

Undeniably, there is widespread dissatisfaction with the present requirement.

THERE ARE, however, some substantial arguments which can be raised for keeping the requirement as it is and certainly it should not be changed solely on whim or the sudden popularity of an idea.

ALLOWING MORE students to take some of the outstanding advanced Bible courses as well as cultivating a better attitude toward the second year of Bible study are valid enough reasons to justify thorough consideration by the faculty self-study committee and the Bible Department.

WE HOPE in the next issue to hear from these parties and learn their feelings on the subject. On our part, we plan to make it hard to ignore what is plain for the eye to see.

Short Subjects

THE RATING received by the Blue Stocking from the Associated Collegiate Press of First Class was received by the staff with both gladness and disappointment. We hoped, naturally, to return the Sock to its former All-American status but at the same time, we could have done much worse than First Class.

As it was, only one college newspaper in our category throughout the United States was rated All-American and certain areas of the Sock drew high praise; among them: photos, layout, editorials, and headline schedule.

This semester we feel that definite strides and improvements have been made in departments which were slightly deficient previously. We also have enlarged the staff and trained it more extensively.

Therefore, we are hopeful that this semester's paper will bring a higher rating and in any event are sure that the basis has been laid for continued progress in the future. Our first responsibility is always to the needs of the college and student body and in this direction all efforts are and should be directed.

YOUR LETTER-to-the-Editor may get the same quick results that Paul Conger's did last week when the canteen management began allowing small checks to be cashed at night after Paul's letter pointed out the need.

If it doesn't you will still have aired your feelings and they may influence longer-range policy changes.

Our thanks to the canteen management for their consideration.

* * * * * * * *

WHILE TALKING about the canteen we might point out that many of those students who have so much advice as to the way it should be run could help its financial basis greatly by buying such items as soap, razor blades, toothpaste, deodorant, etc., there instead of off campus. The prices are, for the most part, the same.

Conditioned Reflexes And Public Opinion Towards Christianity

by Bob Phifer

The historian Arnold J. Toynbee has dubbed us a nation based on Christian principle without the necessary Christian faith to back it up. Such a situation can end only in disaster. Christian principle will never stand by itself, merely as a set of ethics—for men have never been able to follow a mere set of ethics. They are too weak. Men have needed help before and they need help now .

We believe that help to be God, who is reached through faith.

MANY FORCES bar men from a Christian faith, and we shall attack one of them, public opinion. More specifically, we shall attack public opinion in one case as it works against a college student's faith.

CHRISTIANITY HAS become a distasteful thing to many college students—not because of any ideological flaw in it—but rather because people wish to avoid being called pious cranks. How many people do you know who would dare approach a friend about Christianity helping the friend to a better life? You wouldn't find many; and you'd find even less in the "right crowds." Why?

A CONDITIONAL REFLEX to steer away from any situation in which one is openly Christian has developed in college students who seem to have come out of a background which has taught them to regard Christianity as something ludicrous—as something which only "naive hicks" and "disgusting goodie-goodies" cling to.

THE STUDENTS who feel this way often fear that others will associate them with such people. In other words, they think others will think they are like what such people seem to be like. They fear that others will think that their faith is on the same level that the "goodies" faith is. Or worse, they are so short-sighted that they themselves believe that they will indeed be like such people just because they are embracing the same religion.

THE ERROR in such thinking is obvious upon a little study. But it is not so obvious or even much thought about in everyday life; and the result is the continuance of a blind, stupid conditioning which prevents many from ever approaching Christianity.

SUCH "CONDITIONING" should be thrown off. How? There are many ways. For one, talk it up. Clear the air. Talk about the ideas here presented. By doing so one has the opportunity to talk about the subject without putting pressure on oneself—and having started talking one can go on to establish an atmosphere in which everyone understands that one is not a crank because one professes Christianity. Such an atmosphere of understanding is our goal.

PUBLIC OPINION can often be a slap that makes the strong man reel. We abhor it when it cripples a good man or threatens a vital idea. We abhor public opinion's treatment of Christianity on the college campus.

I Can't Believe It

By BRUCE SHERMAN

Dear Cohorts,

Next week is Thanksgiving. It is sometimes referred to as Turkey Day, when each, in his own way, enjoys turkey and pumpkin pie with all the trimmings and with a family group of 2 or 3 generations. Some enjoy pheasant or duck, while others are content with rabbit or venison, depending upon the taste. Some would prefer a nice goose. It is the time for over-eating, relaxation and recuperation from school, work or just plain over exhaustion.

It is also the season for sales booming in Alka-Seltzer, Aspirin and Pepto-Bismol. Usually, the "great feast" is followed by a retreat to ones' favorite spot for parallel resting and to allow those 8,000 calories to take effect. This is usually referred to as the "Turkey Trot," the speed depending upon the amount of pain.

"Herman, where are you and Gertie eating Thanksgiving dinner?" "Well, Bruce, Gertie thought she would have a big spread at her house, but her grandmother, over at Mule's Mountain, asked all her family over for dinner and I guess we'll go there." "Do you know what she's having to eat?" "Gertie said she thinks it'll be turkey, but shep refers goose."

To most of us here at PC an embarrassing moment can be long remembered. One of the most outstanding ones, recently, was the look on Mr. Skinner's face when he started to enter his room and found his hand glued to the doorknob. Were you hurt, Wirt?

As each weekend rolls around, our campus becomes more and more deserted, due to the fact that so many students surrendered to the weekend desire, more commonly known as "Buckitis." Last weekend saw a deluge of "Buckers" gone to Charlotte, Atlanta and Spartanburg, not to mention the shady nooks up in the mountains where some picnics were held. What does these places have that Laurens County doesn't have? We almost decided to have a contest and choose the "Bucker of the Week," but decided that the list would be too great. The holidays should bring the list to a head.

Have a good holiday, drive carefully for if anyone is lost, it may raise our tuition another hundred.

PC's Socrates

by DuPont Smith

Mr. King stepped into the cl teen at 10:00 this morning f lowing his World Literature cla obviously stirred by the thoug of Socrates who went about A cient Greece asking philosop cal questions of those whom h met and then pointing out the rors of logic in the answers received.

Mr. King stopped the firs student whom he saw and ask ed him, "Are you happy?" Th fellow was obviously surprise and said, "What sort of a ques tion is that, Mr. King? U ually you ask a person ho things are going or how he feeling. Yeah, I guess I'm hap py."

King then asked, "Are you sur that you are happy?" The a swer was, "Well, I suppose s Say, what's this all about, M King?" Mr. King went on, " you're not sure that you are ha py how do you know that yo are happy?" and before the st dent could reply, he was gone having gotten his cup of coffe

You must remember, M King, that PC students are a du ler lot than the Ancient Athe ians used to be. Besides, thi method of acquiring fame has a ready been used.

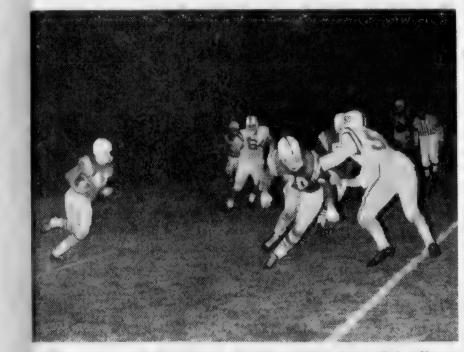
Thanksgiving Day Newberry Clash Is Season's Final For Blue Hose



• 10 Seniors Play Last Game

The annual Thanksgiving Day clash with rival Newberry College will be the final home appearance for 10 seniors on the Presbyterian College football team. The clash between the Little Three contenders will decide the title. If PC wins, they will be the champs of the Little Three Conference, but if they lose, the title will be a three-way tie. The game will get underway at 2 o'clock at Walter Johnson Field.

The seniors who will be seeing their last action include: FRED COOK, WAYNE FOWLER, MIKE LAY, and DONNY ROSS, all ends; tackle MIKE MARR; guard DAVID HARRILL; center DEWEY McREYNOLDS; and RONNIE HAMPTON, JIMMY MAY, and NORMAN SNELLGROVES, all backs.

The 10 seniors will be trying to make their last game a big win over the always tough Indians from Newberry, and they would like to be able to leave the Bronze Derby here for the fifith year in a row. PC and Newberry traditionally play on Thanksgiving Day, and out of 47 meetings with the Indians Presbyterian has won 29, lost 14, and there have been 4 tied games.

The game at Troy State on Saturday wil bring together two teams with identical records of one win and seven defeats. Troy State is having their Homecoming weekend this week, and they are reportedly ready for the Blue Hose. This is the only time PC and Troy have met, and it is one of the longest trips the team has taken in a number of years. The team will leave the campus early Friday morning and return Saturday night or Sunday morning.

Hose Fall Vicitms To Chattanooga And Appalachian

Presbyterian College hopes to snap a two-game losing streak when the Blue Hose travel to Troy, Ala., to take on Troy State Saturday afternoon.

The Hose lost to Chattanooga on Parents Day by a 31-20 score. The game was wide open with both teams scoring on long drives. Ronnie Hampton scored on a long run and on a pass from Leighton Grantham. Grantham scored on a short run. Whaley was the big man for the Mocs, as he scored three times.

Appalachian also gave the Hose a hard time in Charlotte last week as they defeated PC by a 21-0 count. The PC offensive could not generate anything at all, and the Mountaineers had little trouble with the Hose. The passes of Leighton Grantham were not hitting their marks, and several were intercepted.

Alpha Sigs Cling to Lead; Hardee Is Intramural MVP

The Alpha Sigs are still in the lead for the intramural championship. After being held scoreless by the KAs in a 13 to 0 loss to them, they must win their last two games in order to stay ahead of the Bandits who have finished with a 5-3-2 record.

They must play the PiKAS, who beat them the first time, and then the Sigma Nus. If they lose both games they will drop to second place. Losing one game will put them in a tie with the Bandits who finished the season by losing to the PiKapps 7 to 0.

The rest of the scores are as follows.

PiKA's 28, Bandits 7.
Sigma Nu 20, Bandits 19.
KA's 18, Bandits 19.
KA's 13, Bandits 13.
PiKAPPS 20, Alpha Sigs 12.
KA's 13, Sigma Nu 19.

Team Standings

Alpha Sigs 5-3-0—63%.
Bandits 5-3-2—60%.
PiKapps 4-3-3—53%.
PiKA 4-4-1—50%.
Sigma Nus 3-5-1—39%.
KA's 2-5-3—35%.

Don Hardee playing for the Alpha Sigs was elected Most Valuable Player of the intramurals. He has supplied offense for his team with his passing and running. As the quarterback of the Alpha Sigs he is always a threat whether runnning or fading back to pass.

The All-Stars and Most Valuable Player were selected by the other players. They picked a first and second place candidates. A first place vote counted two points and a second place vote counted one point.

All six teams were well represented. KA led with five men on either the first or second team. They were followed by the Alpha Sigs, PiKapps and the PiKA's, each placing three men on the team. The Bandits and the Sigma Nus each had two.

FIRST TEAM

ENDS—Brown, PiKA; Mayhugh, PiKapps.

LINEMAN—Hodges, KA; Pittard, PiKA.

BACKS—Yearout, Sigma Nu; Barnwell, KA; Canady, Alpha Sigs.

CENTER — Dickerson, PiKapps.

QUARTERBACK — Hardee, Alpha Sigs.

SECOND TEAM

ENDS—Greene, KA; Ellisor, Bandits.

LINEMAN — Jones, Alpha Sigs; Cobb, Sigma Nu.

BACKS—Frye, Bandits; Salvo, PiKapps; Russell, PiKA.

CENTER—Morris, KA.

QUARTERBACK — Williams, KA.

Blue Stocks Begin Season

Posting a nine-man roster, the Presbyterian College ROTC Rifle Team recently swung into its 1962-63 season. The PC firers dropped their first match to Wofford and Davidson in a three-way meet but topped Wofford in a postal match. The PC team also won a postal match with Henderson State Teachers College.

Four postal matches have been lost by the Presbyterian team. The winning teams represented: The University of Alaska; The University of Alabama; The University of Hawaii; and Florida State.

According to team coach, Sergeant Waymond Elrod, the 62-23 team has the possibility of shaping up into one of the best in recent years. Five of this year's officers are returning sophomores, three of whom lettered last year.

The remaining four members are all freshmen. They are: Glenn Barlow, of Elkton, Maryland; Tom Butler, of Bradenton, Florida; Dan McCemne, of Surrency, Georgia; and Phillip Olment, of Bishopville.

Captaining the team this year is sophomore John Hemphill from Cedartown, Georgia. Hemphill received his letter last year and had one of the best firing records on the 1961-62 team.

Regular Army Officer in charge of the team is Captain James T. Jones.

Using The Home Court Advantage

AL PEARCE, Sports Editor

THE OPENING of the '62-'63 basketball season will again see a good PC team take the floor for 9 home games in LeRoy Springs Gym. According to many of the players and to Coach Charles Musselwhite these are 9 games the Blue Hose should be able to win. That sounds like a rather brash statement since the team has not even played a full game, but this conclusion is based on the "home court advantage" theory.

AN ATHLETIC TEAM will play better if it has a large following to urge it on. That team will play better if the home crowd will come out game after game to cheer them—win or lose. In a confined area like the LeRoy Springs Gym, a full house is not too difficult to attain, and with a full house comes improved play from the team.

IN THE PAST few years, the full house has not been consistently seen. If the Blue Hose are playing a powerful team such as Belmont Abbey or Erskine, the fans will come out to see them play. This is natural, but an enthusiastic crowd at all PC home games will help to make the Hose play more spirited ball, and a better team will develop. The tempo of play will pick up as the tempo of the crowd picks up. The team will play better if it is cheered on, and the students will have a winning team to watch each time they play.

IF THE STUDENTS let the boys know that they are behind them and consistently fill the gym for the nine home games this year, then PC will have the type of basketball team the students can be proud of. Let's not start to go out and see them play when they build an impressive record—let's go out and support the team from the first game in December until the last game in February. The team will play better and the students will enjoy it more.

PIGSKIN PICKS

Hitting 6 out of 10, including one tie game, on the second of November, my record for the year is now 34 right, 13 wrong, and 3 tied games. With the home team in capital letters, it looks like:

DUKE over Wake Forest.
U. S. C. over DETROIT.
MARYLAND over Clemson.
Furman over TAMPA.
East Carolina over WOFFORD
WEST VIRGINIA over Citadel.
Alabama over GEORGIA TECH.
AUBURN over Georgia.
NOTRE DAME over U. N. C.
N. C. STATE over U. of Va.

Seven Freshmen Bolster Hose Basketball Squad

The 1962-63 basketball season for Presbyterian College will open with a home game against St. Andrews College of North Carolina on the 6th of December, and some new faces will be seen when the Hose take the floor.

The team, which has been practicnig for over a month now, will have back veterans from the team that finished in the Little Four Conference last year, but it is the freshman members of the squad that make the basketball picture bright. The 14-man team is composed of three seniors, one junior, three sophomores and seven freshmen. Good balance is seen for this year's squad and the large number of sophomores and freshmen indicates a bright future for PC basketball.

Returning Hosemen are: Joe Harvard, a senior letterman from Columbia; Paul Webb, a senior letterman from Carter, Ky.; Jimmy McGuire, a senior letterman from Washington, D. C., Andy Karlsons, the only junior and a letterman from New York City; Jere Ard, a sopohmore from Atlanta; Bill Tallent, a sophomore letterman from Maytown, Ky.; and Danny Charles, a sophomore letterman from Spartanburg.

The seven freshmen out for the squad include: Jimmy Bankhead, a big forward or center from Chester; Gordon Adam, a quick guard from Bloomfield, Ky.; John Etchison, a fine guard from Indianapolis, Ind.; Dick Hughes, a rugged forward from Greenfield, Ind.; Ben Pickens, a guard from Spartanburg; Doug Allen, a 6-6 center from Sumter; and Larry Preston, a fast guard from Atlanta, Ga.

The team will play a tough 21-game schedule with 9 of these games being played here in the LeRoy Springs Gymnasium. Following the Dec. 6 opening game here, the team will swing southward for their annual Florida tour. They will play in the Hatter Tournament at Deland, Fla., that will include Rollins College, Stetson University and Middle Tennessee State College.

After this tournament they will come back northward to face Georgia Southern at Savannah on the 17th of December. Between that game, which is the last before the Christmas break, and the final exam period, the team will face Erskine, Newberry, Belmont Abbey, Georgia Southern, Mercer, and Georgia State. The games with Erskine, Belmont Abbey, Georgia Southern, and Georgia State will be played here.

The second semester schedule will see the Hose playing these same teams, with the addition of two games with Pembroke. The final three games of the season will be played here on the 16th, 19th, and 20th of February against Mercer, Pembroke, and Wofford. A possible post-season tournament with small schools in North Carolina and South Carolina is in the planning stages, and something definite will be announced as soon as possible.

Letter From The Guidance Committee

TO: The Student Body
FROM: The Faculty Guidance Committee
SUBJECT: The Guidance Center's Services

"We, the Guidance Committee, wish to assure the Student Body of our continuing interest in serving the students. We have set aside Fridays and Saturday mornings for the purpose of serving Presbyterian College students and adults. This does not restrict you to these days, for when schedules permit, appointments may be made throughout the week also.

"Our purpose is to help you gain knowledge of yourself. This can be done through measuring devices, commonly called tests, which measures one's interests, aptitudes, and personality traits. One does not "pass" or flunk these tests, for one's score is based on comparison with 100 other students' scores.

"In considerating one's grades, in addition to information which is obtained from such tests, one may be helped in planning for the future, vocational-wise and educational-wise. Perhaps you will be interested in knowing that in many businesses and professions one is required to take a series of tests before employment or admittance.

"In previous years, students have found that having had experience in taking standardized test has been very helpful. Self-knowlege can also come through 'talking out" problems with a person in whom one can confide.

"In conjunction with the faculty, another service which is offered by the Center is in the area of personal problem counseling. Then, too, you might be interested in seeing the vocational and educational material here at the Center.

"We extend a warm welcome to all of you to visit the Center. Center services to our college students are free. Office hours are from: 8:30 to 12:00 A. M., and 1:30 to 5:00 P. M., Mondays through Fridays; and 8:30 to 12:00 A. M. on Saturdays."

"Just A Thought"

by John Sheffield

In this perilous era of growing corruption and cynicism it would seem that the American people would be seeking for things in which they could believe. In reality, however, we find that an adverse attitude tends to characterize the nation's population.

Judging from appearances, things no longer seem to be real, they "just ain't real." Rather than being able to believe even the simplest of everyday occurrences, we "just can't believe them." Everything has become negative rather than positive in an extremely critical period of our history. Rather than taking the responsibility of facing life, we tend to rationalize and minimize our problems by pretending that they are only imagination and "just couldn't possibly b real."

This is a terrific surface approach to the liquidation of our problems but does this actually terminate them? Why are we turning rearward in a period of constantly changing conditions and forward motion? It would seem that during these times we would be most decided in what we do believe and not in what we don't believe.

Some even go so far as to say that we seem to be turning back the centuries of time and identifying ourselves with a group that was in evidence during the ancient Greek civilization who called themselves "Epicureans."

As we probe further into our observations of this ancient "group" we find this interesting if not tragic result—These Epicureans turned from a progressive direction and the responsibilities of life to the theory that there are no real problems as long as they can be avoided mentally disintegrated.

It was not too long ago after the original Epicurean philosophies had been perverted and established in Greece that the entire nation fell to the subjection of their enemies.

Blue Stocking Staff To Meet Monday Night

There will be an important meeting of the entire Blue Stocking staff in the Sock office Monday night, November 19, at 7:30. Plans for the staff banquet in January will be discsused as well as some revisions of style.

COMMITTEES:
AN AGONIZING RE-APPRAISAL

To those of you who stay out of your student government because you believe the committee system is just an excuse for inaction, let me cite an example to prove that a committee, properly led and directed, can be a great force for good.

Last week the Student Council met at the Duluth College of Veterinary Medicine and Belles Lettres to discuss purchasing a new doormat for the students union. It was, I assure you, a desperate problem because Sherwin K. Sigafoos, janitor of the students union, threatened flatly to quit unless a new doormat was installed immediately. "I'm sick and tired of mopping that dirty old floor," said Mr. Sigafoos, sobbing convulsively. (Mr. Sigafoos, once a jolly outgoing sort, has been crying almost steadily since the recent death of his pet wart hog who had been his constant companion for 22 years. Actually, Mr. Sigafoos is much better off without the wart hog, who tusked him viciously at least once a day, but a companionship of 22 years is, I suppose, not lightly relinquished. The college tried to give Mr. Sigafoos a new wart hog, a frisky little fellow with floppy ears and a waggly tail—but Mr. Sigafoos only turned his back and cried the harder.)

He only turned his back and cried the harder

But I digress. The Student Council met, discussed the doormat for eight or ten hours, and then referred it to a committee. There were some who scoffed then and said nothing would ever be heard of the doormat again, but they reckoned without Invictus Millstone.

Invictus Millstone, chairman of the doormat committee, was a man of action—lithe and lean and keen and, naturally, a smoker of Marlboro Cigarettes. Why do I say "naturally"? Because, dear friends, active men and women don't have time to brood and bumble about their cigarettes. They need to be certain. They must have perfect confidence that each time they light up they will get the same gratifying flavor, the same Selectrate filter, the same soft soft-pack, the same flip top flip-top box. In brief, dear friends, they need to be sure it's Marlboro—for if ever a smoke was true and trusty, it's Marlboro. Get some soon. Get matches too, because true and trusty though Marlboros are, your pleasure will be somewhat limited unless you light them.

Well sir, Invictus Millstone chaired his doormat committee with such vigor and dispatch that when the Student Council met only one week later, he was able to rise and deliver the following recommendations:

1. That the college build new schools of botany, hydraulic engineering, tropical medicine, Indo-Germanic languages, and surgery.
2. That the college drop football, put a roof on the stadium, and turn it into a low-cost housing project for married students.
3. That the college raise faculty salaries by $5000 per year across the board.
4. That the college secede from the United States.
5. That the question of a doormat for the students union be referred to a subcommittee.

So let us hear no more defeatist talk about the committee system. It can be made to work!

Blue Key Presents Program at Newberry

The Presbyterian Blue Key fraternity went to Newberry this past Wednesday in keeping with the traditional Blue Key Chapel Exchange Programs.

Attending were Joe Harvard, Pres., Harold Hope, Ted Elders, John Henderson, Paul Woodall, Bobby Piephoff, Loren Eagles, Louis Powell, and Grif Helwig. Absent on the trip was Wirt Skinner.

After the opening introduction and welcome by the Newberry Blue Key President, Harvard spoke briefly about the exchange programs and the annual competition among the Little Three for the Wofford, Newberry, PC trophies. Following this, Hope delivered a short devotional, then Woodall, Pres. of the Student Body, made a talk and preached his Negro sermon.

Note of Appreciation

"I would like to express my sincere appreciation for the cooperation and generosity shown by the students, staff, faculty and administration of Presbyterian College in their gifts to the Community Chest, and also to the Blue Key Fraternity for their good work in canvassing the student body.

In addition to the canvassing done in town by members of the college group, and gifts made in their area, the amount contributed at the college totaled $546.45. Thank you for your help."

Sixth Parent's Day Highlights Weekend

Presbyterian College's annual Parent's Day on Sat., Nov. 3, will feature an afternoon program sponsored by the Blue Key and a football game between PC and the University of Chattanooga tomorrow night.

Formal registration for parents begins at 2 P. M. As soon as the visitors have registered they will be given a tour of the campus conducted by members of Blue Key.

Following registration at 3 P. M. the official program of welcome will begin at Belk Auditorium. Members of Blue Key, all of whom are campus leaders, will give talks on various phases of campus life.

Following a welcome address by President Brown, a review of student life will be given in four parts. The topics will be Athletics, Activities, Academics, and Fraternities.

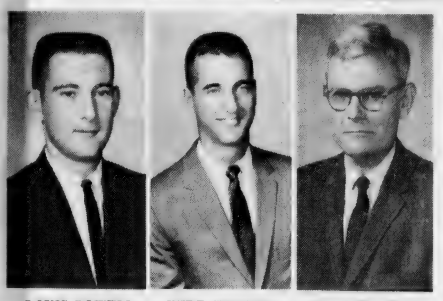
Entertainment by members of the student body is also on the program. Featured will be the Double Quartet, a group of PC choir members; "Preachin' " a "foot-stomping-back-country" sermon by Paul Woodall; singing by the Fifths, a group who will sing folk songs and barber shop; and the Happy Three, otherwise known as the "Poor Man's Kingston Trio."

The faculty will give a reception for the parents in Douglas House at 4 P. M. This will give the parents a better chance to become acquainted with the faculty members. After the reception the fraternities will have dorp-ins at their respective houses.

The climax of the day will be the football game between Presbyterian and Chattanooga on the home field at 8 P. M. Finishing off the day's activities the fraternities will have open houses.

This marks the sixth year that Parent's Days have been held at PC.

Parent's Day Schedule



2:00 P. M.—Registration in the Douglas House.
2:00-3:00 P. M.—Campus tours, directed by Blue Key.
3:00 P. M.—Program of Welcome in Belk Auditorium.
4:00 P. M.—Faculty Reception in the Douglas House.
5:15 P. M.—Supper in Judd Dining Hall and Leroy Springs Gym.
7:00 P. M.—Fraternity drop-ins in the quarters of the social fraternities.
8:00 P. M.—PC vs University of Chattanooga Johnson Field.
10:30 P. M.—Open Houses in the fraternity suites.

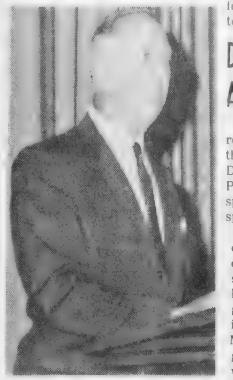
LOUIS POWELL WIRT SKINNER DR. ALEX STUMP

Powell, Skinner, and Dr. Stump Tapped by Blue Key This Morning

Chapel today was the scene of the fall Blue Key tappings. Seniors Wirt Skinner and Louis Powell and Professor Alex Stump were in turn dubbed in the traditional Blue Key Manner.



The Blue Key is a National Honorary Fraternity designed to recognize leadership, character, and scholarship. Blue Key Members must have an academic average above the overall men's average.

To tap the unsuspecting nominees, Blue Key members descended from the stage and walked among the "nominated tappees." Then suddenly, the traditional clap on the back would be given and the new members sent to the stage to be congratulated by the other members.

A chemistry major, Louis Powell is president of the Tau Phi Pi Presbyterian Science Society. He was on the Dean's List last semester and is a platoon leader in ROTC. Powell is from Wallace, North Carolina. He plans to do graduate work in chemistry after graduating here.

Skinner, from Decatur, Geor-gia, is a history major who has been consistently on the Dean's List and is in the Sophomore Honor Society. He is Supply Officer on the ROTC Battalion Staff, and holds the rank of Cadet Captain. He has been active on the Blue Stocking and is currently an Associate Editor. He is also Vice-President of the Choir. A pre-ministerial student, Skinner plans to attend Columbia Seminary in Decatur, Ga., after leaving PC.

PC's Professor of Biology, Dr Stump came here in 1947. He is well known on campus for his ability as a teacher and for his readiness to be of aid to his students. Dr. Stump has his B. S. M. S., and Phd. in Biology—all from the University of Virgina

The IRC will sponsor a forthcoming debate on the question of the U. S. remaining in the U. N. and whether the U. S. should purchase $100 million dollars of U. N. bonds.

Jim Murchison and George Lewis will represent the affirmative while Jack Westall and G. Wardlaw represent the negative.

A delegation, to be selected, plans to attend again this year the second South Carolina Collegiate Model U. N. Security Council meeting to be held at U. S. C. in the spring. Delegates to this Security Council paragon are to select a country and defend its viewpoint concerning international issues.

Dr. Moorfield Will Address Tau Phi Pi

The Tau Phi Pi Science Society recently announced plans for their first program of the year. Dr. David R. Moorefield, PC's Professor of Philosophy, will speak on "The non-scientific responsibility of the scientist."

Dr. Moorefield feels that scientists have a responsibility outside the laboratory to help society use the fruits of the laboratory. The talk will be given in Douglas House meeting room 206 at 7:30 p. m. on Monday, November 12. The program is open to all who may wish to come.

A PC student himself, Dr. Moorefield studied Chemistry and Physics here. He has studied with Emile Cailliet, renowned authority on the relation of science and culture at Princeton Seminary. He hopes to offer a course on "The Philosophy of Science" within a few years.

Library Receives Grant Of $10,000 for Books

by G. Wardlaw

The Presbyterian College Library is the recipient of a Kellogg grant of $10,000 which will be used for the purchase of new books. Miss Marian A Burts, Librarian, announced that new shelves have been ordered for the books, and expansion of the Library will continue as the third floor is opened in the latter part of this semester.

The PC Library of today, which boasts 51,175 volumes, has evolved from very humble beginnings. Around the turn of the century, while PC was on the present Thornwell campus, a collection of books was housed on the top floor of the three-story building there.

When Neville Hall was completed in 1907, a room was set aside for this collection of books. In 1912 Dr. W. S. Bean, a professor, volunteered his services as Librarian. He did this in his spare time and thus the Library had no definite hours of operation. The collection of books was still quite small, although no exact figures as to the number of volumes can be obtained.

The Library was moved to Jacobs Science Hall in 1915. It remained in this building until September of 1942 when the Administration Building was completed. The land for the building was furnished by the college, the funds were provided by a bond issue of the Town of Clinton, and the labor was furnished by the United States Government under the W P. A. The Town of Clinton holds the title of this building. By 1942 there were approximately 21,000 volumes in the Library, when it was transferred to its present location.

The College Library and the Clinton Library were merged in 1939. About thirty years after the college was founded, the citizens of Clinton founded a community library. At first the Jacobs Building in downtown Clinton housed this library, but it was later moved to the Clinton High School. They remained there until the merger in 1939. Thus the present library is both the college and the community library.

Since 1942 there have been no drastic changes in the Library, but rather this period has been one of constant refinement. One of the most important changes was made last year when the main stack floor was completely

MacDonald Opens Fine Arts Series

The first program in the Presbyterian Fine Arts Series was presented Monday, October 29. Presenting the program was pianist Robert MacDonald, a former PC student. Mr. MacDonald gave two concerts. His first was given in chapel before the student body, faculty, and guests from Thornwell Orphanage and Clinton.

Mr. MacDonald played a selection by Chopin and a selection by Mrorsky. The second concert was presented at 8:00 p. m. in Belk Auditorium. Six selections were played, ranging from Schumann to Prokofieff.

After the concert, Dr. and Mrs. Marshall Brown were hosts to a reception for Mr. MacDonald Members of the choir, the student body, and friends of the Browns attended.

College Reaches $1,800,000 Goal

The greatest fund-raising campaign ever conducted by Presbyterian College and the Synod of South Carolina was brought to a successful close on December 31 as the goal of $1,800,000 was finally reached.

President Brown announced that individual and church gifts had secured the $1,650,000 needed to claim a challenge grant of $150,000 from the Richardson Foundation of New York City.

The combined total assures PC of sufficient funds for its first woman's dormitory, a new dining hall, a science hall and $700,000 more in endowment.

The campaign opened last spring and raised $1,200,000 before efforts were suspended for the summer vacation period. Then shortly after the opening of the fall term, the school received the challenge grant, cutting the amount needed by the year end deadline to $450,000.

Alumni living outside South Carolina gave much of the impetus to the final push and more than $100,000 came in during the last two weeks of 1962 to put the campaign "over the top."

The Synod of Georgia, which shares ownership of the college, is planning to hold its campaign for Presbyterian within the next few years.

The opening phase of PC's long-range development program in 1955-57 produced $1,550,000 from both synods. These funds were used to construct Belk Auditorium, Bailey Dormitory, and the Douglas House.

Four Receive Army Lieutenant's Bars

Four PC students were commissioned into the Army over semester breaks. In a brief ceremony in Dr Brown's office last Monday, Bob Wylie, Jack Williams, Joe Nixon and Rick Saunders received their 2nd Lieutenant's bars.

After a short speech by Col. Thackston and a farewell talk by Dr. Brown, the students and their parents were honored at a small reception in the college library.

Williams and Nixon will be stationed at Fort Sill, Oklahoma, while Rick Saunders is in Emory Law School. Bob Wylie will fulfill his military obligation in Hawaii.

The fraternity supports their fraternity discussion for it would look bad for the fraternity just to have a few boys at the discussion. But you know the brothers seem to enjoy it and get something out of it after they get started. But these lectures—"Well, I just don't have time," or "I am not interested in religion."

This week is a time for asking and a time for thought. We are college students, a group which is supposed to be broadening our horizons with education. Let us take this opportunity and support RE Week.

If we don't what will we tell our friend or fraternity about "support" when we try to coerce him into running for an office next month.

On Campus with Max Shulman

THE CURSE OF THE CAMPUS: NO. 1

Hate me if you will, but I must speak. We college types are far too complacent. Sure, we've got plenty to be proud of. We've got atom smashers, we've got graduate schools, we've got new peaks in scholarship, new highs in academic honors. And yet, in the midst of these triumphs, we have failed dismally to make any progress in solving the oldest and most horrendous of all campus problems: we've still got roommates.

To be sure, all roommates are not bad. There is the well-documented case of Hilquit Glebe, a student at the Manhattan College of Agriculture, majoring in curds and whey, who admitted publicly that he actually liked his roommate—an odd admission when you consider that this roommate, Mervis Trunz by name, was frankly not too winsome a fellow. He practiced his tympani in his room, he kept an alligator, and he collected airplane tires.

But, on the other hand, Mervis bought two packs of Marlboro Cigarettes every day and gave one of them to Hilquit and—I ask you—who can stay mad at a man who gives you Marlboro Cigarettes? Who, upon tasting that flavorful blend of Marlboro tobaccos, upon drawing through that pure white Marlboro filter, upon exulting in this best of all possible cigarettes, Marlboro—who, I say, can harden his heart against his neighbor? Certainly not Hilquit. Certainly not I. Certainly not you, as you will find when you scurry to your nearest tobacconist and buy a supply. Marlboros come in soft pack or Flip-Top Box. Tobacconists come in small, medium, and large.

But I digress. Roommates, I say, are still with us and I fear they always will be, so we better learn how to get along with them. It can be done, you know. Take, for instance, the classic case of Dolly Pitcher and Molly Madison.

Dolly and Molly, roommates at a prominent Midwestern girls' school (Vassar) had a problem that seemed insoluble. Dolly could only study late at night, and Molly could not stay awake past nine o'clock. If Dolly kept the lights on, the room was too bright for Molly to sleep. If Molly turned the lights off, the room was too dark for Dolly to study. What to do?

Well sir, those two intelligent American kids found an answer. They got a miner's cap for Dolly! Thus, she had enough light to study by, and still the room was dark enough for Molly to sleep.

It must be admitted, however, that this solution, ingenious as it was, had some unexpected sequelae. Dolly got so enchanted with her miner's cap that she switched her major from 18th Century poetry to mining and metallurgy. Shortly after graduation she had what appeared to be a great stroke of luck: while out prospecting, she discovered what is without question the world's largest feldspar mine. This might have made Dolly very rich except that nobody, alas, has yet discovered a use for feldspar. Today Dolly, a broken woman, squeezes out a meagre living making echoes for tourists in Mammoth Cave.

Nor has Molly fared conspicuously better. Once Dolly got the miner's hat, Molly was able to catch up on her long-lost sleep. She woke after eight days, refreshed and vigorous—more vigorous, alas, than she realized. It was the afternoon of the annual Dean's tea. Molly stood in line with her classmates, waiting to shake the Dean's hand. At last her turn came, and Molly, full of strength and health, gave the Dean a firm handshake—so firm, indeed, that all five of the Dean's knuckles were permanently fused.

The Dean sued for a million dollars, and, of course, won. Today Molly, a broken woman, is paying off her debt by walking the Dean's cat every afternoon for ten cents an hour.

We, the makers of Marlboro and the sponsors of this column, will not attempt to expertize about roommates. But we will tell you about a great pocket or purse mate—Marlboro Cigarettes—fine tobacco, fine filter, fine company always.

Rush Week Ends As New Greeks Pledge

KA'S Pledge 14 Freshmen; Alpha Sigs Second With 13

Fifty freshmen and new men cast their pledge ballots for the fraternities of their choice as formal rush activity on the campus reached its climax yesterday. Seventy-four of the one hundred twenty-four men in the freshman class had grades necessary for pledging.

Kappa Alpha Order led the six fraternities in number of pledges, with fourteen freshmen accepting its bids. Second was Alpha Sigma Phi with thirteen pledges; Theta Chi ranked third with eight new men. Pi Kappa Alpha's seven pledges place it fourth; Sigma Nu was fifth with five, and Pi Kappa Phi gained three new men to place it in sixth position.

Freshmen who pledged are as follows:

Kappa Alpha: William Akers, III, Patterson W. Brown, James T. Darby, Glenn C. Hodges, Richard D. Hughes, Charles A. Meriwether, Grover C. Mixon, Albert C. Snipes, Daniel M. Taylor, James R. Wilkerson, William H. Warnock, Michael W. Smith, Roy A Wright,

Alpha Sigma Phi: Charles W. Blount, Robert C. Epps, John R. Georgius, Joseph P. Goldsmith, Samuel T. Grey; Earl P. Guy, Erik T. Johnson, Melvin E. Kirby, Jr., Woods M. McGinn, Roland F. Matson, Charles T. Segers, James B. Stanford, and Samuel C. Waters.

Theta Chi: William H. Adams; Olin C. Covington, William M. Fortney, William G. Kellam, Rone M. Lewis, III, James S. Murchison, Hubert G. Wardlaw, Jr., Jack W. Westall, Jr.

Pi Kappa Alpha: John O. Etchison, John A. Kuhne, Donand T. McNeill, Joseph P. Olmert, Benjamin R. Pickens, Jr., Wade P. Stewart, and Walter B. Todd.

Sigma Nu: Douglas E. Allen, Robert K. Harris, Howard B. Letzring, Neill A. Lindsay, III, and Robert A. Stack.

Pi Kappa Phi: James H. Smith, III, Robert G. Hodgkin, III, John E. Fagen, IV.

IFC President Alex Bosserman stated that this year's rush has probably been the best ever on this campus because there have been few conflicts between the fraternities. "The lack of conflicts during this rush season further emphasizes the excellent relations between the six fraternities on our campus," stated Bosserman.

Mr. Earl B. Halsall, a member of the faculty committee on fraternities, emphasized that all of the chapters on campus have room for expansion before meeting the sixty-five member maximum established by the fraternity committee and the IFC. Mr. Halsal also stated that it is his desire to see more PC men as members of fraternities, and that probably more freshmen will pledge after first semester. Mr. Halsall said, "The selectivity naturally entailed in rushing and bidding is very necessary, but our fraternities must choose from the men on our campus and not from an unknown ideal. Selectivity carried to an extreme is ridiculous."

Yesterday's pledge activities rank the Alpha Sigs first in number of members, with 55; PiKA is second with 52; KA is third with 51; Theta Chi places fourth with 35; Sigma Uu is now fifth with 32 members; and Pi Kappa Phi's 27 men put it in last position.

PC Sends Five Delegates To Student Legislature

PC students were "politiking" in the state's capital city last week. Over a three-day period beginning last Thursday, five upperclassmen attended meetings of the South Carolina Student Legislature. During the last day, PC was voted in by the Legislature as an offical member.

6 Delegates from PC chosen by the Student Council were: David Harrill, Wayne Fowler, Sandy Hagood, Randy McCranie, and Leighton Grantham. Harrill and Fowler served as senators while the other other three were representatives. PC has sent men in times past but this is the first meeting at which the college was a participating member.

The Student Legislature is set up to acquaint students with the procedures of democratic government. The Student Legislature is modeled after its real counterpart—the South Carolina State Legislature. Bills and resolutions are brought up and discussed and finally voted upon.

Qualifications for office holding in the mock assembly are determined by how well delegates from each college arrange for debate pre-selected bills and resolutions. It is usual, although not always necessary, that students have attended at least four prior meetings.

Specific attention was given to the questions of capital punishment and whether the State Governor should be allowed to succeed himself for a second term. Students decided against capital punishment and voted to allow the Governor to serve two consecutive terms.

The Student Legislature also curbing Communism. The points passed a resolution aimed at of the resolution outlined a plan for people to be educated in the specific differences between Communism and Democracy—with emphasis on starting this education as soon as possible, perhaps as early as the second grade.

Mrs. D. Moorefield Joins English Dept.

Mrs. David R. Moorefield, the wife of Dr. Moorefield of the Philosophy Department here, has joined PC's English Department. She replaces Dr. Emmet Kilpatrick who has recently retired.

Mrs. Moorefield, who is originally from Darlington, S. C., received her B.A. from Wells College in Aurora, New York, and earned her M.A. at the University of Michigan.

Aside from private tutoring, this is her first teaching job. She is now teaching two sections of English Composition, 101, and two sections of English Literature, 201.

The Moorefields were married in June of 1961 and have one son, six months old.

Mr. Neal E. Prater has temporarily replaced Dr. Kilpatrick as head of the English Department.

Arts Exhibit Is Thursday

PC's Fine Arts Department is on the way.

At least that was Dr. Edouard Pattes' hope as he announced Presbyterian College's first fine arts exhibit. Twenty-five to thirty canvases will be displayed from four to six p. m. in the studio at Dr. Patte's house this coming Thursday. Dr. Patte's house is located at 301 South Adair Street.

Most of the paintings are modern, impressionistic works. A few are classical—being of landscapes and other scenes.

Dr. Patte, who is sponsoring the studio, feels that the paintings reveal some promising talent. More important, he feels that the interest shown has possibly laid the foundation of what may well be the Fine Arts Department of Presbyterian College.

Christmas Holidays

Christmas holidays will begin on Saturday, December 15, at 12:00 p. m., and will end on Wednesday, January 2, at 6:00 P. M. Classes will begin at 8:00 A. M. on January 3, 1963, announced Academic Dean Dr. Jospeh M. Gettys, this week.

Rivieras Will Play For Dance Tonight

Dates arrived in Clinton this afternoon to help Presbyterian College launch the annual Christmas Dance Weekend. Students and their drags will begin the weekend festivities with the Chrsitmas Dance which is being held at the Clinton National Guard Armory. The dance features the Rivieras of Charlotte to provide music from 8 until 1. The school is sponsoring the dance and therefore there will be no admittance price.

New pledges and their dates will join with their fraternities tomorrow afternoon in their respective suites. Some fraternities are planning to entertain Thornwell children with gift parties in order to help make their Christmas a happier one.

Fraternities have scheduled dance parties tomorrow night to cap off the gala weekend. Off campus parties figure heavily on the agenda for Saturday night. Only two fraternities, Kappa Alpha and Sigma Nu, will stage their parties here on campus. The PiKA's announced plans for a party in Greenwood, where they have rented a whole floor of the Hotel Greenwood.

The Legion hut here in Clinton will be the scene of the Pi Kappa Phis' party. The Theta Chis have secured the Lakeside Country Club. For their party, the Alpha Sigs have rented the vacated theatre house directly beneath their fraternity suite.

Chemists Receive Gas Chromatograph

Last week the Chemistry Department installed a $3000 machine capable of analyzing mixtures of gases and volatile liquids. The machine, which is called a gas chromatograph, was bought with the aid of a National Science Foundation Matching Grant.

According to Dr. Carter, the use of the machine, developed within the last ten years, has become of principal importance in the world of chemistry. Almost any chemical journal published today has at least one-third of its articles dealing with gas chromatographs.

This machine will be used principally by the advanced chemistry classes. One use the Organic class will make of it is in the analysis of alcohol-water mixtures obtained by a fermentation process carried out in the laboratory.

On South Carolina School Integration

INTEGRATION OF STATE COLLEGES will become a reality during the year 1963. No one denies this, but the question is whether South Carolinians will still be proud to claim their state and its civil authority in a year's time, for there are many in positions of leadership whose lack of judgment could bring down the same disruption and discredit suffered by Ole Miss and the state of Mississippi this fall.

FOR SOUTH CAROLINA to risk smearing its own name to protest in vain against authority of the United States Courts would be absurd and almost tragic. It makes no sense whatsoever.

AS MUCH AS one might wish it otherwise, we live in a world of change, often a most painful change. Those who cannot adapt to the times and accept such changes inevitably fall by the wayside while the world moves on without them.

OUR POSITION in the matter of public school integration is, we feel, the obvious one. Simply stated, we think that it is not only inevitable, but necessary if the ideas and propositions upon which democracy is based are to retain any meaning in our present society. We cannot deny a person an equal opportunity for education because of his color and be sincere in pledging ". . . one nation, under God, with liberty and justice for all."

"Breather" Days?

THE IDEA of having a break of one or more days between the end of classes and the first day of exams has been frequently discussed in years past. We now understand that the administration feels that this idea has merit.

THIS PRACTICE has been found effective on many other campuses and could be of tremendous aid to the student in organizing material and reviewing before exams. One consideration which should be mentioned is that the fall term would have to begin several days earlier than usual to compensate for these "breather" days.

THE BLUE KEY deserves credit for their recent support of the idea and their investigations into its feasability.

A Traditional Game

AT THE RISK of appearing to be against keeping traditions, we'd like to point out that the majority of PC men graduate without ever having seen a football game with our supposed arch rival Newberry. Although all students are encouraged to attend, the games being on Thanksgiving Day prevents virtually all out of town students from supporting the team.

WHILE WE are not sure that breaking the tradition of the games being held on Thanksgiving is altogether a good idea, most students and players would favor it.

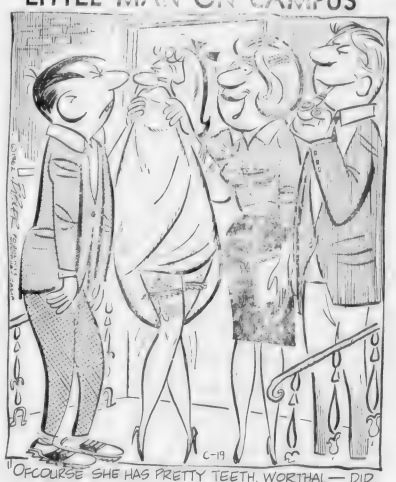
Mutterings of Morrison, (Tom W.)

I was reading some while ago in one of those Yankee magazines about Oregon's Reed College, famous for its production both of Rhodes scholars and of peculiarity in customs. Many students there reportedly do such unstylish things as refusing to shave, to wear shoes and, presumably, to apply underarm deodorant.



Come to think of it, though, right around my home area of western North Carolina there was an even jivier college which wallowed in the beginnings of pure old fashioned Beatnikism. A painter friend of mine was once working on a campus building there when, lo, upon rounding an eave he came into the presence of several coeds sunbathing quite nthe open and wearing neither a stitch of clothing nor the slightest modesty. (The foregoing, however, would be but one of the very few good points involved.) The place finally disbanded due to evaporation into an intellectual blobness that forgot how to stay accredited.

We students of PC might consider ourselves fortunate in that, like practically all other collegians, we are subject to stifling influences which disallow any capriciousness; our overlords set up standards on how to dress, act and even think, judging us largely on our compliance to the method of formalized rote as opposed to mature development in thought and understanding. This is, of course, the accepted way in today's world of concentration upon factual knowledge rather than upon any idealistic goal such as to bring into finer realization every mind's vast portion of untapped potentiality.

It is unlikely that a disgruntled student would gain final victory through bringing suit of 100 million dollars or so against our Alma Mater for misrepresentation concerning its stated objectives "to develop the full capacity of each student," "To prepare intelligent, well-informed citizens," "to stimulate scholarly growth," "To offer a broad curriculum for developing cultured men and women in the finest liberal arts tradition, "to give each individual an appreciation of the good, complete life through the highest development of his social, aesthetic and moral nature," etc.

But neither should the administration be justified in asserting the old invitation that anyone not liking it here is perfectly free to leave: for should that anyone discover that there's actually less available than what he was originally led to expect, then there naturally follows not only the right but also a duty to bring that contention to light "in the finest liberal arts tradition." Such opinions and, in fact, all modes of varying ideas must be voiced to keep dogmatism at the lowest and betterment at the highest. Unfortunate occurances have happened in the past, the picture seems to be brightening, and amen.

KAPPA ALPHA

Final plans have been made for the Christmas Dance Weekend. A Combo Party will be held Saturday afternoon featuring the "Playboys." Saturday night the party will be at the house with the "Dukes" featuring the music.

Congratulations are extended to the new pledges.

PI KAPPA PHI

Final plans have been made for the Christmas party and everyone is sure that it will be one of the best. The chapter is sure that the incoming pledges will enjoy the parties.

Congratulations to the pool team on winning second place in the tournament.

Congratulations to Phil Smith on his recent engagement to Miss Joyce Estes of Gainesville, Ga.

SIGMA NU

Congratulations to Kent Mitchell and his committee for an excellent smoker.

The chapter is looking forward to a fine pledge class and a good year in 1963.

Final plans were made for Christmas Dance Weekend, with a tea dance on Saturday afternoon and a record party at the house on Saturday night.

THETA CHI

Beta Psi Chapter is looking forward to celebrating the annual Christmas Weekend with the anticipation of its new pledges.

Activities for the weekend include a party for a cottage of urday as well as a decorating children at Thornwell on Satparty for those not attending the party at the Orphanage. Saturday evening the "Medallions" will entertain at a party to be held at the Laurens-Clinton Country Club.

A Letter From Dr. Gettys

Dear Editor:

I would like to express my sincere appreciation for the concern of the BlueStocking about academic matters affecting Presbyterian College. The recent editorials and poll concerning requirements in Bible deserve consideration.

This matter can be and will be a part of the self-study of the total curriculum of the College during the next two years. The thoroughness with which this study must be done precludes any snap judgments. Anything that might be said now would be premature.

Thank you for raising this question about an important place of our College program.

Most sincerely,
Jospeh M. Gettys,
Academic Dean

Bandits Win Pool Tourney' Retain 'Mural Point Lead

The 1962 intramural tournament was completed earlier this week and again the Bandit team made an impressive showing as they won the sary before the Bandits could defeat the Pi Kappa Phis; the teams were tied at 45 points each at the end of the regular tournament play.

Members of the three-man Bandit team were: Tony Smith from Bayside, Va., Sam Arnette from Winnsboro, and Gordan Adam from Bloomfield, Ky. The Pi Kapps were represented by Gene Akins from Atlanta, Gordan Mayhugh from Nokesville, Va., and Mitchell Dennis from Bonneau, S. C. The Bandits picked up a total of 75 points towards the Intramural trophy, while the Pi Kapps got 55 points.

The "feature" match in the playoffs was between Tony Smith of the Bandits and Gene Akins of the Pi Kapps. In a very well played match, with both boys making some fine shots, Tony Edged out Gene and the Bandits completed their second impressive showing in the intramural competition. This newly organized team won second place in the football league and retained the lead for the intramural trophy with a total of 175 points. The Alpha Sigs are second with 135 points, followed by the Pi Kappa Phis with 130.

Karlsons, Allen, and Tallent Lead Hose Over St. Andrews

The 1963 PC basketball season got underway here last night, and from all indications this looks like it's going to be a good one.

High scoring forward Andy Karlsons, guard Bill Tallent, and center Doug Allen led the Blue Hose over previously undefeated St. Andrews College of Laurinburg, N. C., heer last night. With Karlsons bombing in 20 points, Allen hitting for 19, and Tallent getting 18, the Hose won their opening game of the 1963 season by an 81-60 score.

No team held a sizeable lead until PC began to pull ahead late in the first half. At the half, St. Andrews was trailing by 11 points, 39 to 28. The PC offense went into high gear in the second half as the Blues hit for well over 60% of their field goal attempts.

As if the play of Karlsons, Tallent and Captain Paul Webb was not enough to cause smiles from Coaches Musselwhite and Williams, then the surprising showing by three freshmen certainly would. Doug Allen, Gordan Adam, and John Etchison did fine jobs whilep laying in their first college game.

Allen, a tall center from Sumter, drove home 19 points to take second high scoring honors. Doug came off the bench in the first half to score 10 points and continued his fine play with 9 points in the second half. In addition to his scoring, his defensive play and strong rebounding were outstanding.

Gordan Adam was the much needed floor leader as he consistently set up open shots and passed off for more. The little guard from Bloomfield, Ky., only scored 4 points, but his control of the team was noted as an important factor in the late first half surge which put the Hose ahead for good. He led the fast break attack which wore the Knights down.

John Etchison came off the bench mid-way through the final half to score 8 points and grab off several key rebounds. John, from Indianapolis, Ind., hit on four quick field goals and set up other clear shots with his passes.

St. Andrews was led in scoring by Guard Joe Buckner and Forward Bill Grossman. Buckner hit for 2- points, including 13 of 14 from the free throw line. Grossman scored 14 to take second place honors, followed by Speaks with 11, Maxwell with 9, and Britt with 4 ponits.

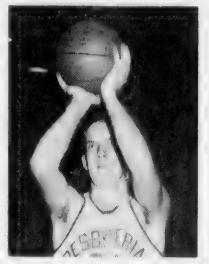
For PC in addition to Karlsons' 20, Allen's 19, and Tallent's 18 points, Paul Webb scored 8, John Etchison got 8, Gordan Adam hit for 4, and Danny Charles and Joe Harvard got 2 each.

Three Bands of Bandits?

AL PEARCE, Sports Editor

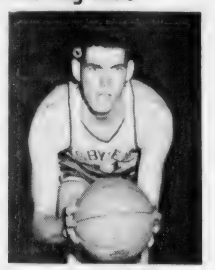
AS COMPETITION for the Intramural trophy completes its second phase, the teams that have gone under the name of the "Bandits" find themselves in a peculiar position.

THE ORIGINAL Bandit team that finished second in the football play was captained by Gerald Anders. The team that entered the Intramural pool tournament under the name of the Bandits did not include a single member of the original Bandit team. The question is now raised: Who gets the Intramural Trophy points?



THE BASKETBALL SEASON will begin just after Christmas,, and again a Bandit team will be entered. It is uncertain whether this team will have any affiliation with the other two Bandit teams. If it has none and it wins or places high in the final standings, then again: Which of the three teams, if any, will be in the lead for the Intramural trophy? If it is affiliated with them, then some quick organization is needed.

THE INTRAMURAL CONSTITUTION states that the trophy will be awarded the team that totals the largest number of points in the competition for it. The only flaw in the "Bandits' " bid for the title would be, again: Which Bandit team would get the trophy and who would keep it? The Intramural council frowns on the switching of players from team to team, and if the Bandits want to remain in competition for the trophy they should decide who is going to play for them permanently.



WE SUGGEST that the members of the original Bandit football team huddle and get some kind of organization. A capable and reliable leader should be picked from the squad. This team could then issue an invitation to any independent who wanted to play on a permanent team, and the roster that has been missing could be made up. The Bandits could then field teams from this roster for every phase of competition.

AND WE FEEL this organization would clear up the problem of independent competition for the Bandits. They could field a team in every sport from the same roster, and if they did manage to win the trophy, this Bandit team would decide among themselves what would happen to the trophy. This is obviously better than having several unaffiliated independent teams using the same name. Let's see some kind of organization from the Bandits. It would be better for all concerned.

HAPPY TALK

As we all know, conversation is terribly important on a date. When lulls in the conversation run longer than an hour or two, one's partner is inclined to grow logy—even sullen. But occasionally one finds it difficult to keep the talk going, especially when one is having a first date with one. What, then, does one do?

If one is wise, one follows the brilliant example of Harlow Thurlow.

Harlow Thurlow prepares. That is his simple secret. When Harlow is going to take out a new girl, he makes sure in advance that the conversation will not languish. Before the date, he goes to the library and reads all 24 volumes of the encyclopedia and transcribes their contents on his cuffs. Thus he makes sure that no matter what his date's interests are, he will have ample material to keep the conversation alive.

Take, for example, Harlow's first date with Priscilla de Gasser, a fine, strapping, blue-eyed broth of a girl, lavishly constructed and rosy as the dawn.

Harlow was, as always, prepared when he called for Priscilla, and, as always, he did not start to converse immediately. First he took her to dinner because, as everyone knows, it is useless to try to make conversation with an unfed coed. Her attention span is negligible. Also, her stomach rumbles so loud it is difficult to make yourself heard.

"Wash your cuffs and be my love!"

So he took her to a fine steak house where he stoked her with gobbets of Black Angus and mounds of French fries and thickets of escarole and battalions of petit fours. Then, at last, dinner was over and the waiter brought two finger bowls.

"I hope you enjoyed your dinner, my dear," said Harlow, dipping into his finger bowl.

"Oh, it was grandy-dandy!" said Priscilla. "Now let's go someplace for ribs."

"Later, perhaps," said Harlow. "But right now, I thought we might have a conversation."

"Oh, goody, goody, two-shoes!" cried Priscilla. "I been looking everywhere for a boy who can carry on a intelligent conversation."

"Your search is ended, madam," said Harlow, and pulled back his sleeves and looked at his cuffs to pick a likely topic to start the conversation.

Oh, woe! Oh, lackaday! Those cuffs on which Harlow had painstakingly transcribed so many facts—those cuffs on which he had noted such diverse and fascinating information—those cuffs, I say, were nothing now but a big, blue blur! For Harlow—poor Harlow!—splashing around in the finger bowl, had gotten his cuffs wet and the ink had run and not one word was legible! And Harlow—poor Harlow!—looked upon his cuffs and broke out in a night sweat and fell dumb.

"I must say," said Priscilla after several silent hours, "that you are a very dull fellow. I'm leaving."

With that she flounced away and poor Harlow was too crushed to protest. Sadly he sat and sadly lit a cigarette.

All of a sudden Priscilla came rushing back. "Was that," she asked, "a Marlboro you just lit?"

"Yes," said Harlow.

"Then you are not a dull fellow," she cried, and sprang into his lap. "You are bright! Anybody is bright to smoke such a perfect joy of a cigarette as Marlboro which is just chock full of yummy flavor, which has a Selectrate filter which comes in a soft pack that is really soft, and a Flip-Top Box that really flips, and which can be bought wherever cigarettes are sold in all fifty states and Duluth . . . Harlow, tiger, wash your cuffs and be my love."

"Okay," said Harlow, and did, and was. © 1962 Max Shulman

The makers of Marlboro cigarettes, who print this column at hideous expense throughout the school year, are very happy for Harlow—and for all the rest of you who have discovered the pleasures of Marlboro.

Outstanding PC Alumnus

Dr. Holman Is Dean of UNC Grad School

The Academic Deanship of The University of North Carolina's Graduate School was recently conferred upon a Presbyterian College alumnus, Dr. Hugh C. Holman. Dr. Holman's appointment becomes effective at the beginning of the spring semester next year.

An extremely versatile man, Dr. Holman has been a successful writer of mystery novels, a teacher of such diverse subjects as English and physics, a publishing house editor, a public relations director here at PC, and, also here, a college dean.

Dr. Holman's writing achievements are many. His Sheriff Macready mystery novels have been printed in several foreign languages. His work on Thomas Wolfe, the southern writer, are recognized as some of the most authoritative treatments in existence. His revision of the Thrall-Hibbard Handbook to Literature is one of the standard references for graduate English students.

He has also produced twenty three book reviews and forty-three learned articles—ranging from notes to essays—which have appeared in scholarly journals and collections.

Taking pre-med courses while here as a student, Dr. Holman recieved his B. S. degree from PC in 1930. Due to finnacial necessity while a student, he had worked eight hours a day at Joanna and also driven a school bus. Nevertheless, his score on the Medical Admissions Exam placed him in the upper 5% of all the students who took the test at the same time he did.

But instead of going to medical school, he became PC's Director of Public Relations. Soon he reached he quit this job to join the PC faculty as a Professor of English. In 1945 he was made Academic Dean by college President Marshall Brown.

When appointed Dean, Dr. Holman had not yet gotten his doctorate; but despite this fact, to Dr. Brown he seemed to be the natural choice. Dr. Brown—who also taught Dr. Holman at one time—says of him, "I secured his appointment as Dean because years of association with him had convinced me that he had a knowledge greater than that possessed by a number of men who had advanced degrees, an unusual efficiency in routine work, and a great creative talent."

In 1946, Dr. Holman left PC and went to UNC to work on his doctorate. Teaching part time to defray expenses, he spent three years working for the degree—receiving it in 1949 in American Literature. His academic average was such during this time that he was named to Phi Beta Kappa.

Dr. Holman remained at the University as an Asistant Professor of English. In 1956, he was elevated to a full professorship and, two years later, became chairman of the University's entire English Department.

During this time, his talents were also utilized in other capacities. From 1954 through 1955,he was acting dean of the College of Arts and Sciences at Chapel Hill. From 1959 to 1962, he was Chairman of the Division of Humanities of the University.

A native of Cross Anchor, South Carolina, Dr. Holman is 48 years old. He is married to the former Verna McLeod of Ocala, Florida, and they have two children, Margaret and David.

Marlboro Country

In all 50 states, the big switch is to Marlboro

Remember 1955, when Marlboro came to town? Suddenly, the U.S. had a flavor cigarette with a filter on the end. Sales grew in every town, in every state. Today the whole place is Marlboro country—land of the filter cigarette with the unfiltered taste. Behind this popularity is the famous Richmond recipe of ripe tobaccos (the finest grown), and the pure white Selectrate Filter. Pack or box, you get a lot to like.

Rush Season Enters Final Phase; Tension High as Pledge Day Nears

• Seventy-Five Freshmen Have Pledge Grades

Tension has mounted steadily this week as the 1962 rush season entered its final phase. The [illegible] sessions have begun with [illegible] Kappa Phis holding theirs [illegible] Wednesday night. Sigma Nu followed with its smoker Thursday night. Tonight the Alpha Sigma Phis entertain. Slated for Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday are the Theta Chi, Kappa Alpha, and Pi Kappa Alpha Smokers, respectively.

The Smokers led up to the climax of rush season, pledge day, which is Thursday, Dec. 6. This is the day after the last open social.

Specifically, the figures on the numbers of men that each fraternity can pledge runs as follows: Alpha Sigma Phi—24; [illegible] Alpha—29; Pi Kappa Alpha—23; Pi Kappa Phi—43; Sigma Nu—37; and Theta Chi—38.

Despite current rumor, the percent of freshmen with pledge grades this year is only 15% under that of last year. This year's figure is 62.3%—last year's was 78%. This year's freshman total maximum number of fraternities is smaller, with only one hundred men allowed. The maximized and twenty-five students main total number is 390 with an A as opposed to last year's each fraternity figured at its top total of one hundred and fifty allowable size of 65 men.

Seventy-five freshmen and four transfer students have the grade to pledge. Pledge grades consist of at least C's in three major courses (3 and 4 hour courses).

A possible total of one hundred and ninety four bids could be given by PC fraternity chapters this year. This figure was found by subtracting the total number of actual fraternity men from the maximum total number is 390 with each fraternity figured at its top allowable size of 65 men.

IFC President Bosserman Lists By-Laws Pertinent to Closed Smokers, Pledge Day

With the smoker season in full swing and pledge day is drawing near, Interfraternity Council President Alex Bosserman has requested the Blue Stocking to print the following excerpts from the 1962-63 IFC Constitution.

1.) All freshmen and transfer students in their first semester at Prsebyterian College are invtied to the fraternity smokers by special invitation only.

2.) Fraternity men are cautioned to neither associate with freshmen on the nights of other fraternities' smokers nor to in any way discourage a freshman from attending a smoker.

3.) Quiet period will begin on Dec. 5 immediately after the last smoker and will continue in respect to each individual until the allotted period for pledging is over.

4.) During the quiet period, no fraternity man will be allowed to associate with a freshman in any way.

5.) Pledging will be from 1:00 to 3:00 p. m. on Dec. 6 in Jacobs Science Hall, room 202. No fraternity men will be allowed in or near Jacobs Science Hall during the time of pledging. After the freshman has cast his pledge ballot, he will then go to the suite of the fraternity that he has chosen.

6.) Also during the pledging period, freshmen who have pledged will refrain from influencing other freshmen who have not pledged. Each fraternity is responsible for the actions of its new pledges.

PC Alumnus Kiker Heads Peace Corps Publicity

Mr. Ralph Douglas Kiker, a graduate of PC, has recently been appointed head of the Public Relations Department of the United States Peace Corps. Mr. Kiker's background reflects his literary-journalistic bent.

Mr. Kiker graduated from PC in 1952 and joined the Navy where he became an ensign. At the completion of his tour of duty he joined the Atlanta Journal as a reporter. However, feeling that reporting did not lend itself to creative writing, he rejoined the Navy. Mr. Kiker became a lieutenant, j. g. and was stationed at the WAVE Officer Candidate School.

Upon finishing this second tour of duty, he returned to the Atlanta Journal and was soon sent to Washington, D. C., as the head of the Atlanta Journal's Washington Bureau. In late spring of 1962 he became the head executive of the Public Relations Department of the United States Peace Corps, with an annual salary of $16,000.-00.

Mr. Kiker has always been a prolific writer. While serivng the Navy at the WAVE OCS he published Strangers on the Shore, which is a fictional novel concerning the peacetime Navy.

During his time with the Atlanta Journal, he wrote a fictional account of school desegregation in a mythical southern city, generally considered to be Atlanta. Fortunately his dire predictions in this book, The Southerner, did not come about in fact.

Mr. Kiker entered PC in 1947. While here he majored in English and wrote a short story which was accepted and published by the Yale Review. He was the Blue Stocking editor in the school year of '49-'50. He dropped out one semester to report for the Spartanburg Herand delaying his graduation until 1952.

Me married the former Miss Ruth Rushing in 1954, and has one daughter.

Ministerial Club Will Visit Whitten Village

PC Ministerial Club President George Reaves recently announced plans to hold a service program at Whitten Village on Monday, Dec. 3. Whitten Village is the South Carolina Home for mentally retarded children.

The club members have outlined an agenda of songs and games to entertain the children with. This is the first trip of its sort that the Ministerial Club has planned.

Five Cadets Named D.M.S.

At a special ceremony during the Nov. 14 drill, President Marshall W. brown presented five PC senior ROTC cadets with awards which designated them as Distinguished Military Students.

They are Cadet Captain William F. Bartee, Jr., Atlanta, Ga., company commander of "D" Co.; Cadet Captain Robert P. Piephoff, Greenville, S. C., company commander of "B"; Cadet Captain William W. Skinner, Decatur, Ga., S-4 Staff (Bn); Cadet Lieutenant Colonel Paul D. Woodall, Whiteville, N. C., Battalion Commander; and Cadet Captain Paul H. Yearout, Waynesboro, Va., company commander of "A" Company.

In order to receive the DMS award, the senior cadet must display outstanding qualities of leadership, maintain a high average in military science, and have an exceptional aptitude for military service.

Receivers of the DMS award must also attain a favorable report on their summer camp activities and must rank in the upper half of their class academically.

Upon graduation the Distinguished Military Student can apply for a commission as a second lieutenant in the regular army.

Former Sock Editor

Hammet Is Recognized Journalist

A journalistic past earmarked with honors belongs to Ben Hay Hammet, PC's director of Public Relations and Alumni Affairs. Mr. Hammet's career may be traced from his years as a student at Presbyterian College.

During his senior year at PC (1942-43), he edited the Blue Stocking, was a member of Blue Key, and was listed in Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities.

Both semesters of his editorship, the Blue Stocking was awarded an All-American rating, and the second semester issue of the Sock received additional recognition from the Associated Collegiate Press by being chosen to receive the All-American Pacemaker award. The Sock was one of seven campus newspapers in the nation and one of two in the South, regardless of size of the school, to receive this honor.

BEN HAY HAMMET

During the Second World War, Mr. Hammet served as an army infantryman in the European Theater of combat.

After the war, he entered the graduate school of journalism at the University of Missouri. While there, he was a member of Kappa Tau Alpha, the journalism scholastic fraternity. In 1948 he received his Bachelor of Journalism degree from Missouri and immediately joined International News Service as Southeastern Night Editor, with his headquarters in Atlanta.

Later he was transferred to Montgomery, Alabama, and became director of news coverage

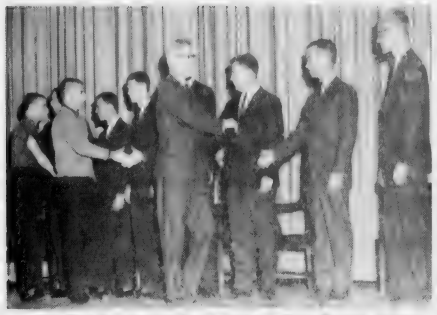
Choir Trips Begin

The Presbyterian College Robed Choir opened its traveling season last week-end with a three-day trip. This is the only three-day trip in the season.

Concerts were given at the Indiantown Presbyterian Church of Indiantown, S. C., and the First Presbyterian Church of Mullins, S. C., and Whiteville, N. C., respectively.

Commenting on the trip, the choir's director, Dr. Edouard Patte, said that he was generally very pleased with the preformances.



This Saturday the choir leaves on its second trip. Sunday morning, the choir will sing at the Park Circle Presbyterian Church in North Charleston, S. C. That evening the choir will journey to Columbia, S. C., to sing at the Forest Lake Presbyterian Church.

The Robed Choir is composed of thirty members, and is PC's official traveling choir. Members of the Robed Choir are selected from the larger Chapel Choir.

ROTC to March In Christmas Parade

The entire ROTC Cadet battalion will march in the Clinton Christmas parade Thursday afternoon, Dec. 6. The battalion will fall in on the plaza at 4:00 p. m. and then, following an inspection, will join the parade.

The course of the parade will be up Broad Street, through Clinton, and then right on Florida Street and back to the school. Marching in the parade is compulsory and will take the place of the regular drill period.

ROTC Promotions Given

The ROTC Battalion has completed its second semester reorganization and the following promotions were announced this week.

Lt. Mike Gryder has been promoted to Captain and will serve as the Battalion S-3. John Henderson has been promoted to 1/Lt. and he will serve as the assistant S-3. Others promoted from 2/Lt. to 1/Lt. include Alex Bosserman, Roe Callaway, Ken Davis, Henry Gordon, Mark Glenn, George Reaves, and Murray White.

Those promoted from Sgt. to 2/Lt. are Don Lohman and Fred Meyers. Leon Bullard has been promoted to M/Sgt. and will serve as the Battalion Sgt. Major.

Roy Autrey and Mike Lowrance have become 1/Sgts. Cpl. Mack Cobb has been promoted to S/Sgt. and Wiley Jones has been promoted to Cpl.

This semester's drills will be aimed at the preparation for the Battalion Federal Inspection March 20. After the inspection, the seniors will relinquish some of their responsibility to the juniors.

The juniors will receive a chance to become more proficient at drilling a unit. This experience is aimed at preparation for summer camp and in assuming leadership of the Battalion next fall.

Robed Choir Has Atlanta Concerts

Presbyterian College's Robed Choir pulls out tomorrow for a weekend tour of the Atlanta area.

Arriving in Atlanta Saturday afternoon, they will present a concert Sunday morning at the Rock Springs Church. Saturday night the members will be entertained by several PC Atlanta boys.

Sunday afternoon the Choir will travel across town to the First Presbyterian Church in Decatur. The choir will return to campus Sunday night.

Christian His World

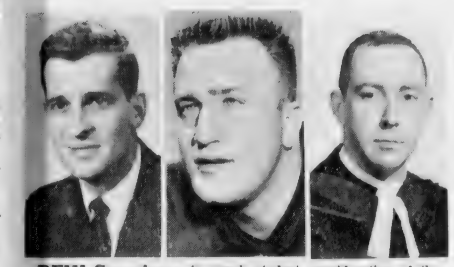
Disillusionment he said, often brings disastrous results. It is in the reality of Christ that one can experience the acceptance and the "shock of recognition" which will enable him to see himself and to move forward.

The highlight of the REW program was in the fraternity discussions in which the student could ask questions. Discussions were also held for non-fraternity men and coeds.



REW was successful in that those who actively supported the program were stimulated to consider their role as a member of the body of Christ.

As seems to be the usual case, however, the complacent PC student did not support the program. Thus, the hard work of the SCA, particularly the president, Grif Helwig, was neither recognized nor appreciated by the majority of the student body, who are more prone to criticize than to applaud any hard work.

Perhaps Mr. Perdue was only too right when he said that the "shock of recognition" is often disastrous to those who are living in the world of illusion.—RP.

Annual Religious Emphasis Week Features Outstanding Speakers

The 1963 Religious Emphasis Week is slated to start Tuesday night, February 12, SCA President Grif Helwig announced Wednesday. The theme for this year's activities is "The Responsibility of the Church in Today's Crisis and Our Responsibility to the Church."

Three outstanding ministers will visit the campus to take part in the activities. They are Rev. William R. Klein, pastor of Oakland Avenue Presbyterian Church, Rock Hill; Rev. Roland P. Perdue, III, Minister of Students, University of Georgia; and Rev. J. Raymond Lord, Associate Pastor of Millbrook Memorial Presbyterian Church, Raleigh, N. C.

The first of the services will be a panel discussion by the three speakers, moderated by Professor John S. Glover. This discussion will begin at 7:00 Tuesday night in the Douglas House Meeting Room and will be followed at 8:15 by a reception in the Game Room of Douglas House.

Mr. Klein will conduct the Wednesday morning chapel worship service. At 7:00 Wednesday evening Dr. Lord will deliver an address dealing with specific aspects of the theme of the event. Following this lecture, three of the fraternities as well as several groups of independents and coeds will have discussion periods.

Classes which normally meet at 10:00 Thursday morning have been re-scheduled for 10:00 Monday so that chapel services can be conducted on Thursday rather than Monday. Mr. Lord will speak to the student body during the Thursday chapel.

Thursday evening at 7:00 Mr. Perdue will speak. Following his address, the remaining three fraternities will conduct discussions. The Friday chapel service will be conducted by Mr. Klein. Attendance at the evening addresses and discussions will be voluntary.

The purpose of Religious Emphasis Week is to confront the students with Christianity effectively in order to induce a deepening of faith and to motivate a reassessment of values. Helwig stated, "The SCA has worked especially hard in securing effective speakers and in arranging the week's activities, and we hope that all students will take an active interest in the services."

All three of PC's guest speakers for REW have careers earmarked with honors and accomplishments.

Mr. Klein is a native of Atlanta, a graduate of Boys' High there, and an alumnus of Davidson College and Union Theological Seminary in Virginia. At Davidson he was a member of Omicron Delta Kappa leadership fraternity and Phi Delta Theta social fraternity; also, he was president of the Intefraternity Council, a Student Council Officer, and was listed in the 1951 edition of Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities.

In 1953 he graduated cum laude from Union and later that year was ordained by the Asheville, N. C., Presbytery. He was minister of the Black Mountain, N. C., Presbyterian Church for five years before going to Rock Hill in 1959.

Mr. Perduce is a native of Long Beach, California, and a graduate of College Park, Ga., High School and of the University of North Carolina.

At Carolina he was noted for his outstanding athletic ability. He was Atlantic Coast Conference and Honorable Mention All-American in 1954, and in 1955 was chosen for the ACC Scholastic Football Team.

In 1959 he received the degree of Bachelor of Divinity from Columbia Seminary, Decatur; during his senior year at Columbia he was president of the student body.

Before assuming his present duties at the University of Georgia he was minister of the Forest Park Presbyterian Church, Forest Park, Ga.

A native of Dublin, Ga., Mr. Lord graduated summa cum laude from PC in 1956. Other honors he received while a student here include the Outstanding Senior Award, the Gold P, and the Hudson Military Scholarship Award; he was also named Distinguished Military Student. He held the editorship of both the PACSAC and the Blue Stocking, was a member of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity, Blue Key, and Scabbard and Blade.

Mr. Lord attended Princeton Theological Seminary as a Rockefeller Fellow and received his B. D. from there in 1961. At Princeton he also received many honors and held various positions of leadership.

Before going to Raleigh, he served as Campus Christian Life intern and as Minister to Presbyterian Students at the University of Virginia.

Complete details concerning Religious Emphasis Week will be available in pamphlets which will be distributed to students Tuesday.

Unexpected Tragedy Overtakes Athletic Director Clyde Ehrhardt

Presbyterian College's athletic director and head coach, Clyde Ehrhardt, died abruptly last Monday when his gun discharged on him. Laurens County coroner, Marshall Pressley, has ruled the fatality of the 41-year-old coach as an accidental death.

Coach Ehrhardt's body was discovered about 7 p. m. in his car. The vehicle was parked beside a Clinton area pond where the coach had often hunted in times past.

Coach Ehrhardt had directed PC's athletic program but little over a year. Of his death, Presbyterian College's President, Marshall Brown, said:

"I speak for myself, the Presbyterian College faculty and the entire community when I say that we were all deeply shocked and grieved by the sudden death of Clyde Ehrhardt. He had the confidence of all members of his athletic teams.

"In my opinion, every single teacher and every staff member of Presbyterian Colege liked Coach Ehrhardt and was delighted to have him on our faculty. He also was very popular with our alumni, who were strongly behind him and his program.

"I told Clyde only recently that he had tenure here—that as far as I was concerned, he had a lifetime job at PC."

Clyde Ehrhardt was born to Laura Heidle Ehrhardt in Bradwell, Ky. He spent much of his youth in Murfreesboro, Tenn., and attended Morgan Prep. Going to the University of Georgia, he starred in both the Rose Bowl and the Orange Bowl.

He was graduated with a B. S. degree and immediately entered the U. S. Army. He served as an infantry company commander in Europe during World War II and was twice wounded.

Highly decorated for his services, Ehrhardt received the Distinguished Service Cross, Silver Star, Bronze Star, Commendation Medal, and Purple Heart.

Following the war, Ehrhardt played center for the Washington Redskins. With the outbreak of the Korean War in 1950, he was called back to Army duty. He was successively an instructor at Ft. Benning, Ga., and then an intelligence officer on the Eighth Army Staff in Korea.

In 1953 he returned to civilian life and attended Peabody College where he obtained an M. A. in 1954. He then joined Frank Jones at Decatur High School—teaching at the school and serving under Jones as assistant coach.

When Jones came to PC in 1957, Coach Ehrhardt came with him. Coach Ehrhardt became athletic director and head coach when Jones resigned those positions in December, 1961.

Class Change Made

Academic Dean Joseph Gettys announced that classes which normally meet at 10:00 Thursday morning have been re-scheduled for 10:00 Monday morning so that chapel services can be conducted on Thursday rather than Monday. Mr. Lord will speak to the student body during the Thursday chapel.

Tau Phi Pi To Meet Monday

Tau Phi Pi plans to show a movie as its next program, announced Louis Powell, president of PC's honorary service fraternity. The film will be on genetics.

The program is scheduled for February 11, at 7:30 p. m., and will be held in the Jacobs lecture room. Any interested students may attend.

Phifer Nominated As Sock Editor; Gaston, Jones Vie For Bus Mgr.

At a special meeting of the Blue Stocking staff Wednesday night, editor and business manager nominees were selected for the next two semesters' paper.

The sole nominee for editor is Bob Phifer, a sophomore from Spartanburg. Phifer served as a reporter last year and has been news editor for the first semester this year. Phifer, a pre-med student, has been on the Dean's List consistently.

Concerning the policy he intends to follow, Phifer said, "I intend to make every effort to render the Blue Stocking more of a team enterprise and less of the work of just a few. I would like to create a more unified, more efficient paper which its staff members will be more proud to work on. As with all past editors, I shall ever strive to improve the writing skills of the paper's very able writers—always hoping, myself, to grow along with them."

Two other sophomores, Bill Gaston of Chester, and Wiley Jones of LaGrange, Ga., were selected to run for business manager.

Gaston gained experience in high school where he handled all money and sold ads for the yearbook. Jones has been assistant business manager of the Blue Stocking for the past two semesters.

The election of these nominees will take place in the Douglas House Wednesday from 9:00 a. m. until 2:00 p. m. The student council is in charge of this election.

A Few Last Words...

Some Thanks

I AM GLAD in this last editorial to be able to drift from the terse tone and rigid form of the objective editorial to give some personal last words and thanks to those who over the past year have so aided and supported me.

MIRACULOUSLY, the Blue Stocking has endured for yet another year. A year ago there were some doubts and fears (in my own mind, too) as to whether the Sock would survive and if so in what shape. I felt many personal inadequaries to the task of making the Sock not only survive but prevail and that it has in some measure done so is due to the tremendous help rendered by many.

THE PRECEDING EDITOR, Graham Edmunds, helped me get my feet wet and at te same time prevented me on several occasions from "drowning."

Murray White has been more than an excellent business manager; his knowledge of journalism and of the campus have been my most indispensible support.

A BIG SHARE belongs to Bob Phifer, Jim Barbour, and Al Pearce who were news feature and sports editors, respectively last semester, and to Wirt Skinner, Richard McFadden and Loren Eagles for ably handling the same positions last year.

THE STAFF at the Chronicle are known to but few of the student body but their interest in and efforts for the paper have far exceeded business obligations. The money they are paid for printing the paper is small beside the great service they have rendered.

THE LARGEST THANKS of all, however, is to those people who have been so numerous as to make it impossible to cite them all here who have diligently performed the menial, time-consuming, tedious tasks involved in publishing a paper. Those who have reported and typed and folded papers get scarcely a word of thanks and no recognition for their efforts while the editors receive credit for much of what they have done. To these fine persons I can only express my deepest gratitude.

Some Landmarks

SOME FEW THINGS stand out in my mind as being the chief achievements of the paper in the past year. First that the sock has in some measure dealt frankly and fairly with issues which needed to be faced and that the response to the student body has been overwhelmingly gratifying. This continuing of real interest in what the paper says is the most important thing gained to be maintained.

THAT THE BLUE STOCKING rejoined the South Carolina Collegiate Press Association is a real landmark of the year. Also the building of a qualified staff for the next editor has been important.

Especially, I am glad that we paid a living tribute to Coach Ehrhardt this fall. His loss is a tragedy to the college.

MOST ESSENTIAL of all, I think, to the future success of the Sock is that it be both fair and unafraid to be controversial when the situation calls for it.

Some Concern

I HAVE in the past year learned much about PC through the role of newspaper editor. The incessant "wolf at the door" for a small liberal arts college is obscurity.

SHOULD PC ever fall victim to this wolf it would be primarily from not having kept pace with the improvements in methods, faculty, curriculum and equipment being affected by the nation's foremost colleges. There is presently some concern over whether PC will do so though it is too soon to tell which she will ultimately be, outstanding or obscure. She is truly at the crossroads.

MOST DANGEROUS of all is that healthy, balanced growth and improvement will be jeopardized and restricted by policies formulated sy the Administration and Trustees which are incongrous with the liberal arts purpose of providing well-rounded education for all of the students. The excessively heavy outlay of funds in some areas has obviously been beyond the college's means and has not been directed toward "developing to the fullest the potential of every student."

FOR PC to imitate a university would be doom whereas it is possible not only for the small college to hold its own but to prevail.

Percival Crudely's Movie Listings

Scarcely had I started cramming for essential course in Snacktime 496 (10 hours credit) when into my room burst Percival Crudely, former associate editor of the Blue Stocking currently on leave of absence.

"D. P., Ole buddy! Whatcha been doing since you got back?"

"Well, I've got this required course in . . ."

"Say, talking about courses, I landed in a dilly this semester, D. P."

"Oh yeah; what is it, P. C.?"

"Well, it's called Introduction to Modern Christian Thought and . . ."

"They do, huh. Gee, I never knew that."

"Whatcha say, D. P.?"

"Oh, nothing, P. C., go on."

"Well, we've been reading what a lot of those Modern Thoughters say about the Bible and it's really disturbing, D. P. I mean, I couldn't repeat what any of 'em said, but it's pretty narrow, I assure you."

"I can imagine."

"What I wanted to see you about, D. P., was this idea of mine."

"O. K., shoot, P. C."

"Well, I was reading Dorothy Kilgallen's column on Hollywood the other day when I says to myself, 'This chick isn't going to live forever and when she passes on someone's going to have to take her place as the self-appointed critic of the Hollywood scene and' . . ."

"Hold it, P. C."

"Let me finish, D. P. Now I'll bet that if I were writing a column like that those starlets would do just anything to get mentioned in it, so if I start writing one in the Blue Stocking I can expand and be ready to fill Dot's shoes. She's getting up there, you know."

"I don't know, P. C."

"We can call it 'Crudely Speaking.'"

"Quite."

"I brought along my first entry."

"Let's see it, P. C."

Letter To Students

John Henderson Speaks Out

Dear PC Student,

There was an election and before the election there were nominations. Friend asked friend and fraternity brother asked fraternity brother to run for an office on the SCA cabinet.

A slate was made up, campaign speeches were made during a chapel period, the PC student body applauded these speeches and then on the following Wednesday the student body voted for the candidate of their choice.

The student body asked these people to head up an SCA Council which would plan certain activities for the student. The President organized and began the work similar to that which had been done in previous years.

[illegible] was the Fr[illegible] SCA [illegible]. The Student Directory [illegible] was gotten out on time, and the calendar which most students have on their wall.

[illegible] there is the [illegible] [illegible] the name of Religious Emphasis Week which we as students elect this council to plan. The council has done this. The council has followed the tradition of presenting a question dealing with religion and have asked a group of speakers to try to answer this question. However, the planners find themselves troubled for they do not seem to have the support they had at election time.

That friend and fraternity brother that smiled, encouraged and later congratulated the candidate seems to have changed his attitude. "Sure it is a good thing," the student says. "It makes the professor slow down the homework schedule and it even gives the

Blue Cagemen Seek to Vindicate Little Four Setbacks Tomorrow

• Host Newberry at PC

The first home basketball game of the second half of the 1963 basketball schedule will be played in [illegible] Springs Gym Saturday night at 8:00 when PC plays host to the Indians of Newberry College.

The Blue Hose will be seeking their second Little Four win of the campaign, after defeating Wofford in the first half of the year. If the Hose can defeat Newberry here Saturday night, they will climb out of last place in the conference.

The Hose have lost to Erskine twice and Newberry once, while gaining Wofford as their only Little Four victim. PC's over-all record is now 4-9 with 8 games remaining in the schedule. The conference record stands at 1-3.

Presbyterian will be led in Saturday night's game by Andy Karlsons, a Junior forward from New York City, who is averaging just over 17 points per game and about 6 rebounds. He will be aided by Senior guard Paul Webb of Olive Hill Ky., who is hitting at 14 points per game and 17 rebounds.

Freshman center Doug Allen of Sumter is scoring at a 10 points per game clip while collecting 9 rebounds to lead the team in that department.

The rest of the starting line-up will include Freshman guard Gordon Adam from Bloomfield, Ky., who is scoring 9 points per game and is leading in assists, and Freshman forward Jochen [illegible] from Indianapolis, Ind., who is scoring just over 6 points per game.

Karlsons also is leading the team in free throw percentages with a .750 mark. Valuable reserve Jim McGuire from Washington, D. C., is leading the team in field goal accuracy with 11 for 21 for a .786 figure.

Newberry College will be led by [illegible] who is averaging [illegible] points per game for the Indians. He is followed by Tom Crump, who scored 14 points in their last game against powerful Lenoir-Rhyne.

Dave Hawk, another Newberry starter, is leading the NAIA district in shooting percentage for starters with a 65% mark. The Indians and PC have met once this season already, with Newberry winning at home on January 8.

KA's Slip By Buckshots; PikA's, Pounders Run Wild

Three top intramural games were played here last night, with two of the games being routs, but a third going undecided down to the final second of play.

In the evening's first game, the Pounders ran over the Rebels by a 49-26 score. Led by Dewey McReynolds' 14 points and Jackie Nix's 11 points and team leadership, the Pounders ran up a 9-point margin at the half and continued to win going away.

The Pounders dominated the backboards and scored many points from close in. The Rebels were led by Johnny Morrison's 12 points, which were just under half of the team's total. "Hoppy" Hopkins hit for 7 and got most of the Rebels' rebounds.

In the "feature" game of the night, the KAs and the Buckshots battled right down to the final second before the KAs could claim a 1-point victory. The 30-29 win for the KAs didn't come until Tommy Williams sank two free throws to pull his team from a 1-point deficit. Williams led the team in scoring with 15, followed by 6 for Frank King, and 5 for Jimmy Elliott.

The hard-luck Buckshots were led by Bill Waldrep's 10 points and Gene Moyer's 9. Milton Fulton and Tom Cook also scored to complete the Buckshots' 29-point effort.

In the final game of the night the PikAs completely crushed the Bandits' second team by an 85-30 score. "Moose" Brown of the PikAs hit for 32 points himself to personaly outscore the entire Bandit team.

He was followed in the scoring by Leighton Grantham's 18 points and 10 points by Wayne Fowler.

Although the Bandits' scoring was evenly balanced, the total was not nearly enough. Allan Callaway hit for 9 points to lead the effort, followed by Wayne Hopper and Reggie Awtrey who had 6 each. Al Pearce who had 5, and "Daddy" Grant and Wiley Jones with 2 each.

Racqueteers Begin Spring Practice

The 1963 edition of the Presbyterian College tennis squad will get an early start this year when the team begins spring practice next week. The team wass chedduled to begin workouts on Tuesday of this past week, but the death of Coach Ehrhardt caused the postponement.

This year's squad is thought of as one of the best in recent years at PC.

Coach Warden wants to remind all PC students that for the remainder of the semester, the tennis team will have first choice on courts 1, 2 and 3. Students who expect to play on these courts will have to give them up in the afternoons when the team is practicing.

A Void

AL PEARCE, Sports Editor

THIS WAS a large man who stood before "his" boys in the locker room under LeRoy Springs Gymnasium on Thanksgiving Day last. He had just seen these boys suffer through their ninth loss in a ten-game football season. The loss was a hard one to take for this big man. He was the Head Coach. He was Clyde Ehrhardt.

TEARS CAME to the eyes of "Coach" as he talked to the boys about the season. It had been a disappointing season for all concerned, but for this Head Coach, it was a season not to be fretted over, but to be forgotten. Better things were to come. He knew it and all who knew him knew it. It is ironic and tragic, then, that for "Coach," these things never came.

THE DEATH of Coach Ehrhardt is ironic in that it came the day before he was going to begin working on these "better things" that he felt would come. Spring football practice was to begin on Tuesday. "Coach" was taken from us on Monday. No one had any idea that he would not be down on the practice field with "his" boys when the time came for instruction and advice. He was a man who could instruct a boy in both blocking and tackling and in being a man. He was this kind of a coach, the kind you read about but never meet. For those who did meet him, he is a man to be never forgotten.

IT HAS BEEN SAID that one could leave this town today and spend the rest of his life looking for another Clyde Ehrhardt. That would be a fruitless search, for there is no other Clyde Ehrhardt. It has also been said that he could have remained at PC for many years, loved and respected as the man he was whether or not his teams ever won a game. These are two truisms that no one who ever met "Coach" could deny.

CLYDE EHRHARDT was a big man. He was not only big in stature, but in character and spirit and heart. He didn't like to lose, but he felt that there were sometimes more lessons to be learned in defeat than in victory. He wasn't one to re-hash a lost football game. He was the kind who would look to the future and even find brightness in defeat. There is no brightness to be seen in his death.

"COACH" WAS without a doubt the most popular member of the athletic department. He was the most popular man in the department since Walter Johnson. His death leaves a void that no other man will be able to fill. He taught good, clean, tough football. More importantly, he taught the good, clean life. He wasn't the kind of a man to criticize a boy constantly. His soft manner and warm understanding often made a better football player out of a boy than did all the combined yelling and embarrassment that some use. This same warmth and understanding always made better men out of the boys he coached. He was loved and respected by all on campus and everyone in Clinton. He will be greatly missed.

It is not our place to ask why he was taken from us. It is just for us to thank God that we had him here at all. His influence will be felt by all who knew him.

College Reaches $1,800,000 Goal

The record fund-raising campaign ever conducted by Presbyterian College and the Synod of South Carolina was brought to a successful close on December 31 as the goal of $1,800,000 was finally reached.

President Brown announced that individual and church gifts had secured the $1,650,000 needed to claim a challenge grant of $450,000 from the Richardson Foundation of New York City.

The combined total assures PC of sufficient funds for its first woman's dormitory, a new dining hall, a science hall and $700,000 more in endowment.

The campaign opened last spring and raised $1,200,000 before efforts were suspended for the summer vacation period. Then shortly after the opening of the fall term, the school received the challenge grant, cutting the amount needed by the year end deadline to $450,000.

Alumni living outside South Carolina gave much of the impetus to the final push and more than $150,000 came in during the last two weeks of 1962 to put the campaign "over the top."

The Synod of Georgia, which shares ownership of the college, is planning to hold its campaign for Presbyterian within the next few years.

The opening phase of PC's long-range development program in 1955-57 produced $1,550,000 from both synods. These funds were used to construct Belk Auditorium, Bailey Dormitory, and the Douglas House.

Four Receive Army Lieutenant's Bars

Four PC students were commissioned into the Army over semester breaks in a brief ceremony in Dr. Brown's office last Monday. Bob Wylie, Jack Williams, Joe Nixon and Rick Saunders received their 2nd Lieutenant's bars.

After a short speech by Col. Thackston and a farewell talk by Dr. Brown, the students and their parents were honored at a small reception in the college library.

Williams and Nixon will be stationed at Fort Sill, Oklahoma, while Rick Saunders is in Emory Law School. Bob Wylie will fulfill his military obligation in Hawaii.

But you know the brothers seem to enjoy it and get something out of it after they get started. But these lectures—"Well, I just don't have time," or "I am not interested in religion."

This week is a time for asking and a time for thought. We are college students, a group which is supposed to be broadening our horizons with education. Let us take this opportunity and support RE Week.

If we don't what will we tell our friend or fraternity about "support" when we try to coerce him into running for an office next month.

THE CURSE OF THE CAMPUS: NO. 1

Hate me if you will, but I must speak. We college types are far too complacent. Sure, we've got plenty to be proud of. We've got atom smashers, we've got graduate schools, we've got new peaks in scholarship, new highs in academic honors. And yet, in the midst of these triumphs, we have failed dismally to make any progress in solving the oldest and most horrendous of all campus problems: we've still got roommates.

To be sure, all roommates are not bad. There is the well-documented case of Hilquit Glebe, a student at the Manhattan College of Agriculture, majoring in curds and whey, who admitted publicly that he actually liked his roommate—an odd admission when you consider that this roommate, Mervis Trunz by name, was frankly not too winsome a fellow. He practiced his tympani in his room, he kept an alligator, and he collected airplane tires.

But, on the other hand, Mervis bought two packs of Marlboro Cigarettes every day and gave one of them to Hilquit and—I ask you—who can stay mad at a man who gives you Marlboro Cigarettes? Who, upon tasting that flavorful blend of Marlboro tobaccos, upon drawing through that pure white Marlboro filter, upon exulting in this best of all possible cigarettes, Marlboro—who, I say, can harden his heart against his neighbor? Certainly not Hilquit. Certainly not I. Certainly not you, as you will find when you scurry to your nearest tobacconist and buy a supply. Marlboros come in soft pack or Flip-Top Box. Tobacconists come in small, medium, and large.

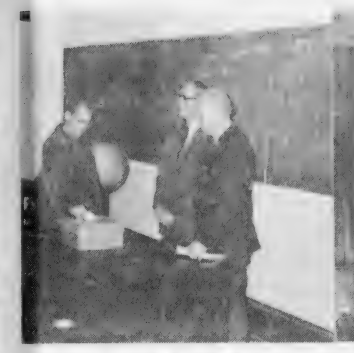
Today Molly is paying off her debt...

But I digress. Roommates, I say, are still with us and I fear they always will be, so we better learn how to get along with them. It can be done, you know. Take, for instance, the classic case of Dolly Pitcher and Molly Madison.

Dolly and Molly, roommates at a prominent Midwestern girls' school (Vassar) had a problem that seemed insoluble. Dolly could only study late at night, and Molly could not stay awake past nine o'clock. If Dolly kept the lights on, the room was too bright for Molly to sleep. If Molly turned the lights off, the room was too dark for Dolly to study. What to do?

Well sir, those two intelligent American kids found an answer. They got a miner's cap for Dolly! Thus, she had enough light to study by, and still the room was dark enough for Molly to sleep.

It must be admitted, however, that this solution, ingenious as it was, had some unexpected sequelae. Dolly got so enchanted with her miner's cap that she switched her major from 18th Century poetry to mining and metallurgy. Shortly after graduation she had what appeared to be a great stroke of luck: while out prospecting, she discovered what is without question the world's largest feldspar mine. This might have made Dolly very rich except that nobody, alas, has yet discovered a use for feldspar. Today Dolly, a broken woman, squeezes out a meagre living making echoes for tourists in Mammoth Cave.



Nor has Molly fared conspicuously better. Once Dolly got the miner's hat, Molly was able to catch up on her long-lost sleep. She woke after eight days, refreshed and vigorous—more vigorous, alas, than she realized. It was the afternoon of the annual Dean's tea. Molly stood in line with her classmates, waiting to shake the Dean's hand. At last her turn came, and Molly, full of strength and health, gave the Dean a firm handshake—so firm, indeed, that all five of the Dean's knuckles were permanently fused.

The Dean sued for a million dollars, and, of course, won. Today Molly, a broken woman, is paying off her debt by walking the Dean's cat every afternoon for ten cents an hour.

We, the makers of Marlboro and the sponsors of this column, will not attempt to expertize about roommates. But we will tell you about a great pocket or purse mate—Marlboro Cigarettes—fine tobacco, fine filter, fine company always.

Rush Week Ends As New Greeks Pledge

KA'S Pledge 14 Freshmen; Alpha Sigs Second With 13

Fifty freshmen and new men cast their pledge ballots for the fraternities of their choice as formal rush activity on the campus reached its climax yesterday. Seventy-four of the one hundred twenty-four men in the freshman class had grades necessary for pledging.

Kappa Alpha Order led the six fraternities in number of pledges, with fourteen freshmen accepting its bids. Second was Alpha Sigma Phi with thirteen pledges: Theta Chi ranked third with eight new men. Pi Kappa Alpha's seven pledges place it fourth: Sigma Nu was fifth with five, and Pi Kappa Phi gained three new men to place it in sixth position.

Freshmen who pledged are as follows:

Kappa Alpha: William Akers, III, Patterson W. Brown, James T. Darby, Glenn C. Hodges, Richard D. Hughes, Charles A. Meriwether, Grover C. Mixon, Albert C. Snipes, Daniel M. Taylor, James R. Wilkerson, William H. Warnock, Michael W. Smith, Roy A Wright,

Alpha Sigma Phi: Charles W. Blount, Robert C. Epps, John R. Georgius, Jospeh P. Goldsmith, Samuel T. Grey; Earl P. Guy, Erik T. Johnson, Melvin E. Kirby, Jr., Woods M. McGinn, Roland F. Matson, Charles T. Segers, James B. Stanford, and Samuel C. Waters.

Theta Chi: William H. Adams; Olin C. Covington, William M. Fortney, William G. Kellam, Rone M. Lewis, III, James S. Murchison, Hubert G. Wardlaw, Jr., Jack W. Westall, Jr.

Pi Kappa Alpha: John O. Etchison, John A. Kuhne, Donand T. McNeill, Joseph P. Olmert, Benjamin R. Pickens, Jr., Wade P. Stewart, and Walter B. Todd.

Sigma Nu: Douglas E. Allen, Robert K. Harris, Howard B. Letzring, Neill A. Lindsay, III, and Robert A. Stack.

Pi Kappa Phi: James H. Smith, III, Robert G. Hodgkin, III, John E. Fagen, IV.

IFC President Alex Bosserman stated that this year's rush has probably been the best ever on this campus because there have been few conflicts between the fraternities. "The lack of conflicts during this rush season further emphasizes the excellent relations between the six fraternities on our campus," stated Bosserman.

Mr. Earl B. Halsall, a member of the faculty committee on fraternities, emphasized that all of the chapters on campus have room for expansion before meeting the sixty-five member maximum established by the fraternity committee and the IFC. Mr. Halsal also stated that it is his desire to see more PC men as members of fraternities, and that probably more freshmen will pledge after first semester. Mr. Halsall said, "The selectivity naturally entailed in rushing and bidding is very necessary, but our fraternities must choose from the men on our campus and not from an unknown ideal. Selectivity carried to an extreme is ridiculous."

Yesterday's pledge activities rank the Alpha Sigs first in number of members, with 55; PiKA is second with 52; KA is third with 51; Theta Chi places fourth with 35; Sigma Uu is now fifth with 32 members; and Pi Kappa Phi's 27 men put it in last position.

PC Sends Five Delegates To Student Legislature

PC students were "politiking" in the state's capital city last week. Over a three-day period beginning last Thursday, five upperclassmen attended meetings of the South Carolina Student Legislature. During the last day, PC was voted in by the Legislature as an offical member.

6 Delegates from PC chosen by the Student Council were: David Harrill, Wayne Fowler, Sandy Hagood, Randy McCranie, and Leighton Grantham. Harrill and Fowler served as senators while the other other three were representatives. PC has sent men in times past but this is the first meeting at which the college was a participating member.

The Student Legislature is set up to acquaint students with the procedures of democratic government. The Student Legislature is modeled after its real counterpart—the South Carolina State Legislature. Bills and resolutions are brought up and discussed and finally voted upon.

Qualifications for office holding in the mock assembly are determined by how well delegates from each college arrange for debate pre-selected bills and resolutions. It is usual, although not always necessary, that students have attended at least four prior meetings.

Specific attention was given to the questions of capital punishment and whether the State Governor should be allowed to succeed himself for a second term. Students decided against capital punishment and voted to allow the Governor to serve two consecutive terms.

The Student Legislature also curbing Communism. The points passed a resolution aimed at of the resolution outlined a plan for people to be educated in the specific differences between Communism and Democracy—with emphasis on starting this education as soon as possible, perhaps as early as the second grade.

Arts Exhibit Is Thursday

PC's Fine Arts Department is on the way.

At least that was Dr. Edouard Pattes' hope as he announced Presbyterian College's first fine arts exhibit. Twenty-five to thirty canvases will be displayed from four to six p. m. in the studio at Dr. Patte's house this coming Thursday. Dr. Patte's house is located at 301 South Adair Street.

Most of the paintings are modern, impressionistic works. A few are classical—being of landscapes and other scenes.

Dr. Patte, who is sponsoring the studio, feels that the paintings reveal some promising talent. More important, he feels that the interest shown has possibly laid the foundation of what may well be the Fine Arts Department of Presbyterian College.

Christmas Holidays

Christmas holidays will begin on Saturday, December 15, at 2:00 p. m., and will end on Wednesday, January 2, at 6:00 P. M. Classes will begin at 8:00 A. M. on January 3, 1963, announced Academic Dean Dr. Jospeh M. Gettys, this week.

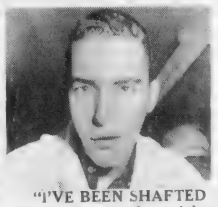
Mrs. D. Moorefield Joins English Dept.

Mrs. David R. Moorefield, the wife of Dr. Moorefield of the Philosophy Department here, has joined PC's English Department. She replaces Dr. Emmet Kilpatrick who has recently retired.

Mrs. Moorefield, who is originally from Darlington, S. C., received her B.A. from Wells College in Aurora, New York, and earned her M.A. at the University of Michigan.

Aside from private tutoring, this is her first teaching job. She is now teaching two sections of English Composition, 101, and two sections of English Literature, 201.

The Moorefields were married in June of 1961 and have one son, six months old.



Mr. Neal E. Prater has temporarily replaced Dr. Kilpatrick as head of the English Department.

Rivieras Will Play For Dance Tonight

Dates arrived in Clinton this afternoon to help Presbyterian College launch the annual Christmas Dance Weekend. Students and their drags will begin the weekend festivities with the Chrsitmas Dance which is being held at the Clinton National Guard Armory. The dance features the Rivieras of Charlotte to provide music from 8 until 1. The school is sponsoring the dance and therefore there will be no admittance price.

New pledges and their dates will join with their fraternities tomorrow afternoon in their respective suites. Some fraternities are planning to entertain Thornwell children with gift parties in order to help make their Christmas a happier one.

Fraternities have scheduled dance parties tomorrow night to cap off the gala weekend. Off campus parties figure heavily on the agenda for Saturday night. Only two fraternities, Kappa Alpha and Sigma Nu, will stage their parties here on campus. The PiKA's announced plans for a party in Greenwood, where they have rented a whole floor of the Hotel Greenwood.

The Legion hut here in Clinton will be the scene of the Pi Kappa Phis' party. The Theta Chis have secured the Lakeside Country Club. For their party, the Alpha Sigs have rented the vacated theatre house directly beneath their fraternity suite.

Chemists Receive Gas Chromatograph

Last week the Chemistry Department installed a $3000 machine capable of analyzing mixtures of gases and volatile liquids. The machine, which is called a gas chromatograph, was bought with the aid of a National Science Foundation Matching Grant.

According to Dr. Carter, the use of the machine, developed within the last ten years, has become of principal importance in the world of chemistry. Almost any chemical journal published today has at least one-third of its articles dealing with gas chromatographs.

This machine will be used principally by the advanced chemistry classes. One use the Organic class will make of it is in the analysis of alcohol-water mixtures obtained by a fermentation process carried out in the laboratory.

Speaking of REW.

"WE'VE GOT TO GET that old time religion," was the topic of this little-noticed speaker during REW."

Major Requisites Stated

The Academic Advisory Committee recently clarified an issue concerning grades in major departmental requirements and courses. All courses prescribed for a major in any department and any additional courses necessary to complete the total hours of the major must be passed with a grade of "C" or better.

The Academic Committee also approved and adopted at a recent faculty meeting. Reiterating the present practice, the faculty voted again not to allow re-exams to any student who has completed his final examinations.

Former Sock Editor Lists Top Articles

by RONE LEWIS

The [illegible] renewed an old [illegible] week by asking the former editor to pick the ten most significant articles that appeared in the Blue Stocking during his year of editorship. He has done so, naming them in no particular order.

The participation in Wirt Skinner's poll on Cuban intervention was surpassed only by the accuracy of the article's forecast. Interest of the student body has been as evident as it was during that week.

Exile Government

In the same vein, Ashley Halsey's speech on Cuban exile government added fuel to the fire. As proof of interest, one could see considerably fewer sleepers in chapel that day.

Almost 20 years ago the Blue Stocking withdrew from the South Carolina Collegiate Press Association. Recently it again joined this organization, with the feeling that the Sock will benefit from the reunion.

The opinion of the campus was freely expressed in the poll concerning Bible requirements. Opinions varied widely, but most students expressed a desire that the last two semesters be open to choice, rather than a definite requirement.

Blue Key

The editorial, "Stand Up and Be Counted, Blue Key," was at least one of the most memorable articles of all.

Dr. Whitelaw's reminiscence of his longtime friend Dr. Gray, will always be remembered for its appropriateness and simplicity.

"What About Physical Education" summed up President Kennedy's opinion on physical fitness; and perhaps when the obstacles are overcome, a program will be fitted into the curriculum of PC.

Completion of the fund-raising campaign has shown the backing of the college by Presbyterians in South Carolina. The first two phases of the building plan have been completed. The third phase will greatly change the appearance of our campus, and by 1980, former graduates will have difficulty in recognizing the College.

Ehrhardt

This past fall, an article appeared on the experiences of Clyde Ehrhardt. Few persons on campus knew of the interesting past of this pro-football, warhero coach of our football team.

Al Pearce gave to the Blue Stocking an article that expressed the warm feelings of many of the late Clyde Ehrhardt. In a way, this article filled "The Void."

These ten articles were selected as being most significant to our campus life. DuPont chose these articles as the "top ten" of the Blue Stocking for '61-'62.

Board of Directors Changes Alumni Day

The Board of Directors of the Presbyterian College Alumni Association met Tuesday, Feb. 18, to plan the alumni program for the coming year. Richard Carpenter of Greenville, vice-president of the Association, called the meeting to order with nine members present.

It was decided to hold the Alumni Reunion during the Homecoming week in the fall rather than at spring commencement. The date for Homecoming was selected as November 2, tors. In fact, in one particular major field the student has only a single instructor; and this instructor holds only a M. A.

This situation behooves PC to join numerous other institutions who make it compulsory for professors to have their doctorate within a set period of time. If the small size of the school inhibits this, then it should at least be mandatory for department heads. In some manner present faculty members must be given the incentive and the means to obtain higher degrees, and those with these degrees drawn to the college.

Progress

This is, of course, a matter of finance. Already great strides have been made. Though still not up to the National average, faculty salaries have been raised markedly in the last five years. Over one-third of the funds from the recent drive will be allotted to this cause, as will eight million of the projected twenty-five-year plan be delegated for scholarship aid and faculty salaries. But is this enough? The faculty must receive top priority in PC's future, for in essence without this emphasis there will be no future. New buildings are of no consequence if within them dilute education is contained.

The faculty, above and before all others, must be given maximum attention in the selection of its members, in the preservation of its academic freedom, and in the finances that insure its excellence. Once this tandard is set, Presbyterian will start the ascent toward its peak of educational attainment.

A Valentine?

Giovanni, as he clasped Ralph's ankles, kissing them violently. "Yooo have given me ze wondorful idee that all Americans weel anjoy. I weel give them a bariety and a spice of ze life and zey weel truly know ze reel joy of a good libing!!"

SHORTLY afterwards, Giovanni went to see his third great uncle twice removed to ask for funds so that he could sail to the "New World" with his discovery. After much begging by Giovanni, Modigliano Grossaladio Bocancania Geribaldi Valentino agreed to slip him a loan on one condition.

The little Italiano must name his wine after his ninth great-great aunt on his fourth stepfather's side, six times removed, which is "Valentine." With his fist full of gold coins, the little Italiano hysterically bounded out of his great uncle's castle screaming, "Hail to zee, O my Lady Balentine, for I now go to ze America with-a-my new Balentine wine!"

The fat boy sailed for the land of pleasant living with his new cargo of Balentine wine.

GIOVANNI was lucky. The wind was stiff and the sails kept tight and he scooted across the Atlantic in only a month and fourteen days. The sight of the Chesapeake Bay thrilled him so much that he couldn't refrain from doing his favorite Bulgarian rope dance in the crow's nest.

On February the fourteenth he landed on the Maryland shore and all the thirsty, greedy crowd waded out to greet him with three great "Rahs."

"Gime-a-me your bored, your weary, your zirtsy masses among all of yous, for I have brung you a very many Balentine."

Today, thousands of Giovanni's cans and bottles pop open every year on February fourteenth and America sits down to foam it up with their Valentines.

Student Election Taps Gaston Blue Sock Business Manager

Editor Race Uncontested

Bill Gaston of Chester defeated Wiley Jones of LaGrange, Ga., in student body elections on Wednesday to elect the position of Blue Stocking Business Manager.

The voting also officially gave Bob Phifer of Spartanburg the editorship of the weekly student newspaper. The top post was uncontested.

Phifer received a vote of confidence from nearly all of the 227 students casting ballots.

The election followed nominations last week by members of the Blue Stocking staff.

Gaston, a sophomore, gained experience in high school where he was business manager for his senior yearbook. He is a member of Pi Kappa Alpha social fraternity.

Phifer, a rising junior, is a pre-medical student who has consistently appeared on the Dean's List.

The newly elected leader of the paper will assume the helm with next week's edition. Staff members will be announced at that time, according to editor-elect Phifer.

DuPont Smith and Murray Whitt stepped down this week as editor and business manager, respectively, following a year in these positions.

Bridge Event Set On Monday Night

An intramural bridge tournament has been announced by Gene Goodwyn, intramural chairman.

The event is scheduled for Monday night of next week and is to be under the supervision of Taylor Martin. Goodwyn expects close to a dozen teams to participate, including a strong representation from Calvert House.

The intramural council is also looking into the idea of an invitational tournament with the top intramural teams from nearby schools to be held at PC.

PK's Induct Group On Monday Evening

A Company, 4th Regiment, Pershing Rifles, at Presbyterian College welcomed twenty-two pledges into brotherhood Monday night. This was the largest number ever to be taken into the brotherhood at one time.

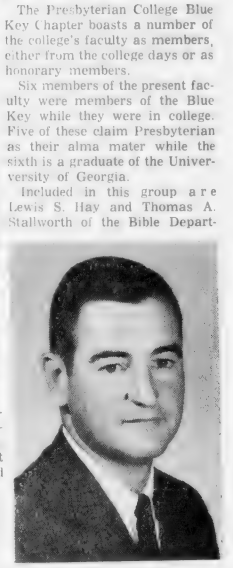
Other initiates are: Don Hardee, Dave Dunlap, Jim Barnhardt, Tommy Leland, Henry Lovett, Roy Wright, Robert Stack, Jim Murchison, and "Woody" McGinn.

To become brothers, the pledges must complete the pledge training, attend PC for one semester and receive a satisfactory grade on drill tests.



The Pershing Rifles unit consists of MSIII and MSIV students who compose the staff, and MSI and MSII students who make up the drill team. The drill team will begin second semester practice soon, highlighting standard military and ceremonial drill.

Blue Key Lists Faculty Members

The Presbyterian College Blue Key Chapter boasts a number of the college's faculty as members, either from the college days or as honorary members.

Six members of the present faculty were members of the Blue Key while they were in college. Five of these claim Presbyterian as their alma mater while the sixth is a graduate of the University of Georgia.

Included in this group are Lewis S. Hay and Thomas A. Stallworth of the Bible Department, G. Edward Campbell and Ben Hay Hammet of the administrative staff, and William F. Tiller and Jimmy Vickers of the coaching staff.

Thomas A. Stallworth

Among the honorary members on the faculty are Dean A. J. Thackston, Dr. Alex Stump, Vice-President James M. Oeland, President Marshall W. Brown, Dr. Neill G. Whitelaw and Kenneth N. Baker.

Dean Hudson Orchestra Is Signed For Military Ball

The Scabbard and Blade has signed the Dean Hudson Orchestra for Military Ball which will be held at the National Guard Armory April 6.

Dean Hudson, a former member of several big-name bands, heads the orchestra which includes seventeen pieces. The orchestra plays a variety of music and includes a Dixieland Band. Featured is Miss Nancy Paree, vocalist.

This past summer, Dean Hudson was awarded a certificate for twenty years of broadcasting over CBS radio. On January 15 the group played for the Inaugural Ball for Governor Sanders of Georgia.

Dean himself is a co-writer of "Moon Over Miami," and "Organ Grinders Swing."

Military Ball weekend will be highlighted by a parade Friday afternoon which will replace drill for that week, and the Ball on Saturday night. Officers of the Cadet Corps and their sponsors will be presented at the Ball.

All students who have not paid Military Ball assessments are reminded to do so as soon as possible. Money will be collected at drill each week.

There will be no school-wide dance on this weekend as each of the fraternities on campus will be having individual parties at various locations around Clinton.

Bosserman, who is also the chairman of the Central Dance Committee, urged all students to maintain the usual level of good conduct in order to continue good relations with townspeople.

Plans for the final Central Dance Committee sponsored weekend are still in the tentative stage. This Spring Dance Weekend will feature a school-wide dance and will be during the first part of May.

Greeks Schedule March IFC Weekend

Alex Bosserman, the president of the IFC, announced this week final plans for IFC Weekend, which is set for March 1-2.

According to Bosserman the purpose of this weekend is to fill the social void which existed between the beginning of second semester and the Military Ball.

Chapel Services Announced for Week

The schedule for chapel services next week as announced today includes:

Monday — Thomas A. Stallworth, Chapel Devotion.

Wednesday — Chapel Speaker, Col. Powell Fraser, Former U. S. Army Military Advisor to Formosa.

Friday—Kenneth Davis, Chapel Devotion.

PC Alumnus

Powell Fraser To Speak Wednesday

Col. Powell A. Fraser, Presbyterian College alumnus who has distinguished himself in army service, will speak to the PC student body next Wednesday morning from his background of recent duty as military adviser to Chinese Gen. Chiang Kai-shek on Formosa.

He is scheduled to make his address at 10:00 a. m., February 20, in Belk Auditorium.

Col. Fraser, now in his 22nd year of army service, returned to the United States and a Pentagon job last fall after spending more than two years as assistant chief of staff for personnel of the US Army Military Assistance Advisory Group, Republic of China. He now serves with the office of personnel operations, Department of the Army, in Washington.

While holding posts of distinction in the army, Powell Fraser also has been prominent in promoting religious activities among the service men. He is popular as a speaker and twice shared the platform with Billy Graham at Presbyterian Men's Conventions of recent years.

Col. Fraser is a 1941 graduate of Presbyterian College. He entered the Infantry and World War II immediately upon receiving his degree, and served with the 32nd Division in the Pacific for more than 600 days of combat. The Army Public Relations Office reported that he "spent more hours under fire during World War II than any other officer who served in the US Armed Forces."

Fraser

He was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross, Silver Star, and Bronze Star for heroism.

Powell Fraser returned to PC to be professor of military science for four years, 1946-50, then was moved on to assignments with the Army Advisory Group, Air Command and Staff College, Maxwell Air Force Base, Ala.; a three-year European tour of duty; and commander of the 13th Infantry, Ninth Division, for three years. He has attended the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, and immediately prior to going to Formosa, the Army War College at Carlisle Barracks, Pa., the highest school under army control.

A native of Brunswick, Ga., Col. Fraser is married to the former Annelle McCall of Florence. They have a son and daughter.

Tau Phi Pi Adds Nine New Members

Tau Phi Pi Science Society met Monday night in the Jacobs Hall Lecture Room.

The program included a movie, furnished by the Bell Telephone Corp., entitled "The Thread of Life." The movie was one of Bell Telephone's Science Series Films which presented a survey of the field of genetics.

During this meeting nine new members joined the society which requires a C average and twelve hours of lab sciences for membership.

New members are: Brownlee Lowry, William Loeble, Jack Greenwood, William Gaston, Wesley Lawton, Susanna Jeanes, Janet Maddox, Byron Brown and Dee Hodges.

Annual Blue Key Edition

THE BLUE KEY PRESENTS

Editorials : Features : Humor

The Cancer of Apathy

The Blue Stocking election this week begins the annual "election season." During the next two months, the Student Body will choose the men who are to fill the various offices on the campus. In the past there has been very little interest shown in these elections.

The apathy which the Student Body as a whole shows toward campus elections is a reflection upon the character of our students. We have the privilege to govern ourselves and to choose the leaders of the major organizations, but many of us do not take advantage of this privilege.

It is regretful that many of the voters who turn out are only interested in backing a fraternity brother and not in seeing the best man elected to the office. Although I realize that in most instances the voter feels that his fraternity brother is the best qualified man, I feel sure that in many cases the "fraternity" voter has not given the other candidates due consideration as to their qualifications for the office. This situation also leads to voting against a man because of his fraternity and not because the voter feels he is less qualified.

Once a candidate has been elected, we also tend to lose interest in the office and the organization until election time the next year. Lack of interest and support on the part of students cause many of the organizations on campus to function below the level for which they were designed. It is very demoralizing for the person who has been elected to an office to find little or no interest and support from the Student Body in helping him carry out the program of his organization which is in reality functioning for the students.

In this year's elections, the Blue Key hopes that each student will feel his responsibility as a member of the student body to vote and that he will vote for the candidate he feels is the best qualified regardless of anything else. We also hope that each of you will support the new leaders and their organizations. The organizations on our campus can function in the successful manner for which they were intended only if we give them our support.

In Other's Shoes . . .

The ten members of the Blue Key chapter have a great deal more respect for the job of putting out The Blue Stocking after this past week. For the first time in a number of years the time for the annual Blue Key edition came around to find the Blue Key with no one experienced in newspaper work to any great extent. But with a lot of enthusiasm and little know-how we set out and you now have the result before you.

Many times the thought has passed through our minds, "What if we had to do this every week?" You can rest assured that we uttered a tremendous sigh of relief when the final copy of this issue rolled off the press at the Chronicle this afternoon.

This week has been one full of experience for us all and you can be sure that none of us will take the Blue Stocking for granted, as indeed, no student should. The Blue Key takes its hat off to those—past and future—who do this job week after week.

Key Poll Reveals . . .

Students Oppose Last Minute Quizzes

The Blue Key recently conducted a poll on campus to obtain student body feeling about the possibility of having a day's respite between the final day of classes in the semester and the beginning of finals.

This possibility would entail the student body's returning to campus two days early for the beginning of the following semester.

In this poll students were also given the opportunity of expressing an opinion favoring the present system of giving finals.

The turnout was a little disappointing to the Blue Key. Out of the student body only 252 votes were cast, including 152 ballots in favor of the proposed change.

Varying comments were expressed by the student body. Several said that the break would be very advantageous to the students who would be industrious enough to use the time for study.

Others thinking in terms of a week instead of one day, suggested that the school calendar be altered so that there would be no hour quizzes given during the week prior to final exams. This way, the student could use that week for his exam preparation. No one objected to having the final hour quizzes, they simply stated that they would not object if the quizzes were given one week earlier.

Criticism of that final week of quizzes was by far the most frequently expressed comment

One balloteer even went so far as to suggest staying a week later in the summer to take exams.

Ninety-three students voted against the proposed plan. One frequently expressed opinion was that if students were given this day of grace, it probably would be wasted.

Several students who voted against the suggestion also proposed that there be no quizzes during the week prior to finals. Consideration of the elimination of the semester break was also offered as a possible solution.

A small number of students had comments to make, but did not vote either way. Their comments concerned hour quizzes the week prior to final exams.

A number of football players were indifferent to any change since they have to be here so early in August anyway. Of course, several wild statements were received from the seniors who would not be affected by any change.

The concensus seems to be that a day of grace between the end of classes and the beginning of finals would be helpful. Even if it were not used for study purposes, there would not be as much pressure at the beginning of exams. There would probably be no need for a day of rest, however, if the faculty would consent to not giving hour quizzes the week immediately preceding exams.

"—WELL, DIDJA EVER STOP TO THINK THAT THIS 'F' JUS' MIGHT REFLECT A PRETTY POOR JOB OF TEACHING?"

REW in Retrospect

The Christian, His World And His Responsibility

Religious Emphasis Week ended this morning as Bill Klein preached on "What Does the Church Demand of Me?" in chapel. The REW program, which began last Tuesday evening with a panel discussion, included chapel services, group discussions, and personal counseling.

In a real attempt to reach the college student, the SCA invited speakers who are closely acquainted with young people in their pastorates. The over-all theme of the week was "The Responsibility of Christ's Church in Today's Crisis and Our Responsibility in the Church." Each speaker repeatedly emphasized that each Christian is responsible not only in the Church, but as the Church.

In beginning the week's activities, Mr. Klein stated that the world is hungry, and the Church must give it meat for its spiritual bones.

The Rock Hill minister went on to say that the function of the Church is not primarily economic, political, or social. Rather, it is to tell the good news of Christ's offer of salvation to man. "All men are helpless and can do nothing without the help of Christ who offers himself freely to us," he said.

Ray Lord from Raleigh pointed out that to be a Christian is to be a part of Christ's body. A Christian cannot live outside the Church. Man must communicate with God, but he must also communicate with other men. He must remain an individual and a part of the Church at the same time.

In bringing the theme of REW home to the college student, Roland Perdue said that crisis is a time for self-evaluation.

Because of outside pressures, everybody suffers from illusions of conformity, and one can understand himself only when these illusions are recognized.

Key Salutes Coed For Campus Service

by Blue Key Staff Member

Credit is not often given to minority groups. Presbyterian College's coeds contribute much to campus activities. Blue Key would like to salute one of them.

Outstanding in the coed ranks is Christine Wilson, a senior from Monroe, N. C., who has done as much as is possible for a coed on the male-oriented PC campus.

During the past year she has served as vice-president of the SCA and has been instrumental in preparation of REW. She was the coed representative on the Freshman Board of Control.

A member of WF and Tau Phi Pi, Christine served as associate editor of The Blue Stocking. Majoring in mathematics, she is a Dean's List student and a member of the Sophomore Academic Society.

Christine has in addition aided many other organizations through hours of typing and secretarial work.

Presbyterian Tradition?

LOREN EAGLES, Sports Editor

It is good to be back at my typewriter writing a sports column for the Blue Stocking again after so long a layoff. During my year as Sports Editor I found that the weekly column was a good place to express my opinions, both good and bad, concerning the many phases of athletics at PC.

And we quote . . .

Here is a quote from the Presbyterian College Constitution Art. IV, Sec. 2 concerning Cheerleaders: ". . . and shall uphold the traditional Presbyterian Spirit. In addition, it shall be their responsibility to lead organized cheering at basketball games."

What is the "traditional Presbyterian spirit" spoken of so highly? One has to think back a few seasons to remember any real spirit here at PC. You seniors remember how old Leroy Springs Gym used to shake at every home basketball game with a good representation of the student body there. One cannot claim that this was because we had a better team then than we do now. That team of 1959-60 won only three ball games throughout the entire season.

Not so in past . . .

The feeling of apathy which seems to exist today concerning our basketball team was if not altogether absent a few years ago, present to a much lesser degree. What has brought this feeling on at PC during the last few years? Is it that there are few if any students here now who can remember a winning Blue Hose basketball team?

If this is the excuse it is a lame one. PC has perhaps its best material in a number of years on the team this year. They lack mainly experience among other things. This lack leads to unsureness on the court. Nothing can erase this feeling from a player's mind any quicker than knowing that his fellow students are behind him whether he is winning or not as long as he gives his best.

Shall it continue? . . .

PC has only three more games this season and all are home games. Let's get out and let them know that we are behind them and make the old gym really rock like it used to when the traditional Presbyterian spirit was so prevalent. It would also be something which has not been seen at PC since my freshman year if the cheerleaders would put in an appearance at the ball games as they are required to do by the school constitution.

Eleven Home Games On '63 Baseball Schedule

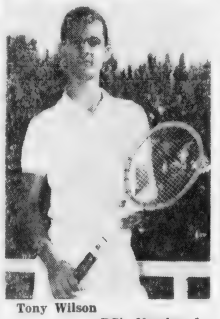
Presbyterian College will play an 18-game baseball schedule, including 11 home tilts, during the 1963 season which opens March 20, Coach Billy Tiller announced today.

The Blue Hosemen open with Erskine at Due West, and wind up diamond action against Furman May 13 at Greenville.

There are three newcomers to PC's schedule this spring, and all three—Virginia Military Institute, East Carolina, and Eastern Kentucky State—will meet the Presbyterians at Clinton. Eight games are slated against Little Four opponents.

Here is PC's 1963 schedule:

March 20—Erskine at Due West; 22—East Carolina at Clinton; 26—Erskine at Clinton; 29—Virginia Military Institute at Clinton; 30—Virginia Military Institute at Clinton.



April 2—Wofford at Clinton; 5—Erskine at Due West; 10—Newberry at Newberry; 19—Eastern Kentucky State at Clinton; 20—Belmont Abbey at Clinton; 22—Furman at Clinton; 25—Erskine at Clinton; 27—Mercer at Clinton; 30—Wofford at Spartanburg.

May 3—Mercer at Macon, Ga.; 7—Newberry at Clinton; 9—Belmont Abbey at Belmont, N. C.; 13—Furman at Greenville.

Alpha Sigs	3	0
Pi Kapps	2	0
Wrecks	2	3
Theta Chis	1	2
Bandits (1)	1	4
Snakes	0	4

Tony Wilson . . . PC's Number 1

Wilson Is Cast As Preseason Favorite

Senior tennis star Tony Wilson from Scarsdale, N. Y., is set to enter his third consecutive season as the number one player on PC's tennis squad.

Wilson, who as a freshman played in the number two position behind Harry Hoffman, was runner-up in the number one position in the State Tennis Tournament last year. He was defeated by Bobby Burns of Clemson College, who graduated, leaving Tony in the pre-season favorite's role for the 1963 tournament.

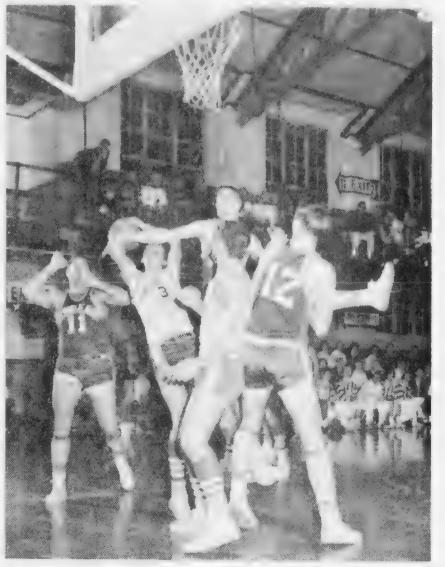
During the 1962 season Tony was one of the outstanding number one players in the Southeast. He held outstanding victories over the number one players from Harvard, Georgia, Florida, and Rollins. Against Miami's number one player, Ron Mandelstan of South Africa, he played one of his closest matches of the year.

Intramural Basketball Tourney Slated For Courts on March 26

PiKA Squad Downs Pounders, 54-46

Intramural Chairman Gene Goodwyn announce this week that the intramural basketball tournament has been set to begin on March 26.

The tournament will be a double elimination affair with the top four teams in each league participating. The first place team in the Red League will meet the fourth place team in the Blue League, while the second place team in the Red League will meet the third place team in the Blue League. The top two teams in the Blue League will meet the third and fourth place teams in the Red League similarly.



In the top game of this past week's limited schedule, the PiKA's defeated the Pounders 54-46 to take over undisputed possession of first place in the Blue League. The game was nip and tuck until midway in the second half when the PiKA's pulled away. With the score 42-41 in favor of the Pounders, the PiKA's hit for 10 straight points to sew up the victory

Leading the PiKA's were "Moose" Brown and Bill Russell with 21 and 11 points, respectively, while Dewey McReynolds had 17 for the losers.

In other action this past week the Bandits (1), led by Bubba Lenoir, and C. J. Ray with 12 points apiece, defeated the Snakes 43-25. Bunky Hanks led the losers with 7 points. Pete Yearout led the Sigs to a 46-26 victory over the Buckshots with 16 points. George Salvo led the Buckshot scoring with 11 points.

In another close game the Rebels defeated the Bandits (2) 33-31. Hoppy Hopkins led the winners with 12 points, while Allen Callaway had 18 for the losers. The PiKaps remained undefeated as they downed the Wrecks 57-21. Knot Culpepper led the scoring with 19 for the PiKaps while Buddy Underwood had 10 for the Wrecks.

Johnson and Bill Riner were high scorers for the winners with 11 and 10 points, respectively, while Ken Acker with 14, and Dave Welborn with 13 were the leaders for the Theta Chi's.

Basketball Year To End With Three Home Games

The 1962-63 basketball season enters its final stages for the Presbyterian College Blue Hose as they face three opponents, two of which already hold victories over them.

Tomorrow night the Hose take on the Bears of Mercer University in Leroy Springs Gym. Next week the PC squad will meet the Pembroke Indians on Tuesday night and take on their last Little Four competition of the season, the Wofford Terriers, the following night.

This will leave only a make-up game with the Crusaders of Belmont Abbey the following Monday night in Gastonia, N. C., to complete the 1962-63 schedule.

In action this week the Hose took two victories to improve the season's record to 6 victories and 11 losses. In a come from behind victory last Monday night the Hose defeated Georgia State College 54-43. State held the lead at the half, but the Blue Hose led by Captain Paul Webb with 22 points, stormed into the lead in the closing minutes to take their sixth victory.

Wednesday night the Hose, on a two-day trip in North Carolina, took a close victory from St. Andrews College. The big Blue took an early lead and maintained it throughout the game. Leading the Blue Hose scoring was Andy Karlsons with 21 points, Captain Paul Webb and guard Bill Tallent were also in double figures with 17 and 16 points respectively in the 82-77 win.

The following night the Hose were overpowered by a strong Pembroke zone defense. Behind by nine points at the half 33-24 PC fell further behind in the second half with the final score 39-57. Andy Karlsons once again led the scoring for the Blue Hose with 17 points.

Track Squad Season Given

The Presbyterian College track team opens a ten-meet schedule with Wofford College on March 30 on Johnson Field, according to Coach Jimmy Vickers.

With only three home meets the Blue Hose thinclads will be pointing toward the News-Piedmont Relays on April 13 and the State Meet on May 4.

The schedule is as follows:

March 30 — Wofford College, home.

April 2—Lenoir Rhyne, home.

April 6—Carolina-State Relays, Columbia.

April 10—Davidson, home.

April 13 — News-Piedmont Relays, Greenville.

April 20—Furman, Greenville.

April 23 — Wofford, Spartanburg.

April 27—Davidson Relays, Davidson.

May 4—State Meet, Columbia.

May 11—NAIA, Greensboro, N. C.

Disillusionment he said, often [illegible] disastrous results. It is in the reality of Christ that one can experience the acceptance and the "shock of recognition" which will enable him to see himself and to move forward.

The highlight of the REW program was in the fraternity discussions in which the student could ask questions. Discussions were also held for non-fraternity men and coeds.

REW was successful in that those who actively supported the program were stimulated to consider their role as a member of the body of Christ.

As seems to be the usual case, however, the complacent PC student did not support the program. Thus, the hard work of the SCA, particularly the president, Grif Helwig, was neither recognized nor appreciated by the majority of the student body, who are more prone to criticize than to applaud any hard work.

Perhaps Mr. Perdue was only too right when he said that the "shock of recognition" is often disastrous to those who are living in the world of illusion.—RP.

REW Speakers to spark student consideration of the church's responsibility in our current critical times and what responsibility members in turn owe to the church. L-R, the Reverends: William R. Klein, Roland P. Perdue, and J. Raymond Lord.

Annual Religious Emphasis Week Features Outstanding Speakers

The 1963 Religious Emphasis Week is [illegible] to start Tuesday night, February 12, SCA President Grif Helwig announced Wednesday. The theme for this year's activities is "The Responsibility of the Church in today's Crisis and Our Responsibility to the Church."

Three outstanding ministers will visit the campus to take part in the activities. They are Rev. William R. Klein, pastor of Oakland Avenue Presbyterian Church, Rock Hill; Rev. Roland P. Perdue, III, Minister of Students, University of Georgia; and Rev. J. Raymond Lord, Associate Pastor of Millbrook Memorial Presbyterian Church, Raleigh, N. C.

The [illegible] of the services will be a panel discussion by the three speakers, moderated by Professor John S. Glover. This discussion will begin at 7:00 Tuesday night in the Douglas House Meeting Room and will be followed at 8:15 by a reception in the Game Room of Douglas House.

Mr. Klein will conduct the Wednesday morning chapel worship service. At 7:00 Wednesday evening Dr. Lord will deliver an address dealing with specific aspects of the theme of the event. Following this lecture, three of the fraternities as well as several groups of independents and coeds will have discussion periods.

Classes which normally meet at 10:00 Thursday morning have been rescheduled for 10:00 Monday so that chapel services can be conducted on Thursday rather than Monday. Mr. Lord will speak to the student body during the Thursday chapel.

Thursday evening at 7:00 Mr. Perdue will speak. Following his address, the remaining three fraternities will conduct discussions. The Friday chapel service will be conducted by Mr. Klein. Attendance at the evening addresses and discussions will be voluntary.

The purpose of Religious Emphasis Week is to confront the students with Christianity objectively in order to induce a deepening of faith and to motivate a reassessment of values. Helwig stated, "The SCA has worked especially hard in securing effective speakers and in arranging the week's activities, and we hope that all students will take an active interest in the services."

All three of PC's guest speakers for REW have careers carmarked with honors and accomplishments.

Mr. Klein is a native of Atlanta, a graduate of Boys' High there, and an alumnus of Davidson College and Union Theological Seminary in Virginia. At Davidson he was a member of Omicron Delta Kappa leadership fraternity and Phi Delta Theta social fraternity; also, he was president of the Intefraternity Council, a Student Council Officer, and was listed in the 1951 edition of Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities.

In 1954 Mr. Klein graduated cum laude from Union and later that year was ordained by the Asheville, N. C., Presbytery. He was minister of the Black Mountain, N. C., Presbyterian Church for five years before going to Rock Hill in 1959.

Mr. Perduce is a native of Long Beach, California, and a graduate of College Park, Ga., High School and of the University of North Carolina.

At Carolina he was noted for his outstanding athletic ability. He was Atlantic Coast Conference and Honorable Mention All-American in 1954, and in 1955 was chosen for the ACC Scholastic Football Team.

In 1959 he received the degree of Bachelor of Divinity from Columbia Seminary, Decatur; during his senior year at Columbia he was president of the student body.

Before assuming his present duties at the University of Georgia, he was minister of the Forest Park Presbyterian Church, Forest Park, Ga.

A native of Dublin, Ga., Mr. Lord graduated summa cum laude from PC in 1956. Other honors he received while a student here include the Outstanding Senior Award, the Gold P, and the Hudson Military Scholarship Award; he was also named Distinguished Military Student. He held the editorship of both the PaC-SaC and the Blue Stocking, was a member of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity, Blue Key, and Scabbard and Blade.

Mr. Lord attended Princeton Theological Seminary as a Rockefeller Fellow and received his B. D. from there in 1961. At Princeton he also received many honors and held various positions of leadership.

Before going to Raleigh, he served as Campus Christian Life intern and as Minister to Presbyterian Students at the University of Virginia.

Complete details concerning Religious Emphasis Week will be available in pamphlets which will be distributed to students Tuesday.

Unexpected Tragedy Overtakes Athletic Director Clyde Ehrhardt

Presbyterian College's athletic director and head coach, Clyde Ehrhardt, died abruptly last Monday when his gun discharged on him. Laurens County coroner, Marshall Pressley, has ruled the fatality of the 41-year-old coach as an accidental death.

Coach Ehrhardt's body was discovered about 7 p. m. in his car. The vehicle was parked beside a Clinton area pond where the coach had often hunted in times past.

Coach Ehrhardt had directed PC's athletic program but little over a year. Of his death, Presbyterian College's President, Marshall Brown, said:

"I speak for myself, the Presbyterian College faculty and the entire community when I say that we were all deeply shocked and grieved by the sudden death of Clyde Ehrhardt. He had the confidence of all members of his athletic teams.

"In my opinion, every single teacher and every staff member of Presbyterian Colege liked Coach Ehrhardt and was delighted to have him on our faculty. He also was very popular with our alumni, who were strongly behind him and his program.

"I told Clyde only recently that he had tenure here—that as far as I was concerned, he had a lifetime job at PC."

Clyde Ehrhardt was born to Laura Heidle Ehrhardt in Bradwell, Ky. He spent much of his youth in Murfreesboro, Tenn., and attended Morgan Prep. Going to the University of Georgia, he starred in both the Rose Bowl and the Orange Bowl.

He was graduated with a B. S. degree and immediately entered the U. S. Army. He served as an infantry company commander in Europe during World War II and was twice wounded.

Highly decorated for his services, Ehrhardt received the Distinguished Service Cross, Silver Star, Bronze Star, Commendation Medal, and Purple Heart.

Following the war, Ehrhardt played center for the Washington Redskins. With the outbreak of the Korean War in 1950, he was called back to Army duty. He was successively an instructor at Ft. Benning, Ga., and then an intelligence officer on the Eighth Army Staff in Korea.

In 1953 he returned to civilian life and attended Peabody College where he obtained an M. A. in 1954. He then joined Frank Jones at Decatur High School—teaching at the school and serving under Jones as assistant coach.

When Jones came to PC in 1957, Coach Ehrhardt came with him. Coach Ehrhardt became athletic director and head coach when Jones resigned those positions in December, 1961.

Class Change Made

Academic Dean Joseph Gettys announced that classes which normally meet at 10:00 Thursday morning have been re-scheduled for 10:00 Monday so that chapel services can be conducted on Thursday rather than Monday. Mr. Lord will speak to the student body during the Thursday chapel.

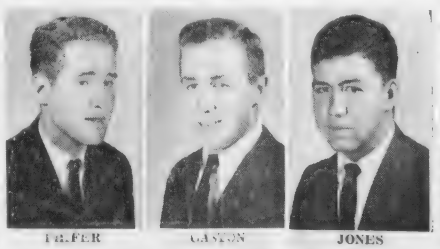
Tau Phi Pi To Meet Monday

Tau Phi Pi plans to show a movie as its next program, announced Louis Powell, president of PC's honorary service fraternity. The film will be on genetics.

The program is scheduled for February 11, at 7:30 p. m., and will be held in the Jacobs lecture room. Any interested students may attend.

Phifer Nominated As Sock Editor; Gaston, Jones Vie For Bus Mgr.

At a special meeting of the Blue Stocking staff Wednesday night, editor and business manager nominees were selected for the next two semesters' paper.



The sole nominee for editor is Bob Phifer, a sophomore from Spartanburg. Phifer served as a reporter last year and has been news editor for the first semester this year. Phifer, a pre-med student, has been on the Dean's List consistently.

Concerning the policy he intends to follow, Phifer said, "I intend to make every effort to render the Blue Stocking more of a team enterprise and less of the work of just a few. I would like to create a more unified, more efficient paper which its staff members will be more proud to work on. As with all past editors, I shall ever strive to improve the writing skills of the paper's very able writers—always hoping, myself, to grow along with them."

Two other sophomores, Bill Gaston of Chester, and Wiley Jones of LaGrange, Ga., were selected to run for business manager.

Gaston gained experience in high school where he handled all money and sold ads for the year-book. Jones has been assistant business manager of the Blue Stocking for the past two semesters.

The election of these nominees will take place in the Douglas House Wednesday from 9:00 a. m. until 2:00 p. m. The student council is in charge of this election.

ROTC Promotions Given

The ROTC Battalion has completed its second semester reorganization and the following promotions were announced this week.

Lt. Mike Gryder has been promoted to Captain and will serve as the Battalion S-3. John Henderson has been promoted to 1/Lt. and he will serve as the assistant S-3. Others promoted from 2/Lt. to 1/Lt. include Alex Bosserman, Roe Callaway, Ken Davis, Henry Gordon, Mark Glenn, George Reaves, and Murray White.

Those promoted from Sgt. to 2/Lt. are Don Lohman and Fred Meyers. Leon Bullard has been promoted to M/Sgt. and will serve as the Battalion Sgt. Major.

Roy Autrey and Mike Lowrance have become 1/Sgts. Cpl. Mack Cobb has been promoted to S/Sgt. and Wiley Jones has been promoted to Cpl.

This semester's drills will be aimed at the preparation for the Battalion Federal Inspection March 20. After the inspection, the seniors will relinquish some of their responsibility to the juniors.

The juniors will receive a chance to become more proficient at drilling a unit. This experience is aimed at preparation for summer camp and in assuming leadership of the Battalion next fall.

Robed Choir Has Atlanta Concerts

Presbyterian College's Robed Choir pulls out tomorrow for a weekend tour of the Atlanta area.

Arriving in Atlanta Saturday afternoon, they will present a concert Sunday morning at the Rock Springs Church. Saturday night the members will be entertained by several PC Atlanta boys.

Sunday afternoon the Choir will travel across town to the First Presbyterian Church in Decatur. The choir will return to campus Sunday night.

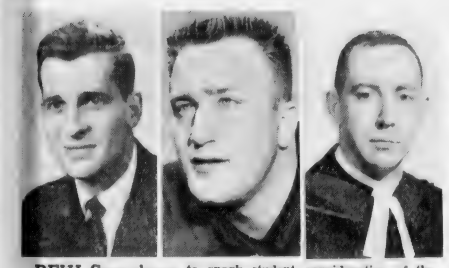
Disillusionment, he said, often becomes disastrous results. It is in the reality of Christ that one can experience the acceptance and the "shock of recognition" which will enable him to see himself and to move forward.



The highlight of the REW program was in the fraternity discussions in which the student could ask questions. Discussions were also held for non-fraternity men and coeds.

REW was successful in that those who actively supported the program were stimulated to consider their role as a member of the body of Christ.

As seems to be the usual case, however, the complacent PC student did not support the program. Thus, the hard work of the SCA, particularly the president, Grif Helwig, was neither recognized nor appreciated by the majority of the student body, who are more prone to criticize than to applaud any hard work.

Perhaps Mr. Perdue was only too right when he said that the "shock of recognition" is often disastrous to those who are living in the world of illusion.—RP.

REW Speakers to spark student consideration of the church's responsibility in our current critical times and what responsibility members in turn owe to the church. L-R, the Reverends: William R. Klein, Roland P. Perdue, and J. Raymond Lord.

Annual Religious Emphasis Week Features Outstanding Speakers

The 1963 Religious Emphasis Week is slated to start Tuesday night, February 12, SCA President Griffin Helwig announced Wednesday. The theme for this year's activities is "The Responsibility of the Church in Today's Crisis and Our Responsibility to the Church."

Three outstanding ministers will visit the campus to take part in the activities. They are Rev. William R. Klein, pastor of Oakland Avenue Presbyterian Church, Rock Hill; Rev. Roland P. Perdue, III, Minister of Students, University of Georgia; and Rev. J. Raymond [illegible] Associate Pastor of Millbrook Memorial Presbyterian Church, Raleigh, N. C.

The first of the services will be a panel discussion by the three ministers, moderated by Professor Louis S. Glover. This discussion will begin at 7:00 Tuesday night in the Douglas House Meeting Room and will be followed at 8:15 by a reception in the Game Room of Douglas House.

Mr. Klein will conduct the Wednesday morning chapel worship service. At 7:00 Wednesday evening Mr. Lord will deliver an address, with specific application of the theme of the event. Following this lecture, three of the fraternities as well as several groups of independents and coeds will have discussion periods.

Classes which normally meet at 10:00 Thursday morning have been rescheduled for 10:00 Monday so that chapel services can be conducted on Thursday rather than Monday. Mr. Lord will speak to the student body during the Thursday chapel.

Thursday evening at 7:00 Mr. Perdue will speak. Following his address, the remaining three fraternities will conduct discussions. The Friday chapel service will be conducted by Mr. Klein. Attendance at the evening addresses [illegible] will be voluntary.

The purpose of Religious Emphasis Week is to confront the students with Christianity objectively in order to induce a deepening of faith and to motivate a reassessment of values. Helwig stated, "The SCA has worked especially hard in securing effective speakers and in arranging the week's activities, and we hope that all students will take an active interest in the services."

All three of PC's guest speakers for REW have careers earmarked with honors and accomplishments.

Mr. Klein is a native of Atlanta, a graduate of Boys' High there, and an alumnus of Davidson College and Union Theological Seminary in Virginia. At Davidson he was a member of Omicron Delta Kappa leadership fraternity and Phi Delta Theta social fraternity; also, he was president of the Intefraternity Council, a Student Council Officer, and was listed in the 1951 edition of Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities.

In 1954 Mr. Klein graduated cum laude from Union and later that year was ordained by the Asheville, N. C., Presbytery. He was minister of the Black Mountain, N. C., Presbyterian Church for five years before going to Rock Hill in 1959.

Mr. Perduce is a native of Long Beach California, and a graduate of College Park, Ga., High School and of the University of North Carolina.

At Carolina he was noted for his outstanding athletic ability. He was Atlantic Coast Conference and Honorable Mention All-American in 1954, and in 1955 was chosen for the ACC Scholastic Football Team.

In 1959 he received the degree of Bachelor of Divinity from Columbia Seminary, Decatur; during his senior year at Columbia he was president of the student body.

Before assuming his present duties at the University of Georgia, he was minister of the Forest Park Presbyterian Church, Forest Park, Ga.

A native of Dublin, Ga., Mr. Lord graduated summa cum laude from PC in 1956. Other honors he received while a student here include the Outstanding Senior Award, the Gold P, and the Hudson Military Scholarship Award; he was also named Distinguished Military Student. He held the editorship of both the PaC-SaC and the Blue Stocking, was a member of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity, Blue Key, and Scabbard and Blade.

Mr. Lord attended Princeton Theological Seminary as a Rockefeller Fellow and received his B. D. from there in 1961. At Princeton he also received many honors and held various positions of leadership.

Before going to Raleigh, he served as Campus Christian Life intern and as Minister to Presbyterian Students at the University of Virginia.

Complete details concerning Religious Emphasis Week will be available in pamphlets which will be distributed to students Tuesday.

Unexpected Tragedy Overtakes Athletic Director Clyde Ehrhardt

Presbyterian College's athletic director and head coach, Clyde Ehrhardt, died abruptly last Monday when his gun discharged on him. Laurens County coroner, Marshall Pressley, has ruled the fatality of the 41-year-old coach as an accidental death.

Coach Ehrhardt's body was discovered about 7 p. m. in his car. The vehicle was parked beside a Clinton area pond where the coach had often hunted in times past.

Coach Ehrhardt had directed PC's athletic program but little over a year. Of his death, Presbyterian College's President, Marshall Brown, said:

"I speak for myself, the Presbyterian College faculty and the entire community when I say that we were all deeply shocked and grieved by the sudden death of Clyde Ehrhardt. He had the confidence of all members of his athletic teams.

"In my opinion, every single teacher and every staff member of Presbyterian Colege liked Coach Ehrhardt and was delighted to have him on our faculty. He also was very popular with our alumni, who were strongly behind him and his program.

"I told Clyde only recently that he had tenure here—that as far as I was concerned, he had a lifetime job at PC."

Clyde Ehrhardt was born to Laura Heidle Ehrhardt in Bradwell, Ky. He spent much of his youth in Murfreesboro, Tenn., and attended Morgan Prep. Going to the University of Georgia, he starred in both the Rose Bowl and the Orange Bowl.

He was graduated with a B. S. degree and immediately entered the U. S. Army. He served as an infantry company commander in Europe during World War II and was twice wounded.

Highly decorated for his services, Ehrhardt received the Distinguished Service Cross, Silver Star, Bronze Star, Commendation Medal, and Purple Heart.

Following the war, Ehrhardt played center for the Washington Redskins. With the outbreak of the Korean War in 1950, he was called back to Army duty. He was successively an instructor at Ft. Benning, Ga., and then an intelligence officer on the Eighth Army Staff in Korea.

In 1953 he returned to civilian life and attended Peabody College where he obtained an M. A. in 1954. He then joined Frank Jones at Decatur High School—teaching at the school and serving under Jones as assistant coach.

When Jones came to PC in 1957, Coach Ehrhardt came with him. Coach Ehrhardt became athletic director and head coach when Jones resigned those positions in December, 1961.

Class Change Made

Academic Dean Joseph Gettys announced that classes which normally meet at 10:00 Thursday morning have been re-scheduled for 10:00 Monday morning so that chapel services can be conducted on Thursday rather than Monday. Mr. Lord will speak to the student body during the Thursday chapel.

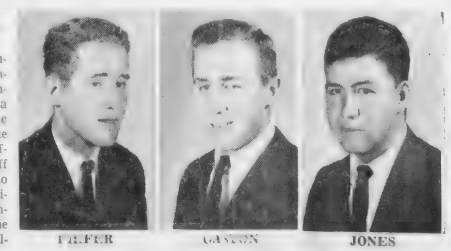
Tau Phi Pi To Meet Monday

Tau Phi Pi plans to show a movie as its next program, announced Louis Powell, president of PC's honorary service fraternity. The film will be on genetics.

The program is scheduled for February 11, at 7:30 p. m., and will be held in the Jacobs lecture room. Any interested students may attend.

Phifer Nominated As Sock Editor; Gaston, Jones Vie For Bus Mgr.

At a special meeting of the Blue Stocking staff Wednesday night, editor and business manager nominees were selected for the next two semesters' paper.



The sole nominee for editor is Bob Phifer, a sophomore from Spartanburg. Phifer served as a reporter last year and has been news editor for the first semester this year. Phifer, a pre-med student, has been on the Dean's List consistently.

Concerning the policy he intends to follow, Phifer said, "I intend to make every effort to render the Blue Stocking more as a team enterprise and less of the work of just a few. I would like to create a more unified, more efficient paper which its staff members will be more proud to work on. As with all past editors, I shall ever strive to improve the writing skills of the paper's very able writers—always hoping, myself, to grow along with them."

Two other sophomores, Bill Gaston of Chester, and Wiley Jones of LaGrange, Ga., were selected to run for business manager.

Gaston gained experience in high school where he handled all money and sold ads for the year-book. Jones has been assistant business manager of the Blue Stocking for the past two semesters.

The election of these nominees will take place in the Douglas House Wednesday from 9:00 a. m. until 2:00 p. m. The student council is in charge of this election.

Drama Group To Present Short Play By Saroyan

Dramatics is staging a return on the PC campus. A group of students interested in drama announced last week that they had chosen William Saroyan's "Hello Out There" for presentation in PC's first drama workshop in many years. The group, directed by Mr. Wayne Gunn, held tryouts for roles on Thursday and Friday nights and began rehearsals Monday night.

Playing in the leading roles are sophomore Suzanna Jeanes and senior Alex Bosserman. Supporting roles were given to Geraldine Haydock, Mike Smith, Paul Conger, and Jim Huber.

The stage crew is headed by Technical Director George Patat and Assistant to the Director Henry Stakely. The sets will be built under the supervision of Mr. William Cannon.

To Stimulate Interest

The brief play will be presented as a chapel program on March 15. The purpose for staging the play is to interest more students in drama and to make further efforts toward establishing a regular series of plays for our campus.

William Saroyan, author of the play, is winner of both the Drama Critics' Award and the Pulitzer Prize for his play, "The Time of Your Life." He is a writer of whimsical fantasy in the tradition of Steinbeck's "Tortilla Flat." His works reflect his great concern for people's lack of understanding of each other. Most of his plays deal with the loneliness of mankind and his need for communication with fellow human beings.

Paean

In describing the play, Mr. Gunn quoted John Gassner: "The play is a paean to man's impulsive love of beauty, to kindliness and dignity among the obscure, and to the wondering faith that children reveal . . . We like the play insofar as we experience it; we dislike it insofar as we do not experience it."

Poll

redistribution to basketball and tennis would give PC a more well-rounded athletic program which would in the long run be more successful. Most students polled felt strongly that PC is too small to support a properly-financed winning football team to compete with larger and better equipped schools. The large number of football scholarships does not benefit the majority of the students, yet the suggested cut does not mean abandonment of football. The general sentiment was that fewer football scholarships could be given without injuring the team.

3. "Would you recommend a heavy concentration on time and money in one sport in the hopes of bringing this sport to a winning capacity in order to stimulate publicity for the school?"

Complete Concentration

The majority (155-105) stated in effect, that if winning is of basic importance, then concentration is the only way in which to build a strong victorious team but this concentration means increased financial aid and a strong coaching staff. If the concentration is not complete it is useless. Most students did not express a desire to enter the Carolina Conference because of the limit it would place on the minor sports. Also suggested was a close administrative-coaching relationship which would aid in wiser spending of appropriated funds and thus a more economical program.

4. "Will a change in the PC athletic program affect the type of students that will enroll at PC in the future?"

With a de-emphasis or cut in intercollegiate sports, the possibilities are high that the type of student enrolling at PC will change. This was the opinion of 67% of the students polled. The disagreement of opinions came basically in deciding whether the change would be for the better or for the worse.

Eye Catcher

A slight majority argued that intercollegiate sports, football in particular, are an eye-catcher for high school seniors choosing a college. "Well-rounded men need athletics." and this is the supposed purpose of intercollegiate sports. The final implication is that de-emphasis of intercollegiate sports will bring a majority of non-athletic intellectuals to PC.

Yet many feel that a good intramural program gives more opportunity to all students to become physically and mentally well-rounded. The choice of a college should depend on academic standards as well as extra-curricular activities. "Graduate schools or future employers won't ask me for the football statistics of my alma mater.

No Status Quo

5. Would you favor continuing the athletic program in its present status?"

The majority answers no! The The vote was 195-65 and the accompanying remarks show that the students as well as the faculty and administration realize that there must be a revamping of our present athletic program. The overwhelming feeling is that the change must come now.

As students we cannot know all of the facets of this problem that must be considered by the appointed committees, but we do realize there will be no simple solution and no sudden results.

Camp Harmony To Host Thirteen For WF Meet

Camp Harmony will host the annual spring Westminster Fellowship Conference March 1-3. Thirteen PC students, including Harrold Hope, moderator of the WF Council will attend.

Christian Action will be emphasized, with its Biblical basis and motivation studied in a Friday night meeting. The students will explore the potential of Christian Action by observing such fields as: work with the blind, work at the state Penitentiary, mental health clinics, alcoholic rehabilitation, racial problems, and labor-management problems. These studies will be made by individual groups on Saturday, and the observations and findings will be evaluated at a Saturday night meeting.

The purpose of the Conference is to expand Christian Action through worship, study, discussion, and action. Time will be allotted for election of next year's officers.

GLAD RAGS

The hounds of spring are on winter's traces. Soon buds the crocus, soon trills the giant condor, soon come the new spring fashions to adorn our lissome limbs.

And what will the American college student wear this spring? Gather round, you rascals, and light a Marlboro Cigarette and enjoy that fine mellow tobacco, that pure white filter, and possess your souls in sweet content, and listen.

As everyone knows, campus fashions have always been casual. This spring, however, they have gone beyond being merely casual: they have become unkempt.

The object is to look madly improvised, gaily spur-of-the-moment! For example, why don't you girls try wearing a peasant skirt with a dinner jacket? Or matador pants with a bridal veil? Or Bermuda shorts with bronze breastplates? Be rakish! Be impromptu! Be devil-take-the-hindmost!

And, men, you be the same. Try an opera cape with sweat pants. Or a letter-sweater with kilts. Or a strait jacket with hip boots. Be bold! Be daring! Be a tourist attraction!

Be rakish! Be impromptu!

But all is not innovation in college fashions this spring. In fact, one of the highlights of the season turns time backward in its flight. I refer, of course, to the comeback of the powdered wig.

This charming accoutrement, too long neglected, has already caught on with in undergrads everywhere. On hundreds of campuses the bossa nova is giving way to the minuet, and patriotic undergraduates are dumping British tea into the nearest harbor. This, as you may imagine, does not sit well with King George III who, according to reliable reports, has been stamping his foot and uttering curses not fit to reproduce in this family newspaper. For that matter, a lot of our own people are steamed up too, and there has even been some talk about the American colonies declaring their independence of England. But I hardly think it will come to that. I mean, how can we break with the mother country when we are dependent on her for so many things—lissey-woolsey, Mimić balls, taper snuffers, and like that? She, on the other hand, relies on us for turkeys, Marlboro Cigarettes, and Route 66. So I say, if Molly Pitcher and those other Radcliffe hotheads will calm down, and if gentlemen will cry "Peace! Peace!" we may yet find an amicable solution to our differences. But let not our British cousins mistake this willingness to negotiate for weakness. If fight we must, then fight we will! Paul Revere is saddled up, the rude bridge arches the flood, and the ROTC is armed!

But I digress. We were smoking Marlboro Cigarettes—O, splendid cigarette! O, good golden tobaccos! O, pristine pure white filter! O, fresh! O, tasty! O, soft pack! O, flip top box! O, get some!—we were, I say, smoking Marlboros and talking about spring fashions.

Let us turn now to the season's most striking new feature—pneumatic underdrawers. These inflatable garments make every chair an easy chair. Think how welcome they will be when you sit through a long lecture! They are not, however, without certain dangers. Last week, for example, Rimbaud Sigafoos, a sophomore at the University of Pittsburgh, fell out of a 96th story window in the Tower of Learning. Thanks to his pneumatic underdrawers, he suffered no injury when he struck the sidewalk, but the poor fellow is still bouncing—his seventh consecutive day—and it is feared that he will starve to death.

Size And Sophs Mark New Blue Stocking

Size, sophomores, and some shake-up characterize this semester's Blue Stocking. Editor Phifer states that "competence and ability earmark the entire staff."

Speaking of sophomore strength, four of the editorship positions are filled by sophomores. Speaking of size, with fifty-five members, the new Sock staff may be the largest yet. "Shake-up-wise," the only real change in the paper's organization occurred on the Feature Staff.

Instead of having just a few constant writers for features, various students of considerable writing skill have been asked to contribute two articles each this semester. The Feature Editor now serves more as an administrator and idea man.

New Editors

Occupying the top editorship, positions of News Editor, Feature Editor, and Sports Editor are, respectively, Walter Wells and Wirt Skinner, with Al Pearce and Glenn Browder sharing the sports responsibility.

Wells, a sophomore, is a Dean's List English major. Wells has served previously as a reporter and then as Assistant News Editor.

A Dean's List History major, Skinner is one of the few seniors on the paper. He has previously worked on the Sock as News Editor and as Associate Editor.

Last semester's Sports Editor, Pearce is a sophomore history major. Browder, although he hasn't worked previously on the paper, has considerable journalistic experience. Editor of his high school paper, sophomore history major Browder won a scholarship to PC for the specific purpose of writing releases.

Holding down the job of Assistant Business Manager is Wiley Jones, who also held this post last semester. Jones is a sophomore business administrator major.

Filling the other editorship posts are:

Staff Additions

The members of the new Feature Staff are: Bobby Piephoff; Paul Woodall; Swink Saunders; Alex Bosserman; John Craig; Notchy Maddox; Bob Alison; John Sheffield; Jim Barbour; and Jan Rhodes.

Rejoining the Sports Staff is Loren Eagles. New man on the Business Staff is Phillip Olmert.

The News Staff has seven new members. They are: Jack Westall; Jimmy Simpson; Woody Merritt; Becky Farmer; Wayne Hopper; Olney Meadows; and Tim Grey.

Sergeant Elrod

Sergeant Receives OCS Appointment

Sergeant W. C. Elrod, presently a member of the PC Military Department, has received an appointment to Officer Candidate School at Fort Benning, Ga. Completion of the course, which lasts a total of twenty-three weeks, will result in a commission. Elrod will attend an additional three weeks at jump school.

During his tour of duty here, he is coaching the college rifle team. In a more official capacity, he is serving in a secretarial-clerical position. Elrod joined the PC military staff in March of 1962.

To receive the appointment, Elrod passed a number of tests and was questioned by a board of officers at Fort Gordon.

A native of Cookeville, Tenn., Elrod is married and has one son, Brian, age 6 months.

Dean's Listers Win Awards

"Dean's Listers" Ann Kirkland, a sophomore from Moncks Corner, and Tom Whitaker, a freshman from Florence, were recently presented with the awards given annually by the Physics and Chemistry Departments.

Each award, which consists of a book entitled "The Handbook of Chemistry and Physics," is donated by the Chemical and Rubber Company. It is given to the student who has demonstrated the greatest aptitude in his subject.

Miss Kirkland, a Mathematics major and Founder's Scholar, received the award for her work in Physics.

Tom Whitaker, a pre-medical student received the award for his achievement in chemistry.

Faculty Puts Togather Self-Study Committees

The college faculty has made [illegible] plans for the two-year self-evaluation. At the [illegible] Faculty Meeting, Mr. Gordon Sweet, [illegible] of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, led a briefing session on faculty self-study programs.

When contacted about this study, Dr. Gettys reported that the faculty has already selected a steering committee, composed of Dr. Gettys, Chairman; Mr. Glover: Dr. Hay; Mr. Prater; and Dr. Whitelaw. Dr. Gettys said, "This Steering Committee is busily engaged in working out a statement of purpose for all of the college program."

"This study, scheduled to be in progress for the next eighteen months, is expected to evaluate critically the present program, and to help chart the program of Presbyterian College for several years to come," Dean Gettys went on to say.

Self-Study Committees

Also at the February meeting, the Steering Committee proposed and adopted the following committee assignments for the program:

Financial Resources — Chairman, Mr. Baker; Mr. Edward Campbell; Mr. Madden; Mr. Oeland; Mr. Cannon.

Organization — Chairman, Mr. Halsall; Mr. Edward Campbell; Col. Thackston; Dr. Gettys, Mr. Riggs; Mrs. Martin; Mr. Vickers; Mr. Fakkema; Mr. Oeland.

Choir to Make Trip To Greenville, Greer

The Rebel Choir will travel to Greenville and Greer this Sunday, February 24. This will be the third trip on the choir's second semester schedule.

The choir, under the direction of Dr. Edouard Patte, will appear at the Fourth Presbyterian Church in Greenville at 11:00 a. m. and then travel to the Greer Presbyterian Church to appear at 7:30 in the evening. The group will return to Clinton Sunday night.

Last week-end the choir went first to Atlanta, where it sang Sunday morning at the Rock Spring Presbyterian Church before an over-capacity crowd.

Sunday night the group appeared at the Decatur Presbyterian Church.

Drama Group To Present Short Play By Saroyan

Dramatics is staging a return on the PC campus. A group of students interested in drama announced last week that they had chosen William Saroyan's "Hello Out There" for presentation in PC's first drama workshop in many years. The group, directed by Mr. Wayne Gunn, held tryouts for roles on Thursday and Friday nights and began rehearsals Monday night.

Playing in the leading roles are sophomore Suzanna Jeanes and senior Alex Bosserman. Supporting roles were given to Geraldine Haydock, Mike Smith, Paul Conger, and Jim Huber.

The stage crew is headed by Technical Director George Patat and Assistant to the Director Henry Stakely. The sets will be built under the supervision of Mr. William Cannon.

To Stimulate Interest

The brief play will be presented as a chapel program on March 15. The purpose for staging the play is to interest more students in drama and to make further efforts toward establishing a regular series of plays for our campus.

William Saroyan, author of the play, is winner of both the Drama Critics' Award and the Pulitzer Prize for his play, "The Time of Your Life." He is a writer of whimsical fantasy in the tradition of Steinbeck's "Tortilla Flat." His works reflect his great concern for people's lack of understanding of each other. Most of his plays deal with the loneliness of mankind and his need for communication with fellow human beings.

Paean

In describing the play, Mr. Gunn quoted John Gassner: "The play is a paean to man's impulsive love of beauty, to kindliness and dignity among the obscure, and to the wondering faith that children reveal . . . We like the play insofar as we experience it; we dislike it insofar as we do not experience it."

redistribution to basketball and tennis would give PC a more well-rounded athletic program which would in the long run be more successful. Most students polled felt strongly that PC is too small to support a properly-financed winning football team to compete with larger and better equipped schools. The large number of football scholarships does not benefit the majority of the students, yet the suggested cut does not mean abandonment of football. The general sentiment was that fewer football scholarships could be given without injuring the team.

3. "Would you recommend a heavy concentration on time and money in one sport in the hopes of bringing this sport to a winning capacity in order to stimulate publicity for the school?"

Complete Concentration

The majority (155-105) stated in effect, that if winning is of basic importance, then concentration is the only way in which to build a strong victorious team but this concentration means increased financial aid and a strong coaching staff. If the concentration is not complete it is useless. Most students did not express a desire to enter the Carolina Conference because of the limit it would place on the minor sports. Also suggested was a close administrative-coaching relationship which would aid in wiser spending of appropriated funds and thus a more economical program.

4. "Will a change in the PC athletic program affect the type of students that will enroll at PC in the future?"

With a de-emphasis or cut in intercollegiate sports, the possibilities are high that the type of student enrolling at PC will change. This was the opinion of 67% of the students polled. The disagreement of opinions came basically in deciding whether the change would be for the better or for the worse.

Eye Catcher

A slight majority argued that intercollegiate sports, football in particular, are an eye-catcher for high school seniors choosing a college. "Well-rounded men need athletics." and this is the supposed purpose of intercollegiate sports. The final implication is that de-emphasis of intercollegiate sports will bring a majority of non-athletic intellectuals to PC.

Yet, many feel that a good intramural program gives more opportunity to all students to become physically and mentally well-rounded. The choice of a college should depend on academic standards as well as extra-curricular activities. "Graduate schools or future employers won't ask me for the football statistics of my alma mater.

No Status Quo

5. Would you favor continuing the athletic program in its present status?"

The majority answers no! The The vote was 195-65 and the accompanying remarks show that the students as well as the faculty and administration realize that there must be a revamping of our present athletic program. The overwhelming feeling is that the change must come now.

As students we cannot know all of the facets of this problem that must be considered by the appointed committees, but we do realize there will be no simple solution and no sudden results.

Personel Men To Interview

Two dates have been set for senior job interviews next week. On Tuesday, March 5, representatives from the Deering-Milliken Service Corp. and the Roanoke (Va.) County Schools will be on campus. Personnel from the Board of Public Education, Savanah, will be here on March 7.

Interested seniors should contact Mrs. Anderson, Secretary to the Dean of Students, for appointments.

Camp Harmony To Host Thirteen For WF Meet

Camp Harmony will host the annual spring Westminster Fellowship Conference March 1-3. Thirteen PC students, including Harold Hope, moderator of the WF Council will attend.

Christian Action will be emphasized, with its Biblical basis and motivation studied in a Friday night meeting. The students will explore the potential of Christian Action by observing such fields as: work with the blind, work at the state Penitentiary, mental health clinics, alcoholic rehabilitation, racial problems, and labor-management problems. These studies will be made by individual groups on Saturday, and the observations and findings will be evaluated at a Saturday night meeting.

The purpose of the Conference is to expand Christian Action through worship, study, discussion, and action. Time will be allotted for election of next year's officers.

GLAD RAGS

The hounds of spring are on winter's traces. Soon buds the crocus, soon trills the giant condor, soon come the new spring fashions to adorn our lissome limbs.

And what will the American college student wear this spring? Gather round, you rascals, and light a Marlboro Cigarette and enjoy that fine mellow tobacco, that pure white filter, and possess your souls in sweet content, and listen.

As everyone knows, campus fashions have always been casual. This spring, however, they have gone beyond being merely casual: they have become outlandish.

The object is to look madly improvised, gaily spur-of-the-moment! For example, why don't you girls try wearing a peasant skirt with a dinner jacket? Or matador pants with a bridal veil? Or Bermuda shorts with bronze breastplates? Be rakish! Be impromptu! Be devil-take-the-hindmost!

And, men, you be the same. Try an opera cape with sweat pants. Or a letter-sweater with kilts. Or a strait jacket with hip boots. Be bold! Be daring! Be a tourist attraction!

Be rakish! Be impromptu!

But all is not innovation in college fashions this spring. In fact, one of the highlights of the season turns time backward in its flight. I refer, of course, to the comeback of the powdered wig.

This charming accoutrement, too long neglected, has already caught on with in undergrads everywhere. On hundreds of campuses the bossa nova is giving way to the minuet, and patriotic undergraduates are dumping British tea into the nearest harbor. This, as you may imagine, does not sit well with King George III who, according to reliable reports, has been stamping his foot and uttering curses not fit to reproduce in this family newspaper. For that matter, a lot of our own people are steamed up too, and there has even been some talk about the American colonies declaring their independence of England. But I hardly think it will come to that. I mean, how can we break with the mother country when we are dependent on her for so many things—linsey-woolsey, Minié balls, taper snuffers, and like that? She, on the other hand, relies on us for turkeys, Marlboro Cigarettes, and Route 66. So I say, if Molly Pitcher and those other Radcliffe hotheads will calm down, and if gentlemen will cry "Peace! Peace!" we may yet find an amicable solution to our differences. But let not our British cousins mistake this willingness to negotiate for weakness. If fight we must, then fight we will! Paul Revere is saddled up, the rude bridge arches the flood, and the ROTC is armed!

But I digress. We were smoking Marlboro Cigarettes—O, splendid cigarette! O, good golden tobaccos! O, pristine pure white filter! O, fresh! O, tasty! O, soft pack! O, flip top box! O, get some!—we were, I say, smoking Marlboros and talking about spring fashions.

Let us turn now to the season's most striking new feature—pneumatic underdrawers. These inflatable garments make every chair an easy chair. Think how welcome they will be when you sit through a long lecture! They are not, however, without certain dangers. Last week, for example, Rimbaud Sigafoos, a sophomore at the University of Pittsburgh, fell out of a 96th story window in the Tower of Learning. Thanks to his pneumatic underdrawers, he suffered no injury when he struck the sidewalk, but the poor fellow is still bouncing—his seventh consecutive day—and it is feared that he will starve to death.

We Utterly Condemn . . .

This Blue Stocking is actually going to be very careful of what it contains—utterly or in any other respect. The keynote of Blue Stocking policy will be to do everything possible to benefit Presbyterian College. This does not imply an attitude of naive and fettered optimism. Guest editorials will appear sporadically and will bear their writer's initials. Only those editorials bearing the editor's initials necessarily reflect his opinion. All opinions in this paper will be voiced mainly for student consumption and benefit. We ask you, the reader, to listen well and judge the issues as best you can.

Horse Whipping

Although it involves beating one of the oldest of PC's dead horses, something should be said about required chapel—which is currently a completely ridiculous situation. A speaker must be appalled to look out upon a sea of sleeping and reading people; and no doubt the people are equally appalled at being there. Chapel should either be done away with in part or in entirety, or it should be rather strictly disciplined. Should the latter happen, the Blue Stocking promises a weekly two-column editorial of protest. This is hyperbole of course, but it represents our stand. College is very much a place for learning discipline, that is true; but it seems rather blasphemous to use chapel in such a capacity. A religion is a chosen discipline, not a dictated one. Just exactly what, we wonder, was one of the main reasons why the voluntary REW lectures were so poorly attended?

Many of the students we contacted felt that the religiously associated compulsion placed on them three times a week was more than enough to quell a desire to attend further sessions.

The PC Faculty - A Case For Progress

by BOB ALLISON

PC's educational effectiveness will be investigated over a two-year period by a faculty self-study program under the chairmanship of acting Academic Dean, Joseph M. Gettys. Seven areas will be under consideration: financial resources, organization, educational program, research and special activities, library, student personnel, physical plant, and faculty.

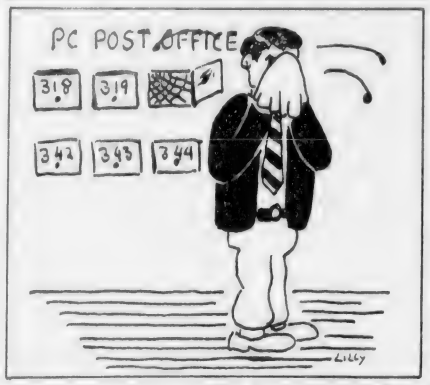
If one assumes that education is the primary concern of higher institutions—and this answer must be affirmative, then it is the last area mentioned above, the faculty, that is of principal and immediate importance. It is the transmission of knowledge from professor to student, from learned to unlearned, that unleashes thought and reason upon following generations.

Freud

In any academic institution the quality of the professors as well as that of the student must be considered. Just as the student is analyzed for admission, so must the professor. Freud said, "The analysis of teachers and educators seems to be a more practicable prophalactic measure than the analysis of children themselves, and there are not such great obstacles against putting it into practice."

No institution can have an ideal faculty, but there must be a constant strivance toward this goal. Neither dogmatic conservatism nor emotion should affect the selection of a faculty, nor should geographical prejudice. Fortunately Presbyterian College tends to be moving more away from than towards this pitfall. Nevertheless last year a professor confronted the student body with several liberal views. Because his liberality was contrary to traditional Southern thoughts in his field, it created a controversy. But are not controversy and discussion the accelerators of thought?

Freedom



This idea of free thought must prevail both in selection and preservation of a modern faculty. Conservatism must remain as a control, but it is imperative that it not stymie free thought—the very basis of education.

Though the title of a professor is not indicative of his intellect, it is a measure of his education. With a more institutional background behind him, it is feasible to assume that the Ph. D. has more to impart to the student than does the M. A. If this is true then PC is certainly lacking in this respect. Much is being done by the administration to remedy this problem. Dr. Gettys has doggedly worked to bring our faculty to its necessary strength. As it stands now, the catalog lists only 12 Ph. D.'s. Of this twelve, three are professors emerti who have no relationship with the student; and one is a doctor of Theology teaching a course unrelated to his doctorate.

A Definite Lack

Why is there no Ph. D. in the English department? Surely the very basic tool of educational pursuit, the written language, deserves better than this? What of the student who wishes to major in economics, French, history, Spanish—all without doc-

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

At the risk of paraphrasing one of last week's Blue Key editorials, I should like to speak about DuPont P. Smith, former editor of the Blue Stocking. DuPont was truly dedicated to his job; he loved it and he worked at it. Without DuPont, we'd have had no paper—for there was practically no one to fill the gap. With him we had another year of the Blue Stocking, and it was a good paper. First class, the Associated Collegiate Press called it.

On behalf of the student body, I therefore extend to him our utmost thanks and appreciation.

An Interested Student

Dear Editor:

Concerning the article about cheerleaders being at the basketball games, we agree wholeheartedly with the article. We asked the head cheerleader several times if we could cheer at the games, but he never took any steps to get us cheerleaders organized. We were asked upon several occasions by quite a few persons why we did not cheer at the basketball games and we replied that they would have to talk to the head cheerleader since it was his job to organize the group. Several of these persons told us that they asked the head cheerleader to get the cheerleaders together and cheer at the games, but he refused to act. We can speak for ourselves and the other cheerleaders in saying that we were wanting to cheer at the games. In fact we even asked the head cheerleader why he did not cheer at the games and he did not give any answer.

What'll You Have, A Valentine

by JAN RHODES

ONCE UPON a time there was a fat, greasy, but very cute little Italiano who was called by his friends "Giovanni" and by his not so friendly friends "Greasyanni." He was a happy roly-poly man and sometimes he would laugh so much at a crippled refugee that he would almost choke on his own tobacco juice.

But somehow something was missing in Giovanni's little world. He was tired of pushing pastrami in a baby carriage for the Gotcha Mone Pastrami Guild. Giovanni was sucking for something new. Now he would not even push the carriage. For hours each day he would just bask in the Mediterranean sun and tinkle his American yo-yo in the bilge water at the edge of the dock. Up and down. Up and down. What bliss!

BUT EVEN SO Giovanni was not perfect by any means. He had one speech defect that made all of his nice friends laugh hysterically at him. You see, he would habitually pronounce all of his "V's" like "B's."

The little Italiano had another very bad defect, too. He would gaze pathetically out across the waves and dream of the "New World" and the Americas. Many times he had watched the corks pop out of his bottles just a few yards away from the dock, so in defeat he gave up the idea of sending a message.

NOW AT THIS TIME, on the south side of Gotcha Mone, there was a tall, thin, Chianti wine maker by the name of Ralph. Ralph's business was very poor that year because his wine was so weak nobody could get drunk from it. Another thing that made people frown upon him was the rumor about his chronic athlete's foot.

Well, two personalities such as Ralph's and Giovanni's were bound to get together somehow, and so they did. As Fate would have it, Giovanni went down to the south side of the village to steal a new yo-yo string one day and heard Ralph's rooster-call in high shrieking falsetto, "Cheeee..p Chiantiiiiii!! Somebodee pleeeese take seeese Cheeee (cough)—eep Chiantiiiiiii!!!"

GIOVANNI JUMPED with joyous spasms. He tickled his beard, rolled his eyes, and twinkle-danced fairy-like through the garbage boxes in the alley. At last he had found a way to make money.

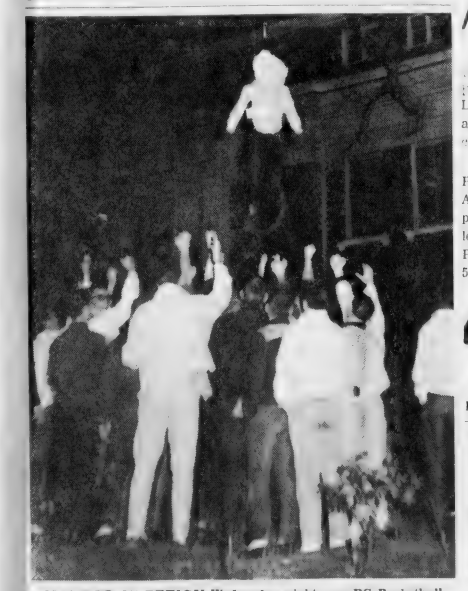
Football Coach Choice Pending Board Decision

WE'VE BEEN WONDERING why the school administration hasn't made some public, definite statement concerning the appointing of a new head football coach and athletic director. Just recently we were given an answer to this question and we feel the students should be told the full story. Some false impressions on the administration's stand on athletics have been floating around the campus, but these are, in the main, far from the truth.



IT IS NATURAL to assume that no candidate for the coaching job can be approached until some concrete stand on the future of PC athletics is made. The only reason some statement has not been made on this question is that the Board of Trustees and the Walter Johnson Club must meet to decide on what type of athletic program PC will have. After these two meetings, which will convene within the next two weeks, we are assured that that the definite stand of the administration will be made public.

WE'VE BEEN TOLD by an authoritative source that PC is not "as of now, applying for admission to the (Carolinas) Conference; joining this conference is beig cosidered, as are many other possibilities." This is in sharp contrast to the belief of some students that PC has already made application. As stated above, PC will make no application to any conference until the Board and the Walter Johnon Club decide on what type of program PC will have.

IF IT IS DECIDED to put athletics on a de-emphasized scale, and this is a definite possibility, then PC will no doubt make application for its own preservation. We feel sure that the two meetings which will decide the fate of PC athletics will take a close and rational look at the practicality of remaining an independent "big-time-small college." It appears that they will decide that we cannot continue to be a small college attempting semi-university scale athletics. If this is the stand that will be taken, then PC will, no doubt, apply to the conference.

IF PC IS ACCEPTED as a member of the Carolinas Conference, the college will still have two-thirds the number of scholarships it now grants. We will be allotted 22 football aids, 10 for basketball, and only 3 for the four spring sports. At first gance it seems that this is going to curtail athletics here somewhat, but a closer look will reveal that it is really the only rational way to carry on an athletic program on a campus of our size. The money that would be saved if this de-emphasis of PC athletics is carried through could go far toward campus improvements that so many are seeking.

IT IS TRUE that the de-emphasis of sports will perhaps meet with opposition from some quarters. There has been opposition to administrative actions before, and there will be opposition in the future, but we hope the Board and the Walter Johnson Club will act sanely and sensibly in this important matter. The independent "big-time-small-college" cannot continue to survive when it must compete alone. The difficult scheduling PC faces each year is just one example of the problems that small, independent teams must solve without committing themselves to extensive traveling, recruiting, publicity, and equipment are just a few of the other expenses PC must face each fall . . . and for what? School spirit is coming at a high price if this is the only justification for the big football program we now have.

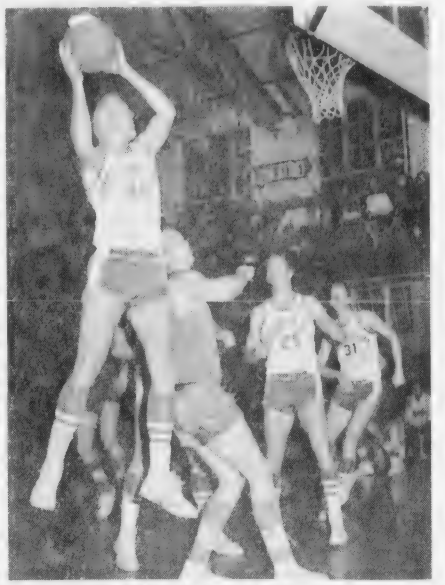
Cagers Play Last Game Monday; Final Half Slumps Haunt Hose



Belmont Abbey Hosts

by GLENN BROWDER

Only one game remains ahead for the Blue Hose cagers this year, a rematch against Belmont Abbey at Belmont Monday. The Crusaders dipped the Hose 61-5 in an overtime here earlier this season.

A PC win on the North Carolinians' court would be a little consolation although we have a poor 7-13 record now.

The Big Blue carries a two-game losing streak into this last game but the shooting and rebounding of Andy Karlsons, Paul Webb, and Bill Tallent in the past few games indicate PC might settle the score with temperamental Al McGuires' boys. Karlsons and Webb lead the Blue Cage scoring with 17 and 13 point averages.

Faculty Team Tops In Bridge Tourney

The IM bridge tournament was played here Monday night, and the "dark horse" faculty team won first place in the annual event. This team, composed of Dr. Whitelaw and Dr. Stump, Maj. Scott and Mr. Baker, came in ahead of the Co-Eds, the Theta Chis, the Alpha Sigs and the Pounders. This is the first time in recent years that a faculty team has won the event. Mr. Martin was in charge of the arrangements for the tourney.

The tournament, which attracted a large number of entrants, will continue to be a regular IM feature and the winners and runner-up teams will be awarded points towards the IM trophy. In this case the faculty team will not receive any points, and the points will be given to the second through the third place finishers.

Indian Warpath Takes Hose; Wofford Sneaks By at Close

The Hosemen played an even game with Pembroke Tuesday night until the Indians ambushed them with the fast break in the second half. The visitors broke open the nip and tuck affair by outrunning and wearing down the home team.

Andy Karlsons' 12 points kept the game close in the first half, but PC couldn't keep up after that. Pembroke started hitting from everywhere and would have won by an even larger margin if time hadn't run out.

Blew The Works

After piling up a 20-8 lead at the start of the game, PC blew the works Wednesday night and gave Wofford a 50-47 victory.

The Hose out-rebounded, out-shot, and out-played the Little Four rivals in the first half and held a 27-22 lead then. But Wofford stole the ball six times—while PC threw it away three—and steadily chipped away at the Hose. The lead went to the Terriers with 2½ minutes left and the time ran out with PC fouling to get the ball and Wofford sinking free throws to win the game.

Competition Narrowing As IM Final Draws Near

Only three undefeated IM basketball teams remain as the action in each league moves towards the February 26th playoff date. Only the Pi Kapps in the Blue League and the Pi Kappa Phis and the Pikes in the Red League can show a clean slate thus far.

In this week's action the PiKA's defeated the KA's and the Alpha Sigs to hold on to first place with a 5-0 record in their league. They are followed by the Pounders in second place with a 5-1 mark after defeating the Sigma Nus in their only game of the week. The Sigma Nus split their two games of the week to hold third place with a 3-2 record, and the Rebels and the KA's are tied for fourth with identical 2-3 records. The Buckshots, with a 1-4 record, hold down sixth place, followed by the Bandit (2) team with their 1-5 showing.

Major Requisites Stated

The Academic Advisory Committee recently decided an issue concerning grades in major departmental requirements and courses. All courses prescribed for a major in any department and any additional courses necessary to complete the total hours of the major must be passed with a grade of "C" or better.

The Academic Committee also approved and adopted at a recent faculty meeting. Reiterating the present practice, the faculty voted against any plan to allow repeaters to any subject who have completed their long examinations.

Former Sock Editor Lists Top Articles

by RONE LEWIS

The editor has renewed an old practice this week by asking the former editor to pick the ten most significant articles that appeared in the Blue Stocking during his year of editorship. He has done so, naming them in no particular order.

The participation in Wirt Skinner's poll on Cuban intervention was surpassed only by the accuracy of the article's forecast. Interest of the student body has been as evident as it was on that week.

Exile Government

In the same vein, Ashley Halsey's speech on Cuban exile government added fuel to the fire. As proof of interest, one could see considerably fewer sleepers in chapel that day.

Almost 20 years ago the Blue Stocking withdrew from the South Carolina Collegiate Press Association. Recently it again joined this organization, with the feeling that the Sock will benefit from the reunion.

The opinion of the campus was strongly expressed in the poll concerning Bible requirements. Opinions varied widely, but most students expressed a desire that the last two semesters be open to choice, rather than a definite requirement.

Blue Key

The editorial, "Stand Up and Be Counted, Blue Key," was at least one of the most memorable articles of all.

Dr. Whitelaw's reminiscence of his longtime friend Dr. Gray, will always be remembered for its appropriateness and simplicity.

"What About Physical Education" summed up President Kennedy's opinion on physical fitness; and perhaps when the obstacles are overcome, a program will be fitted into the curriculum of PC.

Completion of the fund-raising campaign has shown the backing of the college by Presbyterians in South Carolina. The first two phases of the building plan have been completed. The third phase will greatly change the appearance of our campus, and by 1980, former graduates will have difficulty in recognizing the College.

Ehrhardt

This past fall, an article appeared on the experiences of Clyde Ehrhardt. Few persons on campus knew of the interesting past of this pro-football war-hero coach of our football team.

Al Pearce gave to the Blue Stocking an article that expressed the warm feelings of many of the late Clyde Ehrhardt. In a way, this article filled "The Void."

These ten articles were selected as being most significant to our campus life. DuPont chose these articles as the "top ten" of the Blue Stocking for '61-'62.

Board of Directors Changes Alumni Day

The Board of Directors of the Presbyterian College Alumni Association met Tuesday, Feb. 18, to plan the alumni program for the coming eyar. Richard Carpenter of Greenville, vice-president of the Association, called the meeting to order with nine members present.

It was decided to hold the Alumni Reunion during the Homecoming week in the fall rather than at spring commencement. The date for Homecoming was selected as November 2, tors. In fact, in one particular major field the student has only a single instructor; and this instructor holds only a M. A.

This situation behooves PC to join numerous other institutions who make it compulsory for professors to have their doctorate within a set period of time. If the small size of the school inhibits this, then it should at least be mandatory for department heads. In some manner present faculty members must be given the incentive and the means to obtain higher degrees, and those with these degrees drawn to the college.

Progress

This is, of course, a matter of finance. Already great strides have been made. Though still not up to the National average, faculty salaries have been raised markedly in the last five years. Over one-third of the funds from the recent drive will be allotted to this cause, as will eight million of the projected twenty-five-year plan be delegated for scholarship aid and faculty salaries. But is this enough? The faculty must receive top priority in PC's future, for in essence without this emphasis there will be no future. New buildings are of no consequence if within them dilute education is contained.

The faculty, above and before all others, must be given maximum attention in the selection of its members, in the preservation of its academic freedom, and in the finances that insure its excellence. Once this tandard is set, Presbyterian will start the ascent toward its peak of educational attainment.

A Valentine?

Giovanni, as he clasped Ralph's ankles, kissing them violently. "Yooo have given me ze wondorful idee that all Americans weel anjoy. I weel give them a bariety and a spice of ze life and zey weel truly know ze reel joy of a good libing!!"

SHORTLY afterwards, Giovanni went to see his third great uncle twice removed to ask for funds so that he could sail to the "New World" with his discovery. After much begging by Giovanni, Modigliano Grossaladio Bocancania Geribaldi Valentino agreed to slip him a loan on one condition.

The little Italiano must name his wine after his ninth great-great aunt on his fourth stepfather's side, six times removed, which is "Valentine." With his fist full of gold coins, the little Italiano hysterically bounded out of his great uncle's castle screaming, "Hail to zee, O my Lady Balentine, for I now go to ze America with-a-my new Balentine wine!"

The fat boy sailed for the land of pleasant living with his new cargo of Balentine wine.

GIOVANNI was lucky. The wind was stiff and the sails kept tight and he scooted across the Atlantic in only a month and fourteen days. The sight of the Chesapeake Bay thrilled him so much that he couldn't refrain from doing his favorite Bulgarian rope dance in the crow's nest.

On February the fourteenth he landed on the Maryland shore and all the thirsty, greedy crowd waded out to greet him with three great "Rahs."

"Gime-a-me your bored, your weary, your zirtsy masses among all of yous, for I have brung you a very many Balentines!!"

Today, thousands of Giovanni's cans and bottles pop open every year on February fourteenth and America sits down to foam it up with their Valentines.

Dean Hudson Orchestra Is Signed For Military Ball

The Scabbard and Blade has signed the Dean Hudson Orchestra for Military Ball which will be held at the National Guard Armory April 6.

Dean Hudson, a former member of several big-name bands, heads the orchestra which includes seventeen pieces. The orchestra plays a variety of music and includes a Dixieland Band. Featured is Miss Nancy Paree, vocalist.

This past summer, Dean Hudson was awarded a certificate for twenty years of broadcasting over CBS radio. On January 15 the group played for the Inaugural Ball for Governor Sanders of Georgia.

Dean himself is a co-writer of "Moon Over Miami," and "Organ Grinders Swing."

Military Ball weekend will be highlighted by a parade Friday afternoon which will replace drill for that week, and the Ball on Saturday night. Officers of the Cadet Corps and their sponsors will be presented at the Ball.

All students who have not paid Military Ball assessments are reminded to do so as soon as possible. Money will be collected at drill each week.

Greeks Schedule March IFC Weekend

Alex Bosserman, the president of the IFC, announced this week final plans for IFC Weekend, which is set for March 1-2.

According to Bosserman the purpose of this weekend is to fill the social void which existed between the beginning of second semester and the Military Ball.

There will be no school-wide dance on this weekend as each of the fraternities on campus will be having individual parties at various locations around Clinton.

Bosserman, who is also the chairman of the Central Dance Committee, urged all students to maintain the usual level of good conduct in order to continue good relations with townspeople.

Plans for the final Central Dance Committee sponsored weekend are still in the tentative stage. This Spring Dance Weekend will feature a school-wide dance and will be during the first part of May.

Chapel Services Announced for Week

The schedule for chapel services next week as announced today includes:

Monday — Thomas A. Stallworth, Chapel Devotion.

Wednesday — Chapel Speaker, Col. Powell Fraser, Former U. S. Army Military Advisor to Formosa.

Friday—Kenneth Davis, Chapel Devotion.

Student Election Taps Gaston Blue Sock Business Manager

Editor Race Uncontested

Bill Gaston of Chester defeated Wiley Jones of La Grange, Ga., in student body elections on Wednesday to fill the position of Blue Stocking Business Manager.

The voting also officially gave Bob Phifer of Spartanburg the editorship of the weekly student newspaper. The top post was uncontested.

Phifer received a vote of confidence from nearly all of the 227 students casting ballots.

The election followed nominations last week by members of the Blue Stocking staff.

Gaston, a sophomore, gained experience in high school where he was business manager for his senior yearbook. He is a member of Pi Kappa Alpha social fraternity.

Phifer, a rising junior, is a pre-medical student who has consistently appeared on the Dean's List.

The newly elected leader of the paper will assume the helm with next week's edition. Staff members will be announced at that time, according to editor-elect Phifer.

DuPont Smith and Murray Whit stepped down this week as editor and business manager, respectively, following a year in these positions.

Bridge Event Set On Monday Night

An intramural bridge tournament has been announced by Gene Goodwyn, intramural chairman.

The event is scheduled for Monday night of next week and is to be under the supervision of Taylor Martin. Goodwyn expects close to a dozen teams to participate, including a strong representation from Calvert House.

The intramural council is also looking into the idea of an invitational tournament with the top intramural teams from nearby schools to be held at PC.

PR's Induct Group On Monday Evening

A Company, 4th Regiment, Pershing Rifles, at Presbyterian College welcomed twenty-two pledges into brotherhood Monday night. This was the largest number ever to be taken into the brotherhood at one time.

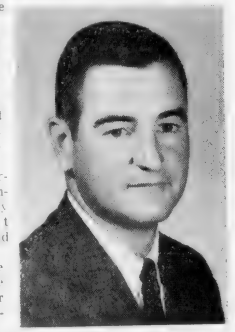
Other initiates are: Don Hardee, Dave Dunlap, Jim Barnhardt, Tommy Leland, Henry Lovett, Roy Wright, Robert Stack, Jim Murchison, and "Woody" McGinn.

To become brothers, the pledges must complete the pledge training, attend PC for one semester and receive a satisfactory grade on drill tests.



The Pershing Rifles unit consists of MSIII and MSIV students who compose the staff, and MSI and MSII students who make up the drill team. The drill team will begin second semester practice soon, highlighting standard military and ceremoniai drill.

Blue Key Lists Faculty Members

The Presbyterian College Blue Key Chapter boasts a number of the college's faculty as members, either from the college days or as honorary members.

Six members of the present faculty were members of the Blue Key while they were in college. Five of these claim Presbyterian as their alma mater while the sixth is a graduate of the University of Georgia.

Included in this group are Lewis S. Hay and Thomas A. Stallworth of the Bible Department, G. Edward Campbell and Ben Hay Hammet of the administrative staff, and William F. Tiller and Jimmy Vickers of the coaching staff.

Thomas A. Stallworth

Among the honorary members on the faculty are Dean A. J. Thackston, Dr. Alex Stump, Vice-President James M. Oeland, President Marshall W. Brown, Dr. Neill G. Whitelaw and Kenneth N. Baker.

Tau Phi Pi Adds Nine New Members

Tau Phi Pi Science Society met Monday night in the Jacobs Hall Lecture Room.

The program included a movie, furnished by the Bell Telephone Corp., entitled "The Thread of Life." The movie was one of Bell Telephone's Science Series Films which presented a survey of the field of genetics.

During this meeting nine new members joined the society which requires a C average and twelve hours of lab sciences for membership.

New members are: Brownlee Lowry, William Loeble, Jack Greenwood, William Gaston, Wesley Lawton, Susanna Jeanes, Janet Maddox, Byron Brown and Dee Hodges.

PC Alumnus

Powell Fraser To Speak Wednesday

Col. Powell A. Fraser, Presbyterian College alumnus who has distinguished himself in army service, will speak to the PC student body next Wednesday morning from his background of recent duty as military adviser to Chinese Gen. Chiang Kai-shek on Formosa.

He is scheduled to make his address at 10:00 a. m., February 20, in Belk Auditorium.

Col. Fraser, now in his 22nd year of army service, returned to the United States and a Pentagon job last fall after spending more than two years as assistant chief of staff for personnel of the US Army Military Assistance Advisory Group, Republic of China. He now serves with the office of personnel operations, Department of the Army, in Washington.

While holding posts of distinction in the army, Powell Fraser also has been prominent in promoting religious activities among the service men. He is popular as a speaker and twice shared the platform with Billy Graham at Presbyterian Men's Conventions of recent years.

Col. Fraser is a 1941 graduate of Presbyterian College. He entered the Infantry and World War II immediately upon receiving his degree, and served with the 32nd Division in the Pacific for more than 600 days of combat. The Army Public Relations Office reported that he "spent more hours under fire during World War II than any other officer who served in the US Armed Forces."

Fraser

He was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross, Silver Star, and Bronze Star for heroism.

Powell Fraser returned to PC to be professor of military science for four years, 1946-50, then was moved on to assignments with the Army Advisory Group, Air Command and Staff College, Maxwell Air Force Base, Ala.; a three-year European tour of duty; and commander of the 13th Infantry, Ninth Division, for three years. He has attended the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, and immediately prior to going to Formosa, the Army War College at Carlisle Barracks, Pa., the highest school under army control.

A native of Brunswick, Ga., Col. Fraser is married to the former Annelle McCall of Florence. They have a son and daughter.

Drug Inspector To Speak At Ministerial Club Meet

Thomas D. Wyatt, Jr., Assistant Drug Inspector for the South Carolina State Board of Health will speak to the Presbyterian College Ministerial Club on Thursday night, March 14. Mr. Wyatt will speak on drug addiction, its causes and cures, and will outline the South Carolina program for drug regulation. The meeting will be held in the Douglas House Meeting Room at 7:30 p. m.

Mr. Wyatt was especially invited by the Ministerial Club in order to continue the Club's program of emphasis on social rehabilitation. Other activities of the Club have been recent visits to Whitten Village, the South Carolina Home for mentally retarded, and the Cedar Springs School for the Deaf and Blind. All ministerial students are urged to be present and everyone else is invited.

PC's Academic Dean Is Prolific Writer

PC's Academic Dean Joseph M. Gettys is a man long noted for his many achievements in and contributions to the field of Biblical study.

His many books, pamphlets, and study materials have been written because, as Dr. Gettys explains, he has "a sense of mission about getting the Bible and its message back to the people in Protestantism, not only by urging them to study the Bible, but by providing guidance and direction." His books are intended as study aids, not as substitutes for actual study of the Bible itself.

Just Printed

The latest of Dr. Gettys' books, "Surveying the Historical Books" and "Teaching the Historical Books," have just come from the printers. They are further volumes in the How to Study series, published by John Knox Press, the official publishing organ of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. These two additions bring to 26 the total number of books Dr. Gettys has written.

The most popular of his works is "What Presbyterians Believe," a comprehensible summary of the doctrines of the Presbyterian Church. More than 70,000 copies of this book have been sold. "How to Enjoy Studying the Bible," one of Dean Gettys' writings, has sold more than 20,000 copies.

Two Types

Dr. Gettys' books consist largely of two groups, the How to Study-How to Teach series, and the surveys of books or groups of books of the Bible. More than 125,000 copies of all these books combined have been sold.

A few of Dr. Gettys' books are "How to Teach the Bible," "Teaching Others How to Teach the Bible," "How to Study the Revelation," "How to Teach the Revelation"; also, "Surveying the Pentateuch," "Teaching the Pentateuch," and "Meet Your Church."

Other Than Books

In addition to his many books, Dr. Gettys is the author of Sunday School materials, devotionals for young people, and study materials for the Women of the Church in both the Northern and the Southern Churches.

Dean Gettys is included in the 1957 edition of the Directory of American Scholars and the current editions of Who's Who Among Educators, and Who's Who in the South and Southwest.

A GUIDE FOR THE UNMONEYED

R. L. Sigafoos was a keen, ambitious lad, and when he finished high school he wished mightily to go on with his education. It seemed, however, a forlorn hope. R. L.'s father could not send the boy to college because a series of crop failures had brought him to the brink of disaster. (R. L.'s father raised orchids which, in North Dakota, is a form of agriculture fraught with risk.)

It was, therefore, squarely up to R. L. He could go to college only if he worked his way through. This was a prospect that dismayed him. He had a deep-seated fear that the task would be too great, that he would never be able to carry on a full, busy college life and still find time to do odd jobs and make money.

Racked with misgivings, R. L. paced the streets, pondering his dilemma. One day, walking and brooding, he came upon a park bench and sat down and lit a Marlboro cigarette. R. L. always lit a Marlboro when he was low in his mind. R. L. also always lit a Marlboro when he was merry. The fact is there is no occasion—happy or sad, pensive or exuberant, cheery or solemn—when Marlboro with its fine filter and fine flavor is not entirely welcome, as you will discover when you go to your favorite tobacconist and buy some, as we—the makers of Marlboro and I and R. L. Sigafoos—hope you will do real soon.

Sitting and thinking and smoking a Marlboro on the park bench, R. L. was suddenly interrupted by a small, quavering voice which said, "My boy, you are troubled. Can I help?"

I gave a fencing lesson to the Dean of Women

Seated beside R. L. was a tiny, gnarled man with wispy, snow-white hair. His skin was almost transparent, showing a delicate tracery of fragile bones beneath. His back was bent, and his hands trembled. But his eyes were bright and clear. R. L. looked into those eyes, into the wrinkled face. He saw wisdom there, and experience, and kindness. "Do you think, sir," said R. L., "that a boy can work his way through college and still enjoy a rich, full campus life?"

"Why, bless you, son," replied the stranger with a rheumy chuckle, "of course you can. In fact, I did it myself."

"Was it very hard?" asked R. L.

"Yes, it was hard," the stranger admitted. "But when one is young, all things are possible. I, for example, used to get up at five o'clock every morning to stoke the furnace at the SAE house. At six I had to milk the ewes at the school of animal husbandry. At seven I gave a fencing lesson to the Dean of Women. At eight I had a class in early Runic poets. At nine I gave haircuts at the Gamma Phi Beta house. At ten I had differential calculus. At eleven I posed for a life class. At twelve I watered soup at the Union. At one I had a class in Oriental languages. At two I exercised the mice in psych lab. At three I gave the Dean of Women another fencing lesson. At four I had qualitative analysis. At five I went clamming. At six I cut meat for the football team. At seven I ushed at the movies. At eight I had my ears pierced so that at nine I could tell fortunes in a gypsy tearoom. At ten I had a class in astronomy. At eleven I tucked in the football team. At twelve I studied and at three I went to sleep."

"Sir," cried R. L., "I am moved and inspired by your shining example!"

"It was nothing," said the stranger modestly, shaking his frail white head. "It was just hard work, and hard work never hurt anybody."

"Would you mind telling me, sir," said R. L., "how old you are now?"

"Twenty-two," said the stranger.

Hugh Holman, Noted PC Alumnus To Give Commencement Address

DR. HOLMAN

Dr. C. Hugh Holman, Dean of the Graduate School of the University of North Carolina, will be the main speaker for the 1963 Presbyterian College commencement program, President Marshall W. Brown announced this week. In making the announcement, Dr. Brown indicated that Holman was chosen because of his outstanding achievements. "Holman was brilliant as a student, creatively inspiring as a teacher, skilled, competent, and cooperative as a dean, and so able in his graduate work and in later scholarly productivity, that he has greatly added to the lustre of our alumni roll," stated President Brown.

Dr. Holman, an alumnus of PC, assumed his present duties as Dean of the graduate facilities of UNC at the beginning of the spring semester this year. He had formerly served as Chairman of the Division of Humanities of the University.

PC Dean

A member of the Class of 1936, Dr. Holman took a B. S. degree at PC, planning to go on to medical school. However, after graduation, he remained here to become Director of Public Relations. Later, he did graduate work in English and became Professor of English here. He then was appointed Academic Dean by Dr. Brown.

Dr. Holman's wide versatility has been proved by his successful writing, his teaching such diverse subjects as English and physics, and his having been editor of a publishing firm.

Phi Beta Kappa

In 1946, Dr. Holman left PC and went to UNC to begin a program of study leading to the Ph.D. Teaching part time to defray expenses, he spent three years working for the degree and received it in 1949 with a specialization in the field of American literature. His average for his academic work while a student at UNC was such that he was chosen to become a member of Phi Beta Kappa, an academic honor fraternity.

After receiving his doctorate, Dr. Holman remained at UNC as Assistant Professor of English, full professorship and two years later became Chairman of the Unviersity's entire English Department.

Douglas Plan For The Lost

Annual Board Of Trustees Meeting Convenes Tuesday

The Board of Trustees and the Board of Visitors of Presbyterian College convene here Tuesday, March 5, at 10:45 for a joint meeting in the Trustee Room adjoining Belk Auditorium. After the morning session, the two bodies will meet separately to conduct regular business.

Chairman Robert M. Vance will preside over the afternoon meeting of the 28-member governing body of the college. Board members have been supplied in advance with up-to-date reports on the issues to be discussed.

Athletic Policy

Of paramount importance on the agenda is the deliberation of the athletic policy of the College. The Board will discuss several possibilities for an athletic program, hear the specific recommendations of the Athletic Council, and probably reach a decision on this major issue.

Another main item of business will be the designation of men to receive PC's honorary degrees at the spring commencement program. The College can confer honorary degrees in any area related to academic courses at PC, but the degrees are usually either Doctorates of Divinity or Doctorates of Law.

Board Officers

The Board of Trustees is composed of Presbyterians representing the Synods of South Carolina and Georgia and the Alumni Association. Officers of the Board are Robert M. Vance of Clinton, Chairman; George B. Hoyt of Atlanta, Vice-Chairman; and J. Ferdinand Jacobs, also of Clinton, Secretary.

The Board of Visitors is made up of men and women appointed by the Board of Trustees. The purpose of the group is to act with the Trustees as advisors on the program of the institution, especially on long-range objectives, and to serve as interpreters of the College's programs.

Officers of the group are James A. Chapman, Jr., of Inman, Chairman; Thomas H. Belk of Charlotte, N. C., Vice-Chairman; and Mrs. Taylor H. Stukes of Manning, Secretary.

Former PC Gridiron Star Named Athletic Director

Calhoun F. "Cally" Gault will assume the position of Athletic Director and Head Coach at Presbyterian College at the close of the present school term, becoming the fourth athletic director at PC in 48 years, and the sixth head coach in this period.

He starred at PC in football for three years, alternating between quarterback and halfback. He also lettered two years in basketball and two in baseball.

Gault, who was graduated from this school in 1948, returns to take the job after one of the most impressive high school coaching careers in South Carolina. While coaching at North Augusta, he compiled an outstanding record of 86 wins, 13 lossses and 7 ties. From 1954-58, his teams ran a string of 42 consecutive wins.

He has anounced he has not yet made any plans for the coaching staff next year, and will continue as North Augusta coach until filling the vacancy left by the [illegible] Clyde Ehrhardt.

A native of Bamberg, he grew up in Greenville where he attended high school. While at PC, Gault was active in ROTC, student and fraternity government. He was a member of Pi Kappa Phi.

New IFC Weekend Begins With Parties Tonight

I F C Weekend officially begins tonight as the individual fraternities begin their series of weekend dances. This social weekend, new to PC, is an Interfraternity innovation to fill the void between Christmas Dance Weekend and the Military Ball. Dances will be held tonight and tomorrow by the individual fraternities.

Moses To Play

Theta Chi plans a record party tonight in the fraternity room, and Wade King's Combo of Greenville will entertain Saturday night at the Laurens-Clinton Country Club. "Moses and His Disciples" will play for Pi Kappa Alpha at the Clinton Shrine Hut both nights. Alpha Sigma Phi will have a record party Fridyay night to be followed by the "Joy Jumpers" of Greenville Saturday night at the Legion Hut.

A record party is slated for the Pi Kappa Phi suite Friday night, and The Playboys will entertain the chapter Saturday night. Kappa Alpha will hold both dances in its house with records Friday night and "The Pontiacs" Saturday night. The Hotel Mary Musgrove will be the scene of Sigma Nu's Saturday night dance with "The Dynamics" playing. This will be preceded by a record dance Friday night in the house.

Student Opinion Polled On Athletic Situation

by Marshall Jones and Christine Wilson, Associate Editors

The athletic program of Presbyterian College has been affected by recent strategic events and all arrows point to a re-evaluation of our over-all program. The unusually enthusiastic response to the Blue Stocking Poll is fair proof that the athletic program has been critically examined and discussed among the students. A typical remark found among the questionnaires is this, "I think it's time we evaluated the purpose for having college sports, inter-collegiate or otherwise." Question by question, this is the result of the opinion poll.

What To Keep

1. "Which sport, if any do you prefer as an intercollegiate sport for PC-"
   1. Tennis (40%)
   2. Football (29%)
   3 Basketball (24%)
   4 Other (7%)

Nearly half (45%) considered it advantageous to move toward an intramural program which would de-emphasize football and place emphasis on other sports.

2. "If there must be a financial cut-back, where do you think this cut-back should come? And why?

Football Cut

The overwhelming majority (86%) voted that a necessary financial cut-back should come in the football program. The reasons were numerous, but the most widely expressed was that a cut in football scholarship with

Last Saturday, the Presbyterian College R. O. T. C. Division released the official list of branch assignments for senior cadets graduating this June.

Seniors going to the Artillery are: William W. Skinner, Paul D. Woodall, Jr., Kenneth D. Acker, Roy H. Autry, Steven L. Craig, Mark N. Glenn, Henry H. Gordon, Jr., Joseph S. Harvard, III, and Marshall G. Jones.

Infantrymen

Robert S. Arrowood, Jr., Karl A. Bosserman, Jr., Roe M. Callaway, Jr., and Murray B. White, Jr., will join the Armor; Kenneth K. Davis, Donald E. Lohman, and George G. Reaves have been assigned to Infantry.

Joining the Ordnance Corps are William F. Bartee and Thomas E. Taylor. Lorenzo D. Eagles, Jr., Harry M. Gryder, and Robert W. Hazelwood will go to the Medical Services Corps, and John D. Henderson will be in the Chemical Corps.

To the Army Intelligence Service will go Robert P. Piephoff; to the Military Police Corps—Paul Yearout; and to the Quartermaster Corps — Eugene R. Goodwyn, III.

Johnson Club Holds Discussion Meeting

The Executive Committee of the Walter Johnson Club as well as other alumni and friends who are interested in the athletic program of the College met on campus Saturday, February 23, to receive background information on the cost of the present athletic program and to discuss their views on the future of athletics here.

No official news release was made after the meeting.

The Athletic Question - A Problem Of Policy, A Challenge To Change

Athletics Vs. Academics

WALTER JOHNSON, the man and his players, created the PC image—that of a small college athletic powerhouse. The subsequent advent of men of less temper than Johnson saw the fact of the image fade. Now the image is perhaps as shattered as it ever will be.

CONCURRENT WITH this low point is an intense emphasis on evaluating the athletic question; that is, is PC perhaps misdirected in following its highly emphasized athletic policy? Is the college merely clutching at the vistages of an image?—an image that belongs to the past and which will therefore ever bind PC in the past?

PRESBYTERIAN COLLEGE cannot continue athletic spending at its current rate — apparently blindly hoping that perhaps everything will be all-right if only we have a winning team. The strength of a college in the twentieth century connot help but be directly related to the institution's academic vitality.

THIS IS NOT to pronounce doom on the athletes, or scream that we must cater only to mentality. A strong, successful athletic program is unquestionably desirable; but to maintain such at the expense of the school's scholastic strength is a move that can only be considered utterly foolish.

THE INEVITABLE QUESTION now arises of "Just how important is a strong academic program?" It is just this important—that all else without it is nothing. In a feature last week, Bob Allison aptly referred to the uselessness of new buildings if dilute education was contained within them. This may be applied equally well to the futility of a winning season obtained at the cost of less educational facilities.

IN THIS AGE the trend of education is towards a higher scholastic level than has ever been demanded previously. The institution that can operate on and have students capable of such a level will succeed and move forward—whereas the opposite case will result only in stagnation or regression.

PEOPLE ARE NOT coming to college to satisfy some whim. They're coming to prepare themselves for their life's work. In selecting a college, they will choose the one that produces the winners. Conversely, the college failing to produce competent individuals will not be chosen and will consequently either stand still or move backwards.

WHO ARE THESE winners and how do they relate to PC? They are simply able people whose ability has been constructively developed. Their relation to PC concerns the fact that PC is perhaps deficient in the numbers of such people enrolled; and that the college is not completely adapted to handle large numbers of them.

WE DO NOT intend to present a completely negative viewpoint. Some of PC's courses and some of her students are on a par with those to be found anywhere. But there are not enough.

PROOF OF THIS is reflected in the reason why PC does not have a Phi Beta Kappa chapter. The society's affiliation is based on laboratory facilities, library, faculty, and outstanding alumni. In a conversation in 1957 with the present Academic Dean Emeritus, Dr. George Bellingrath, it was established by a "Blue Stocking" reporter that we are sufficient in all categories but the last.

GREAT STRIDES are being made to rectify the situation. For instance, $700,000 of the recent fund drive will be used for faculty salaries and scholarships. But this will be used to raise faculty salaries which are still below the national average. "Scholarshipwise," the result would be but a few full scholarships and not so many more partial ones.

THERE IS PRACTICALLY nothing available for an able student unless he secures one of the few founder's scholarships or is a minister's son or is pre-ministerial. He could assume the debt of a National Defense Loan. What this all boils down to is that we're not getting enough really competent people in the first place, and second that faculty salaries are not yet quite high enough to assure a completely overall competent faculty.

THE POINT IS CLEAR therefore. It behooves PC to take cognizance of the facts and move in the right direction. The situation is not a void in which nothing has been done. PC has begun in earnest to meet the problem. Only someone completely blind to the facts would fail to see the need for an athletic cut and an academic increase. The only question that remains is "Are we moving progressively fast enough and in large enough steps?"

THERE IS PERHAPS some reason to worry that any changes made will be but mild ones. We fear this. On the other hand, complete de-emphasis is not what is sought. Rather, a good goal would be a large enough athletic cut to increase salaries and scholarships as much as possible and yet still maintain some degree of intercollegiate athletics. Possibilities of the nature of this practical degree of intercollegiate athletics are discussed in the Blue Key editorial.

Athletics Vs. Athletics (Written by the Blue Key)

BELIEVING THAT a good intercollegiate athletic program is of great value to a small college, the members of the Blue Key are anxious for Presbyterian to maintain as strong an athletic program as is possible. However, we realize that because of finances the football program must be modified.

DURING THE PAST five years, the emphasis on football to the detriment of almost every other sport has caused the athletic program to become too expensive as well as overbalanced in one direction. Moreover, the emphasis on football has accomplished nothing except to increase the expense of the athletic program. Although we would like to see PC have a very strong football team, we realize that the program cannot continue as it now is.

THE FIRST ALTERNATIVE to our present program is to join the Carolinas Conference. To join the conference would be fine as far as football and basketball are concerned. The cutting down of the number of football scholarships would save money. PC would be able to compete with other schools who are bound by the same grant-in-aid limitations.

HOWEVER, WE ARE somewhat apprehensive about the predicament in which PC's tennis program would be placed. The two spring sports scholarships allowed by the Carolinas Conference could both be awarded to tennis. This would probably be sufficient for PC to remain a tennis power within the state.

BUT WOULD PC be able to maintain its national prominence with only two scholarships in tennis? A small college cannot hope to compete on a national basis in either football or basketball. The finances are simply not available. However, when with a relatively small amount of money a small college can gain national recognition in a sport, we feel that the college would be foolish to discontinue such a program.

TENNIS HAS BROUGHT a national recognition to PC that no other sport can hope to do. Moreover, although the exact figures have not been made available to us, we would guess that tennis costs less money and loses less money than either football or basketball.

AN ALTERNATIVE to joining the Carolinas Conference might be to adopt the grant-in-aid limitations of the conference for all sports other than tennis. However, this would probably result in scheduling difficulties for football. If these difficulties could be somehow worked out, we feel that this would be the best solution to the problem. It would enable PC to maintain competent teams in football and basketball, and at the same time, to maintain its national ranking in tennis.

VERY FEW STUDENTS, if any, would like to see the football program completely abolished. However, if PC cannot reduce the amount of grants-in-aid and still be able to compete with other schools in the general area, then there seems to be no alternative to dropping football completely. Moreover, there is no sense in fielding any athletic team that does not expect to win its share of games. Continual losing does not build character nor inspire loyalty to one's Alma Mater. Although winning is not the most important thing, winning is important!

THE OVER-EMPHASIS on football during the past few years has had a detrimental effect on the other sports, especially basketball. In the past four years, the PC basketball team, in spite of having good material, has not even approached a 50-50 won-lost record. We feel that the cause of the decline in basketball is due primarily to the fact that the basketball coaches during this period have been football coaches first and basketball coaches second.

OF COURSE, it is all right for the basketball coach to help coach footbatl. But he should be a basketball coach first and a football coach second. There seems to be very little reason to have eight basketball players getting grants-in-aid and to have a coach whose primary duty is to coach football.

WE FEEL THAT we must al-

ALPHA SIGMA PHI

Alpha Psi of Alpha Sigma Phi announces plans for IFC Weekend. Tonight there will be a Lil' Abner party in the fraternity suite and Saturday night the Joy Jumpers will begin playing at 9:00. Everyone is reminded that Lats are in order for Saturday night at the Legion Hut.

Brother of the Week is Bobby P. Piephoff.

KAPPA ALPHA

Brothers and pledges of Beta Pi Chapter eagerly anticipate activities planned for the weekend. Tonight attention is focused on the record party in the fraternity house. Tomorrow night the "Pontiacs" will entertain.

Heartiest congratulations are extended to Gene Miller, who was pledged this week, and to Brothr Tommy Williams for making the intramural All-Star team.

PI KAPPA ALPHA

Final plans for the parties to be held at the Shriner's Club on Lake Greenwood were discussed.

As usual, everyone enjoyed the annual pledge party. Wade Stewart was crowned this year's pledge king.

Pledges enjoyed their trips to various schools this past weekend.

Brothers of the week are Cape, Deason, McCranie, Fowler, and Harrell.

SIGMA NU

The pledge-brother party was a great success. The door prize was won by Brother Collins for the second consecutive time.

Plans are complete for IFC Weekend. Saturday afternoon entertainment will be provided by the Dynamics.

Congratulations to new pledges Steve Watson, Paul Conger, Dan Arnold, Carroll Jones, John Wells, Bill Crowley, and Ed Sellars.

THETA CHI

Beta Psi Chapter of Theta Chi is planning a party in the fraternity suite for this evening, and a party tomorrow night at the Lakeside Country Club with the Wade-King Combo.

Congratulations are extended to the basketball team for their effort this season which is in the play-off tournament. Congratulations also go to the bridge team for placing first among fraternities in recent competition.

PC To Host Area IM Tourney; Furman, Erskine, Newberry Enter

by AL PEARCE

The first annual Presbyterian College Invitational Intramural Basketball Tournament will get underway here Wednesday night, March 6, to begin two nights of all-Star basketball action among colleges in this area, announced Intramural Chairman Gordan Warden this week. The tournament, the first of its kind in the state, will wind up the intramural basketball season for the four schools involved. PC's representative will be its I-M all-star team, which was announced today.

PC will play host to Furman, Erskine, and Newberry in the games to be held in LeRoy Springs Gym at 7:30 and 9:00 each night. In the tournament's first round, Furman will face Erskine at 7:30 and PC will take on Newberry in the night's final. The winners of these games will advance into the finals on Thursday night. The consolation game will begin at 7:30 and will pit the losers in the first round to go for third place. The championship game will begin at 9:00, with the first round winners battling it out for the first place trophy. Trophies will be awarded, and an All Tournament team will be selected by officials, coaches, and the press.

Regular Officials

Coach Warden has secured four SC high school officials to call the games, and a 25c admission will go for their pay and expenses. All the facilities of the gym will be available, and the school has given its full cooperation for the tournament. It is expected that all teams will use their school's varsity uniforms, and a full program is being printed up of each team.

The tournament, which is going to be an annual affair at PC, is expected to draw large crowds from nearby schools. Erskine, particularly, has been enthusiastic about the tournament, and they promise a big crowd for each game Erskine is in. Newberry and Furman have also assured PC that they will bring large followings when they play.

Intramural All-Star Team, Leading Scorers Announced

An Intramural cagers' election this week picked the 1963 I-M All-Stars. This squad will represent PC in the up-coming Invitational Intramural Tournament.

The first team is made up of "Moose" Brown of the PiKA's, who sported the highest regular season scoring average at 17.8 points per game; Tommy Williams, of the KA's, who averaged 16.8 per game; Knot Culpepper of the Pi Kapp's, who hit for 16.1 per game; Pete Yearout of the Sigma Nus, who scored 14.1 per game; and Leighton Grantham of the PiKA's, who averaged 12.0 points per game.

The second team is made up of "Dewey" McReynolds of the Pounders, who scored at a 15.8 points per game average; "Chuckie" Parnell, also of the Pounders, who hit for 14.5 per game, plus the season's individual high of 34; Garnet Welch of the Sigma Nus, who averaged 12.0 points per game; Wayne Fowler of the PiKA's, who scored 11.6 per game; and Bill Russell of the PiKA's, who hit for 8 per game.

Bench Warming, Slumps Hurt Blue Cagers

AFTER SEVERAL YEARS of humility in basketball, PC possessed at the start of the 1962 season an outstanding store of talent and appeared on the road to a highly successful year. But now all that remains of these hopes is a miserable 7-14 record.

TWO FRESHMAN scoring leaders and starters from the 1961 campaign followed up their promising starts on the bench. One of the two did manage to get in four games of steady action, and responded with 13, 16, 16, and 18 point performances. The other one's action consisted mostly of pre-game warmups.

ONE SENIOR who showed great potential and had that special "touch," jockeyed with the two above-mentioned players for the end position on the bench. He hit on about two-thirds of his shots but sat idly on the sidelines while the opponents raced off with the game.

SEVEN GAMES were lost by second half slowdowns which saw the lead and time slip away while the Hose offense dribbled on the outside in slow motion plays which seldom broke the opponents' defense. Even when we were ahead the game was dragged out, giving opposing teams time for a comeback.

ONE FRESHMAN, who sank half of his few shots while appearing briefly in only four games, had the height and build and ability and drive which you don't usually find on the bench of a team losing twice as many games as it wins.

THREE "RESERVES" never even were given the chance to show that they had eve nearned the right to just sit on the bench. They yelled "encouragement" while the team was sometimes 20 points behind.

THE TEAM'S performance started on a high level, and then slipped considerably. One of the starters hit on only one-tenth of his shots the final seven games.

THE FRESHMEN who broke into the season with dazzling play showed that theye were still freshmen as the year drew to a close.

THESE ARE ONLY a few of the reasons PC didn't win. A couple of these point the finger at the players, but one only had to listen to the fans at the games to sense where the blame was dumped. One also had only to watch the games to understand that PC had a better team than the record shows. The only thing less stable than a losing coach is an unpopular losing coach. The hanging party left no doubt about popular opinion. Popular opinion was answered this week.

ways keep in mind that the function of any college is primarily education. It is our understanding that a person receiving an athletic grant-in-aid is allowed to participate in his sport and to continue to receive his grant-in-aid as long as he remains at the college, regardless of his grade point ratio. We feel that the academic requirements for those who receive athletic grants - in - aid should be raised, perhaps to the 2.00 average that is required for other students receiving grants-in-aid.

A STRONG intercollegiate sports program can be very valuable to a small college. However, it must be kept within its proper relationship and contribute to the over-all goals of the college. We feel that the current 60-20-20 ratio of athletic grants-in-aid to the other grants-in-aid is not in keeping with the educational goals of the college and must therefore be changed.

A SOUND athletic program is not only valuable in preparing undergraduates for their lives after college, but it is also important in creating the type of loyalty to one's Alma Mater because of which the alumnus is willing to support the college in every phase of its total program. We feel that when an alumnus knows what his school is doing and is certain that his money is being spent wisely, he is much more likely to contribute to the support of the school.

Drama Group To Present Short Play By Saroyan

Dramatics is staging a return on the PC campus. A group of students interested in drama announced last week that they had chosen William Saroyan's "Hello Out There" for presentation in PC's first drama workshop in many years. The group, directed by Mr. Wayne Gunn, held tryouts for roles on Thursday and Friday nights and began rehearsals Monday night.

Playing in the leading roles are sophomore Suzanna Jeanes and senior Alex Bosserman. Supporting roles were given to Geraldine Haydock, Mike Smith, Paul Conger, and Jim Huber.

The stage crew is headed by Technical Director George Patat and Assistant to the Director Henry Stakely. The sets will be built under the supervision of Mr. William Cannon.

To Stimulate Interest

The brief play will be presented as a chapel program on March 15. The purpose for staging the play is to interest more students in drama and to make further efforts toward establishing a regular series of plays for our campus.

William Saroyan, author of the play, is winner of both the Drama Critics' Award and the Pulitzer Prize for his play, "The Time of Your Life." He is a writer of whimsical fantasy in the tradition of Steinbeck's "Tortilla Flat." His works reflect his great concern for people's lack of understanding of each other. Most of his plays deal with the loneliness of mankind and his need for communication with fellow human beings.

Paean

In describing the play, Mr. Gunn quoted John Gassner: "The play is a paean to man's impulsive love of beauty, to kindliness and dignity among the obscure, and to the wondering faith that children reveal . . . We like the play insofar as we experience it; we dislike it insofar as we do not experience it."

redistribution to basketball and tennis would give PC a more well-rounded athletic program which would in the long run be more successful. Most students polled felt strongly that PC is too small to support a properly-financed winning football team to compete with larger and better equipped schools. The large number of football scholarships does not benefit the majority of the students, yet the suggested cut does not mean abandonment of football. The general sentiment was that fewer football scholarships could be given without injuring the team.

3. "Would you recommend a heavy concentration on time and money in one sport in the hopes of bringing this sport to a winning capacity in order to stimulate publicity for the school?"

Complete Concentration

The majority (155-105) stated in effect, that if winning is of basic importance, then concentration is the only way in which to build a strong victorious team but this concentration means increased financial aid and a strong coaching staff. If the concentration is not complete it is useless. Most students did not express a desire to enter the Carolina Conference because of the limit it would place on the minor sports. Also suggested was a close administrative-coaching relationship which would aid in wiser spending of appropriated funds and thus a more economical program.

4. "Will a change in the PC athletic program affect the type of students that will enroll at PC in the future?"

With a de-emphasis or cut in intercollegiate sports, the possibilities are high that the type of student enrolling at PC will change. This was the opinion of 67% of the students polled. The disagreement of opinions came basically in deciding whether the change would be for the better or for the worse.

Eye Catcher

A slight majority argued that intercollegiate sports, football in particular, are an eye-catcher for high school seniors choosing a college. "Well-rounded men need athletics," and this is the supposed purpose of intercollegiate sports. The final implication is that de-emphasis of intercollegiate sports will bring a majority of non-athletic intellectuals to PC.

Yet, many feel that a good intramural program gives more opportunity to all students to become physically and mentally well-rounded. The choice of a college should depend on academic standards as well as extra-curricular activities. "Graduate schools or future employers won't ask me for the football statistics of my alma mater.

No Status Quo

5. Would you favor continuing the athletic program in its present status?"

The majority answers no! The The vote was 195-65 and the accompanying remarks show that the students as well as the faculty and administration realize that there must be a revamping of our present athletic program. The overwhelming feeling is that the change must come now.

As students we cannot know all of the facets of this problem that must be considered by the appointed committees, but we do realize there will be no simple solution and no sudden results.

Personel Men To Interview

Two dates have been set for senior job interviews next week. On Tuesday, March 5, representatives from the Deering-Milliken Service Corp. and the Roanoke (Va.) County Schools will be on campus. Personnel from the Board of Public Education, Savanah, will be here on March 7.

Interested seniors should contact Mrs. Anderson, Secretary to the Dean of Students, for appointments.

Camp Harmony To Host Thirteen For WF Meet

Camp Harmony will host the annual spring Westminster Fellowship Conference March 1-3. Thirteen PC students, including Harold Hope, moderator of the WF Council will attend.

Christian Action will be emphasized, with its Biblical basis and motivation studied in a Friday night meeting. The students will explore the potential of Christian Action by observing such fields as: work with the blind, work at the state Penitentiary, mental health clinics, alcoholic rehabilitation, racial problems, and labor-management problems. These studies will be made by individual groups on Saturday, and the observations and findings will be evaluated at a Saturday night meeting.

The purpose of the Conference is to expand Christian Action through worship, study, discussion, and action. Time will be allotted for election of next year's officers.

GLAD RAGS

The hounds of spring are on winter's traces. Soon buds the crocus, soon trills the giant condor, soon come the new spring fashions to adorn our lissome limbs.

And what will the American college student wear this spring? Gather round, you rascals, and light a Marlboro Cigarette and enjoy that fine mellow tobacco, that pure white filter, and possess your souls in sweet content, and listen.

As everyone knows, campus fashions have always been casual. This spring, however, they have gone beyond being merely casual: they have become makeshift.

The object is to look madly improvised, gaily spur-of-the-moment! For example, why don't you girls try wearing a peasant skirt with a dinner jacket? Or matador pants with a bridal veil? Or Bermuda shorts with bronze breastplates? Be rakish! Be impromptu! Be devil-take-the-hindmost!

And, men, you be the same. Try an opera cape with sweat pants. Or a letter-sweater with kilts. Or a strait jacket with hip boots. Be bold! Be daring! Be a tourist attraction!

Be rakish! Be impromptu!

But all is not innovation in college fashions this spring. In fact, one of the highlights of the season turns time backward in its flight. I refer, of course, to the comeback of the powdered wig.

This charming accoutrement, too long neglected, has already caught on with in undergrads everywhere. On hundreds of campuses the bossa nova is giving way to the minuet, and patriotic undergraduates are dumping British tea into the nearest harbor. This, as you may imagine, does not sit well with King George III who, according to reliable reports, has been stamping his foot and uttering curses not fit to reproduce in this family newspaper. For that matter, a lot of our own people are steamed up too, and there has even been some talk about the American colonies declaring their independence of England. But I hardly think it will come to that. I mean, how can we break with the mother country when we are dependent on her for so many things—linsey-woolsey, Minié balls, taper snuffers, and like that? She, on the other hand, relies on us for turkeys, Marlboro Cigarettes, and Route 66. So I say, if Molly Pitcher and those other Radcliffe hotheads will calm down, and if gentlemen will cry "Peace! Peace!" we may yet find an amicable solution to our differences. But let not our British cousins mistake this willingness to negotiate for weakness. If fight we must, then fight we will! Paul Revere is saddled up, the rude bridge arches the flood, and the ROTC is armed!

But I digress. We were smoking Marlboro Cigarettes—O, splendid cigarette! O, good golden tobacco! O, pristine pure white filter! O, fresh! O, tasty! O, soft pack! O, flip top box! O, get some!—we were, I say, smoking Marlboros and talking about spring fashions.

Let us turn now to the season's most striking new feature—pneumatic underdrawers. These inflatable garments make every chair an easy chair. Think how welcome they will be when you sit through a long lecture! They are not, however, without certain dangers. Last week, for example, Rimbaud Sigafoos, a sophomore at the University of Pittsburgh, fell out of a 96th story window in the Tower of Learning. Thanks to his pneumatic underdrawers, he suffered no injury when he struck the sidewalk, but the poor fellow is still bouncing—his seventh consecutive day—and it is feared that he will starve to death.

Size And Sophs Mark New Blue Stocking

Size, sophomores, and some shake-up characterize this semester's Blue Stocking. Editor Phifer states that "competence and ability earmark the entire staff."

Speaking of sophomore strength, four of the editorship positions are filled by sophomores. Speaking of size, with fifty-five members, the new Sock staff may be the largest yet. "Shake-up-wise," the only real change in the paper's organization occurred on the Feature Staff.

Instead of having just a few constant writers for features, various students of considerable writing skill have been asked to contribute two articles each this semester. The Feature Editor now serves more as an administrator and idea man.

New Editors

Occupying the top editorship, positions of News Editor, Feature Editor, and Sports Editor are, respectively, Walter Wells and Wirt Skinner, with Al Pearce and Glenn Browder sharing the sports responsibility.

Wells, a sophomore, is a Dean's List English major. Wells has served previously as a reporter and then as Assistant News Editor.

A Dean's List History major, Skinner is one of the few seniors on the paper. He has previously worked on the Sock as News Editor and as Associate Editor.

Last semester's Sports Editor, Pearce is a sophomore history major. Browder, although he hasn't worked previously on the paper, has considerable journalistic experience. Editor of his high school paper, sophomore history major Browder won a scholarship to PC for the specific purpose of writing releases.

Holding down the job of Assistant Business Manager is Wiley Jones, who also held this post last semester. Jones is a sophomore business administrator major.

Filling the other editorship posts are:

Staff Additions

The members of the new Feature Staff are: Bobby Piephoff; Paul Woodall; Swink Saunders; Alex Bosserman; John Craig; Notchy Maddox; Bob Alison; John Sheffield; Jim Barbour; and Jan Rhodes.

Rejoining the Sports Staff is Loren Eagles. New man on the Business Staff is Phillip Olmert.

The News Staff has seven new members. They are: Jack Westall; Jimmy Simpson; Woody Merritt; Becky Farmer; Wayne Hopper; Olney Meadows; and Tim Grey.

Sergeant Elrod

Sergeant Receives OCS Appointment

Sergeant W. C. Elrod, presently a member of the PC Military Department, has received an appointment to Officer Candidate School at Fort Benning, Ga. Completion of the course, which lasts a total of twenty-three weeks, will result in a commission. Elrod will attend an additional three weeks at jump school.

During his tour of duty here, he is coaching the college rifle team. In a more official capacity, he is serving in a secretarial-clerical position. Elrod joined the PC military staff in March of 1962.

To receive the appointment, Elrod passed a number of tests and was questioned by a board of officers at Fort Gordon.

A native of Cookeville, Tenn., Elrod is married and has one son, Brian, age 6 months.

Sock Cleans Itself Up

Observant readers can no doubt see the changes abroad at present in this Blue Stocking. Gentler readers will. And this refers to more than the obvious changes in size, flair, new Greek head, and new sports column head.

Instead of two lines succeeding the "dash one" on the front page, there is only one. The line across the top of each of the inside pages doesn't go all the way across any more either. Instead of using bold-face type to break up the printing, little headlines in the body of the type are being used.

Dean's Listers Win Awards

"Dean's Listers" Ann Kirkland, a sophomore from Monroe Corner, and Tom Whitaker, a freshman from Florence, were recently presented with the awards given annually by the Physics and Chemistry Departments.

Each award, which consists of a book entitled "The Handbook of Chemistry and Physics," is donated by the Chemical and Rubber Company. It is given to the student who has demonstrated the greatest aptitude in his subject.

Miss Kirkland, a Mathematics major and Founder's Scholar, received the award for her work in Physics.

Tom Whitaker, a pre-medical student received the award for his achievement in chemistry.

Faculty Puts Togather Self-Study Committees

The college faculty has made further progress in its plans for the two-year self-evaluation. At the February Faculty Meeting, Mr. Gordon Sweet, Executive Secretary of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, led a briefing session on faculty self-study programs.

When contacted about this study, Dr. Gettys reported that the faculty has already selected a steering committee, composed of Dr. Gettys, Chairman; Mr. Glover; Dr. Hay; Mr. Prater; and Dr. Whitelaw. Dr. Gettys said, "This Steering Committee is busily engaged in working out a statement of purpose for all of the college program."

"This study, scheduled to be in progress for the next eighteen months, is expected to evaluate critically the present program, and to help chart the program of Presbyterian College for several years to come," Dean Gettys went on to say.

Self-Study Committees

Also at the February meeting the Steering Committee proposed and adopted the following committee assignments for the program:

Financial Resources — Chairman, Mr. Baker; Mr. Edward Campbell; Mr. Madden; Mr. Oeland; Mr. Cannon.

Organization — Chairman, Mr. Halsall; Mr. Edward Campbell; Col. Thackston; Dr. Gettys, Mr. Riggs; Mrs. Martin; Mr. Vickers; Mr. Fakkema; Mr. Oeland.

Educational Program, Research, and Special Activities—Chairman, Dr. Carter; Consultant, Dr. Bellingrath; Dr. Hay; Mr. King; Mr. Glover; Mr. Richardson; Col. Ulrich.

In his talk, Col. Fraser stressed the determination he had [illegible] the Chinese people. His strongest impression centered on the Chinese people's unbelievable will to survive. "They realize that the stand which they have taken against Communist expansion and tyranny requires sacrifice, patience, and willingness to pay the price for economic [illegible] and political progress."

Col. Fraser felt that in spite of the economic and agricultural hardships coupled to their large defense expense, that they have nevertheless advanced the production of food and industry commendably. He was also impressed by the sense of conviction and determination of the Chinese youth.

Choir to Make Trip To Greenville, Greer

The Robed Choir will travel to Greenville and Greer this Sunday, February 24. This will be the third trip on the choir's second semester schedule.

The choir, under the direction of Dr. Edouard Patte, will appear at the Fourth Presbyterian Church in Greenville at 11:00 a. m. and then travel to the Greer Presbyterian Church to appear at 7:30 in the evening. The group will return to Clinton Sunday night.

Last week-end the choir went first to Atlanta, where it sang Sunday morning at the Rock Spring Presbyterian Church before an over-capacity crowd.

Sunday night the group appeared at the Decatur Presbyterian Church.

Annual Giving Runs High Despite Other Campaigns

[illegible] was contributed to Presbyterian College in its [illegible] Giving Program, announced Ben Hay Hammet, PC's Director of Public Relations.

1071 people contributed to the program. This number was composed of 751 alumni, 288 friends of the College, and 29 non-alumni parents, who gave respectively $32,788, $19,101, and $3,244.

Most of the gifts were not earmarked for any particular purpose. The donors felt that the college could best determine the most practical use for the funds.

Although the amount raised in the 1962 program fell some $40,000 short of gifts in the 1961 drive, a substantial increase in over-all contributions is shown when it is remembered that the Development Program competed for [illegible] during the same period.

The $55,000 tally is well over the [illegible] the campaign in 1959 and 1960. The figures for those years were $49,000 in 1959, and $53,000 in 1960.

Drama Group To Present Short Play By Saroyan

Dramatics is staging a return on the PC campus. A group of students interested in drama announced last week that they had chosen William Saroyan's "Hello Out There" for presentation in PC's first drama workshop in many years. The group, directed by Mr. Wayne Gunn, held try-outs for roles on Thursday and Friday nights and began rehearsals Monday night.

Playing in the leading roles are sophomore Suzanna Jeanes and senior Alex Bosserman. Supporting roles were given to Geraldine Haydock, Mike Smith, Paul Conger, and Jim Huber.

The stage crew is headed by Technical Director George Patat and Assistant to the Director Henry Stakely. The sets will be built under the supervision of Mr. William Cannon.

To Stimulate Interest

The brief play will be presented as a chapel program on March 15. The purpose for staging the play is to interest more students in drama and to make further efforts toward establishing a regular series of plays for our campus.

William Saroyan, author of the play, is winner of both the Drama Critics' Award and the Pulitzer Prize for his play, "The Time of Your Life." He is a writer of whimsical fantasy in the tradition of Steinbeck's "Tortilla Flat." His works reflect his great concern for people's lack of understanding of each other. Most of his plays deal with the loneliness of mankind and his need for communication with fellow human beings.

Paean

In describing the play, Mr. Gunn quoted John Gassner: "The play is a paean to man's impulsive love of beauty, to kindliness and dignity among the obscure, and to the wondering faith that children reveal . . . We like the play insofar as we experience it; we dislike it insofar as we do not experience it."

redistribution to basketball and tennis would give PC a more well-rounded athletic program which would in the long run be more successful. Most students polled felt strongly that PC is too small to support a properly-financed winning football team to compete with larger and better equipped schools. The large number of football scholarships does not benefit the majority of the students, yet the suggested cut does not mean abandonment of football. The general sentiment was that fewer football scholarships could be given without injuring the team.

3. "Would you recommend a heavy concentration on time and money in one sport in the hopes of bringing this sport to a winning capacity in order to stimulate publicity for the school?"

Complete Concentration

The majority (155-105) stated in effect, that if winning is of basic importance, then concentration is the only way in which to build a strong victorious team but this concentration means increased financial aid and a strong coaching staff. If the concentration is not complete it is useless. Most students did not express a desire to enter the Carolina Conference because of the limit it would place on the minor sports. Also suggested was a close administrative-coaching relationship which would aid in wiser spending of appropriated funds and thus a more economical program.

4. "Will a change in the PC athletic program affect the type of students that will enroll at PC in the future?"

With a de-emphasis or cut in intercollegiate sports, the possibilities are high that the type of student enrolling at PC will change. This was the opinion of 67% of the students polled. The disagreement of opinions came basically in deciding whether the change would be for the better or for the worse.

Eye Catcher

A slight majority argued that intercollegiate sports, football in particular, are an eye-catcher for high school seniors choosing a college. "Well-rounded men need athletics." and this is the supposed purpose of intercollegiate sports. The final implication is that de-emphasis of intercollegiate sports will bring a majority of non-athletic intellectuals to PC.

Yet, many feel that a good intramural program gives more opportunity to all students to become physically and mentally well-rounded. The choice of a college should depend on academic standards as well as extra-curricular activities. "Graduate schools or future employers won't ask me for the football statistics of my alma mater.

No Status Quo

5. Would you favor continuing the athletic program in its present status?"

The majority answers no! The The vote was 195-65 and the accompanying remarks show that the students as well as the faculty and administration realize that there must be a revamping of our present athletic program. The overwhelming feeling is that the change must come now.

As students we cannot know all of the facets of this problem that must be considered by the appointed committees, but we do realize there will be no simple solution and no sudden results.

Personel Men To Interview

Two dates have been set for senior job interviews next week. On Tuesday, March 5, representatives from the Deering-Milliken Service Corp. and the Roanoke (Va.) County Schools will be on campus. Personnel from the Board of Public Education, Savanah, will be here on March 7.

Interested seniors should contact Mrs. Anderson, Secretary to the Dean of Students, for appointments.

Camp Harmony To Host Thirteen For WF Meet

Camp Harmony will host the annual spring Westminster Fellowship Conference March 1-3. Thirteen PC students, including Harold Hope, moderator of the WF Council will attend.

Christian Action will be emphasized, with its Biblical basis and motivation studied in a Friday night meeting. The students will explore the potential of Christian Action by observing such fields as: work with the blind, work at the state Penitentiary, mental health clinics, alcoholic rehabilitation, racial problems, and labor-management problems. These studies will be made by individual groups on Saturday, and the observations and findings will be evaluated at a Saturday night meeting.

The purpose of the Conference is to expand Christian Action through worship, study, discussion, and action. Time will be allotted for election of next year's officers.

GLAD RAGS

The hounds of spring are on winter's traces. Soon buds the crocus, soon trills the giant condor, soon come the new spring fashions to adorn our lissome limbs.

And what will the American college student wear this spring? Gather round, you rascals, and light a Marlboro Cigarette and enjoy that fine mellow tobacco, that pure white filter, and possess your souls in sweet content, and listen.

As everyone knows, campus fashions have always been casual. This spring, however, they have gone beyond being merely casual: they have become makeshift.

The object is to look madly improvised, gaily spur-of-the-moment! For example, why don't you girls try wearing a peasant skirt with a dinner jacket? Or matador pants with a bridal veil? Or Bermuda shorts with bronze breastplates? Be rakish! Be impromptu! Be devil-take-the-hindmost!

And, men, you be the same. Try an opera cape with sweat pants. Or a letter-sweater with kilts. Or a strait jacket with hip boots. Be bold! Be daring! Be a tourist attraction!

Be rakish! Be impromptu!

But all is not innovation in college fashions this spring. In fact, one of the highlights of the season turns time backward in its flight. I refer, of course, to the comeback of the powdered wig.

This charming accoutrement, too long neglected, has already caught on with in undergrads everywhere. On hundreds of campuses the bossa nova is giving way to the minuet, and patriotic undergraduates are dumping British tea into the nearest harbor. This, as you may imagine, does not sit well with King George III who, according to reliable reports, has been stamping his foot and uttering curses not fit to reproduce in this family newspaper. For that matter, a lot of our own people are steamed up too, and there has even been some talk about the American colonies declaring their independence of England. But I hardly think it will come to that. I mean, how can we break with the mother country when we are dependent on her for so many things—linsey-woolsey, Minié balls, taper snuffers, and like that? She, on the other hand, relies on us for turkeys, Marlboro Cigarettes, and Route 66. So I say, if Molly Pitcher and those other Radcliffe hotheads will calm down, and if gentlemen will cry "Peace! Peace!" we may yet find an amicable solution to our differences. But let not our British cousins mistake this willingness to negotiate for weakness. If fight we must, then fight we will! Paul Revere is saddled up, the rude bridge arches the flood, and the ROTC is armed!

But I digress. We were smoking Marlboro Cigarettes—O, splendid cigarette! O, good golden tobaccos! O, pristine pure white filter! O, fresh! O, tasty! O, soft pack! O, flip top box! O, get some!—we were, I say, smoking Marlboros and talking about spring fashions.

Let us turn now to the season's most striking new feature—pneumatic underdrawers. These inflatable garments make every chair an easy chair. Think how welcome they will be when you sit through a long lecture! They are not, however, without certain dangers. Last week, for example, Rimbaud Sigafoos, a sophomore at the University of Pittsburgh, fell out of a 96th story window in the Tower of Learning. Thanks to his pneumatic underdrawers, he suffered no injury when he struck the sidewalk, but the poor fellow is still bouncing—his seventh consecutive day—and it is feared that he will starve to death.

The Blue Stocking

Distinguished for Its Progress

Vol. XLI · Presbyterian College, Clinton, S. C., February 22, 1963 · No. 13

Size And Sophs Mark New Blue Stocking

Size, sophomores, and some shake-up characterize this semester's Blue Stocking. Editor Phifer states that "competence and ability earmark the entire staff."

Speaking of sophomore strength, four of the editorship positions are filled by sophomores. Speaking of size, with fifty-five members, the new Sock staff may be the largest yet. "Shake-up-wise," the only real change in the paper's organization occurred on the Feature Staff.

Instead of having just a few constant writers for features, various students of considerable writing skill have been asked to contribute two articles each this semester. The Feature Editor now serves more as an administrator and idea man.

New Editors

Occupying the top editorship positions of News Editor, Feature Editor, and Sports Editor are, respectively, Walter Wells and Wirt Skinner, with Al Pearce and Glenn Browder sharing the sports responsibility.

Wells, a sophomore, is a Dean's List English major. Wells has served previously as a reporter and then as Assistant News Editor.

A Dean's List History major, Skinner is one of the few seniors on the paper. He has previously worked on the Sock as News Editor and as Associate Editor.

Last semester's Sports Editor, Pearce is a sophomore history major. Browder, although he hasn't worked previously on the paper, has considerable journalistic experience. Editor of his high school paper, sophomore history major Browder won a scholarship to PC for the specific purpose of writing releases.

Holding down the job of Assistant Business Manager is Wiley Jones, who also held this post last semester. Jones is a sophomore business administrator major.

Filling the other editorship posts are:

Staff Additions

The members of the new Feature Staff are: Bobby Piephoff; Paul Woodall; Swink Saunders; Alex Bosserman; John Craig; Notchy Maddox; Bob Alison; John Sheffield; Jim Barbour; and Jan Rhodes.

Rejoining the Sports Staff is Loren Eagles. New man on the Business Staff is Phillip Olmert.

The News Staff has seven new members. They are: Jack Westall; Jimmy Simpson; Woody Merritt; Becky Farmer; Wayne Hopper; Olney Meadows; and Tim Grey.

Sergeant Elrod

Sergeant Receives OCS Appointment

Sergeant W. C. Elrod, presently a member of the PC Military Department, has received an appointment to Officer Candidate School at Fort Benning, Ga. Completion of the course, which lasts a total of twenty-three weeks, will result in a commission. Elrod will attend an additional three weeks at jump school.

During his tour of duty here, he is coaching the college rifle team. In a more official capacity, he is serving in a secretarial-clerical position. Elrod joined the PC military staff in March of 1962.

To receive the appointment, Elrod passed a number of tests and was questioned by a board of officers at Fort Gordon.

A native of Cookeville, Tenn., Elrod is married and has one son, Brian, age 6 months.

Sock Cleans Itself Up

Observant readers have no doubt noted the changes around at this Blue Stocking. Another addition. And this refers to more than the obvious changes in new staff box, new Greek head, and new sports column head.

Instead of two [illegible] on the front page, there is only one. The line [illegible] the top of each of the inside pages doesn't go all the way across any more either. Instead of using bold-face type to break up the printing, little headlines in the body of the type are being used.

Dean's Listers Win Awards

"Dean's Listers" Ann Kirkland, a sophomore from Monroe Corner, and Tom Whitaker, a freshman from Florence, were recently presented with the awards given annually by the Physics and Chemistry Departments.

Danforth Lecturer Speaks On Wave Theory of Matter

Dr. Donald H. Andrews, Professor of Chemistry at Johns Hopkins University, and visiting Danforth Lecturer, spoke to the student body in Chapel Wednesday. Dr. Andrews, who assisted in the development of the atomic bomb, discussed the concept that matter is composed of waves rather than particles.

A separate classroom lecture was given on the properties of matter at extremely low temperatures.

Inaudible Symphony

In line with the wave theory, the Danforth lecturer pointed out in his chapel talk that all matter emits certain vibrational harmonies out of human hearing range. Every object and every particle of every object sends out a specific tone. All nature, therefore, is essentially producing a vast concert of inaudible sound.

Sounds of Statues

Dr. Andrews revealed that he had done work on amplifying this silent music so that it could be heard. In the movie which he presented as part of his lecture, the sounds emitted by different shaped statues were heard.

Planning to complete in the near future a scale based on these tones, Dr. Andrews hopes that an orchestra will be able to play music similar to the silent symphony.

Living Endowment Fund Starting Towards Record Goal of $75,000

Strong activity in the opening weeks has pushed Presbyterian College's 1963 Living Endowment off to a $7,307 start toward a record $75,000 goal, Alumni and Public Relations Director Ben Hay Hammet announced today.

He said it represents the strongest opening burst yet recorded for this phase of the annual giving program which produced $55,134 from 1,071 contributors last year.

New High

PC alumni and friends in 1963 are shooting for a goal of $75,000 for the total annual giving effort (including the Living Endowment and the Walter Johnson Club athletic fund). This objective represents a new high, exceeding the record $65,254 raised in 1961.

Work toward hitting the new goal will be conducted throughout the year through personal solitations, class agent letters and mailers sent directly from the college. Alumni in the Rock Hill and Anderson areas already have their projects underway, with Harry E. Hicklin, Jr., of Rock Hill and Dr. Richard T. Gillespie of Anderson serving as leaders there.

Hammet pointed out the $55,134 contributed to the annual giving program last year was in addition to funds subscribed to the development campaign, which raised $1,800,000 in 1962 for capital improvements at PC.

NOW YOU CAN BE YOUNGER THAN SHE IS

It is a scientific fact that girls reach emotional maturity earlier than boys. For this reason freshman girls are reluctant to make romantic alliances with freshman boys, but instead choose men from the upper classes.

Thus the freshman boys are left dateless, and many is the night the entire freshman dorm sobs itself to sleep. An equally moist situation exists among upper-class girls. With upper-class men being snapped up by freshman girls, the poor ladies of the upper class are reduced to dreary, manless evenings of Monopoly and home permanents.

It pleasures me to report there is a solution for this morbid situation—indeed, a very simple solution. Why don't the two great have-not groups—the freshman boys and the upper-class girls—find solace with each other?

True, there is something of an age differential, but that need not matter. Take, for example, the case of Albert Payson Sigafoos and Eustacia Vye.

Albert Payson, a freshman in sand and gravel at Vanderbilt University, was walking across the campus one day, weeping softly in his loneliness. Blinded by tears, he stumbled upon the supine form of Eustacia Vye, a senior in wicker and raffia, who was collapsed in a wretched heap on the turf.

We could build a Snowman...

"Why don't you watch where you're going, you minor youth?" said Eustacia peevishly.

"I'm sorry, lady," said Albert Payson and started to move on. But suddenly he stopped, struck by an inspiration. "Lady," he said, tugging his forelock, "don't think me forward, but I know why you're miserable. It's because you can't get a date. Well, neither can I. So why don't we date each other?"

"Surely you jest!" cried Eustacia, looking with scorn upon his tiny head and body.

"Oh, I know I'm younger than you are," said Albert Payson, "but that doesn't mean we can't find lots of fun things to do together."

"Like what?" she asked.

"Well," said Albert Payson, "we could build a Snowman."

"Bah!" said Eustacia, grinding her teeth.

"All right then," said Albert Payson, "we could go down to the pond and catch some frogs."

"Ugh!" said Eustacia, shuddering her entire length.

"How about some Run-Sheep-Run?" suggested Albert Payson.

"You are callow, green, and immature," said Eustacia, "and I will thank you to remove your underaged presence from mine eyes."

Sighing, Albert Payson lighted a cigarette and started away.

"Stay!" cried Eustacia.

He stayed.

"Was that a Marlboro Cigarette you just lighted?" she asked.

"What else?" said Albert Payson.

"Then you are not immature!" she exclaimed, clasping him to her clavicle. "For to smoke Marlboros is the very essence of wisdom, the height of American know-how, the incontrovertible proof that you can tell gold from dross, right from wrong, fine aged tobaccos from pale, pathetic substitutes. Albert Payson, if you will still have me, I am yours!"

"I will," he said, and did, and today they are married and run the second biggest wicker and raffia establishment in Duluth, Minnesota.

• Will Sing in Washington

The Presbyterian College Robed Choir begins its annual Spring Tour this Saturday, March 23. Fifty voices comprise the group which this year will visit nine Presbyterian churches in North Carolina, Virginia, and the District of Columbia.

The Choir sings at the First [illegible] in Raleigh, N. C., on Sunday, March 24. This is organist D. [illegible] Perry's home church, and he will give an organ recital before the morning service. A reception session is scheduled for Sunday afternoon with an evening concert at Fayetteville, N. C.

In Washington

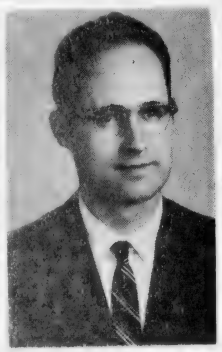
Monday and Tuesday will be spent in or near Washington, D. C., the Choir singing Monday night in McLean, Va., a residential suburb of Washington. On Tuesday night, the Choir sings at the historical Central Presbyterian Church in Washington, of which Wodorow Wilson was a prominent member.

Returning south, the Choir sings in Petersburg, Va., on Thursday night, and South Boston, Va., on Friday night. There is no concert scheduled for Saturday.

At the First Church in Danville, Va., the Choir has the morning service for Sunday, March 31. They then travel to the Williams Memorial Church, Charlotte, N. C., on Sunday evening and will return to the PC campus before midnight.

The Covenant

This year the selected program of music tells the Story of the Covenant, and the Fulfilment of God's promise in Man. The service includes music from the early Reformation, the worship service of the Eastern Orthodox Church, and anthems of J. S Bach, Cesar Franck, and Jean Sibelius. Also planned are two Negro Spirituals and a Folk Hymn of the Southern Hills.



Soloists for this year are: Paul Conger, Tenor, and David Worth, Bass. Readers are Wirt Skinner, Wilton Hazlewook, Paul Woodall, and Whit Blount. The president of the Choir is Paul Woodall.

Many Concerts

For the sixteenth consecutive year, Dr. Edouard Patte is conducting the Choir in appearances before the Southern Presbyterian Church, which he also serves as an ordained minister. When the Choir has returned to the campus, Dr. Patte will have conducted 596 concerts during his career at Presbyterian College.

Thirteen Top Students Vie in Founder's Program

Thirteen top high school seniors who have qualified as semi-finalists in the Founders Scholarship Program have been arriving on campus this afternoon. They will undergo competitive testing tomorrow to determine finalists.

Up To Full Tuition

Miss Mims, head of the guidance center, will be in charge of the testing. A possible 10 scholarships may be awarded. The awards range from $1200 over a four-year period to full tuition. Two full scholarships wil be given.

This afternoon the students have been given a tour of the campus by the Blue Key. Each candidate has been assigned to a faculty member who will present the candidate with a brief sketch following a very short welcome speech by Dr. Brown and Dr. Gettys during the dinner to be given for them at 7:30 tonight.

Testing Saturday

Saturday morning the group will assemble in the library at 8:15 where they will meet the scholarship committee and testing group. During the morning the students will be given interviews and tests. Following lunch each candidate is free to return home, but they are invited to stay over until Sunday during which time it is hoped that they will meet more of the students and also get a better idea as to the life here at PC.

Represent Four States

The thirteen semi-finalists who represent four states are: Mac Anderson, Bishopville; Ballard Daggotte, Summerton; Jimmy Bell, Copperhill, Tenn.; Ginger Critchfield, South Bay, Fla.; John Davis, Greenville; Ann Dendy, Hartwell, Ga.; Paula Evens, Ludowici, Ga.; Susan Gilbert, Blakely, Ga.; Jake Montgomery, Chappells; Ricky Roberson, Bolton; Merrow Thompson, Van Wyck; Henry Woods, Rock Hill; and Jackie Yarbrough, Atlanta, Ga.

Chapel Services

Monday—Faculty Devotions.

Wednesday—Rev. William A. Adams from the First Presbyterian Church of Athens, Ga.

Friday—Student Program.

Rubinoff to Give Pops Concert Here

Concert violinist Rubinoff will appear in Belk Auditorium twice on March 25 in a program of popular music. A special school children's concert is scheduled for 2:30 p. m. The evening performance is set for 8 p. m.

Rubinoff will play such favorites as Warsaw Concerto, Claire De Lune, and Rhapsody in Blue.

The musician will play on one of the most precious instruments in the world, the famed Romanoff-Stradivarius violin insured for $100,000.

Dr. Hay Promoted To Full Professor

Dr. Lewis S. Hay was promoted to a full professorship in the PC Bible Department, announced College President Marshall W. Brown last week. Dr. Hay had previously held the rank of associate professor.

Steering Committee Gives New Statement of Purpose

During a series of recent meetings the Steering Committee of the current faculty self-study program formally restated the purpose of Presbyterian Colege. This statement of purpose was tentatively approved by the Board of Trustees as a working basis for the evaluation of the Presbyterian College program.

The committee declared as the purpose and goal of the college "the liberal education of young men and women within a distinctively Christian context."

Need For Excellence

This goal was set forth with the conviction that education in the liberal arts tradition can be achieved successfully only through a program which is characterized by academic excellence, and that Christian commitment demands that the pursuit of learning take place in a framework of genuine intellectual freedom and a concomitant sense of responsibility to the church and society.

Selectivity

Implied in this statement is the fact that PC, in its admissions program, should admit only those students who show promise of becoming the type of student the college seeks to produce; that the faculty should be selected and maintained for its academic competence, teaching ability, personal relationships with students, commitment, and character; that academic excellence should be fostered with proper academic freedom and with an equal sense of responsibility for the development of the faith and character of each student; and that our task is to educate the whole man for Christian service.

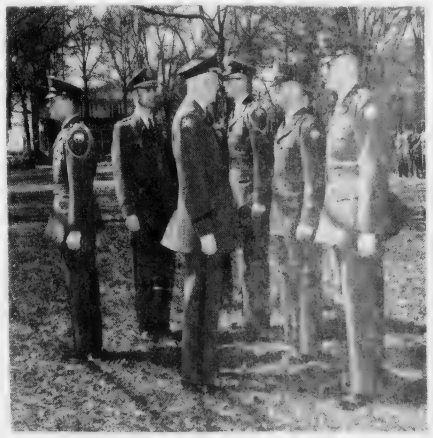
PC Contracts History Prof

[illegible] joining the faculty [illegible] department of education and psychology [illegible] Mississippi [illegible] Georgia [illegible].

The [illegible] is Ronald Danton Burnside, who is currently completing work on his doctorate with a dissertation on "The Administration of Governor Coleman L. Blease of South Carolina, 1911-15."

Scheduled to receive his Ph.D. from Indiana University next August, Burnside had spent the past several months in Columbia completing research on his Blease paper. He also holds his master's degree from Indiana, where he has studied on a teaching fellowship.

Marine Officer



Burnside, who comes to PC highly recommended by professionals in the field, is a native of Vincennes, Ind. After graduating with a B. A. degree from Wabash College, he spent four years (1954-58) as an officer in the U. S. Marine Corps before entering upon post-graduate study. His major field is American history.

Alumnus Receives Ph.D. in Chemisty

Ralph Chambers, a member of PC's class of 1959, recently received his Ph. D. in organic chemistry from Vanderbilt University.

Chambers, who entered PC after serving in the Navy for several years, graduated in only three years, making the Dean's List each year. While at PC he was a member of the basketball team, the Tau Phi Pi Science Fraternity, the Blue Key Honorary Fraternity, and was president of the Block P.

After graduation from here, he began studies at Vanderbilt in the fall of 1959 on a National Defense Graduate Fellowship. He completed the requirements for his Ph. D. in just over three years, considered a very short time for acquiring the doctorate.

Look Sharp

OF SEMBLANCE worthy, of substance not, yet still deemed a good fellow by all.

EPITAPH FOR AN IMAGE

BY CONVENTION, certain social characteristics are considered outward symbols of inward graces. What is so often forgotten is that while the symbols imply that which is within, they are not necessarily proof of it.

COLLEGE STUDENTS have their own special form of the problem. There is an image, which we shall name Joe College, against which too many students rate others and pattern themselves.

THE IMAGE should need no introduction. He (or it) is nice-looking, dresses "ivy", dates frequently, perhaps has evidence of being slightly wealthy, is possibly a good student (straight A's) or a good athlete (outstanding in every game) or has both athletic and academic ability combined. He seems to have, when necessary, an air of gravity, much understanding, and promise of keen wit.

TO CONSIDER just how binding on his life the image is, the student should consider how many people he doesn't speak to because they can't muster a specific quorum of these qualifications. Or, the student should consider how many people don't speak to him for, in their minds, the same reasons.

THE PROBLEM is not with someone actually possessing these attributes and perhaps being an ideal Joe College. Rather the fault lies in basing your acceptance of someone on whether or not they superficially meet certain requirements. A person may often be accepted when by more human standards, by standards based on real character, he would be utterly rejected. This is the crime, the injustice.

Letter to the Editor

Before Throwing Stones

DEAR EDITOR,

THE HYPER-CRITICAL student cheats himself. After listening to a certain amount of griping, one decides that perhaps the trouble is with the student, not the college, the teachers, and the other students. A student may be so out of harmony with the institution that he loses power to get any benefit from it all.

MANY TIMES it is really up to the student to help create his environment. Perhaps, instead of being so sensitive, self-righteous and sophisticated, the student should follow the trite advice of that ancient ditty and "ac-cen-tuate the positive"; for one thing, he might respect his teachers for a change.

IT IS NOT possible to absorb much learning while manifesting by thought, word, and attitude that the profesor is a colossal bore, an opinionated crank, or a fool.

IF THE TEACHING situation is faulty, as it sometimes is, it might be improved by a little sincere, interested (non-pseudo type) work on the part of the student. This suggestion is not a sure-fire blueprint for a 3.5 and unlimited cuts, but good results in grades and campus relationships are pretty sure to follow any such positive change in attitude.

THIS IS NOT to advocate a "God's-in-his-heaven,-all's-right-" blah-blah attitude, nor a martyred grin-an-bear-it pose—just a lick for good old practical common sense. If you ain't tried it, don't knock it.

Curtain Raiser Receives Good Reception; Bosserman, Jeanes Handle Roles Well

by WALTER WELLS

William Saroyan wrote his short one-act play "Hello Out There" to be used primarily as a curtain raiser for a larger production. Last week this play was produced on the PC campus as a curtain raiser of a slightly different type—an attempt to interest PC students in drama and thereby stage a comeback for dramatics on campus.

In deciding to perform first before a chapel audience, the players and the director not only selected the most critical group possible but also showed their determination to re-introduce dramatics. And if the amazingly small number of people who slept through the performance and the encouraging applause after the play are at all indicative of student response to the production, the student body is ready for dramatics to again become active here.

Faults of the Play

"Hello Out There" is perhaps not the best choice of plays for any production, for in itself it has many faults—a lack of realistic detail, awkward waits and long speeches at what seem the wrong times and action that is too often dragging.

The largest fault of the play is its lack of communication to the audience; that is, it is completely apparent only in the final action that the play is a modern tragedy rather than a comedy. However, this fault may not be so much the ineptness of the playwright as his failure to realize that some audiences would catch more double entendres than he had wittingly included. But such problems as these can quickly be eliminated as the drama group gains experience in selecting and editing plays.

Excellent Leads

As the prisoner accused of rape, Alex Bosserman played the most believable role of the play. The role is realistic, and Bosserman did a good job in its portrayal. The most apparent areas of his acting that warrant criticism were his delay in really getting into the role and his failure to show any fear at all as his death approaches. He said that he was scared, but his acting never revealed it.

Susanna Jeanes' role, that of a self-effacing 17-year-old, is a very difficult one; her portrayal was, for the most part, excellent. Her final scene, when she assumed a position within the cell and when her calls, echoing those of the man who had just been slain, manifest her awareness of loneliness, lacked forcefullness. Yet, she demonstrated the enviable ability to move an audience. By the time of the death scene, the entire audience was poignantly aware of the play's theme as the total separation from life and mankind; and it was her acting that moved the audience to this acute awareness.

Good Casting

Geraldine Haydock and Mike Smith were excellent characterizations for the supporting roles, yet they both failed to show their abilities in their individual entrances. Mike's entrance was not forceful enough for a man whose wife has supposedly just been raped, and Geraldine's entering lines were stilted. But immediately after their entrances both went into their roles completely.

The wide range of inflection of both, and especially Smith, and the timing, nearly perfect in Geraldine's deliverance of the "slut" line and in her exit, showed their sharp awareness of stage presence.

No Involvement

Nothing can really be said about the roles played by Paul Conger and Jim Huber; these two men seemed more like by-

A Short Portrait

And the Diligent To the Slack Do Fall

MAC HEAVED a prodigious sigh, flexed his cramped fingers and closed his notebook. Professor Davis had been unusually voluble today, winding up his lecture with a preview of this quarter's big test. The old boy could really rattle it off—one yawn, and you missed three paragraphs, Well, he could relax now.

TONIGHT he'd organize his notes, add a few lines from the textbook here and there, then on Thursday night before the test he would be able to sit down and study without having to check references and rearrange pages. He might even get to watch Dr. Kildare.

IT WAS WORTH coming to very boring class and writing his fingers down to nubs. For once he felt as though he had it made: that he could pull a B, and with no last minute frantic studying. He carefully stacked his books, stuck his pen into his pocket, and reached for his jacket.

JUST AS HE stuck one arm in its sleeve, Bob Evans (the boy who sat in front of him, the boy who had gazed intently out of the window for three solid weeks and apparently didn't own a pencil) tapped him on the shoulder. Hey, Mac, gimme your notes. I'll take a crack at 'em tonight and give 'em to ya tomorrow sometime.

WITHOUT WAITING for an answer, Bob plucked the notebook from Mac's desk, and whistling gaily, ambled out into the hall.

MAC WAS SO frustrated that Woman!

The Technician, published by students at Southern Technical Institute, took a scientific view of the female of the species. It printed this description of a woman as seen through the eyes of a chemist:

SYMBOL: WO

PHYSICAL PROPERTIES: Boils at nothing and freezes at any minute; melts when properly treated; very bitter if not well used.

OCCURENCE: Found wherever man exists.

Possesses great affinity for gold, silver, platinum, and precious stones. Violent reaction if left alone. Able to absorb great amounts of food matter. Turns green when placed beside a better-looking specimen.

USES: Highly ornamental; useful as a tonic in acceleration of low spirits, and an equalizer of the distribution of wealth. Is probably most effective income-reducing agent known.

CAUTION: Highly explosive in inexperienced hands.

PI KAPPA ALPHA

A number of brothers and pledges attended the annual Founder's Day Banquet in Columbia this past weekend. Several national officers were also present.

Congratulations to the basketball team for winning the intramural championship Tuesday night.

SIGMA NU

The annual Sigma Nu formal, "White Star Ball," has been set for the weekend of April 26 and 27. It will consist of a formal dance Friday night at Lakeside Country Club and a party Saturday afternoon and evening on Lake Greenwood.

Plans for Military Ball weekend were completed this past week. The "Parrots" will provide the music for our Saturday afternoon tea dance in the ballroom of the Hotel Mary Musgrove.

THETA CHI

Beta Psi is completing plans for the annual Military Ball weekend. The chapter is looking forward to other events which will include the Rebel Reunion to be held at Georgia Tech later in the spring.

The pledge class is also hard at work on its project—a speaker enclosure for the fraternity's new Hi-Fi system.

(Also present were Alpha Sigma Phi, Kappa Alpha, and Pi Kappa Phi.)

Height of Ambition

The following is a quote of June Cochran that appeared in the March, 1963, edition of "Playboy" Magazine:

"Being selected 'PLAYBOY'S' Playmate of the Year is my main ambition — the greatest honor I can imagine. I've won a lot of contests, but this is the title I want most. It would give me a chance to tour the country as a representative of America's finest magazine . . ."

Speaking of Sports

by GLENN BROWDER

Tennis Should Take State; Tiller Quiet

PC's spring sports schedule opened this week, and will swing into high gear next week with all four sports seeing action by then. Here are my predictions for these sports.

Warden Likes Potential . . .

Coach Gordon Warden is cautious about the coming season, but agrees that we have the potential for another outstanding year. Tony Wilson has been hampered in practice with a sore arm, but he'll be OK and is almost a certainty for the number one spot. From that position on through the lineup it's uncertain. Dodge Frederick, Bob Harris, and Howdy Letzring can be juggled in any order and still form a tough slate, and Bill Tyson has been playing so well that he's not far behind in fifth position. Harold Hope has been held away from practice by sickness, but he'll probably get back in groove for the number six spot. We play another rugged schedule with a tough beginning. If we can get by Georgia, Navy and Furman, we'll have a perfect record for the Clinton debut against Fort Eustis April 2. After that, home court action features matches with Harvard, Amherst, The Citadel, Georgia, Furman, and the South Carolina Intercollegiate Tournament.

I optimistically predict a 17-5 record, with the state trophy returning to PC after two years' absence.

Depth in Pitchers . . .

The baseball picture is shadowed by the miserable seasons of the past few years. Coach Billly Tiller makes no bones about the problems he faces in his first season as head diamond mentor. We lost six starting players from last season's squad which won only 2 of 15 games. Tommy Williams, Jimmy Elliott, and George Lokey are bringing their batting skills back, and freshmen Wade Stewart, Charles Parneil, Henry Lovett and Wayne Boiter add power to the lineup. A good stock of hurlers are on hand with their performances being the key to an improved record. Coach Tiller is making no predictions about this campaign, as we play a tougher schedule than last year.

I'm going out on a limb to pick a 9-9 season.

Golf Starting Well . . .

The golf team is off to a good start, and will carry a 2-1 record into tomorrow's match with Mercer. But it's a rocky road ahead. The loss of Max Clyburn and Frank Sells is hard to shake off. Captain Ken Acker is back for his fourth season, and Freshman Bill Kellam is a topflight linksman, but Bill Brown is still hurt, and the loss to Carolina makes the outlook not too bright.

It looks like a 7-9 season unless the team can upset some of the bigger schools.

Track Meet Next Week . . .

Coach Jimmy Vickers' cindermen have just started practicing for their meet with Wofford March 30, and the prospects here are vague until they can get ready for that encounter. Knot Culpepper, Sandy Hagood, and Jim Salvo are some of the top returning lettermen, and a good group of new men will help make up for the loss of 8 lettermen. No predictions will be made on this late-starting sport.

Girls' Tennis Team! . . .

Coach Warden has revealed plans for an intercollegiate bridge tournament to be held here in the near future . . . Also in the makings is a bi-weekly bridge night to be set up in Douglas House for faculty and student participation . . . Henry Lovett slid into third in our baseball game with Erskine this past Wednesday, and the third baseman tagged him out. That third baseman was another Lovett, Henry's older brother . . . A girls' tennis team will be fielded by PC this year, to play matches with girls' squads from the other schools in this area . . .The major league season is just around the corner, and it looks like the Dodgers and Yankees will win their league crowns again, with Cincinnati a darkhorse in the National . . . The NCAA basketball tournament will be televised tonight; Duke meets Loyola and Cincinnati takes on Oregon State.

PiKAs Top Undefeated PiKaPs To Capture I-M Cage Crown

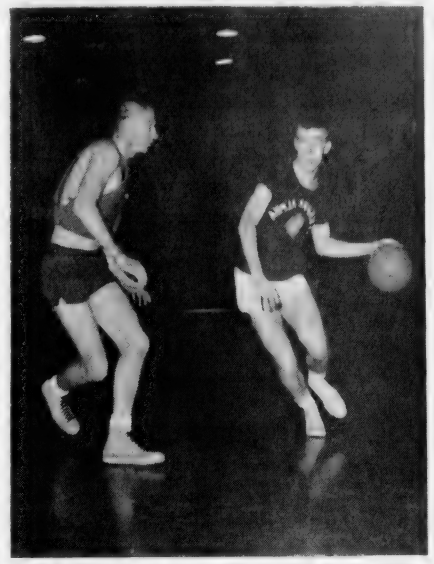
by AL PEARCE

The 1963 Intramural basketball season was brought to a close here Tuesday night as the Pi Kappa Alpha's took their second straight win from the Pi Kappa Phi's to win the double elimination tournament. The games were marked by hot shooting, fine floor play, and occasional hot tempers.

Twice Before

This two-game series marked the third time these title contenders had met in the tournament, but this time the PiKaP's couldn't keep up with the taller PiKA'S. The PiKaPs were undefeated going into the final games, and the PiKA's had been defeated only once, that defeat coming at the hands of the PiKaP's.

The first game, played Monday night, had a large crowd seeing the PiKA's win by a 36-28 score. The game was close in the first half, but a PiKA splurge of 22 points made the second half a different story.



Lead Men

Leading the PiKA effort were All-Stars Leighton Grantham and Wayne Fowler. Grantham, playing with a bad wrist, scored 11 points to follow Fowler's 14-point performance. The PiKaPs were paced by Gordan Mayhugh, who scored 9 points, and James Salvo, who hit for 7.

Last Half Attack

In Tuesday night's championship game, another second half attack by the PiKA's gave them a 53-36 win and the championship. Their 4-point half-time lead was enlarged to the 17-point margin of victory by sharp shooting and effective rebounding by the entire PiKA team.

Again leading the championship effort were Bill Brown, who hit 14 points while playing on a sprained ankle, Grantham, who hit for 12 points, and Bill Russell, who sunk 10 points. Pacing the PiKaPs were Salvo's 12 points, and 10 by Mayhugh.

Netmen Face Annapolis, Georgia This Weekend

The University of Georgia and the US Naval Academy of Annapolis, Md., will entertain the 1963 Presbyterian College tennis team this weekend as the netters of Coach Gordan Warden begin their tough 23-match schedule. PC faced Georgia this afternoon at Athens, and the team will travel to Jacksonville, Fla., tonight to play Navy tomorrow. The team will return to campus on Sunday.

Head Start

In opening against Georgia, the Hosemen find themselves in the same uncomfortable position they occupied last year. Georgia has just completed a Florida tour, while PC hasn't even played a practice match. The Bulldogs tripped PC 5-4 in the initial match last spring, but Presbyterian whipped them later in the season.

The Navy contest poses the same problem of a tough early assignment against the Middies who've been practicing indoors up north. They were one of PC's 18 victims last year.

Starting Positions

Here is the tentative lineup which Coach Warden has drawn up for these two matches: Number 1, Tony Wilson; 2, Dodge Frederick; 3, Bobby Harris; 4, Howdy Letzring; 5, Bill Tyson; 6, Harold Hope.

Blue Hose Nine Drops Opener; Fleet Romps in the Seventh

Two big hits broke up PC's first baseball game this spring, handing Erskine a 7-1 win Wednesday at Due West. The Hose played East Carolina this afternoon on our field in the second game of the young season.

In the Erskine game, Jimmy Cape went the first six innings, working the Fleet perfectly and putting them down with no runs. But a walk, plus two bad fielding plays loaded the bases in the seventh and set the stage for the first real hit of the game for Erskine. Cleanup batter Tyler sent one of Cape's deliveries deep into right-centerfield, and all three runners scored. Tyler then scored on a sacrifice fly.

Flipping Fielder

In the next inning, Erskine's Jimmy Fairey poled a high fly to right field. Right Fielder Henry Lovett crashed into the low fence, flipped over, jumped back in and fired in the ball, but Fairey and a runner ahead of him had already rounded the bases and the score was 6-0. Bubba Lenoir came in the next inning and finished the game allowing only one unearned run.

PC then picked up its lone tally when Louis Ridinger singled home a run. We had two other threats, once in the first when Jimmy Elliott doubled with a man on base, and the other when Tommy Williams' line-drive was right at the third baseman with two men in scoring position.

USC Professor Speaks On Australia for IRC Week

Highlighting the International Relations Week being held now at PC, Dr. George Curry, University of South Carolina history professor, spoke in chapel Monday morning, March 18. Dr. Curry's subject concerned relations between Australia and the United States.

A native of England, he received his B. A. degree in French and English at the University of London. He also did graduate work at the Sorbonne and earned his M. A. at the University of South Carolina.

English Education

In 1952, Dr. Curry received his Ph.D. at the University of Chicago. Besides teaching at Carolina, Dr. Curry has taught at Oxford and Cambridge in England and has recently spent a year as Exchange Professor of Modern History at the University of Adelaide.

Dr. Curry has contributed to a number of scholarly journals, including the American Historical Review and the Journal of Modern History.

Varner On Japan

As another feature of International Relations Week, Evin Varner, a former PC student, spoke Wednesday evening, March 20. Mr. Varner, who spent several months living with a Japanese family under an agricultural exchange program, gave a talk entitled, "Culture: East and West in Contrast."

International Relations Week is devoted to informing the students of other countries and their relations with the United States.

The week is sponsored by PC's International Relations Club. Rising Senior Jim Owens is president of the group.

standers than the friends of the husband who urged him to drive the 15-mile distance and avenge the molesting of his wife. Yet these characters' lack of real involvement in the play did serve to point to the theme of the loneliness of man.

The set for the production was simple and therefore excellent. Yet the arrangement of the walls of the jail cell could have been better. Bars between the prisoners and the audience would have further accentuated the theme of the play.

Stage Effects

Lighting, though inadequate for obvious reasons, was handled very smoothly. As for sound effects, the approaching automobile sounded too matter-of-fact and not frantic enough to portend any of the final tragedy. But on the other hand, the barking dog, heard shortly after the prisoner's moving words, "I'm lonely as a coyote," achieved the desired effect.

All of the people involved in the play deserve a great deal of credit, and the actors are especially deservant of honor. They were not portraying life, but something much bigger. If the acting had been merely "life-like," the play would never have reached beyond the curtain line to the audience.

College Library Given Rare Breeches Bible

Perhaps the most curious, if not the oldest, work in the Presbyterian College Library rare books collection is the newly acquired "Breeches Bible."

Posterity has given this rare Bible the nickname of "Breeches" because of its unusual translation of the Old Testament description of the state of innocence of Adam and Eve. The third chapter of Genesis, verse seven, reveals this passage: "The eyes of them both were opened and they know they were naked, and they sewed fig leaves together and made themselves BREECHES."

By Royal Decree

This extremely rare edition of the Bible was printed by Robert Barker in 1608 by appointment to "the King's Most Excellente Majestie." It is in its original calfskin over oak board binding with brass ornaments.

The work was donated by John Fleming Marsh, a former economist for the U. S. Department of Agriculture and a member of PC's class of 1916. Retired since 1960, Mr. Marsh now resides in Del Ray Beach, Fla.

No Dance Tickets After Next Week

Tickets for the Military Ball coming up April 6, may be bought by non-military students Monday through Friday of next week. They will be sold by Joe Harvard in Douglas House between 3 and 5 p.m.

This will be the only time that tickets will be sold. Students will not be able to buy tickets at the dance. The price is $5.00.

Two dance bands have been contracted for the ball, which will be held in the Clinton National Guard Armory from 8 to 12 p.m. The bands, the Dean Hudson Orchestra, and the Blenders, will alternate.

Dr. Brown

President Brown Gives Board Notice of Retirement Intent

Signalling the end of an association that began in 1925, Dr. Marshall W. Brown, president of Presbyterian College, submitted his resignation Tuesday, to become effective upon the selection of a successor.

Long recognized as one of the South's outstanding educators, Dr. Brown has the longest tenure of office among the 13 presidents who have headed PC since its founding in 1880. Brown, 63, has served the college in his present capacity for 19 years. He was named president after serving 16 years as dean and three as professor of history.

Suggests Committee

In his report to the Board of Trustees, the educator suggested that a committee be appointed to select his successor.

By formal action, the trustees cited Dr. Brown's "able leadership, which has given PC its greatest period of academic and material progress in the history of the college."

Able Leadership

In the past 18 years, he led the college through three successful campaigns for capital funds, and the institution has received high recognition for its academic work.

Brown came from the faculty of McCallie School of Chattanooga, Tenn., to Presbyterian in 1925. His higher educational background includes a B. A. from Centre College, and M. A. from the University of Wisconsin, and further graduate work at the University of Chicago, and the University of Vienna, Austria.

Honorary Doctorates

He was awarded honorary doctorates by Davidson College in 1937, and by Centre College in 1945.

The Board of Trustees, in accepting the resignation and appointing the selection committee, indicated it would do so solely in response to Brown's personal desires.

Selection Committee

The committee appointed by the Board of Directors to seek a successor includes trustees Dr. E. T. Wilson of Atlanta; Henry B. Matthews of Macon, Ga.; W. M. Montgomery of Marietta, Ga.; Dr. William T. Barron and John A. Montgomery, both of Columbia; and Dr. W. R. Wallace of Chester. Also on the committee is James A. Chapman, Sr., of Spartanburg, chairman of the PC Board of Visitors.

From Dr. Gettys

PC's Academic Dean Joseph M. Gettys in his report to the trustees described Brown as the "moving spirit of Presbyterian College for more than thirty-five years." Gettys' report said, "In a very real sense this college is a monument to his devotion, his sacrifices, his planning, his courage. Many others have worked with him gladly and willingly . . . His wise counsel, his willingness to help at any time, and his continued purpose to put Presbyterian College before everything else is an inspiration and a challenge to those of us who work with him. As one looks upon his contributions here over many years, those of us who come after him will not soon forget his tremendous contribution to the college in which so much of our own hopes and prayers, blood, sweat and tears have been mingled with his to make Presbyterian College a great institution of higher learning."

Interest In Students

In a formal statement for publication, Dr. Brown said, "For 38 years of having relations with colleagues, students, alumni, and trustees, I am very grateful. The years of most treasured memories were the first 19 years when my teaching gave close association with students whose careers I have since followed with deep interest and pride. Although my contacts with students in recent years have been fewer, their welfare has been very close to my heart."

Executive Posts Filled By Board

Officers for 1963-64 were elected by the Board of Trustees at their meeting Tuesday. The new officers, some of whom held the same post during 1962-63, are: Chairman—Robert M. Vance of Clinton; Vice Chairman — Dr. Eugent T. Wilson of Atlanta; and Secretary—J. Ferdinand Jacobs of Clinton.

The new officers will serve on the executive committee of the Board. Also named to the executive committee were: William T. Barron of Atlanta; Dr. Marc C. Weersing of Spartanburg; Dr. George Wilkinson of Greenville; Henry B. Matthews of Macon; and College President Marshall Brown.

Trustees Select Three As Degree Recipients

At the Tuesday meeting, Presbyterian's Board of Trustees cited three alumni to receive honorary degrees. Dr. C. Hugh Holman, Rev. Chalmers F. McCutchen, and Rev. Russell W. Park will be given degrees at commencement exercises June 2.

Receiving an honorary Doctorate of Divinity is Rev. McCutcheon, who has been pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Laurens since 1955. Rev. McCutchen is a 1936 graduate.

He attended Union Theological Seminary and then went to the First Presbyterian Church at Point Pleasant, W. Va. Since then he has served respectively at the First Churches of Wytheville, Va., and Sanford, N. C.

Rural Pastor

Currently pastor of the Olanta and Sardinia, S. C., Churches, Rev. Park will also receive an honorary Doctorate of Divinity. Rev. Park, who graduated from here in 1920, attended Columbia Theological Seminary. In 1923 he began work as a rural pastor by serving at the Lake City, S. C., Presbyterian Church. He has been in his present position since 1953 and in 1958 was moderator of the Synod of South Carolina. in that same year, he was also named "South Carolina Rural Minister of the Year."

UNC Dean

Dr. Holman, presently Dean of UNC's Graduate School, and a 1936 graduate of PC, will receive an honorary Doctorate of Literature. Dr. Holman taught here fourteen years, specializing in American Literature.

At UNC, he has served as Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, as English Department Chairman, as Chairman of the University Press Board of Governors, and as Chairman of the Division of Humanities.

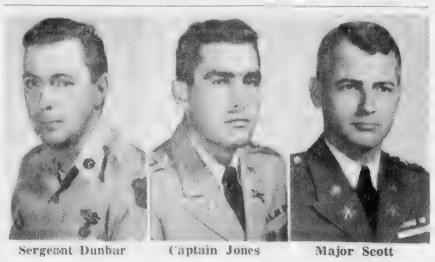
Rice Graduate To Become History Department Head

The selection of a new Ph.d. to head PC's history department was announced Thursday by President Marshall W. Brown. Thomas Lawrence Connelly, will join the PC faculty immediately after receiving his doctorate from Rice University this June.

In spite of his youth, twenty-five year old Connelly already has a budding reputation as a writer and historian. The "soon to be" professor has authored a book, Historic Sites of Middle Tennessee, as well as numerous articles and reviews pertaining to his field. Ready for release in early summer is Connelly's latest book, Will Success Spoil Jefferson Davis?, published by McGraw Hill.

A native of Nashville, Tenn., Connelly was graduated magna cum laude from David Lipscomb College in 1959. Receiving his master's from Rice in 1961, he will also receive his doctorate there this June. His graduate fields of concentration include southern, American, military frontier, and western history.

Dr. William H. Masterson, dean of humanities at Rice, has said of him: "There is little question in my mind that Connelly is one of those rare graduate students who combine an original mind, a deep conscientiousness, and a genuine concern for students."



PiKAs, Then PiKaps Tops Academically

Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity proved the scholastic leader among PC's fraternities for the fall semester with a grade point ratio of 2.49. Close behind were Pi Kappa Phi fraternity with a 2.48 ratio and Alpha Sigma Phi with 2.47. Theta Chi, Kappa Alpha, and Sigma Nu were respectively fourth, fifth, and sixth.

The overall fraternity average was 2.41 compared to a 2.27 point ratio for the non-fraternity men.

Columbus Boys Choir To Appear in Clinton

On March 15 at Belk Auditorium, the third concert in the Clinton Community Concert series will be given, featuring the Columbus Boy's Choir.

Sergeant Dunbar · Captain Jones · Major Scott

Military Staff Members To Leave Presbyterian

Three of Presbyterian College's Military personnel are leaving; Major Jospeh J. Scott and Captain James T. Jones will leave at the end of the school year. Sergeant 1st Class Marion E. Dunbar, whose tour of duty ends today, has been assigned to Ft. Bragg, N. C.

Major Scott will report on August 1, 1963, to Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, for an Officer's Basic Training Course. During Maj. Scott's four years at PC, he has been the assisatnt P. M. S. and the advisor to the Pershing Rifles.

Citadel Man

Major Scott graduated from The Citadel in 1952 and has been stationed overseas in Korea and Germany. He has a wife and four children.

Captain Jones came to Presbyterian College in June of 1962. He is a native of Chatsworth, Ga., and a graduate of North Georgia Military Academy. Captain Jones' prior military service was in the Armor Division.

Transfers To Textiles

His tour of duty at PC ends on the 8th of June, 1963. He plans to enter the textile business in Chatsworth, Ga., when he will receive a release from active army duty. He plans to remain in the reserves.

Sergeant Dunbar will report to Ft. Bragg, N. C., for special training in guerilla warfare. At Presbyterian College, Sgt. Dunbar was in charge of supplies. For a short time he taught a signal training class. He was at PC for a period of approximately four years.

Paratrooper

Before coming to PC, Dunbar had been in the Paratroops for four years and had made 135 jumps. In 1959, he was assigned to overseas duty (during the Lebanon Crisis) in Beiruit, Lebanon.

Dunbar is married and has four children.

THE BALLAD OF PC TENNIS
(to the tune of M. T. A.)

VERSE ONE

Oh, let me tell you all the story of a school called PC in a small
Carolina town
For over 20 years it had a stud tennis team until the Board did cut it down

CHROUS

And will it ever return, no it'll never return, and its fame will be known no more
Raise your Blue Throated voices towards the Great White House and tell 'em we're all real sore

VERSE TWO

The Tigers from Clemson came to town last weekend and took the state title back home
For over 20 years it had stayed in Clinton, but now again it's gone

VERSE THREE

This seemed our last chance to regain the title after what the board hda handed down
Unless we voice our protests we can now say good-bye to our glory and the SC crown

VERSE FOUR

Now all you students don't you think it's a scandal how the Board's now made it rough?
Fight the scholarship cut, let your voices be heard, let's keep our tennis tough

Traffic Fatalities Reach New High

Motorists in 1962 raced down the nation's highways on their way to a new—and tragic—death record which for the first time exceeded 40,000 fatalities, according to a report released by The Travelers Insurance Companies.

More Injuries

The number of people injured in traffic accidents also took a sharp turn upward.

The authoritative report, first issued in 1931, is prepared annually by The Travelers and is based on information provided by state motor vehicle departments.

Record Slaughter

U. S. highway deaths in 1962 totaled 40,500, a seven per cent increase over 1961. Not since 1941, when 39,969 persons lost their lives, has the traffic fatality record been nearly so high.

Just Millions Bumped

The report also reveals a nine per cent jump in the number of injured in 1962 compared with 1961. In all, 3,345,000 men, women and children were hurt in auto accidents last year.

"As it stands, last year's record is truly tragic,' 'one spokesman commented, "but what makes it even more disheartening is that it comes on the heels of what he hoped was a downward trend beginning in 1961."

Speed Leads

Excessive speed again led the way as the primary cause of accidents. Nearly 13,000 people were killed and more than 1,145,000 were injured as a direct result of .speeding violations. Other major causes of accidents included driving on thew rong side of the road and reckless driving.

Fifteen Students Finish Life-Saving

Fifteen PC students recently completed a Red Cross Water Safety Instructors Course which was conducted at our campus pool. Prof. Fakkema taught Part I of the course and a representative from the National Red Cross, Mr. Ellis Fysal, conducted the final phase.

The completion of this work qualifies these students to teach all the Red Cross swimming and life saving courses. Most of those participating plan to engage in this work during the summer months. It is anticipated that this course will be repeated again in the spring of 1965.

HOW TO SEE EUROPE FOR ONLY $300 A DAY: NO. 1

Summer vacation is just around the corner, and naturally all of you are going to Europe. Perhaps I can offer a handy tip or two. (I must confess that I myself have never been to Europe, but I do have a French poodle and a German shepherd, so I am not entirely unqualified.)

First let me say that no trip to Europe is complete without a visit to England, Scotland, Wales, Ireland, France, Germany, Spain, Portugal, Italy, Liechtenstein, Holland, Belgium, Luxembourg, Switzerland, Denmark, Sweden, Norway, Finland, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Latvia, Lithuania, Estonia, Russia, Greece, Yugoslavia, Albania, Crete, Sardinia, Sicily, Hungary, Rumania, Bulgaria, Lapland, and Andorra.

Let us take up these countries in order. First, England.

The old ones are thrown away

The capital of England is London—or Liverpool, as it is sometimes called. There are many interesting things to see in London—chiefly the changing of the guards. The guards are changed daily. The old ones are thrown away.

Another "must" while in London is a visit to the palace of the Duke of Marlborough. Marlborough is spelled Marlborough, but pronounced Marlboro. English spelling is very quaint, but terribly disorganized. The late George Bernard Shaw, author of Little Women, fought all his life to simplify English spelling. They tell a story about Shaw once asking a friend, "What does g-h-o-t-i spell?"

The friend pondered a bit and replied, "Goatee."

Shaw sniggered. "Pshaw," said Shaw. "G-h-o-t-i does not spell goatee. It spells fish."

"How is that?" said the friend.

Shaw answered, "Gh as in enough, o as in women, ti as in motion. Put them all together, you get fish."

This was very clever of Shaw when you consider that he was a vegetarian. And a good thing he was. As Disraeli once remarked to Guy Fawkes, "If Shaw were not a vegetarian, no lamb chop in London would be safe."

But I digress. We were speaking of the palace of the Duke of Marlborough—or Marlboro, as it is called in the United States. It is called Marlboro by every smoker who enjoys a fine, rich breed of tobaccos, who appreciates a pure white filter, who likes a soft pack that is really soft, a Flip-Top box that really flips. Be sure you are well supplied with Marlboros when you make your trip abroad. After a long, tiring day of sightseeing there is nothing so welcome as a good flavorful Marlboro and a footbath with hot Epsom salts.

Epsom salts can be obtained in England at Epsom Downs. Kensington salts can be obtained at Kensington Gardens, Albert salts can be obtained at Albert Hall, Hyde salts can be obtained at Hyde Park, and the crown jewels can be obtained at the Tower of London.

The guards at the Tower of London are called Beefeaters because they are always beefing about what they get to eat. This is also known as "cricket" or "petrol."

Well, I guess that about covers England. In next week's column we will visit the Land of the Midnight Sun—France.

©1963 Max Shulman

Wherever you may roam in Europe and in all fifty states of the Union, you'll find Marlboro ever-present and ever-pleasant—filter, flavor, pack or box.

Bullard, Maddox Will Contend For Head Yearbook Position

• Jacobs, Prickett Vie for Business Manager

Nominations for next year's Pac-Sac Editor have been announced by present editor Bobby Pressbolt.

Vying for the Pac-Sac's top position are Leon Bullard and Janet Maddox both rising juniors.

Contestants in the race for business manager are rising sophomore Cleve Jacobs. The student council will conduct the election on the Georgia House on April 3.

Miss Maddox, a biology major from Spartanburg, made the following statement for the Blue Stocking:

To Uphold Quality

"My sole purpose in entering this race stems from my desire to publish an annual which will continue to uphold the present high quality of our Pac-Sac, and which will present all phases of life at PC as the students live them and would like to have them remembered.

"I have had publication experience in both newspaper and annual work, with greater experience in the latter as editor of my high school annual. Also, I've done private, political, and industrial commercial art work. I would like a chance to put this experience to use for the student body and the school."

Leon Bullard, who served as editor of his high school newspaper, is at pre-med major and comes from Rembert, Ga. He is a member of Kappa Alpha Order.

Said Bullard, "I've worked on Pac-Sac Product this year, serving as Fraternity Editor. Bobby has done a great job on this year's Pac-Sac, as you will see when it comes out.

One To Be Proud Of

"If elected Editor for the 1964 Pac-Sac, I will try to make it one that not only the seniors, but also everyone else will be proud of after they leave PC."

Jacobs, an economics major from Talladega, Ala., has had previous experience as editor of his high school annual. He is a member of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity.

Joe Prickett, from Atlanta, is a history major and a member of Alpha Sigma Phi.

Election Time Table

The schedule for the spring elections is as follows:

April 3—Election of the Pac-Sac editor and business manager.

Election of cheerleaders.

April 5 — SCA presidential candidates' speeches.

April 8 — SCA presidential election.

April 19—Nomination of Student Council members.

April 22 — Student Council Election.

April 26—Speeches of Student Council Presidential contenders.

Election of Student Council President, Vice-President, Secretary, and Treasurer.

Baccalaureate Preacher Is Presbyterian Alumnus

The Rev. Rusell W. Park, Sr., pastor of the Olanta and Sardinia Presbyterian Churches, has been chosen to preach the Baccalaureate Sermon on June 2. He is also one of the three alumni who have been cited by the trustees to receive honorary degrees at the commencement exercises.

Mr. Park received his B.A. degree from PC in 1920 and his B.D. from Columbia Theological Seminary in 1923. While at PC he was a member of the literary society, the YMCA, and the track team.

Sparked Memberhsip

After graduating from Columbia, Mr. Park began work as a rural pastor at the Lake City Presbyterian Church. Under his leadership the church's membership grew from around 50 to more than 300.

In 1951 Mr. Park left Lake City to assume duties as a member of the Board of Church Extension but returned to full time pastoral work in 1953 at his present location.

A loyal alumnus and strong supporter of the college, Mr. Park acted as an area chairman in the recent capital funds campaign.

Sophomores to List Choice of Majors

Mrs. Roslyn C. Martin, Registrar, announced Thursday that sophomores will shortly register for their respective majors.

Each student who has completed three semesters is to attend a meeting in chapel on Friday, April 19, for the purpose of signing cards designating his present advisor, his choice of major field of study, and his preferred advisor.

The cards will be distributed to advisors along with a photostat of the cumulative card for each student. Advisors will hold conferences with students during the week of April 22-26, and will be responsible for returning the major cards to the Registrar's Office on April 27.

Three copies of the cards will be made. Each student will keep a card, advisors will keep a card, and the third card will be placed on file in the Registrar's Office.

Students in the teacher-training program should have a conference with Mr. Riggs as well as the conference with their advisors.

Netman Gives Talk In Chapel

Allen Morris, former Presbyterian College tennis star, spoke to the student body last Friday, March 22, during chapel. Mr. Morris, who is the employment manager of Burlington Industries, spoke on opportunities in the textile industry.

Morris was an outstanding student at PC until his graduation in 1956. He was a member of the United States Davis Cup tennis team from 1954-1956 and joined Burlington in 1958. Later he was named executive development manager of the New York personnel department and was transferred to his present position in Greensboro, N. C., in 1961.

Dr. Brown Attends Washington Meeting

Some 50 alumni and friends of Presbyterian College in the Washington, D. C., area met Tuesday at an organizational luncheon held at the Army and Navy Country Club, Alexandria, Va.

Dr. Marshall W. Brown, president of PC, and Mrs. Brown attended the meeting as college representatives. He addressed the group on recent progress of and future plans for Presbyterian College.

The group was organized by Col. Powell A. Fraser, PC alumnus now serving in the Pentagon.

Robed Choir Sings In Virginia Tonight

The Robed Choir, on its annual spring tour, is appearing in South Boston, Va., tonight. Saturday, the group will not appear, but will perform Sunday morning at the First Presbyterian Church in Danville, Va. On the return trip the choir will sing at the Williams Memorial Church in Charlotte, N. C., Sunday night and arrive in Clinton before midnight Sunday.

Danforth Lecturer To Speak On Dynamics of Nature, Art

Dr. Donald H. Andrews, a distinguished scientist, leading authority in Thermodynamics, and Professor of Chemistry at John Hopkins University, will be on the PC campus on April 3, as a Danforth Visiting Lecturer.

Dr. Andrews will speak on "Dynamic Form in Nature and Art," illustrated with piano music and a motion picture. At a convocation he will speak on "Faith for the Atomic Age." In two informal or class meetings, he will discuss "The New Frontires of Temperature, Time, and Outer Space," and "The New Frontiers of the Atom and Inner Space," with students and faculty members.

Yale Man

A native of Connecticutt, Dr. Andrews recieved his early education in public schools, spent one year at Phillips Academy in Andover, and received his B.A. and Ph.D. degrees from Yale.

After periods of research, Dr. Andrews came to Baltimore in 1927 as assistant professor of chemistry at Johns Hopkins. In 1930 he was promoted to Professor of Chemistry, the chair he has held since that time.

In 1936, as Director of the Chemistry Laboratory, Dr. Andrews initiated the organization of an atomic research unit which later became associated with the atomic bomb project.

Social Atomics

Following the first successful use of the atomic bomb, Dr. Andrews and his associates at Johns Hopkins have been active participants in the study of the effect of atomic energy and political affairs. He served as chairman of the Baltimore branch of the Association of Scientists for Atomic Education, and as a board member for the Foreign Policy Association, United Nations Association, and United World Federalists in Maryland.

Movie Maker

In 1959, Dr. Andrews became a member of the Council of the Research Academy in the Philosophy of the Arts and Sciences. A film entitled "Unheard Melodies," prepared in collaboration with Walter Mills, Jr., was broadcast nationally on NBC-TV in March and August, 1960. A new theory on the relation between science and art has been developed in another project.

Political History

EDITOR'S NOTE: This editorial, which appeared in The Clinton Chronicle last week, seemed noteworthy in thought and expression. It should be of concern to students.

LITTLE BY LITTLE, but with the sureness of the ebb and flow of the tides, the old, fine distinctions between the two great political parties of this country have been slipping away. Party loyalty, as the nation once knew it, is virtually a thing of the past. Nowadays it is commonplace for a Democratic Presidential candidate to carry a state while the Republicans sweep the local Congressional offices. And vice versa.

THERE IS EVERY reason why this should be so. Once the parties, and the men who represented the parties, stood solidly on one side or the other of issues—bimetallism versus a solid gold standard, free trade versus high tariffs, internationalism versus a Washingtonian nationalism, more government power versus a rigidly limited government, and so on down a long, dramatic list. No longer. As the Portland, Oregon, Journal, puts the question: "On the basis of political and social philosophy, for instance, why is Senator Hubert Humphrey in the same party as Senator Strom Thurmond, or Senator Barry Goldwater in the same party as Governor Nelson Rockefeller?"

SO, IN THESE TIMES, we vote for individual men and women, not for a strong, clear party policy. Whether this is good or bad is a matter of argument. But the fact exists, and the impact on the American government system is profound.

Editor's Notebook..

A New Consent

STUDENTS MAY BE interested in the reasoning behind PC's new ruling on dropping courses. For a student to drop a course it is now necessary for him to have written parental permission as well as the traditional drop-slip, "okayed" by the academic dean and signed by the student's advisor and the teacher of the course being dropped.

SAYS ACADEMIC DEAN Joseph Gettys, "Primarily, the change was made to help teach a student something about tenacity. A person never develops much character if he quits something as soon as it becomes difficult."

DR. GETTYS SEEMED to feel that a student who had to justify his reasons to his parents as well as to the required faculty members would be more likely to request a drop-slip only if he had a really legitimate excuse. Dr. Gettys also pointed out that, of course, there are always exceptions.

More Women?

THE ERECTION of a girls' dormitory on this campus will be a landmark in the continuing growth and development of Presbyterian College. One hundred coeds will be lodged in it.

THERE HAS BEEN some talk as to why the college doesn't perhaps prepare the way for this new female influx by gradually increasing the number of girls enrolled. One student felt that this could perhaps be done by converting the "Gray House" into a small dorm for ten to twelve coeds.

A LITTLE CHECKING revealed that the administration doesn't feel that this small addition would be of any particularly extra value in preparing the way for the larger number of girls to come later.

PC'S BUSINESS MANAGER, Mr. Edward Campbell, also brought out that coupled to the fact that a few more coeds would little change the situation, they would also involve more expense, for they would need a dating parlor and a house mother.

THESE ADDITIONS would also take up the space that would be occupied by a few more male students who might not be able to attend otherwise.

PLANS ARE SET for the new dorm to be begun sometime in the next school year.

Throckmorton Can't Find Happiness

by ALEX BOSSERMAN

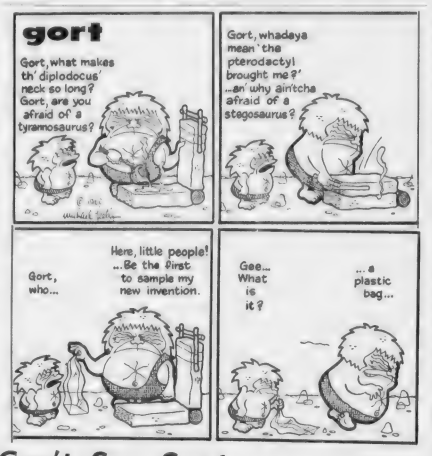
Once upon a time there was a boy named Throckmorton who wanted what all men want—acceptance in the adult world. But in order to do this he found he had to conform to certain things to be a bona fide member. These were "things" which he really didn't understand — therefore they had no meaning for him. They were the empty forms and stilted ways of adulthood. Throckmorton tried to accept the ideas of the group, but found them to be false.

He rebelled and questioned why he had to accept the falsity of the group in order to become a member.

Once, Throckmorton was told by a member of the group that he should quit his needless wondering and searching. All he had to do was be happy (realize he had no problems) and instill within him being an inane drive for success. Throckmorton was given the impression that he shouldn't question the actions of the group because they had the answers. Finally, he decided that maybe he was the one who had been wrong. Maybe he was the one on the wrong track. Maybe he was bucking things that were important to the group.

Mort worked diligently at being happy and he showed his happy nature to every member of the group. He showed them that he had a burning desire to be successful. Immediately he was accepted. He was praised for his diligent efforts to become something.

For a while Mort languished in his own satisfaction. Soon, however, he became dissatisfied. He saw his pseudo happiness and the success that he really didn't want had not answered the questions of his youth. He found that he had fallen into the empty forms and stilled ways of the group—things he had not understood. Again he revolted but in a different way than before. Throckmorton knew that "success and happiness" were not the answer. They were but two vultures that had been sent by the group to feast on his mind.



He tried to change, but he only found that he again was becoming an outcast. He could not understand why the group did not accept him now. He never realized it was because he knew something the group did not know — that feigned happiness and success were not the secret elixirs of life.

Throckmorton's frustrations continued when he found the group could not face truth unless it was tempered with "success and happiness."

He knew that he had also conformed to this false thinking in his earlier life, and he considered himself lucky that he had found truth, finally.

He had overlooked one thing though. He was back where he started from. He was now where he was in his youth—not a member of the group.

One dark night Throckmorton stepped off a curb and was run down by a machine that had been built by happy, successful men.

Can't See Spot; Falling Snow, Etc.

Editor's Note: The Blue Stocking regularly receives material from other College papers through the Associated Collegiate Press. The following are a few of the items sent. A column presenting them will be a fairly regular feature of the present Blue Stocking.

Students of the elementary education department at Long Beach State College, Long Beach, Calif., thought it would be instructive if they could evaluate the childish nature of college students when they "see Spot run."

As THE FORTY-NINER, campus newspaper, tells it, a large spotted dog was found and the only remaining problem was consent of campus officials to bring the dog on campus. So the students approached the committee on committees of committees and expressed their desire to "see Spot run."

The committee was sympathetic and felt that to "see Spot run" was indeed important. However, there would be a number of questions to be answered before permission could be granted—inquiries to be satisfied.

quiries to be satisfied.

1. Is this dog properly licensed? 2. Has the dog any previous reputation of biting, nipping, attacking or otherwise molesting young people? 3. Has some adequate preparation for crowd control been made? (The sponsoring group should bear in mind that serious problems can be expected from college students when they "see Spot run.")

Several committee members also questioned the good taste of unclad animals on a co-educational campus and wondered if indeed this isn't an injustice to the dog.

A Lewis and Clark College coed is so busy explaining why she wears a white open-toe cast, ending at the knee, that she hardly has time for classes.

Anne Matthews had been scheduled to drop imitation snow from the catwalk down to a stage on the Portland, Ore., campus. Anne told THE PIONEER LOG she was just "bombing along" when suddenly she missed the walk and started through the ceiling.

"I knew there were people down there and that I'd be joining them soon," said the tall blonde. "All I thought was 'What a stupid fool'!"

Remick and Lemmon Vivid As Alcoholics

In "Days of Wine and Roses" Hollywood has spared no effort in taking a bold look at alcoholism. Dealing with a pair of young lovers who begin as social drinkers and finish up alcoholics, the movie co-stars the versatile Jack Lemmon, who until now has been stereotyped as a comedian.

The lovely Lee Remick has her own special technique for softpedaling sex into this staggering portrayal of a handsome young married couple and their bout with the bottle.

"Days of Wine and Roses" depicts the frenzy of alcoholism with provocative and gripping realism. In fact both stars suffered a wide variety of cuts and bruises in portraying the violent, drunken scenes that make this movie a must for every student —each a potential alcoholic.

Don't miss "Days of Wine and Roses," opening Monday at the Broadway Theatre, downtown Clinton.

NCAA Tourney- Boxing's Loss- Butts And 'Bama

The annual slack season between the end of basketball and the beginning of the full spring sports schedule gives us the opportunity to do something we've been trying to find time enough to do before. That is to take a look at some national sports developments of recent weeks.

Loyola Upsets 'Cats

Probably the main topic of discussion around the national sports scene at this time is still the win over Cincinnati by Loyola of Chicago for the NCAA basketball championship. This was the "storybook" clash between the nation's most potent offensive attack, that of Loyola, and the nation's most effective defense, that of Cincinnati. Loyola scored over 90 points per game, but Cincinnati held their opponents to less than 50 points per game. In the final analysis it was a tip-in on a missed field goal attempt in the final seconds of the overtime period that had the Ramblers' offense defeat the Bearcats' defense.

Shades of '57

There have probably never been two more evenly matched teams fighting for such high stakes, unless they could be the 1957 North Carolina and Kansas squads who played thorugh three overtimes before UNC could claim the national crown. Some think that Cincinnati began their famous "control" game too early, but their foul situation could have warranted this. Coach Jucker knew what his team was capable of doing, but they didn't do it exactly as planned. Regardless of the arguments that will reign over this particular question of the Cincinnati tactics one thing is clear: Cincinnati blew it.

A Death

Professional boxing has been in the news lately and two names are prominent now. The first is that of the late Davey Moore who died two days after losing his featherweight crown to Sugar Romos in Los Angeles last week. Moore, the father of five, collapsed after the bout, in which he had been knocked out in the 10th round. For Ramos, this was a double tragedy, since Moore is the second fighter to have died after a bout with him. Legislative action has already begun in some states to outlaw the "sport," and Governor Brown of California is strongly in favor of it.

Mighty Cassius

Also in the news lately has been heavyweight "contender" Cassius Clay. Clay, the Olympic heavyweight champ in 1961, lost a battle but he won the war. The verbose 21 year old kid from Louisville talked a better fight than he showed 18,732 fans in New York recently as he won an unpopular decision from Doug Jones. Clay, who spouts off beat poetry, predicts the round in which his opponent "must fall," and packs 'em in wherever he goes, had called the fourth round in the Jones bout as the one in which he'd win. Well, Jones didn't fall at all., Clay had to take the last two rounds on points to win the decision, and his "big time" debut was a flop. After the fight Clay humbled himself for the first time anyone remembers, and called a halt to his round calling stunt.

The Post Points a Finger

A recent article in The Saturday Evening Post has accused Alabama football coach "Bear" Bryant and Georgia athletic director Wally Butts of collusion in last season's football game between the two schools. Butts is accused of calling Bryant a week before the game and giving him all the offensive and defensive plans of the Bulldogs for that game. A former FBI man in Athens was accidentally cut in on the call, and he is reported to have heard the entire conversation. The eavesdropper jotted down notes of the call, but forgot about them until he happened to mention it to a friend of Georgia football coach Johnny Griffith. The friend talked to Griffith about it, and Butts "resigned" a week later.

Bryant and Butts Battle Back

The magazine had earlier in the year written an article accusing Bryant of teaching dirty football and encouraging his boys to use illegal plays. Bryant had taken steps to sue the magazine for slander when this incident came out. The Post must have thought it knew all the facts or it would have not published the article. It is apparent that Alabama would not have needed the plays of Georgia to win, but the huge margin of victory, 35-0, was in contrast to the betting syndicate's 13-17 point spread prediction. Bryant and Butts have, of course, denied all charges, and Butts, claiming libel, is now suing the POST for $10,000,000.

Full Week of Sports Slated; Tennis, Track Make Home Debut

by GLENN BROWDER

The tennis team will make its home debut Tuesday when the Blue Hose netmen entertain Fort Eustis (Va.) on the PC courts. This match begins a full week of action for the squad, which carried a 1-1 record into today's meeting with Furman

After the Fort Eustis engagement, PC will play Harvard Wednesday and Thursday here. Harvard was easily defeated by the Hose last year. Amherst will wind up tennis activity for the week with a match here Friday. All matches will begin at 2 p. m.

Rough In Georgia

In the rough opener against Georgia last Friday, PC suffered the same fate it encountered last spring, and fell before the Bulldogs through lack of practice. Dodge Frederick and Bob Harris won their singles matches, but only the Feredérick-Wilson doubles combination copped a victory and the squad went down 6-3. It was a completely different story the next day however, as the touring Presbyterians crushed Navy 9-0 in Jacksonville.

Playing VMI

PC will play VMI's baseball team tomorrow at 2 p. m., completing the two-game series which opened today.

So far, the Hosemen have not been too successful hitting opposing pitchers, and are lagging behind opponents in runs scored in the two losses prior to today's game.

Meet The Fleet Again

Next week PC will play two tilts, facing Wofford here Tuesday and traveling to Due West for a return engagement with Erskine. Erskine was one of the two clubs hung on the Hose in the early season. A scheduled meeting with the Fleet on our diamond here last Tuesday was rained out, and this will not be rescheduled as it was not a Little Four contest.

Track Season Opens

The track season will open tomorrow with the Blue Hose competing with Wofford here. Coach Jimmy Vickers' cindermen will then resume action with a meet against Lenoir Rhyne Tuesday, which also will take place here.

These two contests point to the Carolina-State Relays, slated for next Saturday in Columbia

PC To Putt

Golf will also get into the action Tuesday with a match with Wofford at the Laurens Lakeside Country Club. The linksmen will then face East Tennessee next Friday, also a home encounter. This will end action in that sport until April 18, when the golfers meet The Citadel at Hampton.

Bulletin!

At The Blue Stocking's 4:30 deadline PC had clinched their second tennis win of the season by sweeping through the six singles matches at Furman this afternoon. The doubles matches are now being completed but the PC victory over Furman is assured.

Sigs Go Undefeated To Win Table Tennis

Sigma Nu has captured the table tennis championship, polishing off the PiKaps yesterday to finish the tournament with a perfect 8-0 record. The Pounders copped second spot with a 6-2 showing, followed by the PiKA's, who also posted a 6-2 record but finished third by losing more individual matches than the Pounders.

Bob Harris led the champion Sigs, winning all his matches. Here is how the other teams stacked up: fourth, Pi Kappa Phi (6-2); fifth, Theta Chi, (3-5); sixth, Kappa Alpha (3-5); seventh, Alpha Sigma Phi (2-6); eighth, Bandits (2-6).

I-M Spring Sports Open With Volleyball In Gym

The 1962 I-M spring sports season began here Tuesday night when volleyball got underway in the gym. Matches will consist of the best two out of three games of 15 points. The fraternity teams and the independent teams are in separate leagues this year, and the top four teams of each league will compete in a tournament to determine the season's championship.

In matches on Tuesday night the Confeds defeated the Oxen 15-3 and 15-11; the Pounders defeated the Pikes 15-3 and 15-3; the Sigma Nus won over the PiKA's 15-7 and 15-11; the Bandits defeated the Spikers 15-11, 13-15, and 15-10; and the KA's won over the Theta Chis 15-8, 11-15, and 15-10.

In Wednesday night's matches the Confeds defeated the Spikers 15-9 and 15-12; the PiKA's defeated the Theta Chis 15-7 and 15-8; the KA's won over the Alpha Sigs 51-10, 11-15, and 15-11; the Sigma Nus defeated the Pi-Kapps 15-9, 9-15, and 15-9; and the Bandits defeated the Oxen 15-3 and 15-5.

In Thursday night's slate the PiKA's defeated the PiKaP's, the Theta Chis defeated the Spikers, the Pikes won over the Oxen, the Pounders defeated the Alpha Sigs, and the Snakes defeated the Confeds. (The scores of these games were not available.)

Plans are completed for an interesting Military Ball weekend. A party will be held at the house Friday night. Saturday afternoon, at the Shriner's Club on Lake Greenwood, the KA's plan a party with music furnished by the famous Jets.

Bill Shearer has been elected to serve as our IFC representative.

KA chapters throughout South Carolina are eagerly awaiting the Old South Ball to be held in August. April 19, 20, and 21st, Grif Helwig has been selected to portray the part of Robert E. Lee in the annual Secession ceremony.

PI KAPPA ALPHA

The fraternity is making plans for the spring dance weekend and is looking forward to the upcoming military ball. During the weekend of April 27 Mu Chapter will be host to the other members of District Seven for a District Seven Workshop. The fraternity congratulates Leighton Grantham, G. W. Parker, Cleve Jacobs and George Davenport who were recently initiated into the brotherhood.

Brothers of the week were Wayne Fowler and Sandy Hagood.

SIGMA NU

Plans for house improvement are being discussed. Many ideas have been expressed and a committee has been set up to decide what will be best.

The annual Sigma Nu house party has been set for the week immediately following graduation.

Sigma Nu brothers and pledges are eagerly anticipating the upcoming Military Ball weekend.

THETA CHI

Plans are being formulated for spring dance weekend.

Congratulations are extended to new brothers Hunter Coleman, Archie Hudgins, Dennis Hill, and Frank Hendrix upon their recent initiation.

Theta Chi also elected new officers. They are: President, Arthur DeYoung; Vice-President, Bill Loeble; Secretary, Bill Anderson; Treasurer, Bill Culp; Marshal, Dave Welborn; and IFC Rep., Robert Banks.

Alumni Medal of Honor Recipient Commemorated

by BECKY FARMER

For the one hundredth anniversary of the U. S. Army Medal of Honor, PC's Scabbard and Blade Company has constructed a display to salute an alumnus who won the coveted award. The alumni recipient is Regular Army Colonel George Mabry, Jr., who has just recently been recommended for promotion to Brigadier General.

The display, which is in the Douglas Lounge, consists of a framed white background on which are a drawing of the Medal of Honor, a picture of Colonel Mabry, a copy of a Presidential citation, and a short record of the Colonel's stay at PC.

Against The Germans

Col. Mabry won the Medal of Honor while commanding the Second Battalion, Eighth Infantry, in an attack on Hurtgen Forest near Schevenhette, Germany, on Nov. 20, 1944.

During the early phases of the assault, his battalion was stopped by a mine field and heavy hostile fire. Col. Mabry advanced into the mine field and established a safe route through it. He moved ahead of his foremost scouts and personally led the assault until confronted by a boobytrapped double concertina obstacle. With his scouts' assistance he disconnected the explosives and cut a path through the wire.

Bayonet Capture

Advancing through the opening, Mabry came upon three Germans in a fox hole. He captured the three at bayonet point and then drove forward to pace an attack on three log bunkers which housed mutually supported automatic weapons. Col. Mabry raced up the slope to the bunkers ahead of his men and found the first bunker deserted.

He went on to the second bunker where he found nine Germans. He felled one with the butt of his rifle and bayoneted another because. Accompanied by the scouts, Col. Mabry charged the third bunker under point blank small arms fire. He led the way into the bunker and prodded six Germans out by bayonet point.

After consolidation of the area, Col. Mabry established a defensive position which menaced the enemy and provided his regiment with a strong foothold on the approach to the Cologne Plain.

Presidential Citation

In presenting the Medal of Honor to Col. Mabry, President Truman said, "Major (his rank at the time) Mabry's superlative courage, daring, and leadership in an operation of major importance exemplifies the finest characterstics of the military service."

A member of the class of 1940, Colonel Mabry played varsity football and baseball while at PC. In his senior year he was a Cadet Major in the ROTC Battalion.

Baptist Students Meet

A BSU meeting will be held on Thursday, April 4, at 6:30 p. m. The meeting, which will be held in Douglas House, will be for the nomination of new officers.

Blue Stocking Poll Outlines PC Male

by CHRISTINE WILSON AND MARSHALL JONES, ASSOCIATE EDITORS

He is 20.4 years old. Four chances out of a hundred, he is married. He spent $110 in refurnishing his back-to-school wardrobe. Its' a 1 to 3 bet that he owns or has full-time use of an automobile.

He is PC's Joe College, 1963.

This poll is an attempt to compare the PC gent with the average male college student as reported by a recent national survey made by PLAYBOY. The statistics in parentheses are those found by PLAYBOY.

Our survey shows that 2% (11.2%) of todays' Judd diners are married, 6% (12%) of our undergraduates underwrite all of their college expenses, while (17%) do not contribute at all to their college support. As to outside jobs, 61% (52%) work during summer only, while 31% (30%) work both during the summer and school year. 8% (14%) do not work at all.

Auto Owners

How dependent are today's college students on the automobile? Our survey shows that 30% (36%) possess their own cars while 8% (10%) have full-time personal use of one. Of these, 3% (2.7%) drive a 1963 automobile, 7% (11%) a 1962 model, 10% (8.4%) a 1961 model, and the rest later models.

65% (50%) of our male students surveyed answered that they smoked; 72% of these smoked cigarettes, 8% cigars and 10% pipes. Among cigarette smokers, filter types were the favorite, with Winstons being preferred by most.

Clothes—$$$

While the median expenditure for back-to-school warbrobes in 1962 was $110 ($68), 28% (32%) spent over $100 and 25% (9%) over $200. The typical student wardrobe consists of 3 (2.6) suits, 3 (2) sports jackets, 8 (6.5) pairs of slacks, 4 (3.8) pairs of shoes, .9 (1.1) topcoats or overcoats, 1 (.9) raincoats, 6 (4.7) sweaters, 8 (8.3) ties, 4 (2.7) belts, and 16 (14.6) pairs of socks.

The favorite PC magazine according to the poll results is definitely PLAYBOY, with SPORTS ILLUSTRATED and POST coming in second and third.

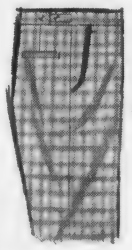
Individuals On Campus

There were several interesting individual reports, which students might enjoy. Although this particular one is not average, it is indication of the extremely wealthy among us.

Student X is 26 years old, not married, is a senior and does not belong to a social fraternity. He owns a 1963 Grand Prix, smokes 10 cigars a week, 4 packs of cigarettes (regular) a week and 6 pipefuls a week. With all the smoking he seems to have attained quite a thirst also.

470 Socks

He owns 22 suits ($240 each), 16 sports jackets ($150 each), 32 pairs of slacks, 45 pairs of shoes, 36 topcoats, 8 raincoats, 16 sweaters (rather meager), 104 ties, 159 belts, and 235 pairs of socks. He spent approximately $2,079.35 on his basic wardrobe for this school year.



Most interesting of all is his delicate taste in reading. His favorite magazines in order of preference are LADIES' HOME JOURNAL, BETTER HOMES AND GARDENS and MAD.

MARKING ON THE CURVE—AND WHAT TO DO ABOUT IT

Twonkey Crimscott was a professor. Choate Sigafoos was a sophomore. Twonkey Crimscott was keen, cold, brilliant. Choate Sigafoos was loose, vague, adenoidal. Twonkey Crimscott believed in diligence, discipline, and marking on the curve. Choate Sigafoos believed in elves, Julie London, and thirteen hours of sleep each night.

Yet there came a time when Twonkey Crimscott—mentor, sage, and savant—was thoroughly outthought, outfoxed, outmaneuvered, outployed, and outwitted by Choate Sigafoos, sophomore.

"You and your ideas!"

It happened one day when Choate was at the library studying for one of Mr. Crimscott's exams in sociology. Mr. Crimscott's exams were murder—plain, flat murder. They consisted of one hundred questions, each question having four possible answers —A, B, C, and D. You had to check the correct answer, but the trouble was that the four choices were so subtly shaded, so intricately worded, that students more clever by far than Choate Sigafoos were often set to gibbering.

So on this day Choate sat in the library poring over his sociology text, his tiny brow furrowed with concentration, while all around him sat the other members of the sociology class, every one studying like crazy, every one scared and pasty. Choate looked sadly at their stricken faces. "What a waste!" he thought. "All this youth, this verve, this bounce, chained to musty books in a musty library! We should be out singing and dancing and cutting didoes on the greensward! Instead we are here."

Then, suddenly, an absolute gasser of an idea hit Choate. "Listen!" he shouted to his classmates. "Tomorrow when we take the exam, let's all—every one of us—check Choice 'A' on every question—every one of them."

"Huh?" said his classmates.

"Oh, I know that Choice 'A' can't be the right answer to every question," said Choate. "But what's the difference? Mr. Crimscott marks on the curve. If we all check the same answere, then we all get the same score, and everybody in the class gets a 'C'."

"Hmm," said his classmates.

"So why should we knock ourselves out studying?" said Choate. "Let's get out of here and have a ball!"

So they all ran out and lit Marlboro Cigarettes and had a ball, as indeed, you will too when you light a Marlboro, for if there ever was a cigarette to lift the spirit and gladden the heart, to dispel the shades of night, to knot up the ravelled sleeve of care, to put spring in your gait and roses in your cheeks, it is filtered Marlboros—firm and pure and fragrant and filled with rich, natural, golden tobacco. And, what's more, this darlin' smoke comes in soft packs that are actually soft and flip-top boxes that actually flip.

Well sir, the next morning the whole class did what Choate said, and, sure enough, they all got 'C's, and they picked Choate up and carried him on their shoulders and sang "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow" and plied him with sweetmeats and Marlboros and girls and put on buttons which said "I DOTE ON CHOATE."

But they were celebrating too soon. Because the next time shrewd old Mr. Crimscott gave them a test, he did not give them one hundred multiple choice questions. He only gave them one question—to wit: write a 30,000 word essay on "Crime Does Not Pay."

"You and your ideas," they said to Choate and tore off his epaulets and broke his sword and drummed him out of the school. Today, a broken man, he earns a living as a camshaft in Toledo.

Series Announced

Exiled Prime Minister To Give Initial Lecture

Ferenc Nagy, the last Prime Minister of Hungary before Communist domination there, will appear at PC on April 22. He is the inaugural speaker of the Newton Gherig Hardy Memorial Lecture Series.

Broader Horizons

The lecture series was established as a memorial to Newton G. Hardy by his family and friends during Presbyterian's recently completed development program. Its purpose, as stated by the benefactors, is "to bring outstanding individuals from various fields of interest to the campus . . . with the hope that . . . the horizons of the students, faculty, and friends may be broadened."

Full Career

Nagy's career in the Hungarian government began over three decades ago and has been long and varied. He assisted with the founding of the Independent Smallholders' Party and became its National Secretary in 1930.

In 1941 he served as President of the Hungarian Peasants' Association, which he also founded. Three years later he was seized by the Nazi Gestapo for his governmental activities and was held prisoner for a year.

After imprisonment he was, in 1945, Minister of Reconstruction, National President of the Independent Smalholders' Party, and President of the Hungarian Parliament.

Prime Minister

During 1946 and 1947 Nagy was Prime Minister of Hungary until he was exiled by the Communsits. After his exile he became a U. S. citizen and now lives in Herndon, Va.

Nagy's exile activities include membership in the Hungarian National Council since 1948, serving as Vice-President of the International Peasant Union, and as Chairman of the Assembly of Captive European Nations in 1961-62.

World Travel

In addition Nagy participated in several international conferences on the danger of Communism in the world today. His numerous trips have taken him to Europe over 40 times since 1948. He has also written articles for several leading magazines and has had one book published, "Struggle Behind the Iron Curtain."

Although the topic of Nagy's lecture has not yet been announced, it will probably deal with aspects of Communism, its mounting threat to the free world, and the cold war.

New Cheerleaders Chosen Wednesday

Wednesday's elections saw Nancy Harvey, Woody Merrit, Jim Huber, and Phil Omert named cheerleaders for the 1963-64 term.

Miss Harvey, from Monticello, Ga., Huber, from Ocala, Fla., and Olmert, from Bishopville, are all rising sophomores.

Merrit, a rising junior, is from Easley.

Dance Committee Elections Pending

Nominations for Chairman of the School Dance Committee will be made next week and election of the Chairman will follow the next week. The School Dance Committee sponsors three dances annually: Homecoming, Christmas, and Spring Dances. The Dance Committee sets certain rules for dance weekends.

Current Chairman Alex Bosserman had this to say about the upcoming elections, "In order to have a good dance committee, considerable thought should be made on the part of the student as to who he believes will be a good, responsible chairman. Cooperation and support from the student body is especially necessary in the election of a reliable chairman.

Currie, Harris, Rhodes Named As SCA President Candidates

Three rising seniors have been nominated for the office of president of the Student Christian Association this past week. The nominees are Tom Currie, Hugh Harris, and Jan Rhodes. The election will be held April 8 in Douglas House.

Each of the candidates submitted a short statement for the Blue Stocking.

"In the past several years the S. C. A. has done an outstanding job," says Harris. "The Intramural program has been and is now a wide and well-supported one. The Religious Emphasis weeks have been well planned and stimulating.

Cooperation

"I have found while working on the cabinet, that the only way to have the S. C. A. become a real success is through student co-operation and participation.

"If I am elected, keeping the students in mind, I will work toward these goals."

Said Currie, "The S. C. A. this past year has been well organized and has done an excellent job, especially in its intramural program. If elected, I would hope to maintain the standards of this year's S. C. A. program by appointing an able and qualified cabinet to assist in the different responsibilities.

Measured Success

"The S. C. A. is a student organization and its success can be measured by the number of students who participate in the planning and carrying out of its program and who benefit from S. C. A. sponsored activities. To direct a program that will encourage as much student participation and interest as possible will be my goal, if I am chosen."

Stated Rhodes, "As nominee for president of the S. C. A., I want to say something about its responsibilities to us, the student body that makes a student body a thrviing one.

Responsibilities

"Along with students publication, the S. C. A. is responsible in bringing to us men and women with dynamic personalities meant to stimulate us to higher goals. But most of all, it directs the student activities that teach us not how to win but how to live together. If I am elected I will strive to increase student interest to the best of my ability."

Qualifications

Tom Currie, from Carthage, N. C., has been constantly on the Dean's List. He was a member of the Sophomore Honor Society, was Pac-Sac class editor, is a pre-ministerial major, and an Alpha Sigma Phi.

Jan Rhodes, from Decatur, Ga., is a member of the Student Council and has been a Blue Stocking feature editor. He is also an English major and a member of Alpha Sigma Phi.

Hugh Harris is a pre-med student from Decatur, Ga. He is a member of the Pershing Rifles, has served on the S. C. A. cabinet and is a platoon Sergeant in the R. O. T. C.

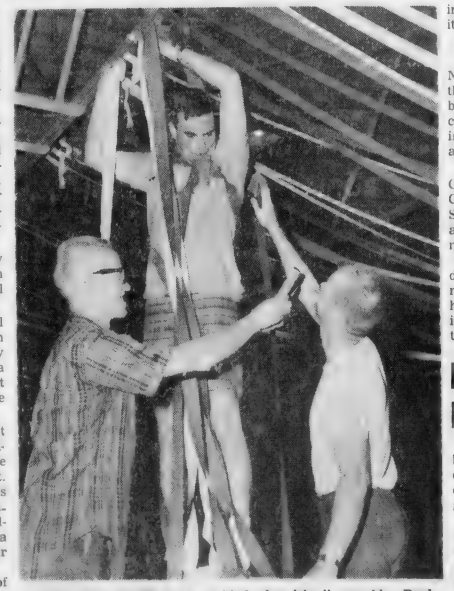
Annual PC Military Ball Tonight; Fraternities Host Weekend Parties

Clinton's National Guard Armory will be the scene of PC's annual Military Ball tonight. Board of Trustees Chairman Robert Vance and Mrs. Vance will head the reception line at 8:00.

A new innovation over last year will be alternating bands. The Dean Hudson Orchestra and The Blenders will fill this office with music for every mood.

At 10:30 PC's officers and their sponsors will be hailed by a saber march formed by the Pershing Rifles.

Theta Chi held a record party in their suite last night, and plan one during and following the ball tonight.



The Mary Musgrove Hotel will play host to the Sigma Nu's from 2 to 6 today with music by The Parrots. The Sig's had a dance at their house Frday night and have scheduled one after the ball tonight.

Pi Kappa Phi entertained last night at the Tex Ranch. The Pi-KaPs will also host parties at the ranch this afternoon and tonight.

The Laurens Shrine Club was filled with music by the Dynamics last night for Pi Kappa Alpha. The PiKA's will have a party this afternoon in their suite.

A record party was the bill of Greenwood fare for Kappa Alpha yesterday evening. A dance at the Shriner's Club on Lake Greenwood is slated for today.

Dean's List Banquet Follows Holidays

The Dean's List Banquet is to be held in the Judd Dining Hall of Presbyterian College on Friday, April 26. Festivities will begin at 7:30 p. m.

All of the people who attained Dean's List qualifications for the second semester of last year and the first semester of this have been invited. Those students who are married can bring their husbands or wives.

The speaker will be Dr. R. C. Grier, who was formerly the president of Erskine College.

Theta Chi also elected new officers. They are: President, Arthur DeYoung; Vice-President, Bill Loeble; Secretary, Bill Anderson; Treasurer, Bill Culp; Marshal, Dave Welborn; and IFC Rep., Robert Banks.

Alumni Medal of Honor Recipient Commemorated

by BECKY FARMER

For the one hundredth anniversary of the U. S. Army Medal of Honor, PC's Scabbard and Blade Company has constructed a display to salute an alumnus who won the coveted award. The alumni recipient is Regular Army Colonel George Mabry, Jr., who has just recently been recommended for promotion to Brigadier General.

The display, which is in the Douglas Lounge, consists of a framed white background on which are a drawing of the Medal of Honor, a picture of Colonel Mabry, a copy of a Presidential citation, and a short record of the Colonel's stay at PC.

Against The Germans

Col. Mabry won the Medal of Honor while commanding the Second Battalion, Eighth Infantry, in an attack on Hurtgen Forest near Schevenhette, Germany, on Nov. 20, 1944.

During the early phases of the assault, his battalion was stopped by a mine field and heavy hostile fire. Col. Mabry advanced into the mine field and established a safe route through it. He moved ahead of his foremost scouts and personally led the assault until confronted by a booby-trapped double concertina obstacle. With his scouts' assistance he disconnected the explosives and cut a path through the wire.

Bayonet Capture

Advancing through the opening, Mabry came upon three Germans in a fox hole. He captured the three at bayonet point and then drove forward to pace an attack on three log bunkers which housed mutually supported automatic weapons. Col. Mabry raced up the slope to the bunkers ahead of his men and found the first bunker deserted.

He went on to the second bunker where he found nine Germans. He felled one with the butt of his rifle and bayoneted another before his scouts came to his rescue. Accompanied by the scouts, Col. Mabry charged the third bunker under point blank small arms fire. He led the way into the bunker and prodded six Germans out by bayonet point.

After consolidation of the area, Col. Mabry established a defensive position which menaced the enemy and provided his regiment with a strong foothold on the approach to the Cologne Plain.

Presidential Citation

In presenting the Medal of Honor to Col. Mabry, Presdient Truman said, "Major (his rank at the time) Mabry's superlative courage, daring, and leadership in an operation of major importance exemplifies the finest characterstics of the military service."

A member of the class of 1940, Colonel Mabry played varsity football and baseball while at PC. In his senior year he was a Cadet Major in the ROTC Battalion.

Baptist Students Meet

A BSU meeting will be held on Thursday, April 4, at 6:30 p. m. The meeting, which will be held in Douglas House, will be for the nomination of new officers.

Blue Stocking Poll Outlines PC Male

by CHRISTINE WILSON AND MARSHALL JONES, ASSOCIATE EDITORS

He is 20.4 years old. Four chances out of a hundred, he is married. He spent $110 in refurnishing his back-to-school wardrobe. Its' a 1 to 3 bet that he owns or has full-time use of an automobile.

He is PC's Joe College, 1963.

This poll is an attempt to compare the PC gent with the average male college student as reported by a recent national survey made by PLAYBOY. The statistics in parentheses are those found by PLAYBOY.

Our survey shows that 2% (11.2%) of todays' Judd diners are married. 6% (12%) of our undergraduates underwrite all of their college expenses, while (17%) do not contribute at all to their college support. As to outside jobs, 61% (52%) work during summer only, while 31% (30%) work both during the summer and school year. 8% (14%) do not work at all.

Auto Owners

How dependent are today's college students on the automobile? Our survey shows that 30% (36%) possess their own cars while 8% (10%) have full-time personal use of one. Of these, 3% (2.7%) drive a 1963 automobile, 7% (11%) a 1962 model, 10% (8.4%) a 1961 model, and the rest later models.

65% (50%) of our male students surveyed answered that they smoked; 72% of these smoked cigarettes, 8% cigars and 10% pipes. Among cigarette smokers, filter types were the favorite, with Winstons being preferred by most.

Clothes—$$$

While the median expenditure for back-to-school warbrobes in 1962 was $110 ($68), 28% (32%) spent over $100 and 25% (9%) over $200. The typical student wardrobe consists of 3 (2.6) suits, 3 (2) sports jackets, 8 (6.5) pairs of slacks, 4 (3.8) pairs of shoes, .9 (1.1) topcoats or overcoats, 1 (.9) raincoats, 6 (4.7) sweaters, 8 (8.3) ties, 4 (2.7) belts, and 16 (14.6) pairs of socks.

The favorite PC magazine according to the poll results is definitely PLAYBOY, with SPORTS ILLUSTRATED and POST coming in second and third.

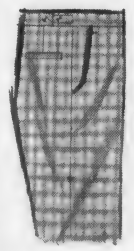
Individuals On Campus

There were several interesting individual reports, which students might enjoy. Although this particular one is not average, it is indication of the extremely wealthy among us.

Student X is 26 years old, not married, is a senior and does not belong to a social fraternity. He owns a 1963 Grand Prix, smokes 10 cigars a week, 4 packs of cigarettes (regular) a week and 6 pipefuls a week. With all the smoking he seems to have attained quite a thirst also.

470 Socks

He owns 22 suits ($240 each), 16 sports jackets ($150 each), 32 pairs of slacks, 45 pairs of shoes, 36 topcoats, 8 raincoats, 16 sweaters (rather meager), 104 ties, 159 belts, and 235 pairs of socks. He spent approximately $2,079.35 on his basic wardrobe for this school year.



Most interesting of all is his delicate taste in reading. His favorite magazines in order of preference are LADIES' HOME JOURNAL, BETTER HOMES AND GARDENS and MAD.

MARKING ON THE CURVE—AND WHAT TO DO ABOUT IT

Twonkey Crimscott was a professor. Choate Sigafoos was a sophomore. Twonkey Crimscott was keen, cold, brilliant. Choate Sigafoos was loose, vague, adenoidal. Twonkey Crimscott believed in diligence, discipline, and marking on the curve. Choate Sigafoos believed in elves, Julie London, and thirteen hours of sleep each night.

Yet there came a time when Twonkey Crimscott—mentor, sage, and savant—was thoroughly outthought, outfoxed, outmaneuvered, outployed, and outwitted by Choate Sigafoos, sophomore.

"You and your ideas!"

It happened one day when Choate was at the library studying for one of Mr. Crimscott's exams in sociology. Mr. Crimscott's exams were murder—plain, flat murder. They consisted of one hundred questions, each question having four possible answers—A, B, C, and D. You had to check the correct answer, but the trouble was that the four choices were so subtly shaded, so intricately worded, that students more clever by far than Choate Sigafoos were often set to gibbering.

So on this day Choate sat in the library poring over his sociology text, his tiny brow furrowed with concentration, while all around him sat the other members of the sociology class, every one studying like crazy, every one scared and pasty. Choate looked sadly at their stricken faces. "What a waste!" he thought. "All this youth, this verve, this bounce, chained to musty books in a musty library! We should be out singing and dancing and cutting didoes on the greensward! Instead we are here."

Then, suddenly, an absolute gasser of an idea hit Choate. "Listen!" he shouted to his classmates. "Tomorrow when we take the exam, let's all—every one of us—check Choice 'A' on every question—every one of them."

"Huh?" said his classmates.

"Oh, I know that Choice 'A' can't be the right answer to every question," said Choate. "But what's the difference? Mr. Crimscott marks on the curve. If we all check the same answers, then we all get the same score, and everybody in the class gets a 'C'."

"Hmm," said his classmates.

"So why should we knock ourselves out studying?" said Choate. "Let's get out of here and have a ball!"

So they all ran out and lit Marlboro Cigarettes and had a ball, as indeed, you will too when you light a Marlboro, for if there ever was a cigarette to lift the spirit and gladden the heart, to dispel the shades of night, to knot up the ravelled sleeve of care, to put spring in your gait and roses in your cheeks, it is filtered Marlboros—firm and pure and fragrant and filled with rich, natural, golden tobacco. And, what's more, this darlin' smoke comes in soft packs that are actually soft and flip-top boxes that actually flip.

Well sir, the next morning the whole class did what Choate said, and, sure enough, they all got 'C's, and they picked Choate up and carried him on their shoulders and sang "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow" and plied him with sweetmeats and Marlboros and girls and put on buttons which said "I DOTE ON CHOATE."

But they were celebrating too soon. Because the next time shrewd old Mr. Crimscott gave them a test, he did not give them one hundred multiple choice questions. He only gave them one question—to wit: write a 30,000 word essay on "Crime Does Not Pay."

"You and your ideas," they said to Choate and tore off his epaulets and broke his sword and drummed him out of the school. Today, a broken man, he earns a living as a camshaft in Toledo.

Distinguished for Its Progress

Vol. XLI — Presbyterian College, Clinton, S. C., April 6, 1963 — No. 16

Series Announced

Exiled Prime Minister To Give Initial Lecture

Ferenc Nagy, the last Prime Minister of Hungary before Communist domination there, will appear at PC on April 22. He is the inaugural speaker of the Newton Gherig Hardy Memorial Lecture Series.

Broader Horizons

The lecture series was established as a memorial to Newton G. Hardy by his family and friends during Presbyterian's recently completed development program. Its purpose, as stated by the benefactors, is "to bring outstanding individuals from various fields of interest to the campus . . . with the hope that . . . the horizons of the students, faculty, and friends may be broadened."

Full Career

Nagy's career in the Hungarian government began over three decades ago and has been long and varied. He assisted with the founding of the Independent Smallholders' Party and became its National Secretary in 1930.

In 1941 he served as President of the Hungarian Peasants' Association, which he also founded. Three years later he was seized by the Nazi Gestapo for his governmental activities and was held prisoner for a year.

After imprisonment he was, in 1945, Minister of Reconstruction, National President of the Independent Smalholders' Party, and President of the Hungarian Parliament.

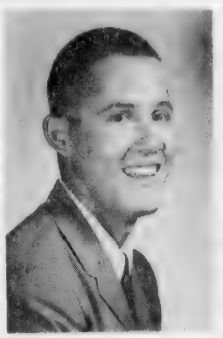
Prime Minister

During 1946 and 1947 Nagy was Prime Minister of Hungary until he was exiled by the Communsits. After his exile he became a U. S. citizen and now lives in Herndon, Va.

Nagy's exile activities include membership in the Hungarian National Council since 1948, serving as Vice-President of the International Peasant Union, and as Chairman of the Assembly of Captive European Nations in 1961-62.

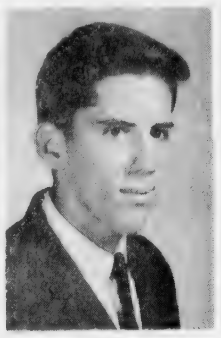
World Travel

In addition Nagy participated in several international conferences on the danger of Communism in the world today. His numerous trips have taken him to Europe over 40 times since 1948. He has also written articles for several leading magazines and has had one book published, "Struggle Behind the Iron Curtain."



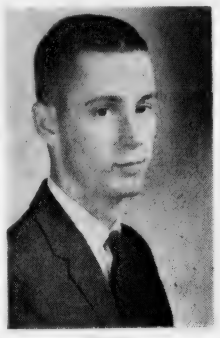
Although the topic of Nagy's lecture has not yet been announced, it will probably deal with aspects of Communism, its mounting threat to the free world, and the cold war.

New Cheerleaders Chosen Wednesday



Wednesday's elections saw Nancy Harvey, Woody Merrit, Jim Huber, and Phil Omert named cheerleaders for the 1963-64 term.

Miss Harvey, from Monticello, Ga., Huber, from Ocala, Fla., and Olmert, from Bishopville, are all rising sophomores.



Merrit, a rising junior, is from Easley.

Currie, Harris, Rhodes Named As SCA President Candidates

Three rising seniors have been nominated for the office of president of the Student Christian Association this past week. The nominees are Tom Currie, Hugh Harris, and Jan Rhodes. The election will be held April 8 in Douglas House.

Each of the candidates submitted a short statement for the Blue Stocking.

"In the past several years the S. C. A. has done an outstanding job," says Harris. "The Intramural program has been and is now a wide and well-supported one. The Religious Emphasis weeks have been well planned and stimulating.

Cooperation

"I have found while working on the cabinet, that the only way to have the S. C. A. become a real success is through student co-operation and participation.

"If I am elected, keeping the students in mind, I will work toward these goals."

Said Currie, "The S. C. A. this past year has been well organized and has done an excellent job, especially in its intramural program. If elected, I would hope to maintain the standards of this year's S. C. A. program by appointing an able and qualified cabinet to assist in the different responsibilities.

Measured Success

"The S. C. A. is a student organization and its success can be measured by the number of students who participate in the planning and carrying out of its program and who benefit from S. C. A. sponsored activities. To direct a program that will encourage as much student participation and interest as possible will be my goal, if I am chosen."

Stated Rhodes, "As nominee for president of the S. C. A., I want to say something about its responsibilities to us, the student body that makes a student body a thrviing one.

Responsibilities

"Along with students publication, the S. C. A. is responsible in bringing to us men and women with dynamic personalities meant to stimulate us to higher goals. But most of all, it directs the student activities that teach us not how to win but how to live together. If I am elected I will strive to increase student interest to the best of my ability."

Qualifications

Tom Currie, from Carthage, N. C., has been constantly on the Dean's List. He was a member of the Sophomore Honor Society, was Pac-Sac class editor, is a pre-ministerial major, and an Alpha Sigma Phi.

Jan Rhodes, from Decatur, Ga., is a member of the Student Council and has been a Blue Stocking feature editor. He is also an English major and a member of Alpha Sigma Phi.

Hugh Harris is a pre-med student from Decatur, Ga. He is a member of the Pershing Rifles, has served on the S. C. A. cabinet and is a platoon Sergeant in the R. O. T. C.

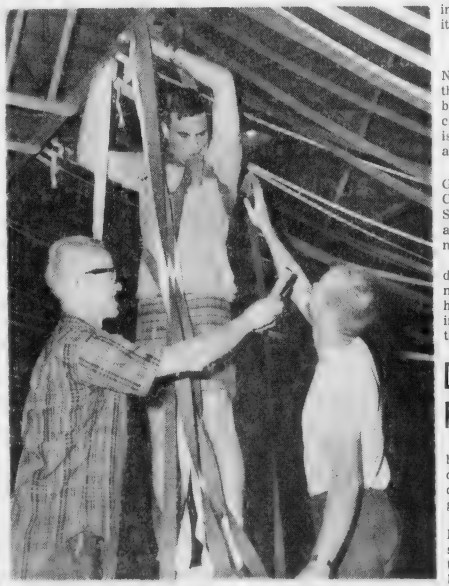
Annual PC Military Ball Tonight; Fraternities Host Weekend Parties

Clinton's National Guard Armory will be the scene of PC's annual Military Ball tonight. Board of Trustees Chairman Robert Vance and Mrs. Vance will head the reception line at 8:00.

A new innovation over last year will be alternating bands. The Dean Hudson Orchestra and The Blenders will fill this office with music for every mood.

At 10:30 PC's officers and their sponsors will be hailed by a saber march formed by the Pershing Rifles.

Theta Chi held a record party in their suite last night, and plan one during and following the ball tonight.



The Mary Musgrove Hotel will play host to the Sigma Nu's from 2 to 6 today with music by The Parrots. The Sig's had a dance at their house Frdiay night and have scheduled one after the ball tonight.

Pi Kappa Phi entertained last night at the Tex Ranch. The Pi-KaPs will also host parties at the ranch this afternoon and tonight.

The Laurens Shrine Club was filled with music by the Dynamics last night for Pi Kappa Alpha. The PiKA's will have a party this afternoon in their suite.

A record party was the bill of Greenwood fare for Kappa Alpha yesterday evening. A dance at the Shriner's Club on Lake Greenwood is slated for today.

"YOU TWO MUST be some kind of a joke," mumbles Paul Woodall through the ribbon in his mouth. The Military Ball tonight which this gleeful threesome are decorating for is no joke, however. L-R, Bobby Piephoff, Woodall, and Wilton Hazelwood.—(Photo by Autry.)

Dance Committee Elections Pending

Nominations for Chairman of the School Dance Committee will be made next week and election of the Chairman will follow the next week. The School Dance Committee sponsors three dances annually: Homecoming, Christmas, and Spring Dances. The Dance Committee sets certain rules for dance weekends.

Current Chairman Alex Bosserman had this to say about the upcoming elections, "In order to have a good dance committee, considerable thought should be made on the part of the student as to who he believes will be a good, responsible chairman. Cooperation and support from the student body is especially necessary in the election of a reliable chairman.

Chapel Services

Chapel services for the coming week are as follows:

Monday—Faculty Devotion

Wednesday—Rev. James G. Stuart, Sardis Presbyterian Church, Charlotte.

Friday—Student Program

Dean's List Banquet Follows Holidays

The Dean's List Banquet is to be held in the Judd Dining Hall of Presbyterian College on Friday, April 26. Festivities will begin at 7:30 p. m.

All of the people who attained Dean's List qualifications for the second semester of last year and the first semester of this have been invited. Those students who are married can bring their husbands or wives.

The speaker will be Dr. R. C. Grier, who was formerly the president of Erskine College.

Do We Dare To Be Square?

Editor's Note: The following condensed address, written by Charles H. Brower, President of Batten, Barton, Durstine, & Osborn, Inc., New York, appeared in the April Reader's Digest.

BACK IN OUR GRANDPARENTS' day, the word "square" was one of the finest words in our language. You gave a man a square meal when he was hungry. You stood four-square for the right, as you saw it. When you got out of debt, you were square with the world, and you could look your fellow man square in the eye.

THEN A LOT OF STRANGE characters got hold of this honest, wholesome word and bent it all out of shape. Now everyone knows what a square is. He is the man who never learned to get away with it. A Joe who volunteers when he doesn't have to. A guy who gets his kicks from trying to do something better than anyone else can. A boob who gets so lost in his work that he has to be reminded to go home. A slob who still gets all choked up when the band plays "America the Beautiful." A square, and strictly from Squaresville.

HIS TRIBE ISN'T THRIVING too well in the current climate. He doesn't fit neatly into the current group of angle players, corner cutters, sharpshooters, and goof-offs. He's burdened with old fashioned ideas of honesty, loyalty, courage, and thrift. And he may already be on his way to extinction.

HE AND ALL THE REST of us are living in a quite different country today from the one we were taught to love. For example, we have been gullible patrons of the idea that our ancient disciplines should be abandoned as too stark for the poor feeble souls that we are. Our colleges are loaded with youngsters who are hardly prepared for high school—who cannot do simple arithmetic or spell simple words. The idea was that the dull discipline of the three R's was disturbing to little Johnny's ego.

WE OUGHT TO KNOW by now that there is no learning without discipine. But today non-books are being thrown together by non-writers who never bothered to learn to write. Our museums are exhibiting painting by people who never learned to paint. It used to be a sort of joke that you could not tell which was the top and which was the bottom. But recently a museum did hang a bit of modern art upside down. It was days before the error was discovered, and I still do not know how they knew.

WE REFER TO OUR HUMOR as sick, sick, sick, and it is, is, is. Mother used to get cards on Mother's Day, expressing in some way the fact that she was loved and wanted. Now she is lucky if she gets a card that shows Whistler's mother flat on her back and a caption that says, "You're not the only one who's off her rocker."

THIS COMMENT, I SUPPOSE, will mark me as a square. But if it does I will be in pretty good company. For this country was discovered, put together, fought for and saved by squares. It is easy to prove that almost all our national heroes were squares—simply by thinking what they might have said had they not been squares.

NATHAN HALE: Me spy on those British? Are you trying to be funny? Do you know what they do with the spies they catch? I'll give you a news flash, chum. They HANG them!

PATRICK HENRY: Sure, I'm for liberty. But we've got to be a little realistic. We're a pretty small outfit. If we start pushing the British around, someone is going to get hurt.

PAUL REVERE: What do you mean—me ride through every Middlesex village and town? And in the middle of the night yet? Why pick on me? Am I the only man in Boston with a horse?

IT IS PERHAPS SIGNIFICANT that what each man did say has been quietly sneaked out of our school-books. This Week Magazine made a survey of school history

April Is the Cruelest Month

EDITOR'S NOTE: In light of the fact that PC has no literary publication The Blue Stocking will periodically present pieces such as the following.

by SWINK SAUNDERS

Spring has many trails, green trees, butterflies, cotton dresses and pants, disregarded textbooks, an above-average number of "F's" resulting in an above-average number of school drop-outs, shirt-sleeved professors, green beer, beach trips, sultry nights, scantily clad people, sunrises, and sweat. There is an argument for the fact that a young man's fancy turns to love because of these varied characteristics, or that some of these varied characteristics result from a young man's fancy turning to love. (However, it is the position of many that a young man's fancy has been for love since the dawn of the first day, which is probably the best position.)

With the coming of spring, there will be rumors again this year, as there were last, that a young student at Podunk College put a bullet through his brain, due to the influences of spring upon him. It seems the story always follows the same plot, which goes something like this:

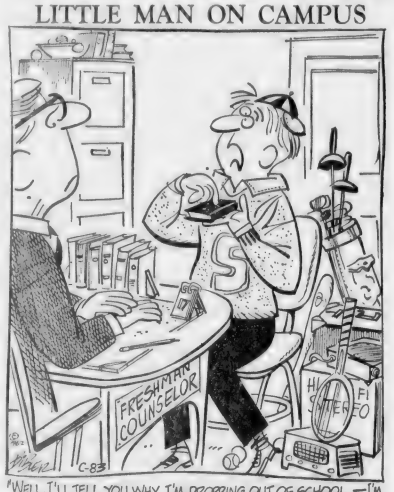
"John Doe, a student at Podunk College was sitting in his Engineering 502 class (Operation of the Mechanical Pencil), listening to a boring lecture on The Principles of Retraction, when a sparrow flitted by the window beside him. The sparrow was definitely an omen of spring, and John's mind immediately severed all relations with his ears, which allowed the shirt-sleeved professor to lecture without still another member of his class.

Once in his reverie, John began to consider and weigh his chances of passing his quiz the next hour in English 37462, The Characteristics of Realism. Realizing that he really should have studied the afternoon and night before, instead of playing tennis and taking in a drive-in movie, he decided to take a chance on cutting the class just one more time, thinking he would really burn the make-up.

The sparrow played some more and John observed the greening trees and blue sky with much appreciation. His mind wandered to Modine Gunch, his girl, who attended Mary A. Snoot College, and to how much fun they were going to have at the house party two week-ends from then. He thought of how fine she looked last year at the beach in her two-piece bathing suit, and all.

The bell finally rang and he shuffled out of the class with the other victims of the spring fever epidemic, and out to the parking lot. The sun was beaming down relentlessly on his learned, college groomed brow. He let the top back on his 1963 convertible, and went to Charlie's to let some relaxation take the place of his English quiz.

Though the beer had that proverbial springtime green taste, it served the purpose, and he relaxed while considering his weekend plans. Modine was going to a party with him at the frat house the next night, but he decided a little socializing would be in order that night also. It seemed that although his academic activity was at an all-time low, his social energy was at a shocking all-time high, and had been since that first warm day when he cut classes and made a date with a cute little number up at the Woman's College. He used Charlie's phone and called the woman's college and arranged to pick up the little swinger at 8:00.



Finishing his brew, he started back to the college, but rode around in the sunshine for awhile, since he didn't want to chance seeing his English Professor right away. He felt at ease with the world. He would graduate in another year and his diploma from Podunk would get him an executive position in his dad's company. Also, there were only two more weeks to wait for the house party with Modine, and after his grdauation he was going to marry her. In addition to all these things to look forward to in the fairly distant future, he had a date with that little babe from the Woman's College for the drive-in that very night. Things couldn't have been any better. Everything was perfect. He drove back to the school.

When he pulled into the parking lot, he noticed one of those black, springtime thunderstorm clouds coming in from the South, and he pulled up the top of his car. Then he walked into the dorm without a worry in the world and arrived at his room. He noticed two envelopes on the door. Taking them down, he found that one was from the dean and the other was a special delivery from Modine.

Relaxing in his easy chair, he opened the letter from the dean, anticipating a call to his office for a raking out from him. He read that he had taken one too many cuts in his English 37462 class, and that he should keep a closer check on his absences. The crux of the whole thing was simply that since he was only taking twelve hours that semes-

Blue Stocking to Conduct Book Reviewing Contest

Students are invited to compete in a book review contest. A cash prize of $10.00 will be awarded to the writer of the best review, with the runner-up receiving $5.00.

The contest, sponsored by the Blue Stocking, will have as its judge Mr. S. Allen King, Assistant Professor of English. Mr. King will judge the reviews on the basis of style, insight, and grammar.

Each review must be on a book not more than five years old. Deadline for the contest is midnight, May 1. The Blue Stocking editors who drew up the contest felt that students might possibly want to take advantage of the up-coming spring holidays for reading and writing their reviews.

The Blue Stocking reserves the right to publish any of the reviews submitted. Editors on The Blue Stocking staff are not eligible, but all others working on the paper will be allowed to enter.

Senior ROTC Cadets Attend Army Orientation Session

Over 240 Senior ROTC Cadets, nineteen of them from Presbyterian College, visited Fort Jackson to participate in the Annual ROTC Orientation Program last weekend.

The cadets arrived Friday morning and were greeted by Major General Charles S. D'Orsa, Commanding General of Fort Jackson. They then toured the Trainfire Ranges and witnessed the firing of the new M-14 rifle.

Study Weapons

Following a luncheon in the Officers' Open Mess, the group heard a weapons orientation at Hilton Field and got a close hand study of various weapons and Army aircraft.

The cadets then were divided into small groups and moved to company areas where they witnessed the operation of a small unit.

Saturday, half of the cadets spent the day on the Trainfire Ranges while the other half remained in individual units working with the commanders of these units. They had lunch at the Officers' Open Mess and returned to PC.

The nineteen PC students attending were Bill Neely; Leon Bullard; Arthur McQueen; Hugh Harris; Creighton Likes; Hoppy Hopkins; Ronny Collins; Roy Autry; Brad Campbell; Jack Greenwood; Holmes Overstreet; Robert Watts; Ed Kidd; Frank Armstrong; Bill Canady; Tommy Braswell; Joe Prickett; and DuPont Smith.

Bullard Edges Maddox For Pac-Sac Editorship

In what the student council termed definitely not a runaway, Leon Bullard edged by Janet Maddox for the head position on next year's Pac-Sac. The council termed the Cleve Jacobs-Joe Prickett contention as "very close" with Jacobs squeezing out Prickett for the post of Business Manager.

Bullard, a pre-med major from Bainbridge, Ga., has had literary experience as editor of his high school newspaper and as fraternity editor of the 1963 Pac-Sac. He is a member of Kappa Alpha Order and is a rising senior.

Jacobs, an economics major from Talladega, Ala., has had experience as editor of his high school annual. He is a member of the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity and is a rising junior.

Bullard stated that the 1963-64 Pac-Sac departmental editors were being considered now and would be announced at a later date.

Scholarship Committee Selects Ten As Recipients Of Founders Awards

Presbyterian's Scholarship Committee met Friday, March 29, to select the 1963 winners of the college's Founder's Scholarships. Ten recipients, four of whom are girls, were chosen after a series of competitive tests and personal interviews.

Awards ranged from $5,580 to $1,200. These sums will be allotted over a four-year period. The new founder's scholars, listed with the amount each received, are the following:

James Allison Bell, Copperhill, Tenn. ($5,580); Susan Gilbert, Blakely, Ga. ($3,000); Paula Evans, Ludowici, Ga. ($2,000); McCutchen Brooks Anderson, Bishopville ($1,600); Henry Thomas Woods, Rock Hill ($1,600).

Also, Virginia Crichfield, South Bay, Fla. (($1,200); Samuel J. Montgomery, Chappells ($1,200); Marvin R. Roberson, Belton ($1,200); Andy Dendy, Hartwell, Ga. ($1,200); and Ballard H. Baggette, Summerton ($1,200).

Qualifications

The Founder's Scholars are chosen on the basis of intellect, character, and potential. They represent Presbyterian College's most extensive academic scholarship program.

The members of the Scholarship's Committee are Academic Dean Joseph Gettys, Dean of Students A. J. Thackston, Assistant Professor of English, Neal Prater, and Business Manager, Edward Campbell.

Do We Dare To Be Square?

books issued before 1920, compared with those isued since. Nathan Hale said, "I only regret that I have but one life to give for my country" in 11 of the old texts and in only one of the new texts. Patrick Henry said, "Give me liberty or give me death in 12 out of 14 earlier texts and in only three of 45 recent ones. But John Paul Jones set the record. He said, "I have not yet begun to fight" in nine of the old books and in none of the new.

MAYBE THESE aggressive and nationalistic statements were square. But there are lessons to be learned in all of them, and schoolbooks are for learning.

ARNOLD TOYNBEE, the historian, says that of 21 notable civilizations, 19 perished not from external conquest but from evaporation of belief within. Today, our country still has a choice. I believe it has already begun to make that choice. I believe it is going back to its old beliefs in such things as ideas, pride, patriotism, loyalty, devotion, and even hard work.

SHEER head-counting seems to indicate that people are beginning to struggle for better things. Twenty years ago, half of us belonged to churches. Today 63 per cent of us do. Expenditures on cultural activities have increased 70 per cent in the past ten years—to a total of more than three billion dollars. The percentage of our college-age population actually attending college is nine times higher than it was at the turn of the century.

AND OUR NATION has a whole new set of heroes. Named Glenn and Grissom and Shepard. Named Carpenter, Schirra and Cooper. The towns they came from have nice small names: Boulder, East Derby, New Concord, Mitchell, Oradell, Shawnee. These lads apparently lived too far from the big city and grew up to be squares. For who but a square would volunteer his life for his country's good?

THEY ARE NOT even ashamed of their feelings. John Glenn says he gets a funny feeling down inside when he sees the flag go by. Imagine that! He's proud of his small town, proud of his small college. Proud that he belonged to the YMCA.

I hope that some of him rubs off onto the next generation.

FOR THE FORCES of conformity are still strong. Too many of us are still sitting it out instead of sweating it out. Too many of us haven't got the guts to stand up straight and dare to be square.

Blue Stocking's Founder Took Risks, Made A Paper

The Blue Stocking first rolled off the presses in 1920 under the editorship of Carl W. McMurray, now pastor of the Marion (N. C.) Presbyterian Church. It has served up the campus news ever since, except for a three-year break during World War II.

Rev. McMurray tells of the founding of the paper in these words: "When I returned to PC for my senior year after having been in the Navy, I decided to undertake this project concerning which I had given much thought during the first few weeks after the term opened. After surveying the financial problem and canvassing the merchants for advertisin, I decided to assume personal responsibility for the financial success of the venture.

"Then I selected the most capable men I knew to serve on the staff with me, and I pledged them to secrecy so that the first issue might appear a surprise. The secrecy worked, and few of the students and none of the faculty knew about it until they were confronted with the fact."

In speaking of his staff, "Their enthusiasm was as great as mine and together we started The Blue Stocking on its way not knowing whether it would survive the year much less for longer years that have followed.

The paper was printed twenty years before any major change took place in its makeup. On February 5, 1940, the last issue of the paper was printed using the original style and make-up, featuring an Old English nameplate. Under the leadership of Tucker Irvin, the paper acquired a new look.

In his first editorial, "We Dare To Be Different," editor Irvin explained the change as an effort to streamline the paper and keep abreast of the times. Under his editorship the present nameplate was first used on the November 15 issue.

The following year, 1941, the first All-American rank came under the editorship of Charles B. MacDonald, '42, now with the U. S. Department of History. The second semester, Editor MacDonald's paper achieved an even higher honor, All-American Pacemaker, as one of the ten best in the nation.

Ben Hay Hammet, '43, now public relations director at PC, followed with two All-Americans in 1942, with one semester's publications honored as All-American Pacemaker among the seven best in the nation.

Since 1942, eleven more All-American ratings have been bestowed upon the publication, the latest being garnered for the spring semester 1959, under the editorship of Evin Varner.

Ministerial Club Picks New Officers

George Reeves, former president of the Ministerial Club, announced that new officers for the club had been selected for the forthcoming year. At the group's monthly meeting April 4, John Boyer was elected president and Jan Rhodes was elected vice-president.

Buddy Guy was chosen as secretary-treasurer and Jim Stanford was selected club chaplain. The historian and the team chairman are Henry Stakely and Raymond Summerlin, respectively. Dr. David Moorefield will be advisor for the group.

Also at the meeting, the outstanding pre-ministerial student of the year was chosen by secret balot. Who he is will be announced during the Honors Day Program which will be held after Easter holidays.

Professor Fakkema Conference Bound

Robert Fakkema, PC's Professor of Christian Education, will participate in two conferences of the Presbyterian Church, U. S.

He will be a leader in the tenth Presbyterian recreation workshop to be held at Camp NaCoMe near Nashville, Tenn., April 29-May 3.

From July 18-24 he will direct recreation for youth at the eighth annual Presbyterian Conference on Church Music at Montreat, N. C.

Changed Pool Hours

Hours during which students may swim have been changed. After Easter the swimming pool will be open on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday nights from 7:30 to 9:00, instead of on Wednesday and Friday afternoons as it has been.

Theta Chi Elects New Officer Slate

Tuesday evening retiring President, Ted Elders, ended a year of service to Beta Psi Chapte rof Theta Chi Fraternity as he installed the 1963-64 chapter officers. Arthur DeYoung of Sanford, Fla., assumed leadership as president. Serving with DeYoung will be Bill Loeble, Waynesboro, Va., Vice - President; Bill Anderson, Asheville, N. C., Secretary; Bill Culp, Atlanta, Treasurer; and David Welborn, Easley, Pledge Marshal.

Under the new officers Beta Psi is making plans to host an alumni meeting later in the spring. Such a meeting will be a new undertaking for the chapter.

April Is the Cruelest Month

ter, he had gracefully cut himself out of school.

He dropped the letter and envelope into the trash can and jerked his brain momentarily into serious gear.

The thunder roared and the rains came, and the only thing that looked like spring to John was the calendar. The weather was terrible, and he felt terrible.

The phone rang, and someone bellowed down the hall that John had a long-distance call. When he answered, the voice on the other end told him that she didn't think that he should come all the way up there that night, since the weather was so bad. He sadly agreed and hung up.

Once back into his room, he opened the letter from Modine, and a wilted daffodil fell out onto his lap. He picked it up and thought about when he had given it to her last week at the lake. It was real sentimental—you know.

He read the letter and found that she had heard of his frequent trips to the woman's college of late and advised him that she had accepted a date with somebody else for the house party, and she really didn't think she loved him any more—at least she wasn't. sure. At this, his heart sank to an irretrievable low.

He went to his dresser and found his .22 pistol he always took on camping trips, loaded, it, and sat back down into his easy chair. He dropped the letter into the trash with the other one from the dean, and lighted a cigarette. Looking out at the rain, he scratched his temple with the muzzle of the pistol, thought a minute, and the thunder roared again.

In Retrospect: Some Nostalgia For Times Past

With no major athletic events or arguments to rave about this week, let's pause to look into Presbyterian' College's sports history and dust off some newspaper accounts of significant Blue Hose achievements of the past. The following sports stories relate some of these doings. The appropriate date and headline appears with each account.

Tennis—A Trail of Glory

(1957)—MIAMI HANDED NATIONAL UPSET

MIAMI—Presbyterian College of Clinton, S. C., defeated Miami's national Champion tennis team 5-4 here today, snapping Miami's 156 match winning streak.

(1959)—PC'UNS WIN SEVEN STATE TENNIS TITLES

CLINTON—The powerful Presbyterian tennis team captured seven of the nine finals matches here Friday to win the 19th annual South Carolina Intercollegiate tennis tournament.

(1960)—PRESBYTERIAN WINS STATE TENNIS TOURNEY

CLEMSON—Presbyterian won the South Carolina Collegiate Tennis Tournament here Saturday, but with not nearly the ease they've done it in the past.

(1960)—PC STUDENTS PROTEST TENNIS DE-EMPHASIS

CLINTON—Presbyterian College students demonstrated Friday against an announced administration policy which would reduce the cost of its intercollegiate tennis program.

(1961)—PC'S 27-YEAR REIGN IS OVER

CLEMSON—Presbyterian's 27-year domination of South Carolina College tennis ended Saturday with a sliced serve by The Citadel's Walter Anderson in a No. 2 doubles match. The match-point serve gave The Citadel the State Intercollegiate championship by one point over Presbyterian 23-22 .

Football—The Bowl Road

(1959)—PC BEATS PIRATES IN 4TH PERIOD, 18-13

CLINTON—Presbyterian College came from behind twice here Saturday night to defeat East Carolina 18-13, in the opening game of the season.

PC STUNS FURMAN IN FOOTBALL THRILL, 24-13

GREENVILLE—Taking opportunity of just about every scoring play in the book in the final quarter, the Presbyterian College Blue Hose stunned Furman's hurricane 24-23 in a "thrill circus" in Sirrine Stadium.

BLUE HOSE SCRAP FROM BEHIND: DIP CATS, 25-21

DAVIDSON—Quarterback Bobby Waters scampered 68 yards for a touchdown in the final moments Sautrday to give Presbyterian College a comeback 25-21 football victory over Davidson. RIERS, 27-19.

UNBEATEN HOSE ROAR BACK TO DEFEAT TERRIERS

CLINTON—The fabulous Blue Hose from Presbyterian College after giving up 19 points in the first period, scrambled back for three second half touchdowns to stun Wofford 27-19 here Saturday night in a Little Three thriller.

PC HOSE TAKE FIFTH STRAIGHT

BURLINGTON—The undefeated Presbyterian College Blue Hose chalked up their fifth straight victory here Saturday as they defeated the Elon Fighting Christians 27-6.

PRESBYTERIAN ROUTS TAMPA, 27-0

TAMPA—Presbyterian's Blue Hose remained undefeated Saturday night turning on the steam in the second half to club Tampa's football team into submission, 27-0.

PC LASHES CATAWBA, 35-14

CLINTON—Tangerine Bowl bound Presbyterian College strutted its stuff here Saturday, ripping Catawba 35-14.

THE CITADEL SLITHERS PAST PC, 8-0

CHARLESTON—A fumble in the Presbyterian College end zone in the dying minutes Saturday gave The Citadel an 8-0 victory on a rain-soaked field and knocked the Blue Hose from the unbeaten ranks.

PRESBYTERIAN CRUSHES APPALACHIAN, 34-0

BOONE—Presbyterian exploded for four touchdowns in the third period to defeat Appalachian State 34-0 Saturday.

PC HOSE TOPPLE NEWBERRY, 20-6

NEWBERRY—Alert Bobby Pate's spectacular improvised lateral play to Ronnie Hampton for a 59-yard touchdown provided the impetus as Presbyterian defeated Newberry here today 20-6.

PRESBYTERIANS LOSE TANGERINE BOWL THRILLER

ORLANDO—Presbyterian College lost a heart-breaker to Middle Tennessee at Orlando's Tangerine Bowl last night, 21-12. The Blue Hose were down 14-0, but came roaring back ot make it 14-12. A gamble on fourth down by PC handed Middle Tennessee a fourth period touchdown after the Hose had dominated second half play up to that point.

VMI, Wofford, Harvard Fall As Presbyterian Hits Full Stride

Presbyterian has come through the past week of spring sports with flying colors, winning seven of 10 events since last Friday. This raises the over-all spring program record above the 500 mark with a 9-8 won-loss slate.

Here is a rundown of the action up through Thursday afternoon.

Tennis Takes Four

The tennis squad started things off by crushing Furman 9-0 last Friday and continued the pace against Fort Eustis Tuesday. The Hosemen brought an abrupt halt to the Virginians' 15-match victory streak with a convincing 7-2 win.

Harvard was next for the onrushing netmen, with Tony Wilson returning to his top form. The Northerners fell Wednesday 7-2, and the other touring team was clipped 7-2 also.

Baseball Hitting

The baseball team equalled last year's record Tuesday, clobbering Wofford 9-4. Alvin Coley continued his torrid pace at the plate with a tremendous home run, and Tommy Williams shook off his slump with a homer also. PC had just split the two-game series with VMI, winning the Friday meeting 8-6, and dropping the Saturday game 9-4.

Leighton Grantham has emerged as a topflight reliever in the early season, and has already picked up one win as a fireman.

Golf Sidetracked

The golfers haven't been quite as successful as the other sports, losing to Wofford Tuesday. Bill Brown and Mike Barrett both fired 76 but the Terriers ran off with an 18-9 win.

Cindermen Split Two

The track team ran circles around Wofford Saturday, winning by an 87-47 margin. Knot Culpepper, Doug Allen, and Sandy Hagood were the big men for the Hose. It was a different story Tuesday, as Lenoir Rhyne squeaked out a 66-64 win.

Joe Rhyne, the football speedman for the Bears, took the 100 in 9.98 seconds, and went on to push Lenoir Rhyne to the victory. PC led 64-61 with only the mile relay left, but this event was never in doubt from the start, with LR building too big a lead for PC to catch up.

Richardson, Stallworth Shine In I-M Softball

A couple of late home runs and a professor's fine relief job highlighted the opening day's play in the 1963 Intramural Softball play. Two faculty members' clutch play has caused much discussion on campus after their opening games.

In the opening game on Wednesday, the Snakes defeated the Alpha Sigma Phis 10-9 in a game not decided until the final inning. The Alpha Sig's carried a 9-6 lead into the final frame, but a two-on-three home run by Mac Cobb into left field pulled the win out for the Snakes.

Pounding In Vain

A tremendous rally by the Pounders was in vain as they lost 11-10 to the Pi Kappa Alphas. The Pounders scored 9 runs in the last inning to tie the PiKA's and send the game into an extra inning. In the top of the 8th inning, Professor Hugh Richardson hit a long home run to put the Pounders out in front 10-9, but Bill Russell came through for the PiKA's in their half of the inning to drive in the winning runs.

Paced by the hitting of Mike Smith and the relief pitching of Professor Tommy Stallworth, the Bandits defeated the Sigma Nus Wednesday 13-12. Smith drove in the winning run in the top of the 6th, and Professor Tom Stallworth put down the Sigs in the final inning to preserve the Bandit win.

Pounders and Sigma Nu Lead As I-M Volleyball Winds Up

Intramural volleyball came to a close here Thursday night with the Sigma Nus and the Pounders leading in their leagues. The tournament will open Monday night with the top four teams in each league competing for the right to play in the best three out of five final series.

In last night's final action the Sigma Nus defeated the Alpha Sigma Phis to remain undefeated in the tourney. The Bandits defeated the Confeds in three games to hold second place. The Pi Kappa Alphas won over the KA's to capture second place in the Greek League.

Standings

The final pre-tournament standings are:

INDEPENDENT LEAGUE

1. Pounders (6-0)
2. Bandits (5-1)
3. Confeds (3-3) tie
4. Snakes (3-3) tie
5. Pikes (3-3) tie
6. Oxen (0-6)

GREEK LEAGUE

1. Sigma Nu (5-0)
2. Pi Kappa Alpha (4-1)
3. Pi Kappa Phi (3-2)
4. Kappa Alpha (2-4)
5. Theta Chi (1-5)
6. Alpha Sigma Phi (0-6)

Hosemen to Compete In Carolina Meet

Presbyterian will enter the Carolina - State Relays today, with 11 Blue Hosemen competing in the intercollegiate meet.

PC has entries in the javelin, the hurdles, the relays, and the two mile run. The group taking part in the meet is made up of the following trackmen: Mike Lowrance (javelin), George Lewis and David Welborn (hurdles), Sandy Hagood, Rut Galloway, Knot Culpepper, Jim Salvo, Randy McCranie, Reggie Autrey, George Taylor, and Ronnie Seiple (440, mile, and two-mile.)

Warden Named Davis Cup Coach

Gordan Warden, head tennis coach of PC, was recently appointed coach to the United States Southern Junior Davis Cup Tennis Team, it was announced here yesterday.

Coach Warden, who triples as tennis and golf coach, as well as faculty advisor for Intramural Athletics, will coach this squad of the best amateur tennis playesr from Texas to Virginia. His Southern squad will compete with teams from the other Junior Davis Cup Team regions across the U. S., and the best of these netters will vie for the U. S. Davis Cup Team. The appointment was confirmed by the President of the Southern Lawn Tennis Association.

Living Endowment Fund Starting Towards Record Goal of $75,000

Strong activity in the opening weeks has pushed Presbyterian College's 1963 Living Endowment off to a $7,307 start toward a record $75,000 goal, Alumni and Public Relations Director Ben Hay Hammet announced today.

He said it represents the strongest opening burst yet recorded for this phase of the annual giving program which produced $55,134 from 1,071 contributors last year.

New High

PC alumni and friends in 1963 are shooting for a goal of $75,000 for the total annual giving effort (including the Living Endowment and the Walter Johnson Club athletic fund). This objective represents a new high, exceeding the record $65,254 raised in 1961.

Work toward hitting the new goal will be conducted throughout the year through personal solitations, class agent letters and mailers sent directly from the college. Alumni in the Rock Hill and Anderson areas already have their projects underway, with Harry E. Hicklin, Jr., of Rock Hill and Dr. Richard T. Gillespie of Anderson serving as leaders there.

Hammet pointed out the $55,134 contributed to the annual giving program last year was in addition to funds subscribed to the development campaign, which raised $1,800,000 in 1962 for capital improvements at PC.

Danforth Lecturer Speaks On Wave Theory of Matter

Dr. Donald H. Andrews, Professor of Chemistry at Johns Hopkins University, and visiting Danforth Lecturer, spoke to the student body in Chapel Wednesday. Dr. Andrews, who assisted in the development of the atomic bomb, discussed the concept that matter is composed of waves rather than particles.

A separate classroom lecture was given on the properties of matter at extremely low temperatures.

Inaudible Symphony

In line with the wave theory, the Danforth lecturer pointed out in his chapel talk that all matter emits certain vibrational harmonies out of human hearing range. Every object and every particle of every object sends out a specific tone. All nature, therefore, is essentially producing a vast concert of inaudible sound.

Sounds of Statues

Dr. Andrews revealed that he had done work on amplifying this silent-music so that it could be heard. In the movie which he presented as part of his lecture, the sounds emitted by different shaped statues were heard.

Planning to complete in the near future a scale based on these tones, Dr. Andrews hopes that an orchestra will be able to play music similar to the silent symphony.

NOW YOU CAN BE YOUNGER THAN SHE IS

It is a scientific fact that girls reach emotional maturity earlier than boys. For this reason freshman girls are reluctant to make romantic alliances with freshman boys, but instead choose men from the upper classes.

Thus the freshman boys are left dateless, and many is the night the entire freshman dorm sobs itself to sleep. An equally moist situation exists among upper-class girls. With upper-class men being snapped up by freshman girls, the poor ladies of the upper class are reduced to dreary, manless evenings of Monopoly and home permanents.

It pleasures me to report there is a solution for this morbid situation—indeed, a very simple solution. Why don't the two great have-not groups—the freshman boys and the upper-class girls—find solace with each other?

True, there is something of an age differential, but that need not matter. Take, for example, the case of Albert Payson Sigafoos and Eustacia Vye.

Albert Payson, a freshman in sand and gravel at Vanderbilt University, was walking across the campus one day, weeping softly in his loneliness. Blinded by tears, he stumbled upon the supine form of Eustacia Vye, a senior in wicker and raffia, who was collapsed in a wretched heap on the turf.

We could build a Snowman...

"Why don't you watch where you're going, you minor youth?" said Eustacia peevishly.

"I'm sorry, lady," said Albert Payson and started to move on. But suddenly he stopped, struck by an inspiration. "Lady," he said, tugging his forelock, "don't think me forward, but I know why you're miserable. It's because you can't get a date. Well, neither can I. So why don't we date each other?"

"Surely you jest!" cried Eustacia, looking with scorn upon his tiny head and body.

"Oh, I know I'm younger than you are," said Albert Payson, "but that doesn't mean we can't find lots of fun things to do together."

"Like what?" she asked.

"Well," said Albert Payson, "we could build a Snowman."

"Bah!" said Eustacia, grinding her teeth.

"All right then," said Albert Payson, "we could go down to the pond and catch some frogs."

"Ugh!" said Eustacia, shuddering her entire length.

"How about some Run-Sheep-Run?" suggested Albert Payson.

"You are callow, green, and immature," said Eustacia, "and I will thank you to remove your underaged presence from mine eyes."

Sighing, Albert Payson lighted a cigarette and started away.

"Stay!" cried Eustacia.

He stayed.

"Was that a Marlboro Cigarette you just lighted?" she asked.

"What else?" said Albert Payson.

"Then you are not immature!" she exclaimed, clasping him to her clavicle. "For to smoke Marlboros is the very essence of wisdom, the height of American know-how, the incontrovertible proof that you can tell gold from dross, right from wrong, fine aged tobaccos from pale, pathetic substitutes. Albert Payson, if you will still have me, I am yours!"

"I will," he said, and did, and today they are married and run the second biggest wicker and raffia establishment in Duluth, Minnesota.

Robed Choir to Make Annual Spring Tour

• Will Sing in Washington

The Blue Stocking
Distinguished for Its Progress
Vol. XLI · Presbyterian College, Clinton, S. C., March 22, 1963 · No. 16

The Presbyterian College Robed Choir begins its annual Spring Tour this Saturday, March 23. Thirty members comprise the group which this year will visit the Presbyterian churches in North Carolina, Virginia, and the District of Columbia.

The Choir sings at the First Presbyterian Church in Raleigh, N. C., on Sunday, March 24. This is organist David Perry's home church, and he will give an organ recital before the morning service. A reception session is scheduled for Sunday afternoon with an evening concert at Fayetteville, N. C.

In Washington

Monday and Tuesday will be spent in or near Washington, D. C., the Choir singing Monday night in McLean, Va., a residential suburb of Washington. On Tuesday night, the Choir sings at the historical Central Presbyterian Church in Washington, of which Wodorow Wilson was a prominent member.

Returning south, the Choir sings in Petersburg, Va., on Thursday night, and South Boston, Va., on Friday night. There is no concert scheduled for Saturday.

At the First Church in Danville, Va., the Choir has the morning service for Sunday, March 31. They then travel to the Williams Memorial Church, Charlotte, N. C., on Sunday evening and will return to the PC campus before midnight.

The Covenant

This year the selected program of music tells the Story of the Covenant, and the Fulfilment of God's promise in Man. The service includes music from the early Reformation, the worship service of the Eastern Orthodox Church, and anthems of J. S. Bach, Cesar Franck, and Jean Sibelius. Also planned are two Negro Spirituals and a Folk Hymn of the Southern Hills.

Soloists for this year are: Paul Conger, Tenor, and David Worth, Bass. Readers are Wirt Skinner, Wilton Hazlewook, Paul Woodall, and Whit Blount. The president of the Choir is Paul Woodall.

Many Concerts

For the sixteenth consecutive year, Dr. Edouard Patte is conducting the Choir in appearances before the Southern Presbyterian Church, which he also serves as an ordained minister. When the Choir has returned to the campus, Dr. Patte will have conducted 596 concerts during his career at Presbyterian College.

Thirteen Top Students Vie in Founder's Program

Thirteen top high school seniors who have qualified as semi-finalists in the Founders Scholarship Program have been arriving on campus this afternoon. They will undergo competitive testing tomorrow to determine finalists.

Represent Four States

The thirteen semi-finalists who represent four states are: Mac Anderson, Bishopville; Ballard Daggotte, Summerton; Jimmy Bell, Copperhill, Tenn.; Ginger Critchfield, South Bay, Fla.; John Davis, Greenville; Ann Dendy, Hartwell, Ga.; Paula Evens, Ludowici, Ga.; Susan Gilbert, Blakely, Ga.; Jake Montgomery, Chappells; Ricky Robberson, Bolton; Merrow Thompson, Van Wyck; Henry Woods, Rock Hill; and Jackie Yarbrough, Atlanta, Ga.

Up To Full Tuition

Miss Mims, head of the guidance center, will be in charge of the testing. A possible 10 scholarships may be awarded. The awards range from $1200 over a four-year period to full tuition. Two full scholarships wil be given.

This afternoon the students have been given a tour of the campus by the Blue Key. Each candidate has been assigned to a faculty member who will present the candidate with a brief sketch following a very short welcome speech by Dr. Brown and Dr. Gettys during the dinner to be given for them at 7:30 tonight.

Testing Saturday

Saturday morning the group will assemble in the library at 8:15 where they will meet the scholarship committee and testing group. During the morning the students will be given interviews and tests. Following lunch each candidate is free to return home, but they are invited to stay over until Sunday during which time it is hoped that they will meet more of the students and also get a better idea as to the life here at PC.

Rubinoff to Give Pops Concert Here

Concert violinist Rubinoff will appear in Belk Auditorium twice on March 25 in a program of popular music. A special school children's concert is scheduled for 2:30 p. m. The evening performance is set for 8 p. m.

Rubinoff will play such favorites as Warsaw Concerto, Claire De Lune, and Rhapsody in Blue.

The musician will play on one of the most precious instruments in the world, the famed Romanoff-Stradivarius violin insured for $100,000.

Steering Committee Gives New Statement of Purpose

During a series of recent meetings the Steering Committee of the current faculty self-study program formally restated the purpose of Presbyterian College. This statement of purpose was tentatively approved by the Board of Trustees as a working basis for the evaluation of the Presbyterian College program.

The committee declared as the purpose and goal of the college "the liberal education of young men and women within a distinctively Christian context."

Need For Excellence

This goal was set forth with the conviction that education in the liberal arts tradition can be achieved successfully only through a program which is characterized by academic excellence, and that Christian commitment demands that the pursuit of learning take place in a framework of genuine intellectual freedom and a concomitant sense of responsibility to the church and society.

Selectivity

Implied in this statement is the fact that PC, in its admissions program, should admit only those students who show promise of becoming the type of student the college seeks to produce; that the faculty should be selected and maintained for its academic competence, teaching ability, personal relationships with students, commitment, and character; that academic excellence should be fostered with proper academic freedom and with an equal sense of responsibility for the development of the faith and character of each student; and that our task is to educate the whole man for Christian service.

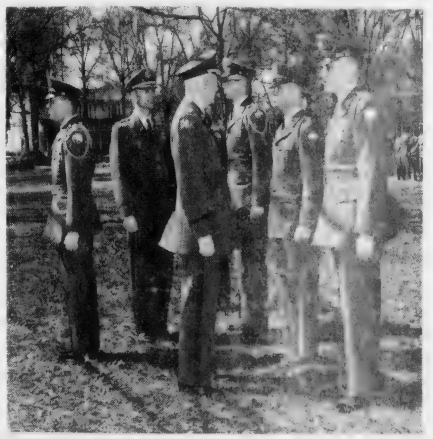
PC Contracts History Prof

Another addition to the Presbyterian College history department effective last September was announced Wednesday by Academic Dean Joseph M. Gettys.

The new faculty associate is Ronald Danton Burnside, who is currently completing work on his doctorate with a dissertation on "The Administration of Governor Coleman L. Blease of South Carolina, 1911-15."

Scheduled to receive his Ph.D. from Indiana University next August, Burnside had spent the past several months in Columbia completing research on his Blease paper. He also holds his master's degree from Indiana, where he has studied on a teaching fellowship.

Marine Officer



Burnside, who comes to PC highly recommended by professionals in the field, is a native of Vincennes, Ind. After graduating with a B. A. degree from Wabash College, he spent four years (1954-58) as an officer in the U. S. Marine Corps before entering upon post-graduate study. His major field is American history.

Alumnus Receives Ph.D. in Chemisty

Ralph Chambers, a member of PC's class of 1959, recently received his Ph. D. in organic chemistry from Vanderbilt University.

Chambers, who entered PC after serving in the Navy for several years, graduated in only three years, making the Dean's List each year. While at PC he was a member of the basketball team, the Tau Phi Pi Science Fraternity, the Blue Key Honorary Fraternity, and was president of the Block P.

After graduation from here, he began studies at Vanderbilt in the fall of 1959 on a National Defense Graduate Fellowship. He completed the requirements for his Ph. D. in just over three years, considered a very short time for acquiring the doctorate.

ACP Rates First Semester Blue Stocking First Class

The Blue Stocking issues of the first semester, 1962, have received a rating of First Class, announced former editor DuPont Smith this week. The rating was given by critics of the Associated Collegiate Press, nationally known rating service and recognized as the best judge of college journalism today.

Fourth Consecutive

The rating marks the fourth consecutive semester that the Sock has been rated First Class. The total needed for top rating was 3500. The Blue Stocking's total was 3260. Five other small college weekly newspapers received a First Class rating for which the minimum total was 3100.

None of the 15 collegiate newspapers from all over the nation in the class of schools under 700 enrollment with weekly publications received the highest rating of All-American.

Five Classes

Ratings were divided into five classes as follows: All-American (superior), First Class (excellent), Second Class (good), Third Class (fair), and Fourth Class.

News coverage, sports coverage, and sports writing drew the highest praise of the critic while treatment of copy, style, nameplate, editorial page makeup, sports display, headline schedule, typography, and printing also received the maximum possible points.

Under Smith

Head of the staff at the time of judging was DuPont Smith. The business manager was Murray White while Bob Phifer was news editor. Jim Barbour was feature editor and Al Pearce was sports editor.

Bullard Announces New PaC-SaC Staff

Leon Bullard, 1963-64 Pac Sac Editor, recently announced an eleven-man editorial staff.

Serving as Associate Editors are Tom Currie of Carthage, N. C., and Janet Maddox of Spartanburg. Ronnie Collins of Rock Hill is Military Editor and John Sheffield of Atlanta is Activities Editor.

Frank King of Valdosta, Ga., will be Athletics Editor, with Bill Shearer of Macon serving as Beauty Editor. Photography Editor is Peyton Carter of Lookout Mountain, Tenn.

Rounding out the staff as Greek Editor and Caption Editors are respectively Bill Megathlin of Miami, and Joe Prickett and Alvin Coley, both of Atlanta.

Alumnus Appointed Army Aide de Camp

A Presbyterian College graduate, Major Marion T. Wood of West Palm Beach, Fla., has recently been appointed Aide de Camp to the First U. S. Army Commander, Lieutenant General Garrison H. Davidson, at Governors Island, N. Y.

Wood joined First U. S. Army Headquarters in August, 1962, after serving as an English instructor at the U. S. Military Academy, West Point, N. Y., for four years. Since joining First Army Headquarters he has been Chief of the Personnel Actions Branch, First Army G-1 Section.

The 34-year-old officer entered the Army in June, 1950, and earned the Combat Infantryman's Badge and the Silver Star while serving in Korea as a platoon leader with the 15th Infantry Regiment of the Third Division.

He received his Master's degree in 1959 from Columbia University in New York City.

Presbyterian Prof Attends Assembly

Dr. Lewis S. Hay, professor of Bible at PC, attended the 103rd General Assembly of the United States Presbyterian Church which was held in Huntington, W. Va., this past week.

The purpose of the assembly is to vote upon issues brought up by the delegates concerning problems of the Presbyteries and individual churches.

Two main issues of importance were brought up and voted upon at the assembly: They were: that forced segregation is out of harmony with church ethics and that racial barriers should be dropped. The other main topic of interest was on whether women should hold church offices.

Mrs. Brown Has Past of Service to PC

by DEXTER KESSLER

In her present role the first lady of Presbyterian College, Mrs. Marshall Brown, has very little opportunity for contact with the students. In past years, however, she has served as an inspiration that was felt as far away as Europe and the Pacific during World War II and Korea during the Korean campaign.

Meets Dr. Brown

Mrs. Brown was registrar at McCallie School before coming to PC with Dr. Brown in 1926. She had met President Brown at McCallie in 1925, and they were married a year later.

17-Year Volunteer

After coming to PC, Mrs. Brown offered her services to the college and ended up spending 17 years as voluntary Registrar. During these years Mrs. Brown served as friend and advisor to over 1,000 PC students and alumni who were acitvely engaged in the Armed Forces.

The B-Mail

She instituted what she called the B-Mail, named for the Victory Mail for soldiers overseas, and designed to keep PC alumni who were at war informed of each other and of the college.

A Growing Concern

As the B-Mail grew, Mrs. Brown had to mimeograph her letters because of the large number of alumni receiving the bi-weekly reports. Many of these letters ran as long as 6 pages, printed front and back.

Honorary Alumna

These bulletins were such an inspiration and morale-lifting factor to the alumni that at the end of the Second World War she was voted an honorary alumna and awarded the Golden P, the highest honor any alumnus can receive. She was also named Citizen of the Year by the Clinton Lions Club because of her outstanding service.

Painting As A Hobby

Mrs. Brown's hobbies include painting and flower arranging. A few of her paintings are on display at Vernon's Restaurant. She is a member of the Sun Bonnet Garden Club. Mrs. Brown also loves horses and a unique hobby of hers is riding mules. "I feel so sorry for them," she says.

To Make PC A Home

Even with all of the responsibility for entertaining and being present at social affais that is necessarily associated with the wife of a college president, Mrs. Brown remains a very charming, unaffected loving person. Her main love is "boys," and her aim has been "to make them feel at home away from home."

Mrs. Brown has been and always will be a great figure in the history of Presbyterian.

Harris Elected SCA Head; Association Lists Cabinet

The recent Student Christian Association elections saw rising senior Hugh Harris elected as President. The Association had sophomores picked for the other three officer positions with Ike Cobb being chosen as Vice-President, Melinda Gaines as Secretary, and Sandy Hagood as Treasurer.

Harris is an English major from Decatur. He is a new member of The Blue Key and The Scabbard and Blade. A brother of Kappa Alpha order, Cobb is an English major from Atlanta. An English major, Miss Gaines is from Clinton. Making his home in Easley, Hagood is a PiKA and plays football and track, lettering in both sports. Hagood is a business major.

The officers announced today the initial members of the SCA's 1963-64 cabinet. Serving on the cabinet will be: Tom Currie of Carthage, N. C.; Bill Neely of Midland, Texas; Jan Rhodes of Decatur; Walter Wells of McConnells; Bill Megathlin of Miami; and Jimmy Simpson of Chester.

Also: Hugh Wilson of Summerville; Jim Darby of Summerton; and Nancy Harvey of Monticello, Ga. Harris stated that this list will be expanded at a later date.

Dr. Gettys was listed in the 1957 edition of Directory of American scholars, Who's Who Among American Educators, and Who's Who in the South and Southwest. Gettys is also the author of many books and study materials for Bible instruction.

To Foster Leadership

Blue Key, organized in 1924, is a service fraternity that recognizes outstanding juniors and seniors. It has as its purpose the fostering of leadership among college students, and locally it serves to better relations between colleges with which we have inter-collegiate contact. The local chapter of Blue Key dates from March 29, 1932.

Shearer Will Head IFC; Alpha Sigs Seeded First

The 1963-64 Interfraternity Council recently announced its officers and also the dates for next year's open socials and closed smokers. The Council is the student co-ordinating and disciplinary organ for Presbyterian's fraternities.

Shearer To Head

Bill Shearer, of Macon, Ga., was elected president of the Council. Shearer is the KA representative. Vice-President, secretary, and treasurer are respectively: Robert Miller of Atlanta, PiKA representative; Robert Elrod of Griffin, Ga., Sigma Nu representative; and Mark Braswell of Gainesville, Fla., Alpha Sigma Phi representative.

Also serving on the Council are Robert Banks of Kershaw, the Theta Chi representative, and James Salvo of Summerville, the Pi Kappa Phi representative.

Alpha Sigs Are First

To borrow the tennis term, the Alpha Sigs are seeded first in next year's Open Social Tournament with September 25 being their date. Pi Kappa Phi will follow up with theirs on October 2, and then will come Theta Chi on October 9. October 16 will be the PiKA's day. The Sigma Nus and KAs will have their socials on October 23 and October 30, respectively.

Pledge December 12

The schedule for smokers is: Dec. 4—Pi Kappa Phi; Dec. 5—PiKA; Dec. 6—KA; Dec. 9—Theta Chi; Dec. 10—Alpha Sigma Phi; and Dec. 11—Sigma Nu. Pledge Day will be December 12.

Ex-Premier Credits Red Advances to Indecision

Dr. Ferenc Nagy, exiled last prime minister of free Hungary, speaking in chapel Monday, April 22, credited the spread of Communist domination throughout the world to lack of decision on the part of Western powers, especially the United States. The Soviet Union, emboldened by its success in Central and Eastern Europe has methodically spread its control to all regions of the world.

The Satellite Road

In 1939 the Soviets under a legal agreement kept troops in certain areas of Estonia and Latvia. Then in 1940 the Russians, claiming the agreement had been violated, took over completely until 1941 when they were ousted by Nazis.

Tracing history, Nagy pointed out that in 1944 Russia again assumed control of the Balkan nations imprisoning and executing anti-communist leaders as well as sending more than 10 per cent of the population to Siberia. The strongest blow to Central and Eastern Europe came as Poland was handed over to the Soviet Union.

Hungary Stands Alone

In 1954 the only Eastern-Central European country having free elections was Hungary. Testing the strength of the Communist Party there, Russia found 17 per cent for the Communists and 60 per cent for the Small Holder's Party of which Nagy was Prime Minister.

Red Diplomacy

The spring of 1947 saw the forced resignation of Nagy as the Reds seized the government and held his son in Budapest to insure his cooperation. The one-party system was promptly placed into effect.

Watching Suppression

Nagy noted that when the Hungarian people revolted in 1956, the United States sat back and watched the patriots of that tiny country brought to bay by the Red Army. The speaker expressed the belief that America could have successfully intervened on behalf of Hungary, since at that time Russia would not have risked an attack on herself.

No Cold War Question

Nagy also cited that Soviet propaganda has been successful in creating an atmosphere in the United States that the subject of European liberation is a cold war question. The speaker was confident that it is not a cold question, but rather an open subject which ought to be dealt with. The West must demand justice for these countries and thereby end the double standard which now exists.

By The Hardies

The speaker was brought to the Presbyterian College campus by the Newton Gary Hardie, Sr., Memorial Lecture Fund. This fund has been placed in the college permanent endowment, with interest to bring lectuerers to PC. The donors of this fund are Dr. Virginia S. Hardie of Clemson and Newton Gary Hardie, Jr., Spartanburg, the widow and son of Mr. Hardie.

Dr. Bankhead Plays In Laurens Farce

The Laurens County Theater will present See How They Run, a farce in three acts on April 26th and 27th. The play begins at 8:00 in the Laurens Central Elementary School in Laurens. Admision is $1.00. Dr. Robert Bankhead, PC's associate professor of German, plays a Bishop in what critics have called a very delightful farce.

Dr. Gettys Elected Enoree Moderator

At the Spring session of the Enoree Presbytery held April 9, in Union, Dr. Joseph Gettys was elected Moderator of the Presbytery. Dr. Gettys, who will serve three months, will preside over Presbytery meetings, and act as general chairman. The Enoree Presbytery is made up of approximately fifty churches in Greenville, Spartanburg, Union, and Cherokee counties.

Williams, McQueen, Tyson Vie For Student Body Presidency

• Candidates State Intended Platforms

Three candidates will be running Monday for president of the student body. They are Arthur McQueen, Tommy Williams, and Bill Tyson.

McQueen, of Loris, is a member of Sigma Nu fraternity. McQueen was secretary of the council this past year. He is a platoon sergeant in A company.

KA President

Williams makes his home in Pensacola, Fla. He is the past secretary and new president of Kappa Alpha fraternity. Williams has previously served on the council and holds the rank of Master Sergeant in the college's ROTC program. He is a letterman, playing baseball for the PC nine.

Former Councilman

Tyson hails from Bainbridge, Ga., and is a member of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity. He has previously been on the student council, plays football and tennis, and has lettered in the former. Tyson is also a platoon sergeant in A company.

Each of the candidates submitted a condensed version of their platforms to the Blue Stocking.

McQueen had a question to poise for the student body. "What do you want? This is a big question that looms before me as a candidate for the office of President of the Student Body.

"My platform if elected Student Body President will be your platform as a Student Body, because it can only be successful if it meets the full approval of all the students and receives their full support.

Phys. Ed, Tennis Lights

"If I am elected I will strive to make a reality of the following points:

(1) A campaign to light the tennis courts.

(2) Will try to revive the fine arts series if so approved by a poll.

(3) Will try to make the system voting clearer and voting day more widely publicized.

(4) Will try to see that the seniors have more recognition and more privileges.

(5) Will investigate the possibility of a physical education program.

(6) Above all and the most important, I will do my best to uphold your constitution and to represent you, the Student body, to the best of my ability."

Raise Honor System

Williams stated, "I believe the Student Council for next year should continue to raise the Honor System of the College as set forth in the student constitution. This should begin with a more thorough and comprehensive orientation of the freshmen on the honor code.

The student Constitution needs a close study and revision in several articles. There is no election procedure for many of the campus elections. I believe there should be a definite trial proce-

Megathlin, Crawford, Rhodes Named Junior Council Reps

Those students who return to PC next fall will see on the 1963-64 student council some old ones. In the election held last Monday, these representatives were chosen for the coming term: rising sophomores — Mike Smith and Dave Davies; rising juniors—Bill Megathlin, Gary Crawford, and Sherrod Rhodes.

Rising Sophomores

A football player, Mike Smith, is from North Augusta. He is chaplain of Kappa Alpha pledge class and plans to major in history.

From Panama City, Fla., Dave Davies is a past freshman student council member. He sreves on the Blue Stocking business staff and is a history major.

Rising Juniors

From Miami, Fla., Bill Megathlin is a past Sophomore council member. Megathlin is currently vice-president of the SCA, was president of the Alpha Sigma Phi pledge class last year, and is a pre-theological major.

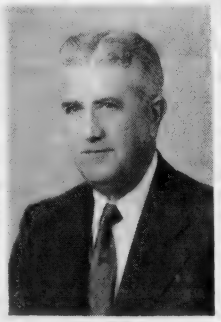
From Greer, Gary Crawford, is a two-time councilman. He is a member of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity and is serving as pledgemaster and parliamentarian. Crawford is an English major.

An economics major, Sherrod Rhodes is from Moultrie, Ga. He is a member of Sigma Nu fraternity.

In the sophomore election, the two were chosen from a field of four hopefuls. In the junior council election, the three elected were from a ballot of five names.

Annual Dean's List Banquet Honors College's Scholars

The "scholars" of Presbyterian College were honored here last night at the annual Dean's List dinner at which Dr. R. C. Grier of Greenville delivered the address.



Academic Dean Joseph M. Gettys has announced that students who made the Dean's List at PC during the past two semesters have been invited as guests for the dinner. It was held at 7:30 p.m. in Judd dining hall.

President Emeritus

Dr. Grier, president emeritus of Erskine College and pastor of Greenville's Associate Reformed Presbyterian Church, served as president of Erskine from 1921 until his retirement in 1954. He is a graduate of that school and its seminary and is the recipient of an honorary degree from PC. He served as moderator of the General Assembly of the Associate Reformed Presbyterian Church, 1950-51.

A 3.2 To Eat

The Dean's List at Presbyterian College is composed of students who compile a semester academic average of 3.2 or better out of a possible 4.00. In addition to these students, faculty members and their wives also will attend the Friday night dinner.

Dr. Grier

PC Profs Present Papers in Columbia

Three Presbyterian College professors will present papers before the 36th annual meeting of the South Carolina Academy of Sciences at Columbia yesterday and today.

Dr. Alex B. Stump, chairman of the biology department, is scheduled for a Friday afternoon presentation of "Interphase Changes in the Nucleus of Lesquereusia Spiralis."

Then on Saturday afternoon Dr. K. Nolon Carter, chairman of the PC chemistry department, and his associate, Randolph B. Huff, will present a paper on this subject: "Qualitative and Quantative Study of Student Preparation Ethanol Using Gas Chromatography — a Student Experiment."

New Sergant Joins Military Department

Sgt. Carl F. Travillian has joined the PC Military Department as supply sergeant to replace Sgt. M. E. Dunbar. Travillian comes to Presbyterian from Magg, Vietnam, where he was last stationed.

A native of Dalton, Ga., Travillian is married and has two children.

Chapel Services

Chapel services for the coming week are as follows:

Monday—Dr. C. Victor Briscoe, visiting physics lecturer.

Wednesday — Presbyterian's choir will present program.

Friday — Installation of Student Body Officers.

Student Opinion -- So What

OF JUST HOW much value is student opinion? How much weight is it given in decisions of importance within the college community?

EARLIER THIS year the Blue Stocking took a poll concerning the sports curriculum at Presbyterian. One facet of this poll stated that if one sport was to be emphasized with respect to scholarship, which one would it be?

THE POPULAR VOTE was tallied and the sport that students desired to keep above all others was tennis. A meeting followed at which a committee met this desire by cutting the tennis scholarships to two on campus at any one time after the present termination.

THERE IS AN OLD INQUIRY that asks, "If a tree fell in the forest, and there was no one there to hear it fall,would it make any noise?" If in this particular case the fallen tree could be identified with student opinion, it seemingly would make little difference whether or not there was anyone present to hear it.

ONE CAN ONLY speculate in answer to the inquiry, but the implication stands. It appeared to be only faintly heard, if at all, even though there were people standing all around.

THE STUDENTS APPEAR to realize that PC has established a precedent in tennis which is far from being unequalled by the other sports—sports which at times have done very well but have never contested with and defeated schools of such renonwn as Miami, Princeton, Harvard, University of Georgia, University of North Carolina, Florida State, Clemson, University of Florida and many others as has tennis.

THERE IS A PECULIAR prestige that this sport holds for the student body which is not only a source of pride but also gives PC recognition for having top athletes in the sports world.

THE IMPORTANCE OF this question is not whether this committee had a preconceived plan involving athletic affairs prior to this poll or whether or not the results are subject to change in the future—even in this particular sport itself.

THE ESSENCE OF this problem lies in the fact that any issue which is backed by a majority of student opinion should warrant more careful consideration.

Letters To the Editor

Students Protest Elections, Chapel; Tennis Cut Seen As Wrong Decision

Dear Editor:

Recent elections on our campus have pointed out many inefficiencies in the election procedures provided for in our student body constitution and those of some of the organizations electing officers.

There are discrepancies as to the number of candidates to be nominated and as to the dates the elections are to be held. Neither is there any written ruling concerning run-offs in elections where no one has a majority of the votes cast. There are also many other problems which arise for which there are no solutions in the constitution.

These pose many problems for both the student and those responsible for the running of the elections and nominations of candidates. Thus a great deal of power is placed in the hands of these few individuals. Precedents are set and broken as they are passed down from one group of officers to the next.

I feel, as do many students, that there is much need for improvement in the election procedure set forth in our constitution. This is one of the most important phases of student activities at PC, and I hope that the new Student Council will seek to correct and improve this system. This is one of the biggest challenges facing the new council and it will take much time and effort from each and every representative to accomplish this.

Dear Editor:

The chapel of last Monday is an experience to be remembered. It is to be remembered for its speaker of both fame and dignity and for his audience—extolling the common and the provincial, the egotistical and the ordinary.

We have Belk Auditorium which many architects acclaim as a landmark in its class of design. But where is the sound system for our $800,000 and up, air-conditioned edifice? Why must we borrow unsuitable equipment from a local radio station?

Then there was "My Country Tis of Thee." One just doesn't invite a guest to dinner, and tell him how good the meal is. A European is to discuss the continent, yet he is iced with gooey American frosting before his lips part.

The audience was distracted enough without a TV camera buzzing and bobbing between stage and seats, nor was setting the camera on the stage for adjustment exactly apropos. If the television media is to be invited, then it should be expected to bring telephoto lens and other devices to enable it to remain in the background.

Here was a man who headed an entire people, presided over their governing bodies, and received the highest protocol of fellow nations. Yet what did he find before him at PC — students studying and sleeping, slumping and whispering.

The Hardy Lecture series has brought, andl wil continue to bring, men of great caliber to Presbyterian. In the future may PC be prepared to receive them with the dignity and respect they deserve.

Dear Editor:

It is with concern that I write on the fate of PC's tennis dynasty or should I say PC's only dynasty? Needless to reiterate, tennis is PC'c claim to fame. Under Coach Jim Leighton the dynasty reached its realm of glory. Now with the very capable command of Coach Gordon Warden the team continues to be the pride of Presbyterian.

It has been noted that a drastic reduction of tennis scholarships will be the formula for tennis in the future, specifically two scholarships every four years. If such is the case, tennis no longer will make its impression in annals of Presbyterian College.

Why have the overseers of this school chosen such a row to hoe? Obviously there will be only barren dirt instead of fruitful yields from such a decision. In a student poll tennis was given the nod as the students' choice of the sport of concentration. The team has shown itself ably in representing the school.

The school spirit toward tennis has been greater than any other sport. The attendance and following of the tennis team has far surpassed that of the school's other athletic teams. On the basis of these points, why have the trustees rendered such an opposing if not foolish decision toward tennis?

This brings up the question of what to do about tennis at PC? I offer a solution. That is to give two scholarships annually. The scholarships of football have been cut from 33 to 25. Since this is likely to produce a mediocre team, why not cut it two more and put them in tennis. PC would continue to have at least one sport with a winning season. Tennis must survive for the well-being of PC.

Bill Loeble

Dear Editor:

As heretofore uninformed students, we did not realize the subsequent dangers in the decision by the Atlantic Board regarding the cut in tennis scholarships. We, as probably other students, had the erroneous idea that it was to be two grants a year. But we now realize that we will not be able to recruit new players until 1966! The policy now is two grants every four years.

With no new players coming in until the present freshman graduate and with the same schedule upcoming next year, we will be lucky to win five matches. In the spring of 1966 we will have Bob, Howdy and intramural players against such powers as Miami, UNC, Clemson and Georgia, if they will still include us in their schedules.

It is a shame that we have such a fine coach in Gordon Warden who is now handcuffed in his attempts by the decision of a seemingly uninterested, uninformed, uncaring Athletic Board.

What can be done? NOTHING, UNLESS we, the students, realize the deadly consequences of this move and act now. Otherwise we will lose our last claim to fame.

Kappa Alpha is celebrating in Augusta, Ga., this weekend. The Old South Ball is a joint affair this year with all chapters in South Carolina participating.

PI KAPPA ALPHA

Tuesday night the fraternity held a stag supper at the Cinerama near Greenwood, which was thoroughly enjoyed by all who attended. This weekend Mu chapter will be host to Xi and Nu chapters for a PiKA district workshop. Plans have been set and a band procured for the upcoming dance weekend.

SIGMA NU

All members of the fraternity are eagerly awaiting the White Star Ball Weekend which is to take place this Friday and Saturday. A lot of hard work has gone into its planning and the carrying out of those plans.

Congratulations to the intramural swimming team who won the annual meet for the second consecutive year.

THETA CHI

Plans are being completed for Spring Dance weekend.

Congratulations are extended to the softball team on their recent victory which ends their perfect record of the last four years.

Literary Souls Compose Odes to Philosophy, Tennis

Editor's Note: In good proof of creativity, several PC students have produced a few lines of (verse?). The first piece, penned by Don Lohman, seems to be a satire on philosophy. The second piece, composed by The Blue Stocking's intrepid Sports Editor, Al Pearce, puts the tennis problem into song form. The reader shouldn't be misled by this rather disparaging introduction; both pieces are pretty clever. To help capture the feeling of the coming summer months, a poem to a mous medieval Englishman. cuckoo bird has also been included. The poem is by an anonymous Englishman.

SOCRATES UNBOUND;

Frist Philosopher—
Do do to do toop.
Second Phi.—What in the name of the three Flying Furies are you doing?
First Phi—I'm defining man's relationship to the totally categorical monkeywash, up, down, and sideways.
Second Phi.—How interesting. Are you orthodoxical or paradoxical?
First Phi—I'm a realist.
Second Phi.—Then what is the real?
First Phi.—The totally catagorical monkeywash, of course.
Second Phi.—And that?
First Phi.—The ontological.
Second Phi.—Nonsense. This is the most disgusting display of corrupted nominalism I've ever heard.
First Phi.—How perceptive of you. But have you found a better way to justify your existence?
Second Phi.—Oh, I just ask questions.
First Phi.—And I just give answers. Won't you join me in praise?
Sung by both philosophers:
Do do to do toop.

Former College Star Chosen As New PC Basketball Coach

Presbyterian College has named as its new basketball coach Art Musselman, former All-Southern Conference star for the Citadel, Athletic Director Cally Gault announced today.

Marine Man

Gault said Musselman will assume his PC duties the first of July, a few weeks after his release as a first lieutenant from the US Marine Corps. He will succeed Charles Musselwhite in the capacity of head basketball coach and football assistant.

Many Kudos

A native of Huntington, Ala., the new PC coach played four years of outstanding basketball at the Citadel, 1956-'60. He was named to the All-Southern Conference first team his senior year after earning second-team conference honors the previous two seasons. Sports writers selected him for the All-South Carolina quintet all three years and tagged him the state's top college player in 1958.

Musselman was coached at the Citadel by Norman Sloan, who had directed the PC basketball program several years earlier.

Service Star

After receiving his BS degree in political science in 1960, he entered the Marines to serve as rifle platoon leader and then as legal officer and regimental adjutant. Musselman also found time to play with Quantico's All-Marine championship team, with the squad selected to represent the United States in the All-World Basketball Tournament and as a member of the US All-Star team that toured the country last fall with the Russian All-Stars as opposition. During the past winter, he coached the Camp Lejeune basketball team.

Says Gault

Of his 25-year-old staff addition, Athletic Director Gault said: "We feel we have made a sound choice in bringing Art Musselman into our athletic department. His unusual basketball background should make him an excellent college coach, and he is a fine young man personally. Musselman is the type to fit smoothly into our sports program at Presbyterian."

Spring Football Begins, Will Last Three Weeks

Presbyterian College will begin its delayed spring football practice next Monday, with some 45 candidates expected for the off-season workouts.

Gault To Preside

Cally Gault, newly appointed head coach, will arrive on the campus Saturday and remain throughout the three-week period of training session. Since being named to the PC job two months ago he has been completing his commitment as coach and teacher at North Augusta High, and had to delay spring practice.

Presbyterian normally conducts is spring workouts in February, but the sudden death of Coach Clyde Ehrhardt last February 4, just two days before they were scheduled to begin, caused postponement.

Draw Uniforms Today

Players will draw equipment on Saturday and be ready to start practice on Monday afternoon. Although the session will extend over three weeks, practice days will be limited because of the spring sports schedule in which many football players and two assistant coaches participate.

Sharing the staff duties with Gault during the spring practice will be line coach Billy Tiller and end coach Jimmy Vickers, who double as head baseball and track coach, respectively.

Five Home Games On Weekend Slate

Weekend sports activity for Blue Hose teams includes five events, with only one slated on the home grounds. Yesterday the tennis team played University of the South at Sewanee, Tenn., and the golfers played College of Charleston. Today the netters take on Chattanooga Tennis Club at Chattanooga,, the baseball team faces Mercer here, and the track team runs in the Davidson Relays at Davidson.

Cindermen Check Wofford, Not Furman

The Blue Hose trackmen defeated Wofford Tuesday for the second time this spring, bringing the season's record to 2-3. This win, which was by an 80-65 score, marked the last dual meet of the year for PC.

Three engagements remain on the schedule, the Davidson Relays, the State Meet, and the NIAA Meet at Boone, N. C.

The Hose victory over the Terriers Tuesday was just like the first meet here, with PC running roughshod over the Little Four neighbor. But that win couldn't ease the pain for the 100-35 loss to Furman last Saturday. The Paladins never were worried by the Blue Hose as they copped all but two first places.

Student Action Sought to Keep PC Tennis Hot

"I know we had the best team in the tournament."

It was short and to the point. It conveyed what many people felt. It was said by tennis coach Gordon Warden.

First Time at Home

The State Tournament was over. For the first time in the history of the event PC had lost on its home courts. For the third consecutive year PC had lost the title it had held for over 20 years. It was an especially hard loss to take.

And the Last Chance

"My main reason for disappointment in not winning this time was that it appears this was our last chance to win it under the present system," the popular young coach continued. "I think our team made their best effort. The enthusiasm and spirit of the crowd was very good, and I like to see that spirit from the student body. The support of the crowd is just one more indication that tennis is held in the highest regard among all sports played at PC," he concluded.

One of the Best

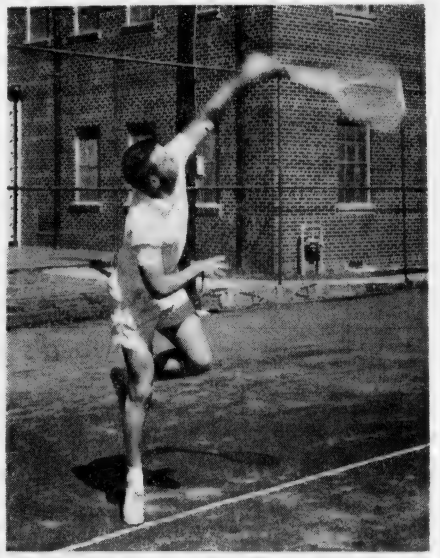
Apparently the tournament was one of the best ever held. All of the coaches and most of the players related this idea to Warden. Everyone agreed that the attendance, the spirit of the crowd, the color, the quality of play, and the excellent condition of the courts all added up to make it among the best. All the compliments didn't ease the pain of defeat.

Students in Mass

The students here came out in full force on Friday and Saturday to see the play. They cheered every good shot, be it by PC, or in some cases, The Citadel. They moved from court to court, keeping close tabs on the progress of each match. At any time during the play almost any PC student could tell you the present score and who needed to win to keep us in the running for the cup. The interest seemed at a new high. Apparently they didn't realize the threat to our tennis program.

To a Slow Death

Call it what you will—kicking a dead horse, beating a broken drum, or blowing an off-tuned bugle. Whatever you call it, it remains an ugly fact—our tennis program is slowly being destroyed by the decision of a group of men who show no regard for the desires of the student body of the school they represent. Don't they know, that tennis at PC is one thing in which everybody takes pride? We believe they know, but they don't care. They must not care, or they would not have made the mistake they did. Why cut back in one sport in which PC has excelled for over two decades? We feel they used poor judgment in making this decision. This mistake will go uncorrected unless the Board knows how we feel about it. It may go uncorrected regardless, but at least it is worth a try!



The Time is Now

It is almost too late for action. We should have acted sooner, but only recently has the full extent of the danger been revealed. This danger will continue to grow unless a move is made now to check it. We students are the only ones capable of making the initial move—but will we?

Sigma Nu Posts 32 Points To Take I-M Swimming Meet

Paced by the swimming of Frank Cooper, Dan Arnold, Bob Harris, Joe Upsal, and Pete Yearout, Signa Nu took first place honors in the annual I-M Swimming Meet held here Wednesday night. The Sigs had 31 points to defeat the Kappa Alpha team (28), the KA's had 32 points to defeat the Pi Kappa Alpha team (28), the KA's the Alpha Sigs (8).

The final standings saw Cooper claim first place honors in the 60-yard freestyle, a second in the 160 yard medley relay, as well as being on the first place medley relay team; Arnold was 40 yard butterfly stroke champ and was on the medley relay team; Upsal was third in the 80 yard freestyle; Yearout was third in the 40 yard freestyle; and Harris was third in the 80 yard backstroke. All three boys were also on the medley relay team. This marks the second consecutive year that the Sigs have won the title.

Netmen Play Chattanooga; Bulldogs Nipped Monday

Presbyterian's tennis team will be looking for another win as they play the Chattanooga Tennis Club. The Hose played Sewanee yesterday. No score was available at press time.

A Return of Sorts

The Sewanee match held special interest for Coach Gordon Warden, besides being a stepping stone to the best record in PC's tennis history. Warden claims that school as his alma mater.

Two matches were played this week, with a satiating win over Georgia Monday holding top attention. The win was decided in the last doubles event of the day to give PC a 5-4 victory.

Bite The Bulldogs

The Hose had lost to the Bulldogs 6-3 in the first match of the season, and appeared on the road to another setback in the match. But Howdy Letzring won, and Tony Wilson and Bob Harris bounced back to send the teams into the doubles competition 3-3. Wilson and Dodge Frederick won, but Bill Tyson and Harold Hope fell to throw the pressure on Harris and Letzring, who came through Monday with an 8-6, 6-2 victory and win number 12.

The Hose netters then took a day off for rest Tuesday with a match against South Carolina. The ho-hum 9-0 affair saw Carolina score in only 6 of 18 sets as PC racked up its thirteenth win.

VERSE ONE

Oh, let me tell you all the story of a school called PC in a small Carolina town
For over 20 years it had a stud
tennis team until the Board did cut it down

CHROUS

And will it ever return, no it'll never return, and its fame will be known no more
Raise your Blue Throated voices towards the Great White House and tell 'em we're all real sore

VERSE TWO

The Tigers from Clemson came to town last weekend and took the state title back home
For over 20 years it had stayed in Clinton, but now again it's gone

VERSE THREE

This seemed our last chance to regain the title after what the board hda handed down
Unless we voice our protests we can now say good-bye to our glory and the SC crown

VERSE FOUR

Now all you students don't you think it's a scandal how the Board's now made it rough?
Fight the scholarship cut, let your voices be heard, let's keep our tennis tough

Traffic Fatalities Reach New High

Motorists in 1962 raced down the nation's highways on their way to a new—and tragic—death record which for the first time exceeded 40,000 fatalities, according to a report released by The Travelers Insurance Companies.

More Injuries

The number of people injured in traffic accidents also took a sharp turn upward.

The authoritative report, first issued in 1931, is prepared annually by The Travelers and is based on information provided by state motor vehicle departments.

Record Slaughter

U. S. highway deaths in 1962 totaled 40,500, a seven per cent increase over 1961. Not since 1941, when 39,969 persons lost their lives, has the traffic fatality record been nearly so high.

Just Millions Bumped

The report also reveals a nine per cent jump in the number of injured in 1962 compared with 1961. In all, 3,345,000 men, women and children were hurt in auto accidents last year.

"As it stands, last year's record is truly tragic,' 'one spokesman commented, "but what makes it even more disheartening is that it comes on the heels of what he hoped was a downward trend beginning in 1961."

Speed Leads

Excessive speed again led the way as the primary cause of accidents. Nearly 13,000 people were killed and more than 1,145,000 were injured as a direct result of .speeding violations Other major causes of accidents included driving on thew rong side of the road and reckless driving.

Fifteen Students Finish Life-Saving

Fifteen PC students recently completed a Red Cross Water Safety Instructors Course which was conducted at our campus pool. Prof. Fakkema taught Part I of the course and a representative from the National Red Cross, Mr. Ellis Fysal, conducted the final phase.

The completion of this work qualifies these students to teach all the Red Cross swimming and life saving courses. Most of those participating plan to engage in this work during the summer months. It is anticipated that this course will be repeated again in the spring of 1965.

Those completing the course are Bob Botsford, Marion Boozer, Paul Conger, Frank Cooper, Bill Culp, Emily Ferran, Ed Galloway, Hugh Harris, Grif Helwig, Erik Johnson, Tom Knox, Creighton Likes, Jim Owens, Ray Summerlin, and Joe Upsal.

HOW TO SEE EUROPE FOR ONLY $300 A DAY: NO. 1

Summer vacation is just around the corner, and naturally all of you are going to Europe. Perhaps I can offer a handy tip or two. (I must confess that I myself have never been to Europe, but I do have a French poodle and a German shepherd, so I am not entirely unqualified.)

First let me say that no trip to Europe is complete without a visit to England, Scotland, Wales, Ireland, France, Germany, Spain, Portugal, Italy, Lichtenstein, Holland, Belgium, Luxembourg, Switzerland, Denmark, Sweden, Norway, Finland, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Latvia, Lithuania, Estonia, Russia, Greece, Yugoslavia, Albania, Crete, Sardinia, Sicily, Hungary, Rumania, Bulgaria, Lapland, and Andorra.

Let us take up these countries in order. First, England.

The old ones are thrown away

The capital of England is London—or Liverpool, as it is sometimes called. There are many interesting things to see in London—chiefly the changing of the guards. The guards are changed daily. The old ones are thrown away.

Another "must" while in London is a visit to the palace of the Duke of Marlborough. Marlborough is spelled Marlborough, but pronounced Marlboro. English spelling is very quaint, but terribly disorganized. The late George Bernard Shaw, author of Little Women, fought all his life to simplify English spelling. They tell a story about Shaw once asking a friend, "What does g-h-o-t-i spell?"

The friend pondered a bit and replied, "Goatee."

Shaw sniggered. "Pshaw," said Shaw. "G-h-o-t-i does not spell goatee. It spells fish."

"How is that?" said the friend.

Shaw answered, "Gh as in enough, o as in women, ti as in motion. Put them all together, you get fish."

This was very clever of Shaw when you consider that he was a vegetarian. And a good thing he was. As Disraeli once remarked to Guy Fawkes, "If Shaw were not a vegetarian, no lamb chop in London would be safe."

But I digress. We were speaking of the palace of the Duke of Marlborough—or Marlboro, as it is called in the United States. It is called Marlboro by every smoker who enjoys a fine, rich breed of tobaccos, who appreciates a pure white filter, who likes a soft pack that is really soft, a Flip-Top box that really flips. Be sure you are well supplied with Marlboros when you make your trip abroad. After a long, tiring day of sightseeing there is nothing so welcome as a good flavorful Marlboro and a footbath with hot Epsom salts.

Epsom salts can be obtained in England at Epsom Downs. Kensington salts can be obtained at Kensington Gardens, Albert salts can be obtained at Albert Hall, Hyde salts can be obtained at Hyde Park, and the crown jewels can be obtained at the Tower of London.

The guards at the Tower of London are called Beefeaters because they are always beefing about what they get to eat. This is also known as "cricket" or "petrol."

Well, I guess that about covers England. In next week's column we will visit the Land of the Midnight Sun—France.

©1963 Max Shulman

Wherever you may roam in Europe and in all fifty states of the Union, you'll find Marlboro ever-present and ever-pleasant—filter, flavor, pack or box.

Bullard, Maddox Will Contend For Head Yearbook Position

• Jacobs, Prickett Vie for Business Manager

Nominations for next year's Pac-Sac Editor have been announced by present editor Bobby Piephoff.

Vying for the Pac-Sac's top position are Leon Bullard and Janet Maddox, both rising juniors.

Contestants in the race for business manager are rising senior Joe Prickett, and rising junior Cleve Jacobs. The student council will conduct the election in Douglas House on April 3.

Miss Maddox, a biology major from Spartanburg, made the following statement for the Blue Stocking:

To Uphold Quality

"My sole purpose in entering this race stems from my desire to publish an annual which will continue to uphold the present high quality of our Pac-Sac, and which will present all phases of life at PC as the students live them and would like to have them remembered.

I have had publication experience in both newspaper and annual work, with greater experience in the latter as editor of my high school annual. Also, I've done private, political, and industrial commercial art work. I would like a chance to put this experience to use for the student body and the school."

Leon Bullard, who served as editor of his high school newspaper, is a pre-med major and hails from Bainbridge, Ga. He is a member of Kappa Alpha Order.

Said Bullard, "I've worked with Bobby Piephoff this year, serving as Fraternity Editor. Bobby has done a great job on this year's Pac-Sac, as you will see when it comes out.

One To Be Proud Of

"If elected Editor for the 1964 Pac-Sac, I will try to make it one that not only the seniors, but also everyone else will be proud of after they leave PC."

Jacobs, an economics major from Talladega, Ala., has had previous experience as editor of his high school annual. He is a member of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity.

Joe Prickett, from Atlanta, is a history major and a member of Alpha Sigma Phi.

Election Time Table

The schedule for the spring elections is as follows:

April 3—Election of the Pac-Sac editor and business manager.

Election of cheerleaders.

April 5 — SCA presidential candidates' speeches.

April 8 — SCA presidential election.

April 19—Nomination of Student Council members.

April 22 — Student Council Election.

April 26—Speeches of Student Council Presidential contenders.

Election of Student Council President, Vice-President, Secretary, and Treasurer.

Baccalaureate Preacher Is Presbyterian Alumnus

The Rev. Rusell W. Park, Sr., pastor of the Olanta and Sardinia Presbyterian Churches, has been chosen to preach the Baccalaureate Sermon on June 2. He is also one of the three alumni who have been cited by the trustees to receive honorary degrees at the commencement exercises.

Mr. Park received his B.A. degree from PC in 1920 and his B.D. from Columbia Theological Seminary in 1923. While at PC he was a member of the literary society, the YMCA, and the track team.

Sparked Memberhsip

After graduating from Columbia, Mr. Park began work as a rural pastor at the Lake City Presbyterian Church. Under his leadership the church's membership grew from around 50 to more than 300.

In 1951 Mr. Park left Lake City to assume duties as a member of the Board of Church Extension but returned to full time pastoral work in 1953 at his present location.

A loyal alumnus and strong supporter of the college, Mr. Park acted as an area chairman in the recent capital funds campaign.

Sophomores to List Choice of Majors

Mrs. Roslyn C. Martin, Registrar, announced Thursday that sophomores will shortly register for their respective majors.

Each student who has completed three semesters is to attend a meeting in chapel on Friday, April 19, for the purpose of signing cards designating his present advisor, his choice of major field of study, and his preferred advisor.

The cards will be distributed to advisors along with a photostat of the cumulative card for each student. Advisors will hold conferences with students during the week of April 22-26, and will be responsible for returning the major cards to the Registrar's Office on April 27.

Three copies of the cards will be made. Each student will keep a card, advisors will keep a card, and the third card will be placed on file in the Registrar's Office.

Students in the teacher-training program should have a conference with Mr. Riggs as well as the conference with their advisors.

Netman Gives Talk In Chapel

Allen Morris, former Presbyterian College tennis star, spoke to the student body last Friday, March 22, during chapel. Mr. Morris, who is the employment manager of Burlington Industries, spoke on opportunities in the textile industry.

Morris was an outstanding student at PC until his graduation in 1956. He was a member of the United States Davis Cup tennis team from 1954-1956 and joined Burlington in 1958. Later he was named executive development manager of the New York personnel department and was transferred to his present position in Greensboro, N. C., in 1961.

Dr. Brown Attends Washington Meeting

Some 50 alumni and friends of Presbyterian College in the Washington, D. C., area met Tuesday at an organizational luncheon held at the Army and Navy Country Club, Alexandria, Va.

Dr. Marshall W. Brown, president of PC, and Mrs. Brown attended the meeting as college representatives. He addressed the group on recent progress of and future plans for Presbyterian College.

The group was organized by Col. Powell A. Fraser, PC alumnus now serving in the Pentagon.

Robed Choir Sings In Virginia Tonight

The Robed Choir, on its annual spring tour, is appearing in South Boston, Va., tonight. Saturday, the group will not appear, but will perform Sunday morning at the First Presbyterian Church in Danville, Va. On the return trip the choir will sing at the Williams Memorial Church in Charlotte, N. C., Sunday night and arrive in Clinton before midnight Sunday.

Danforth Lecturer To Speak On Dynamics of Nature, Art

Dr. Donald H. Andrews, a distinguished scientist, leading authority in Thermodynamics, and Professor of Chemistry at John Hopkins University, will be on the PC campus on April 3, as a Danforth Visiting Lecturer.

Dr. Andrews will speak on "Dynamic Form in Nature and Art," illustrated with piano music and a motion picture. At a convocation he will speak on "Faith for the Atomic Age." In two informal or class meetings, he will discuss "The New Frontires of Temperature, Time, and Outer Space," and "The New Frontiers of the Atom and Inner Space," with students and faculty members.

Yale Man

A native of Connecticutt, Dr. Andrews recieved his early education in public schools, spent one year at Phillips Academy in Andover, and received his B.A. and Ph.D. degrees from Yale.

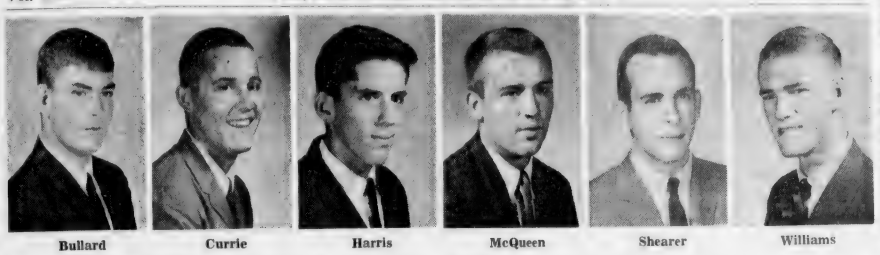
After periods of research, Dr. Andrews came to Baltimore in 1927 as assistant professor of chemistry at Johns Hopkins. In 1930 he was promoted to Professor of Chemistry, the chair he has held since that time.

In 1936. as Director of the Chemistry Laboratory, Dr. Andrews initiated the organization of an atomic research unit which later became associated with the atomic bomb project.

Social Atomics

Following the first successful use of the atomic bomb, Dr. Andrews and his associates at Johns Hopkins have been active participants in the study of the effect of atomic energy and political affairs. He served as chairman of the Baltimore branch of the Association of Scientists for Atomic Education, and as a board member for the Foreign Policy Association, United Nations Association, and United World Federalists in Maryland.

Movie Maker



In 1959. Dr. Andrews became a member of the Council of the Research Academy in the Philosophy of the Arts and Sciences. A film entitled "Unheard Melodies," prepared in collaboration with Walter Mills, Jr., was broadcast nationally on NBC-TV in March and August, 1960. A new theory on the relation between science and art has been developed in another project.

Tommy Williams of Pensacola, Fla., was elected president of the Student Body Monday. He was elected over Arthur McQueen and Bill Tyson.

KA President

Williams is also president of Kappa Alpha order, a Master Sergeant in the ROTC, and captain of the Hose baseball team. He has previously served as student council representative and president of both his sophomore and junior classes.

Sigma Nu President

McQueen, of Loris, was second in the voting and will hold the position of vice-president of the student council. He is the new president of Sigma Nu fraternity and will be executive officer of next year in ROTC Battalion. This year McQueen was secretary of the council.

Tyson, from Bainbridge, Ga., wil serve as senior representative. He is a member of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity and of the tennis and football teams.

More Active Council

The platform which Williams presented to the student body in chapel included raising the honor system at PC, beginning with a more thorough orientation of freshmen on this code.

He stressed need for improvement in the student constitution with special attention on trial procedure and penalties for violation of the honor code. He plans to have the student government take a more active part in governing students.

Sock Sports Editor Earns Recognition

The Blue Stocking was notified here early today that Al Pearce, its Sports Editor, has been named among the winners in the Charlotte Observer's College Press Awards. The awards will be presented at a banquet in Charlotte next Friday night. The contest was opened to all colleges in the Carolinas.

The notification stated that Pearce had taken third place in the sports writing category. The University of North Carolina paper, The Daily Tar Heel, took first and second place in the competition. The Blue Stocking's honor was followed by the Daily Tar Heel in fourth place, and the North Greenville Skyliner in fifth.

Harris Gives Date For Annual Picnic

Hugh Harris, recently elected SCA President, today announced plans for the annual spring picnic. This year the event will be held on May 15, beginning at 4:00 at Camp Fellowship. Harris said that a bus will again provide transportation for students who do not have cars.

The supper will be served at 6:00 and will be followed by the group sings and other entertainment.

There is a possibility that this year the dining hall will not serve supper on the evening of the picnic.

Chapel Services

Chapel services for the coming week are as follows:

Monday—Mr. William J. McCord, Educational Director of the S. C. Alcoholic Rehabilitation program.

Installation of Student Council officers.

Wednesday—Rev. Oliver W. Carmichael, Georgetown Presbyterian Church Georgetown.

Friday—Mr. DeWitte Parker and Mr. Jack Carnegie will present a program on mental health.

The Hide of The Bear

THE REALITY of the cold war situation often eludes us tucked away in our small college world. Even contact with men such as ex-Hungarian Prime Minister Dr. Ferenc Nagy perhaps fails to jolt us out of our distraction.

YET IT BEHOOVES us to turn our concern toward the world's problems seek to understand just what it is that we are faced with. In an interview with Dr. Nagy a week ago, a first hand observer's interpretation of the Red behemouth was obtained—an interpretation of interest not only because of its subject, but also belause of its slightly different perspective.

DR. NAGY REVIEWED the history of Russia briefly, pointing out that the conquest of vast tracts of land was a primary goal of old Tsarist Russia. Thus the Russians pushed into Siberia and the Ukraine, and forged out an empire as big as a continent.

DR. NAGY'S CONTENTION is that, even though there are new masters in the Kremlin, that the aims of Red Russia are actually brazenly similar to those of pre-revolutionary Russia.

THE RUSSIANS ARE not seeking to conquer the world for Communsim; they are seeking to conquer it for Russia. The idea that Russia is seeking to "liberate" and lift all men by turning the world into one big Marxist nation is a hoax.

THE COMMUNIST IDEOLOGY is seen as but a new skin for the Asian Bear to don while he ruthlessly seeks to subjugate the world around him. As an additional threat, the new garb is also much more convenient than the old; for it has the pretense of a life philosophy which almost borders on a religion.

THE CONCLUSION to be drawn from Dr. Nagy's concept is that we are not faced with a fiendish philosopher, but rather with a pure and simple self-seeking fiend, who seeks not to help all men—but to conquer and use them as pawns in a Russian-world-nation.

The Tennis Competition

THE BOND OF FRIENDSHIP between the community of Clinton and Presbyterian College is one extending back to PC's inception in 1880. Rumor is out that it may stop next week when some little Clinton youth gets hanged by PC's tennis enthusiasts.

SOMETHING HAPPENS to a college man's equilibrium when he runs out for an afternoon of tennis and is told by some three foot child that he can't play because "this court is reserved for Georgie and me." If this were an occasional happening, it would be of no concern; but the fact is that the courts are all too often almost completely overrun by the progeny of Clinton.

CLINTON IS a tennis town, and before World War II had over twenty courts. The number seems to be now confined to six, located on the PC campus. The High School is building four.

BUT EVEN THIS total is nowhere near that number before. And the tennis enthusiasm of Clinton has not decreased; if anything, it has increased.

THE COLLEGE is immeasurably indebted to Clinton for its support but Clinton should not take advantage of its position. Clinton has a civic responsibility to provide its own courts and not depend on those of the college.

The Greeks

EDITED BY LEWIS HAY

ALPHA SIGMA PHI

Alpha Psi is looking forward to a big Greek Weekend. Parties are scheduled for Friday and Saturday nights.

Fish of the week is Russell Strange. The fraternity congratulates you for winning the pledges' door prize, Rus.

KAPPA ALPHA

Brothers and pledges spent most of this week recuperating from the activities of the Old South Ball, held last weekend in Augusta. All have agreed that this year's was one of the best Old Souths ever.

THETA CHI

Beta Psi has been eagerly looking forward to the Annual Rebel Reunion of Region 5 which is being held this weekend at the Georgia Tech Chapter. Fourteen members from Presbyterian are attending.

SIGMA NU

Zeta Theta recently held its annual elections. Arthur McQueen of Loris was elected commander and Frank Cooper of St. Petersburg was elected Lt. Commander.

Zeta Theta had a good year and looks for a repeat next year.

Tears In the Sun

SARA SAT ON a strategically located bench and smoothed her hair. She took out a book, opened it as if to study, and propped a tiny mirror between its pages. The sun was warm. She hoped it would give her face a little glow, work some quick magic. This was her last chance, and just a few hours were left. After that—well, she wouldn't even allow herself the luxury of a dream.

SHE HAD READ somewhere that a girl's best chances of finding a husband were when she was between the ages of seventeen and twenty-one, while she was in college. After that, the odds snowballed against her; she was doomed to planned tours, teachers' meetings, and loneliness.

SO THE CHOICE of a college had been very important to Sara, maybe the most important decision of her whole life. She had thought of going to a big university or college for women, and surely she could have found friends at one of those places.

BUT WHEN SHE graduated from high school (dateless and afraid) she believed that all she needed to be popular was to go where there were plenty of strange males—boys who hadn't known her all her life. They would think she was cute and interesting. A handsome, intelligent boy would eagerly date her. Without delay they would be pinned, and just before commencement they would be married (a tiny, perfect wedding) in the chapel.

BUT NOTHING HAD turned out right. For four stinking years she had smiled and combed and ironed and listended and prayed. One time she came close. That pimply boy from Georgia had visited her faithfully for two months, but after he passed math she never saw him again.

MOST OF THE boys simply ignored her—or worse, they laughed at her. She didn't know why; she wasn't fat, or a freak. but every year, some freshman's punishment was to ask her for a date.

THE FEW GIRLS on the campus rejected her. The popular ones didn't know she was alive and the other duds passed her with averted eyes—each anxious to avoid the stigma of being associated with the other. Even the teachers detested her. She studied because she had nothing better to do, but she wasn't brilliant by a long ways. Just lask week she had received a big fat, mediocre "B" on a term paper—plus a cool note, "structurally and factually correct—but dull."

"DAMN HIM," she thought, "the story of my life in one short sentence." She didn't understand the professors' innuendoes; their humor made her uncomfortable. Afraid she might smile at the wrong time, she sat stonily through lecture after lecture. Frequently she imgained that the professor and the class were laughing at some private joke about her—something that she could never quite catch.

JUST THEN she caught sight of the wife of one of the younger professors. This pretty young matron's eyes sparkled with excitement as she walked purposefully toward the slight, neat figure.

"OH GOD," thought Sara, "if she asks me to take care of those brats while everybody else in the world is dancing and laughing and making love I'll kill her, I'll scream! I hate her, I hate them all . . ."

"HELLO, SARA, dear, I've been looking everywhere for you. This is the last dance week-end of the year, and Charles and I would die if we missed it. I've been meaning to call you for weeks, but I knew you would save this last week-end for us. The children love you! So come early — about six — we'll have some coffee and you can help me dress."

SARA MOVED suddenly. The carefully placed mirror slipped from between the pages of her book and fell to the cement walk. Splinters of glass glistened like tears in the sun.

Letter to the Editor

DEAR EDITOR:

EVEN THOUGH it is late in the school year, I feel something should be said about the position of the student help in the dining hall.

FIRST OF ALL, we are not responsible for the food that is selected or how it is prepared. We have been hearing student gripes about this all year. How about refraining from it for just the last three weeks of school? We have nothing to do with it, and we can't do anything about it, so please don't ask us to try.

SECONDLY, THE boys who take your trays when you are finished eating have a hard enough time keeping things relatively in order without some students sliding silverware and glasses on the trays with the plates. The proper placement of glasses and silver will make our job easier.

FINALLY, SOME students just love to see how big a mess they can make with the food they do not eat. The concoctions that often show up on the trays are not only noisome to handle, but hard to clean from your plates. Just to be nice, how about just leaving the food on your plates as it is without mixing it as much as you can?

WE THANK YOU for your cooperaion.

THE DINING HALL WORKERS

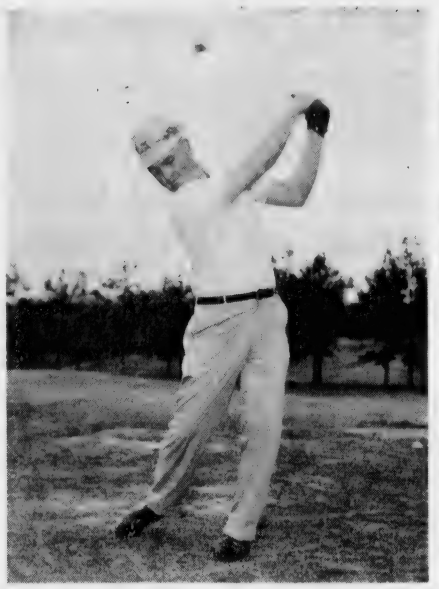
Famous American's Quotes Seem Contradictory Today

Students may be surprised at some of the following statements when they note who the spokesmen were. The quotations do not in every case concur with the views these famous Americans are commonly thought to have held.

On Relief

"The lessons of history, confirmed by the evidence immediately before me, show exclusively that continued dependence upon relief induces a spiritual and moral disintegration fundamentally destructive of national fibre.

"To dole out relief in this way is to administer a narcotic, a subtle destroyer of the human spirit. It is in violation of the traditions of America. Work must be found for the able bodied but destitute workers. The federal government must and shall quit this business of relief."—President Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1935.



On Racial Differences

"You and we are different races. We have between us a broader difference than exists between almost any other races. Whether it is right or wrong I need not discuss, but this physical difference is a great disadvantage to us both, as your race suffers very greatly, many of them by living among us, while ours suffers from your presence. In a word we suffer on each side. If this is admitted, it affords a reason at least why we should be separated."—President Abraham Lincoln in 1862.

Acker, Kellam Pace Team As Golfers Approach Record

by AL PEARCE

Impressive wins over Furman, The Citadel, East Tennessee, and Mercer—assurance of a winning season and the possibility of a record season—second place in the Little Four!! These are just some of the accomplishments of PC's golf team, which is enjoying one of its best seasons in the team's history.

8-4 Mark

Paced by the play of senior captain Ken Acker and freshman Bill Kellam, the Hose linksters are presently sporting an 8-4 mark into their match today with Furman. The team plays at Augusta College on Monday and winds up the season on May 13-14 at Boone, N. C., for the NAIA district tournament.

Challenge Record

Holding wins over Augusta College, Ohio Northern University, College of Charleston, and Belmont Abbey, along with the aforementioned teams, the Hose can finish with no worse than an 8-6 record, while wins in their final two matches will give a 10-4 record for the year. The latter would be a school record. The best season on record is a 9-8 showing.

One Stroke From Third

These "forgotten men" of the college athletic program placed 5th in the State Tournament at Charleston just after Easter, but were only 1 stroke out of 3rd place. Finishing 3rd in the play, Kellem proved that he will be a tough contender in his remaining three years of varsity play. Coach Warden has expressed his surprise and pleasure in the showing of the squad to date, for with only four returning lettermen, the outlook was not bright at the beginning of the campaign. This season looks good, but the future looks better.

Gault Announces Football Schedule

The 1963 Presbyterian College football schedule was announced here today to Cally Gault, head coach and athletic director. The schedule includes 4 home games on the 10 game-offering.

Coach Gault, here temporarily for the spring practice sessions, expressed his pleasure at the attitude of the boys at this stage in the daily workouts. He feels his staff and the boys are working well together, and progress in the new offensive system is being seen.

The schedule includes:

Sept. 21 at Fredrick
Sept. 28—Lenoir Rhyne
Oct. 5—East Carolina
Oct. 12—Citadel at Savannah
Oct. 19 at Tampa
Oct. 26—at Davidson
Nov. 2 Wofford (Homecoming)
Nov. 9 at Furman
Nov. 16 Troy State (Parents Day)
Nov. 28 at Newberry

Alpha Sigs, Pounders Lead I-M Tennis Tally

The intramural tennis standings were released today by Gene Goodwyn, co-chairman of the Intramural Council. The standings, to date, have in first place, the Alpha Sigs and the Pounders; the KAs are in third; holding down fourth are the Bandits; followed by the All Stars are the Pi Kapps in fifth; the Sigs and the PiKAs are in seventh; while the Theta Chis bring up the rear.

Gaston, 80 yard freestyle; Dan Arnold and Ronnie Sieple, 40 yard butterfly; Jim Owens and Don McNeil 160 yard medley swim; Frank Cooper, Woody Merritt, Dan Arnold, and Bill Gaston, 160 yard medley relay; and Pete Yearout, Ronnie Sieple, Don McNeill, and Jim Barnhardt, 160 yard freestyle relay.

PC's Baseball Team Hustling For Best Record in Ten Years

by GLENN BROWDER

"The one reason we're winning is that the players are hustling!"

This is what Coach Billy Tiller has to say about PC's baseball team as it apparently headed toward the best record in over 10 years. The team is going after win number eight this afternoon in Macon, Ga., against the Mercer Bears who dropped a 3-1 game to PC last week.

Best Since 1954

With the 7-5 record before today's game, Presbyterian has already won as many or more games than any team since 1954; and could end up with the best record since 1951. In that year the Hosemen posted a 13-6 record, and haven't had a winning year since. Five games remain on the schedule, with Mercer, Wofford, Newberry, Belmont Abbey, and Furman, in that order.

Outhustling

Coach Tiller backs up the claim that the Blue Hose have outhustled opposing teams by pointing to seven of PC's wins which have been by one or two run margins. The Hose nine has won a majority of the victories in the late innings, with clutch hitting and tight defensive playing.

Nix-Williams

Jackie Nix at second base and Tommy Williams at shortstop have done a lot in cutting down enemy baserunners, killing off several rallies with quick double plays. And three new men, Wayne Boiter at third, Charles Parnell at first, and Steve Chipman behind the plate have come through in high style to give PC a tight infield.

The outfield also comes in for high words because of the good defensive play and throw-ins which have kept opponents from taking extra bases.

Consistent Hitting

But it has been the clutch hitting and hustling baserunning which has pulled PC out on top. The overall batting average isn't outstanding, but the Hosemen have managed to score when there are men on base. The long ball has won several games too, with Jimmie Elliott, Alvin Coley, Leighton Grantham, Tommy Williams, Jackie Nix, and Wayne Boiter contributing home runs for the Hose.

Good Hurlers

On the mound is the key to all baseball clubs, and PC has gotten excellent service from Jimmy Cape, Leighton Grantham and Charles Parnell. Cape and Grantham have posted three wins each, and Parnell holds one victory. Grantham incidentally has allowed only two earned runs in 23 innings.

Netmen Will Play in NC

The PC tennis team, fresh from a sweet victory over The Citadel, will travel up to North Carolina to take on a couple of ACC tennis teams next week.

The Hose will play the powerful UNC Tar Heel team in Chapel Hill on Monday. The Heels have lost but one this year, that to Miami.

Durham will be the scene of the action on Tuesday as PC will face Duke University. Duke lost to Clemson 8-1 this year, but the Blue Dukes have gotten better since that early match.

Intercollegiate IM Swimmers Will Meet Here Wednesday

What is thought to be the first intercollegiate intramural swimming pool meet in the state will be held at the PC pool on Wednesday night, May 8, at 7:30. The dual meet will feature the Erskine College All-Star swimming team and the PC team. Jim Owens will coach the PC team, and Gordon Warden will officiate. No admission will be charged.

PC's Squad

The PC squad, which was picked after the intramural meet here last week, will be made up of the top 11 swimmers in that meet. With their specialty listed, they are: Frank Cooper and Phil Olmert, 160 yard freestyle; Jim Owens and Woody Merritt, 80 yard breaststroke; Jim Barnhardt and Don McNeill, 40 yard freestyle; Frank Cooper and Bob Harris, 80 yard breaststroke.

Also, Jim Barnhardt and Bill

Speaking of Sports

by GLENN BROWDER

And They Shall Be Known As The Blue Hose

Where did the name Blue Hose come from?

Clemson fights like a tiger, Carolina like a gamecock, The Citadel like a bulldog, Newberry like a hair-raising Indian, Wofford like a Terrier, Furman like a paladin—How can PC fight like a Blue Hose?

Origin? What Origin?

With this worrisome question in mind, I began to investigate the origin of "Blue Hose" this past week. Dr. Brown, Mr. Ben Hay Hammet, and Coach Billy Tiller each supplied some information on the subject, and I discovered a few interesting ideas. The most interesting facet of the "Blue Hose" is that it is outstandingly uninteresting. In fact no one knows for sure where the name originated.

There are two sources, one of which is probably the father of the term "Blue Hose."

From England

One story is that Presbyterian College picked up its name because of the stockings worn by the Presbyterians of Oliver Cromwell's day in England. The history books record a Blue Stocking Parliament in the British past, so PC is not the first institution to have this honor.

Just From PC

The other version of the tale, which is the more prominent and probable one, is the dull, colorless fact that PC wears blue hoses. When the late Coach Walter Johnson was at Presbyterian back before the first world war, his football players were always outstanding because of their bright purple stockings. This seems like a senseless reason to tag them the Blue Stockings, but you can leave it up to sportswriters to do the senseless.

"Blue Hose" Favorite of 50's

Since that time PC ha fielded many fine athletic teams despite the smallness of the student body and the nickname they bore. They have labored under the names of Blue Stockings, Blue Socks, Blue Sox, Blue Hose, Hose, Big Blue, with the Blue Hose taking prominence in the 1950's.

Just One Page Now But . . .

From the football birth of the Blue Stockings came the college newspaper The Blue Stocking. When this publication first appeared ni World War I days, it was strictly an athletic paper for the sports events.

PC Track Standouts Bound for Columbia

Two Presbyterian College track and field stars will travel to Columbia on Saturday to compete in the annual State Track Meet. The event, which is held on the USC track, draws outstanding field track stars from colleges throughout the state.

Running in the 440 yard dash will be Knot Culpepper, a senior letterman from Waycross, Ga. The lithe sprinter has competed in the Piedmont and Davidson Relays already this year. Entering the high jump competition will be Doug Allen, a freshman from Sumter. Allen has cleared 6'2" already this year in a meet, and is given a good chance in this event Saturday.

Mrs. Brown Has Past of Service to PC

by DEXTER KESSLER

In her present role the first lady of Presbyterian College, Mrs. Marshall Brown, has very little opportunity for contact with the students. In past years, however, she has served as an inspiration that was felt as far away as Europe and the Pacific during World War II and Korea during the Korean campaign.

Meets Dr. Brown

Mrs. Brown was registrar at McCallie School before coming to PC with Dr. Brown in 1926. She had met President Brown at McCallie in 1925, and they were married a year later.

17-Year Volunteer

After coming to PC, Mrs. Brown offered her services to the college and ended up spending 17 years as voluntary Registrar. During these years Mrs. Brown served as friend and advisor to over 1,000 PC students and alumni who were acitvely engaged in the Armed Forces.

The B-Mail

She instituted what she called the B-Mail, named for the Victory Mail for soldiers overseas, and designed to keep PC alumni who were at war informed of each other and of the college.

A Growing Concern

As the B-Mail grew, Mrs. Brown had to mimeograph her letters because of the large number of alumni receiving the bi-weekly reports. Many of these letters ran as long as 6 pages, printed front and back.

Honorary Alumna

These bulletins were such an inspiration and morale-lifting factor to the alumni that at the end of the Second World War she was voted an honorary alumna and awarded the Golden P, the highest honor any alumnus can receive. She was also named Citizen of the Year by the Clinton Lions Club because of her outstanding service.

Painting As A Hobby

Mrs. Brown's hobbies include painting and flower arranging. A few of her paintings are on display at Vernon's Restaurant. She is a member of the Sun Bonnet Garden Club. Mrs. Brown also loves horses and a unique hobby of hers is riding mules. "I feel so sorry for them," she says.

To Make PC A Home

Even with all of the responsibility for entertaining and being present at social affais that is necessarily associated with the wife of a college president, Mrs. Brown remains a very charming, unaffected loving person. Her main love is "boys," and her aim has been "to make them feel at home away from home."

Mrs. Brown has been and always will be a great figure in the history of Presbyterian.

ACP Rates First Semester Blue Stocking First Class

The Blue Stocking issues of the first semester, 1962, have received a rating of First Class, announced former editor DuPont Smith this week. The rating was given by critics of the Associated Collegiate Press, nationally known rating service and recognized as the best judge of college journalism today.

Fourth Consecutive

The rating marks the fourth consecutive semester that the Sock has been rated First Class. The total needed for top rating was 3500. The Blue Stocking's total was 3260. Five other small college weekly newspapers received a First Class rating for which the minimum total was 3100.

None of the 15 collegiate newspapers from all over the nation in the class of schools under 700 enrollment with weekly publications received the highest rating of All-American.

Five Classes

Ratings were divided into five classes as follows: All-American (superior), First Class (excellent), Second Class (good), Third Class (fair), and Fourth Class.

News coverage, sports coverage, and sports writing drew the highest praise of the critic while treatment of copy, style, nameplate, editorial page makeup, sports display, headline schedule, typography, and printing also received the maximum possible points.

Under Smith

Head of the staff at the time of judging was DuPont Smith. The business manager was Murray White while Bob Phifer was news editor. Jim Barbour was feature editor and Al Pearce was sports editor.

Bullard Announces New PaC-SaC Staff

Leon Bullard, 1963-64 Pac Sac Editor, recently announced an eleven-man editorial staff.

Serving as Associate Editors are Tom Currie of Carthage, N. C., and Janet Maddox of Spartanburg. Ronnie Collins of Rock Hill is Military Editor and John Sheffield of Atlanta is Activities Editor.

Frank King of Valdosta, Ga., will be Athletics Editor, with Bill Shearer of Macon serving as Beauty Editor. Photography Editor is Peyton Carter of Lookout Mountain, Tenn.

Rounding out the staff as Greek Editor and Caption Editors are respectively Bill Megathlin of Miami, and Joe Prickett and Alvin Coley, both of Atlanta.

Alumnus Appointed Army Aide de Camp

A Presbyterian College graduate, Major Marion T. Wood of West Palm Beach, Fla., has recently been appointed Aide de Camp to the First U. S. Army Commander, Lieutenant General Garrison H. Davidson, at Governors Island, N. Y.

Wood joined First U. S. Army Headquarters in August, 1962, after serving as an English instructor at the U. S. Military Academy, West Point, N. Y., for four years. Since joining First Army Headquarters he has been Chief of the Personnel Actions Branch, First Army G-1 Section.

The 34-year-old officer entered the Army in June, 1950, and earned the Combat Infantryman's Badge and the Silver Star while serving in Korea as a platoon leader with the 15th Infantry Regiment of the Third Division.

He received his Master's degree in 1959 from Columbia University in New York City.

Presbyterian Prof Attends Assembly

Dr. Lewis S. Hay, professor of Bible at PC, attended the 103rd General Assembly of the United States Presbyterian Church which was held in Huntington, W. Va., this past week.

The purpose of the assembly is to vote upon issues brought up by the delegates concerning problems of the Presbyteries and individual churches.

Two main issues of importance were brought up and voted upon at the assembly: They were: that forced segregation is out of harmony with church ethics and that racial barriers should be dropped. The other main topic of interest was on whether women should hold church offices.

Harris Elected SCA Head; Association Lists Cabinet

The recent Student Christian Association elections saw rising senior Hugh Harris elected as President. The Association had sophomores picked for the other three officer positions with Ike Cobb being chosen as Vice-President, Melinda Gaines as Secretary, and Sandy Hagood as Treasurer.

Harris is an English major from Decatur. He is a new member of The Blue Key and The Scabbard and Blade. A brother of Kappa Alpha order, Cobb is an English major from Atlanta. An English major, Miss Gaines is from Clinton. Making his home in Easley, Hagood is a PiKA and plays football and track, lettering in both sports. Hagood is a business major.

The officers announced today the initial members of the SCA's 1963-64 cabinet. Serving on the cabinet will be: Tom Currie of Carthage, N. C.; Bill Neely of Midland, Texas; Jan Rhodes of Decatur; Walter Wells of McConnells; Bill Megathlin of Miami; and Jimmy Simpson of Chester.

Also: Hugh Wilson of Summerville; Jim Darby of Summerton; and Nancy Harvey of Monticello, Ga. Harris stated that this list will be expanded at a later date.

ROTC Officers

Editor of this year's Knapsack and future editor of the Pac Sac, Bullard is a pre-med major from Bainbridge, Ga. He has been a consistent dean's list student.

A history major, Lowrance is from Macon, Ga. Guard is the position that Lowrance holds on the football team.

Former Editor

Past Blue Stocking editor, DuPont Smith is a physics major. Smith is a football player, occupying the position of halfback. He hails from Decatur, Ga.

From Atlanta, Ga., comes Prickett. He is Commander of the Pershing Rifles and vice-president of the Alpha Sigma Phi fraternity. His major is history.

Blue Key Tapping

acting academic dean, has earned the following degrees: A. B., Erskine College; S. T. B. and S. T. M. from the Biblical Seminary in New York; and a P. H. D. from New York University. Dr. Gettys was listed in the 1957 edition of Directory of American scholars, Who's Who Among American Educators, and Who's Who in the South and Southwest. Gettys is also the author of many books and study materials for Bible instruction.

To Foster Leadership

Blue Key, organized in 1924, is a service fraternity that recognizes outstanding juniors and seniors. It has as its purpose the fostering of leadership among college students, and locally it serves to better relations between colleges with which we have inter-collegiate contact. The local chapter of Blue Key dates from March 29, 1932.

Shearer Will Head IFC; Alpha Sigs Seeded First

The 1963-64 Interfraternity Council recently announced its officers and also the dates for next year's open socials and closed smokers. The Council is the student co-ordinating and disciplinary organ for Presbyterian's fraternities.

Shearer To Head

Bill Shearer, of Macon, Ga., was elected president of the Council. Shearer is the KA representative. Vice-President, secretary, and treasurer are respectively: Robert Miller of Atlanta, PiKA representative; Robert Elrod of Griffin, Ga., Sigma Nu representative; and Mark Braswell of Gainesville, Fla., Alpha Sigma Phi representative.

Also serving on the Council are Robert Banks of Kershaw, the Theta Chi representative, and James Salvo of Summerville, the Pi Kappa Phi representative.

Alpha Sigs Are First

To borrow the tennis term, the Alpha Sigs are seeded first in next year's Open Social Tournament with September 25 being their date. Pi Kappa Phi will follow up with theirs on October 2, and then will come Theta Chi on October 9. October 16 will be the PiKA's day. The Sigma Nus and KAs will have their socials on October 23 and October 30, respectively.

Pledge December 12

The schedule for smokers is: Dec. 4—Pi Kappa Phi; Dec. 5—PiKA; Dec. 6—KA; Dec. 9—Theta Chi; Dec. 10—Alpha Sigma Phi; and Dec. 11—Sigma Nu. Pledge Day will be December 12.

Vol. XLI — Prsebyterian College, Clinton, S. C., April 27, 1963 — No. 19

Ex-Premier Credits Red Advances to Indecision

Dr. Ferenc Nagy, exiled last prime minister of free Hungary, speaking in chapel Monday, April 22, credited the spread of Communist domination throughout the world to lack of decision on the part of Western powers, especially the United States. The Soviet Union, emboldened by its success in Central and Eastern Europe has methodically spread its control to all regions of the world.

The Satellite Road

In 1939 the Soviets under a legal agreement kept troops in certain areas of Estonia and Latvia. Then in 1940 the Russians, claiming the agreement had been violated, took over completely until 1941 when they were ousted by Nazis.

Tracing history, Nagy pointed out that in 1944 Russia again assumed control of the Balkan nations imprisoning and executing anti-communist leaders as well as sending more than 10 per cent of the population to Siberia. The strongest blow to Central and Eastern Europe came as Poland was handed over to the Soviet Union.

Hungary Stands Alone

In 1954 the only Eastern-Central European country having free elections was Hungary. Testing the strength of the Communist Party there, Russia found 17 per cent for the Communists and 60 per cent for the Small Holder's Party of which Nagy was Prime Minister.

Red Diplomacy

The spring of 1947 saw the forced resignation of Nagy as the Reds seized the government and held his son in Budapest to insure his cooperation. The one-party system was promptly placed into effect.

Watching Suppression

Nagy noted that when the Hungarian people revolted in 1956, the United States sat back and watched the patriots of that tiny country brought to bay by the Red Army. The speaker expressed the belief that America could have successfully intervened on behalf of Hungary, since at that time Russia would not have risked an attack on herself.

No Cold War Question

Nagy also cited that Soviet propaganda has been successful in creating an atmosphere in the United States that the subject of European liberation is a cold war question. The speaker was confident that it is not a cold question, but rather an open subject which ought to be dealt with. The West must demand justice for these countries and thereby end the double standard which now exists.

By The Hardies

The speaker was brought to the Presbyterian College campus by the Newton Gary Hardie, Sr., Memorial Lecture Fund. This fund has been placed in the college permanent endowment, with interest to bring lectuerers to PC. The donors of this fund are Dr. Virginia S. Hardie of Clemson and Newton Gary Hardie, Jr., Spartanburg, the widow and son of Mr. Hardie.

Dr. Gettys Elected Enoree Moderator

At the Spring session of the Enoree Presbytery held April 9, in Union, Dr. Joseph Gettys was elected Moderator of the Presbytery. Dr. Gettys, who will serve three months, will preside over Presbytery meetings, and act as general chairman. The Enoree Presbytery is made up of approximately fifty churches in Greenville, Spartanburg, Union, and Cherokee counties.

Dr. Bankhead Plays In Laurens Farce

The Laurens County Theater will present See How They Run, a farce in three acts on April 26th and 27th. The play begins at 8:00 in the Laurens Central Elementary School in Laurens. Admision is $1.00. Dr. Robert Bankhead, PC's associate professor of German, plays a Bishop in what critics have called a very delightful farce.

Williams, McQueen, Tyson Vie For Student Body Presidency

• Candidates State Intended Platforms

Three candidates will be running Monday for president of the student body. They are Arthur McQueen, Tommy Williams, and Bill Tyson.

McQueen, of Loris, is a member of Sigma Nu fraternity. McQueen was secretary of the council this past year. He is a platoon sergeant in A company.

KA President

Williams makes his home in Pensacola, Fla. He is the past secretary and new president of Kappa Alpha fraternity. Williams has previously served on the council and holds the rank of Master Sergeant in the college's ROTC program. He is a letterman, playing baseball for the PC nine.

Former Councilman

Tyson hails from Bainbridge, Ga., and is a member of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity. He has previously been on the student council, plays football and tennis, and has lettered in the former. Tyson is also a platoon sergeant in A company.

Each of the candidates submitted a condensed version of their platforms to the Blue Stocking.

McQueen had a question to poise for the student body. "What do you want? This is a big question that looms before me as a candidate for the office of President of the Student Body.

"My platform if elected Student Body President will be your platform as a Student Body, because it can only be successful if it meets the full approval of all the students and receives their full support.

Phys. Ed, Tennis Lights

"If I am elected I will strive to make a reality of the following points:

(1) A campaign to light the tennis courts.

(2) Will try to revive the fine arts series if so approved by a poll.

(3) Will try to make the system voting clearer and voting day more widely publicized.

(4) Will try to see that the seniors have more recognition and more privileges.

(5) Will investigate the possibility of a physical education program.

(6) Above all and the most important, I will do my best to uphold your constitution and to represent you, the Student body, to the best of my ability."

Raise Honor System

Williams stated, "I believe the Student Council for next year should continue to raise the Honor System of the College as set forth in the student constitution. This should begin with a more thorough and comprehensive orientation of the freshmen on the honor code.

The student Constitution needs a close study and revision in several articles. There is no election procedure for many of the campus elections. I believe there should be a definite trial proce-

Megathlin, Crawford, Rhodes Named Junior Council Reps

Those students who return to PC next fall will see on the 1963-64 student council some old ones. In the election held last Monday, these representatives were chosen for the coming term: rising sophomores — Mike Smith and Dave Davies; rising juniors—Bill Megathlin, Gary Crawford, and Sherrod Rhodes.

Rising Sophomores

A football player, Mike Smith, is from North Augusta. He is chaplain of Kappa Alpha pledge class and plans to major in history.

From Panama City, Fla., Dave Davies is a past freshman student council member. He sreves on the Blue Stocking business staff and is a history major.

Rising Juniors

From Miami, Fla., Bill Megathlin is a past Sophomore council member. Megathlin is currently vice-president of the SCA, was president of the Alpha Sigma Phi pledge class last year, and is a pre-theological major.

From Greer, Gary Crawford, is a two-time councilman. He is a member of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity and is serving as pledgemaster and parliamentarian. Crawford is an English major.

An economics major, Sherrod Rhodes is from Moultrie, Ga. He is a member of Sigma Nu fraternity.

In the sophomore election, the two were chosen from a field of four hopefuls. In the junior council election, the three elected were from a ballot of five names.

Annual Dean's List Banquet Honors College's Scholars

The "scholars" of Presbyterian College were honored here last night at the annual Dean's List dinner at which Dr. R. C. Grier of Greenville delivered the address.

Academic Dean Joseph M. Gettys has announced that students who made the Dean's List at PC during the past two semesters have been invited as guests for the dinner. It was held at 7:30 p.m. in Judd dining hall.

President Emeritus

Dr. Grier, president emeritus of Erskine College and pastor of Greenville's Associate Reformed Presbyterian Church, served as president of Erskine from 1921 until his retirement in 1954. He is a graduate of that school and its seminary and is the recipient of an honorary degree from PC. He served as moderator of the General Assembly of the Associate Reformed Presbyterian Church, 1950-51.

A 3.2 To Eat

The Dean's List at Presbyterian College is composed of students who compile a semester academic average of 3.2 or better out of a possible 4.00. In addition to these students, faculty members and their wives also will attend the Friday night dinner.

Dr. Grier

New Sergant Joins Military Department

Sgt. Carl F. Travillian has joined the PC Military Department as supply sergeant to replace Sgt. M. E. Dunbar. Travillian comes to Presbyterian from Magg, Vietnam, where he was last stationed.

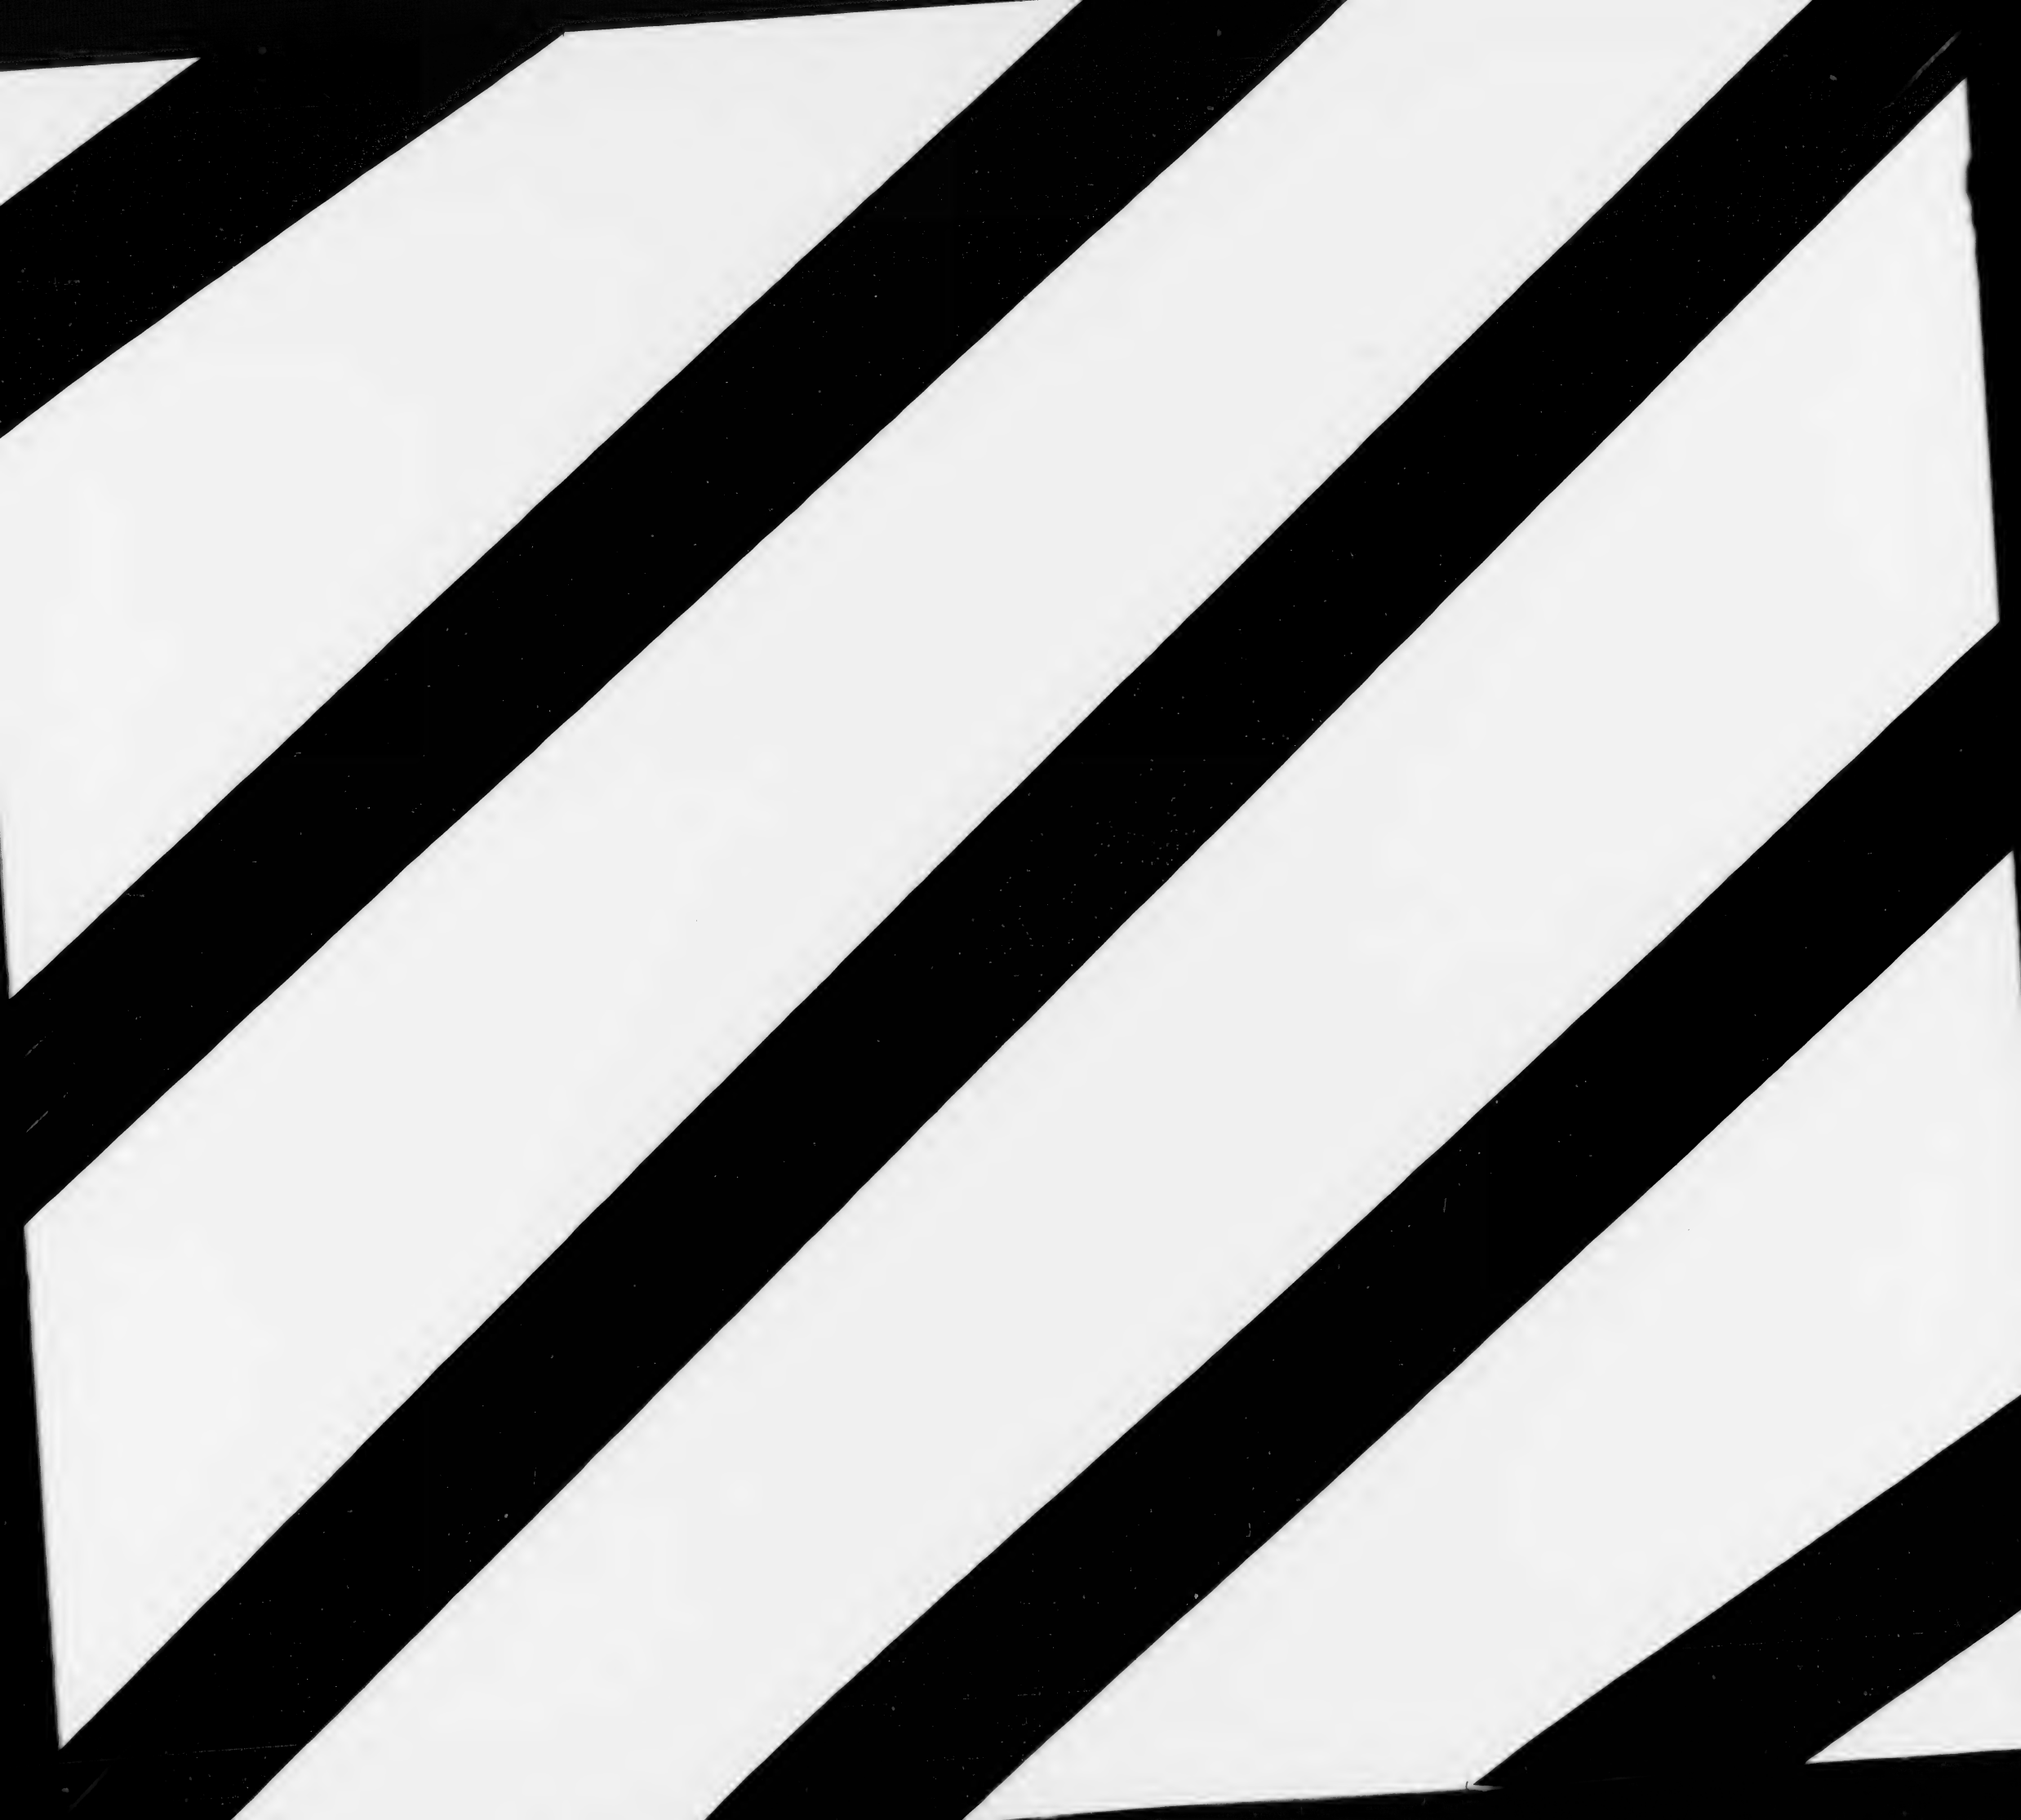
A native of Dalton, Ga., Travillian is married and has two children.

Chapel Services

Chapel services for the coming week are as follows:

Monday—Dr. C. Victor Briscoe, visiting physics lecturer.

Wednesday — Presbyterian's choir will present program.



Friday — Installation of Student Body Officers.

PC Profs Present Papers in Columbia

Three Presbyterian College professors will present papers before the 36th annual meeting of the South Carolina Academy of Sciences at Columbia yesterday and today.

Dr. Alex B. Stump, chairman of the biology department, is scheduled for a Friday afternoon presentation of "Interphase Changes in the Nucleus of Lesquereusia Spiralis."

Then on Saturday afternoon Dr. K. Nolon Carter, chairman of the PC chemistry department, and his associate, Randolph B. Huff, will present a paper on this subject: "Qualitative and Quantative Study of Student Preparation Ethanol Using Gas Chromatography — a Student Experiment."

THETA CHI

Theta Chi is looking forward to a gala weekend with record parties both nights in their suite.

Congratulations are extended to Rusty Nelson upon his recent pledging and to new brothers: Arch Hudgins, Dennis Hill, Frank Hendrix, and Hunter Coleman.

KAPPA ALPHA

Kappa Alpha started the weekend with a record party at the house last night. Plans are set for a combo party at Lake Greenwood Saturday afternoon. A record party will also follow and coincide with the Ball.

Congratulations are extended to new brothers John Morrison and Hoppy Hopkins.

ALPHA SIGMA PHI

The Legion Hut was the scene of Alpha Sigma Phi's party last night. A record dance will be held at the fraternity house after the Ball.

Congratulations to Brother Carter Redd upon his recent engagement to Miss Sarah Addert ton.

PI KAPPA ALPHA

Pi Kappa Alpha had a party and combo at the Laurens Shrine Club on Lake Greenwood yesterday evening. A record dance in the suite after the Ball is planned.

Visiting Brothers of the week are Horton and Donald.

Living Endowment Fund Starting Towards Record Goal of $75,000

Strong activity in the opening weeks has pushed Presbyterian College's 1963 Living Endowment off to a $7,307 start toward a record $75,000 goal, Alumni and Public Relations Director Ben Hay Hammet announced today.

He said it represents the strongest opening burst yet recorded for this phase of the annual giving program which produced $55,134 from 1,071 contributors last year.

New High

PC alumni and friends in 1963 are shooting for a goal of $75,000 for the total annual giving effort (including the Living Endowment and the Walter Johnson Club athletic fund). This objective represents a new high, exceeding the record $65,254 raised in 1961.

Work toward hitting the new goal will be conducted throughout the year through personal solitations, class agent letters and mailers sent directly from the college. Alumni in the Rock Hill and Anderson areas already have their projects underway, with Harry E. Hicklin, Jr., of Rock Hill and Dr. Richard T. Gillespie of Anderson serving as leaders there.

Hammet pointed out the $55,13 contributed to the annual giving program last year was in addition to funds subscribed to the development campaign, which raised $1,800,000 in 1962 for capital improvements at PC.

NOW YOU CAN BE YOUNGER THAN SHE IS

It is a scientific fact that girls reach emotional maturity earlier than boys. For this reason freshman girls are reluctant to make romantic alliances with freshman boys, but instead choose men from the upper classes.

Thus the freshman boys are left dateless, and many is the night the entire freshman dorm sobs itself to sleep. An equally moist situation exists among upper-class girls. With upper-class men being snapped up by freshman girls, the poor ladies of the upper class are reduced to dreary, manless evenings of Monopoly and home permanents.

It pleasures me to report there is a solution for this morbid situation—indeed, a very simple solution. Why don't the two great have-not groups—the freshman boys and the upper-class girls—find solace with each other?

True, there is something of an age differential, but that need not matter. Take, for example, the case of Albert Payson Sigafoos and Eustacia Vye.

Albert Payson, a freshman in sand and gravel at Vanderbilt University, was walking across the campus one day, weeping softly in his loneliness. Blinded by tears, he stumbled upon the supine form of Eustacia Vye, a senior in wicker and raffia, who was collapsed in a wretched heap on the turf.

We could build a Snowman...

"Why don't you watch where you're going, you minor youth?" said Eustacia peevishly.

"I'm sorry, lady," said Albert Payson and started to move on. But suddenly he stopped, struck by an inspiration. "Lady," he said, tugging his forelock, "don't think me forward, but I know why you're miserable. It's because you can't get a date. Well, neither can I. So why don't we date each other?"

"Surely you jest!" cried Eustacia, looking with scorn upon his tiny head and body.

"Oh, I know I'm younger than you are," said Albert Payson, "but that doesn't mean we can't find lots of fun things to do together."

"Like what?" she asked.

"Well," said Albert Payson, "we could build a Snowman."

"Bah!" said Eustacia, grinding her teeth.

"All right then," said Albert Payson, "we could go down to the pond and catch some frogs."

"Ugh!" said Eustacia, shuddering her entire length.

"How about some Run-Sheep-Run?" suggested Albert Payson.

"You are callow, green, and immature," said Eustacia, "and I will thank you to remove your underaged presence from mine eyes."

Sighing, Albert Payson lighted a cigarette and started away.

"Stay!" cried Eustacia.

He stayed.

"Was that a Marlboro Cigarette you just lighted?" she asked.

"What else?" said Albert Payson.

"Then you are not immature!" she exclaimed, clasping him to her clavicle. "For to smoke Marlboros is the very essence of wisdom, the height of American know-how, the incontrovertible proof that you can tell gold from dross, right from wrong, fine aged tobaccos from pale, pathetic substitutes. Albert Payson, if you will still have me, I am yours!"

"I will," he said, and did, and today they are married and run the second biggest wicker and raffia establishment in Duluth, Minnesota.

Danforth Lecturer Speaks On Wave Theory of Matter

Dr. Donald H. Andrews, Professor of Physics at Johns Hopkins University, and Danforth Lecturer, spoke to the student body in Chapel Wednesday. Dr. Andrews, who assisted in the development of the atomic bomb, discussed the concept that matter is composed of waves rather than particles.

A separate classroom lecture was given on the properties of matter at extremely low temperatures.

Inaudible Symphony

In line with the wave theory, the Danforth lecturer pointed out in his chapel talk that all matter emits certain vibrational harmonies out of human hearing range. Every object and every particle of every object sends out a specific tone. All nature, therefore, is essentially producing a vast concert of inaudible sound.

Sounds of Statues

Dr. Andrews revealed that he had done work on amplifying this silent music so that it could be heard. In the movie which he presented as part of his lecture, the sounds emitted by different shaped statues were heard.

Planning to complete in the near future a scale based on these tones, Dr. Andrews hopes that an orchestra will be able to play music similar to the silent symphony.

Distinguished for Its Progress

Vol. XLII — Presbyterian College, Clinton, S. C., September 20, 1963 — No. 1

DR. WEERSING GREETS freshmen in Belk Auditorium during orientation week.

Introducing Dr. Weersing

Presidency Is Culmination Of Long Association With PC

Presbyterian's new President comes here after considerable association with the college.

Holding a Th. M. from Columbia Seminary and a D. D. from Southwestern at Memphis, Dr. Marc C. Weersing has been a trustee of Presbyterian College for seven years and was co-chairman of the 1962 capital funds campaign which secured over $1,800,000 for the college.

Also active in the work of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church U. S., he is a member of the Presbyterian Board of World Missions and is on the committee for the Assembly's Presbyterian Development Fund.

Experience In Pulpit

Dr. Weersing began his ministry at the First Presbyterian Church of Elberton, Ga., in 1938 and has since served the Oakhurst Presbyterian Church in Decatur, the Central Presbyterian Church in Jackson, Miss. and the First Presbyterian Church of Spartanburg, the largest Presbyterian Church in the Synod of South Carolina.

In every community he has served, Dr. Weersing has worked closely with various civic organizations such as the Boy Scouts and the YMCA. He has been an oft-invited speaker on college campuses.

Paternal Legacy

Dr. Weersing, the son of a minister, was born in Grand Rapids, Michigan where he graduated from Calvin College in 1934 and from Calvin Theological Seminary in 1937.

The new president is married to the former Jean Barry Adams of Charlotte, a graduate of Agnes Scott. They have a daughter, Marcia, a Converse sophomore and a son J. Barry, a Clinton High sophomore.

Twenty-Seven In ROTC Camp; Commissions Given To Five

Twenty-seven Presbyterian College students attended ROTC summer camp at Ft. Bragg, N. C., this year. Five students, all of them June, 1963 graduates, received commissions at the end of camp. Roy Autry, Kenneth Acker, and Henry Gordon were commissioned in artillery. Roe Calloway and Gene Goodwin received commissions in armor and the quartermaster's corps., respectively.

Skills Acknowledged

In the overall rating, P. C. was tenth out of twenty-three schools. Two P. C. students, Fred Meyers and Bill Canady, received special recognition.

Meyers was on the golf team which came in first on ROTC field day. Canady was the softball pitcher who led his team to the regimental championship.

Those students attending were: Frank D. Armstrong, Jr., of Laurens; Roy H. Autry of Dunwoody, Ga.; Kenneth D. Acker of Pickens; George T. Braswell, Jr., and Arthur L. Prickett III, both of Atlanta; Ponce D. Bullard and William E. Tyson, both of Bainbridge, Ga.; Roe M. Calloway, Jr., of Decatur, Ga.; William C. Canady, Jr., of Miami; Ronald E. Collins of Rock Hill; Thomas W. Currie of Carthage, N. C.; John B. Greenwood of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.; Eugene R. Goodwynn III of Hopewell, Va.; Henry H. Gordon, Jr., of Danville, Va.; Robert R. Hopkins of York, S. C.

James E. Kidd and Edward R. Overstreet, Jr., both of Milledgeville, Ga.; Michael A. Lowrance and William B. Shearer, Jr., both of Macon, Ga.; Arthur H. McQueen of Queen of Loris; Frederick C. Meyers of Hinsdale, Ill.; William B. Neely III of Midland, Tex.; James V. Salvo, Jr., of Summerville; Mark D. Sullivan III of Kershaw; Robert P. Watts of Clinton; Thomas E. Williams of Pensacola, Fla.; and David T. Wood of Ware Shoals.

Currie Cites Early Blue Key Program

Blue Key President, Tom Currie, announced this week that the honorary fraternity is to continue its exchange program with Wofford and Newberry.

Currie also cited plans to work with the administration on entertaining various visiting groups.

The new advisor replacing Prof. Tommy Stalworth is Dr. Lewis Hay, a former P. C. Blue Key member himself.

Book Store Hours

Joe Prickett, college book store manager, announced that the book store will remain open during the following hours throughout this semester:

Mon.-Wed-Fri.—12:30-2:30
Tues. and Thurs.—10:00-11:00
Tuesday—1:30-2:30
Thursday—3:45-4:45

Ten New Professors Added For Current Academic Year

Ten new faculty members, including four with doctorates, are joining the Presbyterian College staff this year, and a former professor returns after a year's absence.

Dr. Marc C. Weersing, who assumed his duties in August as 14th president of PC, has announced this group of additions. They met with other faculty members officially for the first time for a two-day faculty retreat in preparation for the fall session.

Many New Additions

The additions—including two each for the history, English, psychology and physical education departments, and one each for biology, general science and geology, and the ROTC—are:

History—Dr. Thomas L. Connelly, professor, who holds his MA and PhD degrees from Rice University and his BA from David Lipscomb College of his native Nashville, Tenn.; Dr. Ronald D. Burnside, associate professor, a native of Vincennes, Ind., with BA degree from Wabash College and both MA and PhD degrees from Indiana University.

PC Alumnus

English—Dr. Hollis Cate, associate professor and acting department chairman ,an alumnus with BA degree from Presbyterian College, MA and PhD degrees from the University of Georgia, native of Brunswick, Ga.; Anthony E. Brown of Darlington, assistant professor, working toward his doctorate at Vanderbilt University after receiving both his BA and MA degrees from the University of South Carolina.

Psychology — Dr. Claude H. Cooler of Ridgeland, professor and guidance director, earned his BS degree from Clemson, his master's from the University of South Carolina and his PhD from Florida State University; Rev. James W. Anderson, Presbyterian minister of Lockhart who will serve as an instructor, received his BS from Tulane University, his BD from Austin Theological Seminary and has done additional post-graduate work at

Dr. Carter Instructs At Vandy This Summer

Dr. K. Nolon Carter, Chairman of the Presbyterian College chemistry department, served again this summer as a visiting professor at Vanderbilt University.

Dr. Carter, who has headed the PC department since 1951, taught organic chemistry in both sessions of the Vanderbilt summer school, which extended through August 24. This year marks the fourth summer he has served on the Vanderbilt summer school faculty.

Annual Giving Hits One-Third Figure

P. C. has hit the $23,593 mark for the current sector of its $75,000 annual giving program announced Pres. Mark Weersing, Monday.

Given by 629 alumni and friends, the funds are to be allotted for current needs and are in addition to the capital gifts made through the college development program.

Of the $15,200 Giving Endowment phase $2,669 has been added to bring the Walter Johnson Club total to $11,062.

Other gifts through the annual giving program will help underwrite academic scholarships, faculty salary increases, and departmental equipment.

Fifteen Complete Work For Degrees

Fifteen Presbyterian College students completed requirements for their degrees during the recent summer session, Registrar Roslyn Martin has announced.

She said they include ten to receive the bachelor of arts degres, five for bachelor of science degrees, all of which will be awarded at PC's regular commencement exercises next May 31.

These students are:

Bachelor of Arts Degree — James William Harris and Olive Matthews Warden, both of Clinton; Ennis Lilly Blackburn of Burlington, N .C.; Richard Kelly Bullock of Eastman, Ga.; John Lewis Gilkerson of Laurens; Ronald Wayne Hampton of Kannapolis, N. C.; Michael Doyle Jarrett of Toccoa, Ga.; Eduard Nussner Loring of Charlotte; Eugene Unger Moyer of Johnston; and Clifford Jardine Ray, Jr., of Denmark.

Bachelor of Science Degree — Samuel Pinckney Clayton of Greer; Edwin Caldwell Heintz of Anderson; William Richard Hill of McKeesport, Pa.; Lambert Whitfield Jordan, Jr., of Union; and George Washington Ragan, Jr., of Gastonia, N. C.

Dr. Brown Has SREB Position

Dr. Marshall W. Brown, retiring president of Presbyterian College, has been reappointed to another four-year term as one of the South Carolina representatives on the Southern Regional Education Board.

He was named by Governor Donald Russell to serve until July, 1967, with the 16-state compact which promotes the cause of higher education throughout the South. Dr. Brown is the only South Carolina representative and one of just five on the entire board who has served continuously since the establishment of SREB in 1949. Five governors have appointed him to this post through the years.

Scholarship Fund Given By Langley

An endowed scholarship fund has been established at Presbyterian College in memory of Arthur Buist Langley, late insurance executive of Columbia.

The fund is being given by his two children, Arthur F. Langley and Mrs. Genevieve Langley Heller ,both of Columbia. They plan to make periodic gifts to the PC PC endowment, and the interest is to be used for the memorial scholarship grants.

Long Friend

PC Development Vice-President James M. Oeland, in making the announcement June 26, pointed out that the late Arthur Buist Langley was a valued friend and former trustee of Presbyterian College, who attended every meeting of the board from 1940 to 1951 and served as executive committee chairman. He helped to organize the Carolina Life Insurance Co. of Columbia in 1902 and was a guiding force in its development for more than 50 years.

Arthur F. Langley served as first vice-president of Carolina Life until his retirement in 1961. Mrs. Genevieve Langley Heller is the wife of John G. Heller, who also was affiliated with Carolina Life as vice-president in charge of loans until his 1961 retirement.

Westminister Fellowship To Meet Sunday Evening

W. F. will have its first formal meeting this coming Sunday night at 6:45 at the First Presbyterian Church. There will be a short worship service followed by an introduction of the program for the year.

The group's president, Jimmy Stanford, urges all freshmen to attend along with upper classmen.

Chapel Services

Chapel Services for the coming week are as follows:

Monday—Dr. Joseph M. Gettys, Academic Dean.

Wednesday—Rev. Hugh Echelberger, Jr., Rock Presbyterian Church, Greenwood, S. C.

Friday—The Student Christian Association.

The Other Reform

THERE IS A NOTE of urgency surrounding the integration issue. The emphasis is on action now—on going to school together now—on having equal access to public accommodations now.

BY A SERIES of social reforms the Negro is going to lay the foundations for racial equality now. But no.

THERE ARE two errors here. What the Negro wants is not going to be accomplished now and it is not going to be accomplished merely by social reform. It is going to have to be accomplished by the Negro himself, within himself, over whatever period of time the necessary change requires.

THERE IS an almost innate cultural, intellectual, and moral gap which the Negro race must bridge. And right now it really doesn't look like the Negro can or wants to bridge the gap. He seems to lack the pride in himself that he must have to impel him upward.

THIS IS NOT an impossible thing that is required of him. For proof, one need only look at the huge list of outstanding people that the highly persecuted Jewish race has produced.

IT IS NOT enough that the Negro be equal merely to the extreme lower classes of white people—to achieve the acceptance he desires, he's got to equal, in large numbers, the white middle and upper classes. Until then he can expect no more opportunity to be extended to him than is extended to the apathetic lower classes of the white race.

POSITION IN this world, for better or worse, is related to social class as determined by cultural, intellectual, and moral advancement. No one hires or wants or needs the dregs of society in their business or home. This is not to say that the upper and middle classes have no responsibility for their less fortunate fellows. The do have a responsibility—but without a return effort from the other end, this responsibility is meaningless.

THE DOOR FOR Negro advancement is being opened—but the Negro himself still must walk through it before anything is achieved.

B. P.

Pass The Torch

WITH THE DAWNING of a new school year, a new Freshman class, a new President, a new athletic director, almost a new coaching staff, and many new professors, one glarming stigma still remains. Everyone is familiar with the plague that has rested upon us for several years. Frankly, school spirit has been dead.

NOW AN ALL-OUT effort is being made to revive the potential spirit of Presbyterian College. We have already seen the upstart of school spirit in athletics, but it must go further than that.

FROM THE FUNGUS that started in the athletic department (not in their feet), we hope it will grow into every phase of college life here at PC. Now that we have new and dedicated men in so many vital positions who are ready to lift the old, indifferent atmosphere, it is up to us, the students, to meet the challenge.

THE FRESHMEN have school spirit whether they like it or not. They're rats, that's their obligation—to support the school in all ways. It is also the obligation of upperclassmen, but it is no longer forced upon them. But they need to and should take it upon themselves without even thinking twice.

NOW THAT THE torch of spirit has been rekindled, let us, one and all, use it to light our own individual little inner fires. Let us burn, burn, burn for Presbyterian College.

JFK's Reconstruction Bill

by BOB PHIFER

The American Negro is on the move, and to help him President Kennedy has introduced his deplorable Civil Rights Bill of 1963 (S.1731).

Ostensibly the bill seems to protect the black man's rights—but it would do so by an unconstitutional usurpation of individual right, by an unconstitutional abridgement of state rights, and by a grossly unconstitutional extension of federal and executive powers.

The Foremost Outrage

For brevity's sake, only the bill's Title II, Public Accommodations, will be considered here. Out of the various outrageous titles in the whole bill, it stands foremost—for it is the one which strikes at the individual.

There are several amazing facts surrounding this title. The most astounding is that it is little more than a recapitulation of the Civil Rights Act of 1875.

Unconstitutional Then

This act struck directly at the individual business man by making it illegal for him to discriminate for reasons of race or color. The act was declared unconstitutional in 1883 by an 8-1 decision of the United States Supreme Court.

Now, 80 years later, President Kennedy has placed essentially the same bill before Congress.

The title begins by reciting somewhat vague "findings" of burdens laid upon interstate commerce by racial discrimination (such as refusing to intern a Negro in a motel). The bill proceeds to state that such discrimination is "in all cases encouraged, fostered or tolerated in some degree by the governmental authorities of the states in which they occur."

The Punch

Then comes the punch—"Such discriminatory practices, particularly when their cumulative effect throughout the nation is considered, take on the character of action by the States and therefore fall within the ambit of the equal protection clause of the 14th amendment to the Constitution of the United States."

The 14th amendment states that "no state shall make or enforce any law which shall . . . deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws."

A Transposition

Obviously, the trick here has been to transpose private discrimination into an act by the states—for only when there is a specific state action (as opposed to individual) can the 14th amendment be enforced.

The bill also takes its authority from the commerce clause of the Constitution, which empowers Congress "to regulate commerce among the several states." The "findings" referred to before state that the discriminations involved put a "serious and substantial" burden upon interstate commerce.

Vague Burdon

Just exactly how denying a negro service places a "burden" on interstate commerce seems unclear. It certainly places no special financial burden on anyone—to the contrary a man might most conceivably lose ten white customers for serving a Negro. Commerce would be affected then.

It follows then that the commerce clause has been "misappropriated." Thus it is seen that the constiutional grounds for the title are not sound.

Unconstitutional Purpose

But not only are the grounds for the title unconstitutional, but also what the title proposes to do is unconstitutional.

The Bill states that all persons, regardless of race, shall be entitled to full and equal enjoyment of: every hotel, every motel, every other public place lodging interstate travelers, every motion picture house, every theatre, every sports arena, every exhibition hall, or other place of public amusement involved in interstate commerce, every re-

THETA CHI

The Beta Psi chapter of Theta Chi Fraternity held its first meeting of the year on Tuesday evening with 100% of its members returning for the fall semester. The chapter is now completing plans for its social events and various other activities to be held during the coming year.

Congratulations are extended to Brother Bill Anderson who pinned Miss Jody Carter of Asheville, N. C. this summer.

KAPPA ALPHA

The brothers and pledges of Beta Pi salute the freshmen and transfer students—Welcome! To each is a hearty welcome down to our fraternity room.

At the meeting Tuesday night plans for the rush season were discussed as well as plans for the homecoming weekend. Tommy Williams, current No. 1, also made a report on his trip to the National Convention, which was held at the University of Oklahoma.

Thanks to the pledges and Brother Morris for the work they did on the fraternity room.

ALPHA SIGMA PHI

Alpha Psi of Alpha Sigma Phi would like to welcome all freshmen and transfer students to P. C. Congratulations on surviving Rat Season this far.

Next Wednesday night in the fraternity suite, the first open social will be held. All freshmen and transfer students are cordially invited. We hope you plan to come.

PI KAPPA PHI

Beta Chapter of Pi Kappa Phi extends a warm welcome to all freshmen and transfer students. We are looking forward to meeting and getting to know each freshman.

Beta Chapter is looking forward to its annual rush season and is planning its finest open social.

A party is being planned for the weekend of the Presbyterian-East Carolina game.

Congratulations to Brother Gordon Mayhugh on his recent marriage.

PI KAPPA ALPHA

The year's first meeting of Mu Chapter of Pi Kappa Alpha was held on September 17. Plans for the homecoming and Christmas Dance week-ends were discussed.

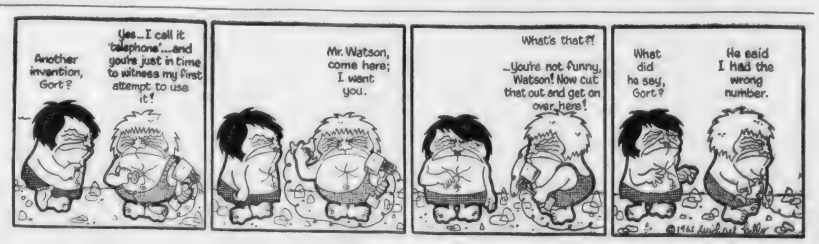
Work is being completed on the fraternity room after the change of appearance during the summer. A new decor for the suite is being planned.

A welcome to the new freshmen and transfer students is extended from the entire chapter.

Congratulations to brother Gary Jarret on his marriage this summer to Fran Jones and also to brother Tony Wilson who was married to Margaret Stump.

SIGMA NU

During our first meeting which started the 1963-64 program, brother Bill Gillespie was welcomed back and was also elected the Sentinel. Robert Stack was chosen as chaplin.



It was discussed to have a party following the Lenoir-Rhyne footabll game. Ways were also discussed in which the chapter could best support Coach Gault's appeal to the student body.

Zeta Theta would like to welcome the freshmen and transfer students to P. C. and invite all new students to visit our fraternity house.

Speaking of Sports

with AL PEARCE

"...There's Been No Spirit Around Here."

It was fitting and proper that the first chapel in this new school year, a year in which changes in every phase of PC's life have been seen, was the sounding board for what can be called "The New Attitude at Presbyterian College."

Too Apathetic

For the first time in several years the question of school spirit and school support for the athletic program was placed right squarely before a student body that has been oft apathetic concerning the question. By admission of many, school spirit has been lagging since the glorious Tangerine Bowl team of 1959 left the field. Granted, it is only human nature to get enthused over a winner. Conversely, it's not easy to muster school spirit for a losing cause.

Rude Awakening

The talks by Coaches Gault, Tiller and Musselman caught many sleeping students by surprise. Apparently many expected to hear soft words and pleas to support the team. What they heard instead, were more on the lines of a pep talk. The students have given lip service to this school spirit, particularly during the weeks prior to a home game. The "ginning" of freshmen and their pep rallies have put it out into the open for all to see and admire. The Saturday nights at Walter Johnson Field have proved a different story, though.

Better Chances

As stated before, school spirit is impossible to generate when the chances of winning often seem nil. This year it is certain that the chances are going to be much better than in the past two years, but this hope is not in the form of a dream. Under the dedicated leadership of Gault, Tiller, Vickers and Musselman, and the determined efforts of the entire football team, the wins will come this year. The boys want to win badly, and the coaches are instilling in them a kind of spirit that has not been seen in recent seasons. The practice sessions are rough and tough and everyone is fired up and ready to win. The staff and the team have the spirit . . . now the student body must get it.

United Paladins

When the student body is neatly tucked away at the far end of the ball field, far from the focal point of action, and when there is often mass confusion among the students in regards to cheers and songs, and when the freshmen are not even required to sit in a body, then how do we expect the team to profit from our enthusiasm? At Furman last week-end the students, each equipped with a noise-maker of some sort, sat right on the 50-yard line, cheerleaders before them, freshmen in the center, yelling together and going almost wild at the sight of that big white stallion. Even in the cold and the rain, it was an exciting sight.

Improvements

Surely a set-up like that over here would give us more of a feeling of togetherness and co-operation, and after all, isn't that what school spirit really is. The present seating plan does not allow for this. If not choice seats, certainly better ones. The mass seating of all students, with "rats" in the center would be a definite improvement—and improvements we need.

Blue What?

How does one get excited over a blue hose? Furman has its Mounted Paladin, Georgia Tech has its Ramblin' Wreck, U. C. L. A. has its Trojan horse, and Davidson has its Wildcat. The closest in recent years that PC has gotten to matching one of these was in 1961 when head cheerleader Guy Hancock rode an old decorated bicycle around the track after each PC score, mocking the Furman Paladin that PC students had seen so much of two weeks before. Any symbol of spirit would be better than what we now have.

"Dirty Al"

Along with the efforts of the coaching staff, the Freshman Control Board has done wonders with the freshmen. Alvin Coley and his boys have instilled within the "rats" the spirit that we should all have. Wednesday night's march to the practice session and the response there was a jewel of a move on the Board's part.

"A Hot Time . . ."

The smoldering cinders of Mondays' chapel should be a full blaze by Saturday night, September 28, when PC opens its home schedule against Lenoir-Rhyne College and their bear. Freshmen will gin "Beat Lenoir-Rhyne, Sir", noise-makers will rock Walter Johnson Field as they did at Sirrine Stadium, and maybe even a Rootin, Tootin' Blue Hose will circle the field after each PC score, to the obvious delight of every student. Just maybe.

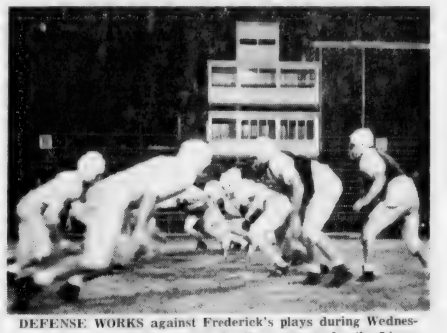
Blue Hose Invade Virginia To Face Frederick In Opener

by GLENN BROWDER

Presbyterian College will open its 1963 football season tomorrow night when the Blue Hose unveil their new split-T offense against Frederick College at Portsmouth, Va.

The Hosemen arrived at Portsmouth this afternoon, and held a loosening up drill to keep "up" for this first game. They'll sleep tonight in the barracks of Frederick College, a former military school, and then move over to Portsmouth for the game.



PC has been ranked a five-point underdog to the Lions by one major power rating, but this margin is due probably to Frederick's opening 7-6 win over Elon. The team spirit has been excellent in pre-season camp, and Wednesday night's practice under the lights at Johnson field was the best session yet. Add to this the enthusiastic support te hschool and students have given the team, and you have the right ingredients for a PC win.

Coach Cally Gault has called this game the most important one on the 1963 schedule because of the young players on the squad, last year's dismal record, and the feeling that the Blue Hose need a first game victory to send them on their way.

Frederick showed a really good passing attack in their first game, and has a fast backfield to back it up. They have tremendous linemen, evidenced by Elon's meager 6 points.

PC will open with Senior Bill Tyson at quarterback, and Largest Tennis Tournament Has Top Players Advancing

One of the largest intramural tennis tournaments held in the South is winding up its first week here today, and match play is proceeding according to predictions. The eight seeded entrants all easily won their opening matches to advance in the single elimination event. Play will resume on Monday.

The tournament is being run by the Intramural Council and chairman Don Warlick and faculty advisor Gordan Warden are highly pleased with the number of students who registered for the event. Including professors, administration officials, coeds freshmen and transfer students, over 125 will play. Size alone would make the tournament as interesting as it is, but the quality of play is surprisingly strong, for none of the entrants is a varsity player.

Big Eight

The eight seeded players include: Bill Gillespie at number 1, John Sheffield at number 2, Larry Connelly, number 3, Al Gerdsen holding down number 4, at number 5 is Creighton Likes, Tom Currie is number 6, Glen Browder is 7, followed by coed Amelia Nichols at number 8. All present indications point towards two of the seeded players to fight it out for the winner and runner-up trophies, which will be presented at the conclusion of the championship match.

The tournament is the initial event on an intramural calendar that will encompass more this year than in years past. P. C. has always been applauded for its emphasis on intramural sports, with upwards of 85% of the student body participating in one or more of the dozen organized activities.

Seven Lettermen Return For Basketball Campaign

by ED HENDERSON

Presbyterian College will boast seven returning lettermen as well as a new head coach as it looks toward a tough winter schedule of intercollegiate basketball. The Hose completed their first week of preseason practice this week, with physical conditioning the order of the day.

As far as coaching ability and basketball knowledge go, P. C. will not be at a loss this year. Art Musselman, an All-Southern Conference guard at The Citadel in his senior year of 1961, will take over the coaching reins from Charles Musselwhite, who coached here for 3 seasons. In 1961 Musselman was named the outstanding college basketball player in the state.

Fifteen Out Of Twenty

In the words of Coach Musselman, "As athletes, the boys have the ability; the only thing that could hurt us would be grades. We're gunning for 15 wins from a schedule of 20 games; anything over that we'll also take."

-ColO'PWallugseyoyo

As for the opening game on December 3rd against Belmont Abbey in Gastonia, N. C. Coach Musselman says, "In the past Belmont Abbey has been very tough. I played against them in college and in the service, and I know their caliber of basketball. The toughest games will probably come from The Citadel, Newberry, Erskine, Wofford, with Cumberland of Tennessee as a possible sleeper, here in Clinton on February 17.

Karlsons To Pace

Pacing the 1963-64 Blue Hose will be Captain Andy Karlsons, a high scoring senior forward from New York City; Danny Charles, a junior forward from Spartanburg; Doug Allen, a sophomore center from Sumter; John Etchison, a sophomore guard from Indianapolis, Ind.; Bill Tallent, a junior guard from Langley, Ky.; Gordan Adam, a sophomore guard from Bloomfield, Ky.; and forward from Chester. All of the Jimmy Bankhead, a sophomore returnees are lettermen.

New men will include two freshmen, Billy Petty of York and Jimmy Wooten of Lewisville, with Bill "Moose" Brown, an outstanding intramural player of last year winding out the squad.

Fifty-Nine On Dean's List; Five Post All "A" Records

Five all-A students were among the 59 young scholars who made the Dean's List at Presbyterian College for the second semester of the 1962 session, Dean Joseph M. Gettys announced July 16.

Perfection

Achieving a perfect record were: Marion Boozer of Gaffney, Fleda K. Earle of Laurens, Mary Ann Kirkland of Moncks Corner, Robert Piephoff of Greenville and Hubert G. Wardlaw, Jr., of Kingstree.

Seven other students narrowly missed the perfect mark and finished the spring semester with an average of 3.75 out of a possible 4.00. They were: Mrs. Dixie Reed Gooch, Amelia Nichols and Mrs. Olive M. Warden, all of Clinton; Rebecca Earnest of Macon, Ga.; Thomas E. Hearon III of Bethune; John L. Setzler of Kingstree; and Wirt Skinner of Decatur, Ga.

Above Three-Five

In the 3.50 bracket of the Dean's List were: Julian C. Coats, Mrs. Tanya Taylor Goff, and James W. Harris, all of Laurens; Ted Elders of Valdosta, Ga.; William E. Anderson, Jr., of Asheville, N. C.; Joe Harvard of Columbia; Mrs. Anne R. Holland of Clinton; William B. Lowry of Chester; Janet E. Maddox and Robert F. Phifer, both of Saprtanburg; Henry A. Manning, Jr., of Marietta, Ga.; Margaret F. Marion of Columbia; James Owens of Greenwood; Arthur Pickett III of Atlanta; and Louis Powell of Wallace, N. C.

Large Group Qualifies

The 32 students who qualified in the 3.20 bracket included: Chris Beukema and Jean Gettys, both of Clinton; Arthur Baxter and Roland F. Matson, both of Atlanta; Lorenzo Eagles and Thomas A. Whitaker, both of Florence; Byron H. Brown of Laurens; Gary E. Brown of St. Petersburg, Fla.; Glen Browder of Sumter; Ponce DeLeon Bullard of Bainbridge, Ga.; Isaac W. Cobb of Decatur, Ga.; Joseph Coleman of Tifton, Ga.; Mary E. Ferran of Eustis, Fla.; Wayne Fowler of Manchester, Ga. Douglas Gaydon of Powder Springs, Ga.; Griffin Helwig of Tampa, Fla.; John D. Henderson, Jr., of South Miami, Fla.; Benny Hurley of Clover; Tracy Jennings of Melbourne, Fla.; James H. Johnson, Jr., of Georgiana, Ala.; John G. Kanouff of New Kinsington, Pa.; Henry H. Knox of Walterboro; Eugene Moyer of Johnston; Alexander Patrick of Taylors; James Salvo of Summerville; James Settle of Asheville; Phillip Smith of Gainesville, Ga.; Robert G. St. Clair of Fort Mill; Sam Waters of North Charleston; Garnet Welch of Logansport, Ind.; Christine Wilson of Monroe, N. C.; and David T. Wood of Ware Shoals.

tail shop, every department store, every market, every drugstore, every gas station, every restaurant, every lunchroom, every lunch counter, every soda fountain — in short, every establishment holding out goods for public consumption. The catch clause is that a substantial portion of the goods involved has moved in interstate commerce.

Awesome Power

As one State Commission on Constitutional Government put it there is "no place . . . beyond the tiniest roadside stand of which it may be said that a substantial portion of its goods . . . has not moved in interstate commerce." The extent of possible power is awesome. It extends right down to the individual.

What is threatened here is the citizen's right to discriminate—regardless of whether or not he makes the right decision. This right is the primieval precept upon which the entire American System is built. Mr. Kennedy's title removes the meaning of this precept for certain merchants and, what is perhaps even worse, begins a pattern for future Federal intervention.

The contention is that this title should never become a law of the United States of America.

Football Opener

Jackie Nix and Leighton Grantham will stand ready to move in. Randy McCranie will have to carry most of the load at fullback, but there's a stable of shifty halfbacks to help the ground game. Don McNeill, and Rut Galloway will handle the right-half post, and Bill Riner and Wade Stewart will run at left half.

The biggest "hurt" in the backfield is the loss of Ronnie Morris, who would have been available to bust the line as a fullback or halfback. He's gone for the season with a busted knee. Otherwise the team is in good shape. Riner has a slightly injured shoulder but he'll be ready to go come gametime.

Along the line there will be plenty of beef to hold any Lion who wants to run through the middle. Frank King and either Sam Lyons or John Harvey Edwards will man the tackles, and Randy Fitzpatrick and Pat Sudduth are the guards. Big Keith Richardson will start at center; and with Jimmy Bankhead and Garnet Welch at the ends, this front line averages 213 pounds.

On Campus with Max Shulman

(By the Author of "Rally Round the Flag, Boys!" and, "Barefoot Boy With Cheek.")

ONCE MORE UNTO THE BREACH, DEAR FRIENDS

Today I begin my tenth year of writing this column in your campus newspaper. Ten years is a long time; it is, in fact, what some scholarly people like to call a decade—from the Latin word decem, meaning the floor of a ship. It is, to my mind, remarkable that the Romans had such a word as decem when you consider that ships did not exist until 1620 when John Alden invented the Mayflower. Alden, a prodigiously ingenious man, also invented the ear lobe and Pocahontas.

Ships were a very popular mode of travel—especially over water—until 1912 when the Swede, Ivar Krueger, invented the iceberg. Krueger also invented the match, which is a good thing, because without the match, how would you light your Marlboro Cigarettes? I cannot overstress the importance of lighting your Marlboro Cigarettes, for Marlboro Cigarettes, unlighted, provide, at best, only limited smoking pleasure.

You might even call it the limp or spongy sell

I mention Marlboros because this column is an advertisement, brought to you through the school year by the makers of Marlboros. Marlboros come in soft pack or Flip-Top box. The makers of Marlboros come in dark suits with thin lapels —except on weekends when they come in yoke-neck jerseys and white duck trousers. White ducks come in flocks. They are primarily fresh water dwellers, although they have been successfully raised in salt water too. Another salt water denizen I'm sure you will find enjoyable is plankton—a mess of tiny organisms like diatoms and algae and like that which float sluggishly near the surface of the sea. It is ironic that these creatures, microscopic in size, should supply the principal source of food for the earth's largest animal, the whale. Whales, I must say, are not at all pleased with this arrangement, because it takes the average whale, eating steadily, 48 hours to gather a day's meal. This leaves them almost no time for water sports or reading Melville. It is a lucky thing for all of us that whales are unaware they are mammals, not fish, and could, if they tried, live just as well on land as in water. I mean, you add ten or twelve million whales to our Sunday traffic and you would have congestion that makes the mind boggle.

But I digress. Today, I was saying, I begin my tenth year of writing this column for Marlboro Cigarettes in your campus newspaper. I will, in each column, say a few kind words about Marlboros—just as you will, once you try that fine tobacco flavor, that pristine white filter, that supple soft pack, that infrangible Flip-Top box. These references to Marlboro will be brief and unobtrusive, for I do not believe in the hard sell. What I favor is the soft sell—you might even call it the limp or spongy sell. I hasten to state that the makers of Marlboro in ten full years have not once complained about my desultory sales approach. Neither have they paid me.

But that is of small consequence. Aside from fleeting mentions of Marlboro, this column has another, and more urgent, mission: to cast the hot white light of free inquiry upon the vexing questions that trouble college America—questions like "Should the Student Council have the power to levy tariffs? and "Are roommates sanitary?" and "Should housemothers be compelled to retire upon reaching the age of 26?"

Perhaps, reasoning together, we can find the answers. Perhaps not. But if we fail, let it never be said that it was for want of trying.

I thank you.

© 1963 Max Shulman

The makers of Marlboro are happy to bring you another year of Max Shulman's unpredictable and uncensored column—and also happy to bring you fine filtered Marlboros, available in pack or box, wherever cigarettes are sold in all 50 states.

Absurd Play To Be Given During Chapel Next Month

Edward Albee's "The Sandbox" will be presented in chapel on Oct. 18 under the direction of instructor D. Wayne Gunn.

Mr. Albee has written this play for The Theater of Absurd, a theatrical movement of the last ten years which sees life as essentially meaningless and therefore incapable of tragedy. Consequently all plays of this class are farces.

"The Sandbox" will be preceded by a curtain-raiser pantomime by Samuel Beckett, an Irish immigrant to Paris who began the entire movement with his play, "Waiting for Godet."

Tryouts To Be Held

Mr. Gunn announced that tryouts will be held Oct. 5 and 6, in the old auditorium from 6:30 to 7:30. Parts are available for two men and two women. Also a violinist or guitarist is needed for a non-speaking role.

Mr. Gunn emphasized that practice would be arranged to avoid conflicts with weekend activities.

Later plans include a play to be presented under the direction of new English professor Anthony C. Brown.

Chapel Choir Adds Eighteen Freshmen

Eighteen new freshman members have been added to the Presbyterian College Robed Choir, announced choir President Tom Knox this week. This brings the total membership for the 1963-64 choir to forty-five.

The new "double quartet plus four" has also been chosen for this year. PC's traveling Robed Choir will be picked at a later date, stated Knox.

The new "double quartet 1st tenors, Jim Ritchie, Mark Verdery; 2nd tenors, Bill Hanger, Rick Carpenter, John Jones, Sandy Yates; 1st basses, Tony Miller, Earlie Rash, Claude Wells, Bruce Lawrence, Danny Boone; 2nd basses, Jim Stanford, Woody Hall, Jim Lumley, Dick Martin, Bill Quinn, Spike Yarbrough and David Wyatt.

The double quartet members are: Paul Conger, Scott Smith, Woody McGinn, Jack Green, Arthur DeYoung, Jan Rhodes, Lewis Hay, Brad Campbell, Phil Burns, David Worth, G. Wardlaw, and Dick Martin.

Theta Chi Has Top Academic Standing

PC fraternity men have once again topped the non-fraternity men in average grade point ratios. The fraternity average for the 1963 Spring semester was 2.45 as opposed to the over-all undergraduate average of 2.36, and the independents' average of 2.27.

Theta Chi led the fraternities with an average grade point ratio of 2.60, followed closely by Pi Kappa Phi at 2.59.

Alpha Sigma Phi posted an average of 2.50 while Kappa Alpha, Pi Kappa Alpha and Sigma Nu averaged 2.44, 2.40, and 2.18, respectively.

Over One Thousand Youths Coming Here

Plans are being completed for a Presbyterian Youth Day on the PC campus Saturday, October 5. Sponsored by the Presbyterian College Department of Public Relations and Alumni Affairs, Youth Day will give members of the Senior High Fellowships in the Synod of South Carolina a taste of college life and a look at the PC campus.

Over one thousand seniors have made tentative plans to attend the activities which will get underway with registration at 3:30 in Douglas House.

Plans include a welcome by members of the student body to be followed by a dinner and the East Carolina-PC game at 8:00.

1963 Fraternity Rush Begins; Alpha Sigs Hold Open Social

The Alpha Sigma Phi open social heralded in the 1963 rush season here Wednesday night. An open social will now be held each week until the remaining six fraternities have held this event to which all male students in their first semester at PC are invited.

SOCIAL DATES

The remaining socials fall in the following order:

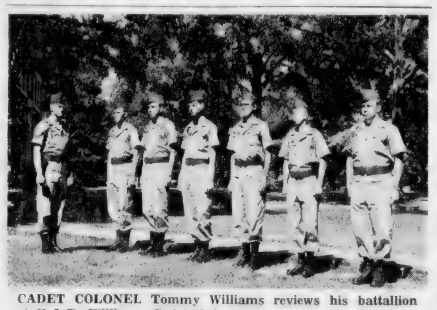
Pi Kappa Phi, Oct. 2; Theta Chi, Oct. 9; Pi Kappa Alpha, Oct. 16; Sigma Nu, Oct. 23; and Kappa Alpha, Oct. 30.

INFORMAL PARTIES

Between Oct. 30 and Dec. 3, the fraternities will individually schedule various informal rush parties, leading up to the final and most intensive week of rush activity, closed smokers.

IN SUCCESSION

The smokers are scheduled for successive nights, with Pi Kappa Phi opening on Dec. 3.



A CULMINATION

The climax to rushing will come with Pledge Day, Dec. 12.

Christmas Dance Weekend, Dec. 13 and 14, will cap the full two weeks.

Rules For Rush Activities Reprinted From Knap-Sack

In the interest of both upperclassmen and freshmen the Blue Stocking has reprinted from the "Knapsack" excerpts of the IFC Constitution governing rush activities.

All dances, open socials, or closed socials, when ladies attend must be registered in the office of the Dean of Students two weeks prior to the event. This registration must include, among other things, the names of the chaperones. Young ladies must not be taken to the fraternity rooms or to college social rooms at any time unless a minimum of three couples, or a chaperone is present. It will be the duty of the IFC, assisted by the officers of each fraternity, to have chaperones at all socials. Suggested chaperones include fraternity brothers with their wives, faculty couples, or members, couples from the college community, and designated chaperones from other schools.

OPEN SOCIALS

Each fraternity has one social beginning the last Wednesday of September. Open socials will be on Wednesday night (8:00-12:00). They are open to all male students in their first semester at PC. These men are urged to attend all open socials.

SMOKERS

Each fraternity has one smoker. Smokers will begin the first Wednesday after Thanksgiving, and continue on successive nights, Saturday and Sunday excepted. Smoker attendance will be by written invitation only.

QUIET PERIOD

Quiet Period begins at the close of the final smoker and continues until 6:00 p. m. of the Pledging Day. During Quiet Period fraternity men will not speak to or be seen in the company of non-fraternity men.

PLEDGING

Pledging Day will be the Thursday after the Last Smoker. Pledge ballots will be cast from 2:00-4:00 p. m. of Pledge Day in the place specified by the IFC.

Westminster Fellowship Will Show Movie Sunday

"The Eye the Beholder", short film on group dynamics, will be shown at the Westminster Fellowship meeting this Sunday night. The group will meet at 6:45 in the First Presbyterian Church.

On Thursday night, Oct. 3, the WF has been invited by the Winthrop WF for supper and a dance afterwards. Reservations can be made at WF Sunday night or through Jim Stanford who rooms in Smyth C. 131.

Tuition, Fees Upped For Next Fall Term

An increase in tuition and board fees at Presbyterian College was announced publicly Monday in a general letter to all students' parents. The letter, signed by college president, Dr. Marc Weersing, stated that an increase of $90 a semester in overall fees will become effective with the fall semester beginning September 7, 1964.

Explaining that the increase is due to the continuing advance in operating costs, the letter stipulated that $60 of the $90 would be for tuition, $12.50 for room rent, $12.50 for board, and $5.00 for general fees. Thus, with the start of the 1963-64 session, a day student will pay $450 a semester, and resident students will pay $787.50.

This represents an over-all increase for day students of from $770 a year to $900 a

The Pied Piper Here?

WITH THE INAUGURAL words to the student body by President Weersing in chapel last Monday the stage was set. It was set for Presbyterian to move to new and greater heights. The germ for the change could be seen as Dr. Weersing challenged students to uphold school spirit. With his request for applause for the football team, he movingly quipped, "And some of you had better clap!" From the figure on stage could be seen a man who was going to work hard for Presbyterian College.

FROM THE SHORT CONTACT the student body has had with its new president ,it is already plain to see that we are most fortunate to have such a capable man. Few can deny he is a man to be looked up to (in more ways than one). In the six foot six frame of Marc Weersing rests an extremely vital key to the future of Presbyterian, a key we feel will open the hearts of many people and the doors to many heights.

Taking Hold

THE FRESHMAN RAT Season represents an integral and vital part of the total influence that Presbyterian College brings to bear on an individual. It is the catalyst for the transition from high school to college; for through Rat season the freshmen are thrown quickly into an intimate contact with their school.

AS IMPORTATNT, if not more important than the orientation value of Rat Season, is its value as a tradition of Presbyterian College. It is a colorful and distinct part of the life of every student.

BUT PRESSURES are being exerted that if allowed to continue and grow will make Rat Season a Mouse Season. The stringency and extent of the present system would be cut. Possibly, enough pressure could even be brought to bear so that Rat Season would be shortened by next year. It all heads toward no Rat Season in years to come.

RAT SEASON accomplishes its purpose by its bluff and gruff, by its signs, by its chores done for upperclassmen, by its Rat Courts, by freshmen fishing on the main street of Clinton. And to cut the extent of the season—to cut its bluff, its gruff, its Rat Courts—would be to make it an empty sham.

TO SHORTEN it would also be an unforgivable error. For Rat Season to be effective it must last a certain length of time. True, in previous years it has been extended to the point of tedium. But the present system of four weeks seems to be ideal.

WE CONTEND that Rat Season, as it is now, is neither too harsh nor too time-consuming for what it must do. It is an extremely useful tool that also serves as a colorful tradition.

It should remain that way.

Don't Raid Wofford

PC ALREADY has one athletic trophy in the bag this year, or rather almost has. For the past several years the Wofford and PC Blue Key Chapters have sponsored an exchange of trophies based on the outcome of the year's sporting contest between the two colleges.

ONE POINT IS GIVEN for each victory and the school with the most wins for the past year and receives the other's trophy in a ceremony at the half-time of the PC-Wofford football game, our Homecoming game this year. With a win in football, a 1-1 split in both basketball and baseball, and a sweep in track for last year, the contest seems to be in the bag.

HOWEVER, the contest also provides for one point being subtracted from the guilty party's score for every act of vandalism against the other school. This is where the almost in the above "almost has" comes in. In fact, this was the reason the exchange was set up---to try to channel school spirit away from acts of vandalism which the strong rivalry between PC and Wofford often led to. PC has yet to lose a point for this reason and this year should be no exception.

High Tea at Jean's

by BILL CULP

The following story is true, only certain names have been changed to protect the reputation of Presbyterian College.

I was first introduced to Jean last year on my 21st birthday, having spent my previous 20 years in a very retarded phase of my life. A fellow English major, one who had taken great interest in my development in all phases of life except those which the school is intended to cover, was the mesenger from the gods who led me to this last remaining refuge from intellectual snobbery.

Upon entering Jean's abode, we proceeded to find ourselves a good seat away from some of her less desirable friends, two of whom had just been thrown out of the dining room. You will notice that Jean has many friends, coming in all sizes and types, but with a common reason for visiting her. This reason, the same which had overcome Termite and me, was the wonderful tea which was served.

After we had waited for a minute for some attention from Jean, a young boy, about twelve years old, came over and said, "Yea?"

"Give us two fish bowls, kid," said Termite, who was anxiously awaiting his first of the delicious tea. It took the boy about a minute to get it, although it seemed much longer to us.

"That's seventy cents," the boy said dryly. We each had the correct change and so we were rid of the boy before he died, an event which seemed to be rapidly approaching.

"Go on, my good man, give it a try," said Termite, patiently awaiting for me to start.

"Wow," I said after my first sip.

"You like it?" asked Termite.

"You are darn right I do, Termite! Does Jean have more than one kind of tea?"

"What do you think this is, some low class dump? Jean has every kind of tea. Jean has American tea, Holland tea, German tea, and probaly some 'tiny little tea leaves' tea."

We finished our tea in silence, but soon I was very anxious to know more about this new experience. "Termite, I feel rather strange."

"You just think you feel strange. Have a few more fishbowls of tea and you will really have an experience."

So I gulped several more bowls and evidently Termite felt I was having too much of an experience, for he began to pull me up from my comfortable position on the floor and directed me towards the door.

"But I don't want to leave, Termite. I have just gotten started good. Maybe, if I drink a few more, Smyth will look decent when I get back."

"Jean doesn't have that much tea!"

"Oh, all right, I'll go, but we will have to come back down tomorrow night."

On the way out I had to say goodbye to everyone in the place. Even the women along one side of the room didn't look too bad, any more.

While returning to the dorm, we were met by two Bob Jones boys who looked as if they had just found an opportunity to defeat Satan once and for all. I just couldn't make them believe tea, and not doing the terrible things which they seemed to harp upon. After fifteen minutes of hearing about the fires of hell

ALPHA SIGMA PHI

Parties, parties, parties were discussed at the last meeting of the brotherhood. An informal drop-in has been planned Saturday night after the Lenoir Rhyne football game. All freshmen and transfer students are invited. Plans are also taking shape for Homecoming Weekend and many Alpha Sigs anticipate a tremendous weekend.

Congratulations are extended to Brothers Canady, Guy, and Bramlette on their recent pinning. Also congratulations go out to Brother Tom Blackwell, who was married this summer.

KAPPA ALPHA

Brothers and pledges of Beta Pi are looking forward to meeting all freshmen and transfer students at a pre-game Tea Dance to be held at the Mary Musgrove Hotel. The combo party will be held between 2:00-6:00 with the Vandals playing.

All new students are also invited to a record party which will be held in the fraternity room following the game.

PI KAPPA ALPHA

The brothers of Mu chapter met on September 24 in their recently redecoraed suite. Plans were completed for the Lenoir Rhyne, East Carolina, and Homecoming weekends.

All freshmen are cordially invited to attend a record party in the fratrenity suite following the ball game. Freshmen are also invited to enjoy TV, ping pong, and other games every Monday night in the fraternity suite.

Congratulations go to brothers Bill Russell and Jimmp Cape on their engagements this summer and also to brother Jack Kuhne on his recent pinning.

PI KAPPA PHI

Beta Chapter of Pi Kappa Phi is looking forward to entertaining the freshmen and transfer students at its open social on the second of October. Girls, refreshments, and a good time are assured for all.

We are proud to see the PC football team start its season by defeating Frederick College 19-9; and we feel sure that Coach Gault and his Mighty Blue Hose can do the same to Lenoir Rhyne this weekend at Johnson Stadium.

Congratulations to Brothers Dwight Moseley and Sherwood Florence on their recent initiation into the Brotherhood.

SIGM ANU

Plans for the East Carolina game were discussed, as Zeta Theta will be one of the three fraternities participating in the special pep plans for that game. Also Homecoming and rush activities were outlined as well as early ideas for the open social.

THETA CHI

Beta Psi Chapter wholeheartedly congratulates the football team on their victory over Frederick College last week, and wishes them victory over Lenoir Rhyne tomorrow night.

Plans have been completed for the redecorating of the Fraternity Suite to be finished by November.

All Freshmen, transfer students, and their dates are invited to an Open House in the Fraternity suite on the third floor of Neville Hall after the Lenoir Rhyne game Saturday night.

Congratulations are extended to Brother Hunter Coleman on his recent pinning of Miss Trudie Nagel, a Junior at the University of South Carolina.

PC Out To Show That LR Not 25 Points Better

PC can beat Lenoir Rhyne tomorrow night!

Lenoir Rhyne is rated 25 points over us, but there are two big errors in this power rating prediction. (1) The Bears are coasting right now on last year's outstanding record—the ratings at the start of each season rely heavily on the past season's showing; (2) and although they won last weekend 16-6, the Bears were outplayed by Wofford in both passing and rushing, trailing the Terriers 267 to 315 in total yards.

One Can't Replace Three

Lenoir Rhyne lost two All-Americans and another starting back from last year's backfield, and although they have a horse in freshman Craig Wardlaw, he can't make up for these losses to their single wing.

Lions Are Believers

On the other hand, PC has a lot going its way. We have inherited the role of "patsy" from last season's record, and all the sprotswriters from this area of the South consider us underdogs. There are about forty battered Frederick College Lions who'll tell you that we aren't the pushover we should be according to power rating "experts."

Gault Speaks

As Coach Gault has pointed out, the Hosemen have passed a major hurdle with last week's victory, and if we can win this one we'll be all right the rest of the way. "I know we have a good team," the likeable head coach asserted with a quiet sincerity which carried no tone of braggadocio.

Spirit Everywhere

The team feels it has a good chance to win too, not boastfulness but simple confidence. We have a good, strong line and some halfbacks who can run. Fullback is shallow, but the way Randy McCranie is hustling, he'll be able to handle that job capably by himself. Quarterback, perhaps the weak spot last year, has two good men to back up Senior Bill Tyson, who seems to have gained the confidence to do the job well.

"Bimbo" Booms

Frank King, PC's co-captain tackle, voiced the team's general opinion when he said that "Although it will take a great effort, we think we can do alright tomorrow night."

I think they will do alright, too.

Looking around at other games this weekend involving South Carolina schools, I predict these results.

EAST CAROLINA OVER WOFFORD

East Carolina is trying to go big time in football, and they have a pretty fair team, which runs from the single wing. Wofford on the other hand seems shallow in experience, and at least for this game, deep in trouble.

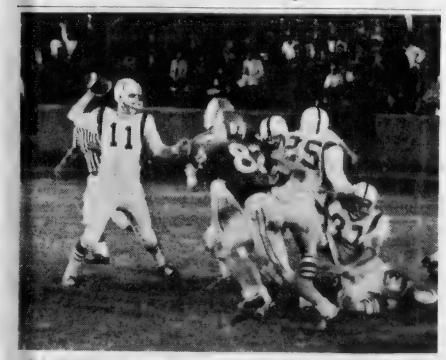
CLEMSON OVER GEORGIA TECH

Tech is supposed to be loaded with Lothridge and Martin, according to the Georgia boys on campus. But Clemson is pretty strong, too, and the Tiger should be quite angry after his Western vacation.

FURMAN OVER GEORGE WASHINGTON

Barring a letdown after last week's win, Furman should defeat GW. The Paladin could be upset by this Southern Conference sister, however.

SOUTH CAROLINA OVER MARYLAND



The Gamecocks have the potential, if the jitters don't hit them as happened last week. They're young but may bounce back in this game.

CATAWBA OVER NEWBERRY

Catawba probably will have no trouble with Newberry, but it won't be because they upset Davidson last week. Newberry just has too many new men in key positions to take advantage of the Gorman-Haley duo.

CITADEL OVER DAVIDSON

The Citadel played William and Mary a good game, and Davidson hasn't looked like a winner in two outings.

Three Who Will Anchor LR Line

THREE REASONS why Lenoir Rhyne's opponents find rushing through the line so tough are Jerry Kandzer (82), a letterman end; Andre Correll (74), a letterman tackle; and Captain Howard Barnhardt (51), a letterman center. All three will probably start, and they will have a busy night tomorrow evening containing PC's explosive backfield.—Photos by Harris.

Blue Hose Tangle With Lenoir Rhyne Tomorrow In Season's Home Opener

by AL PEARCE

Fresh from an opening game win over Wofford last week, the Lenoir Rhyne Bears will bring a well balanced scoring attack into Walter Johnson Field here tomorrow night to take on the rejuvenated Presbyterian College Blue Hose. Kick-off time will be 8:00 o'clock for the home debut of the Hose, and will mark Coach Cally Gault's first appearance before his alma mater in the position of coach.

With a light, quick-striking team, the Bears will run from their traditional single-wing attack. As every good single-wing team must have, Lenoir Rhyne has a multi-talented tailback in freshman Craig Wardlaw. Wardlaw scored both of LR's touchdowns in last week's 16-6 win over the Terriers, as he rushed for 133 yards in 24 carries, while passing 6 times for 49 additional yards. The entire team could only amass 186 rushing yards and 81 through the air. The 6 foot, 165-pound speedster from Charlotte seems to be the key man in the Bears' offense.

Veteran Line

The forward wall for Lenoir Rhyne will average right at 190 pounds, with the backfield weighing in at about 172 per man. The line, from end to end, is a veteran crew, with all the starters being lettermen. Leading the charge will be Captain Howard Barnhardt, a 200-pound senior center from Landis, N. C. Barnhardt doubles as the center line-backer on defense, proving his ruggedness and versatility.

In addition to Wardlaw in the backfield, LR will have three lettermen to create more defensive problems for the Hose. Although none of the starters last week, besides Wardlaw, rushed for any substantial gains, they will, nevertheless, be dangerous.

Ailing Defense

The defensive phase of the Bears' game seemed slack last week, as Wofford out-gained them 315 to 267. Wofford ran through and around the Lutherans for 211 net yards, and passed over them for 104 more yards. If the LR defense is that slack tomorrow night, the Big Blue may pull an upset, as they did last week.

Warden Releases I-M Slate; Largest Program In History

The biggest intramural sports program in the history of Presbyterian College has gotten off to a fast start this year with a record number of participants in the first two events on the schedule.

The All-Campus Tennis Tournament is now in its second week and a champion will be crowned within a few days time. The 125 entries may well make this tournament one of the largest of its kind in the entire country.

'63 Championship

Nine teams, three more than last year, began fighting it out this week for the 1963 intramural football championship. By November, the top four teams in the final team standings will playoff for the championship, and the all-star team will be selected. Post-season games are planned against Furman, Erskine and Newberry.

These two opening events on the 1963-64 schedule have attracted approximately 300 students and indications are that participation in all sports this year will top the 85% student participation record of the past few years.

Versatile Program

Coach Warden, Director of Intramurals, has announced dates for the entire year of intramural play. His staff consists of student assistants Don Warlick and Alvin Coley. Following the tennis tournament and football, a swimming meet and ping pong tournament will be held in October. Bridge and pool will follow in November.

After Christmas, basketball runs January-March, volleyball March-April, softball April-May, track and badminton in April, tennis April-May, and horseshoes and golf in May .

All-Star Basketball

In addition to these regularly scheduled events, the Intramural Department again plans to host the All-Star Basketball tournament which drew 1000 paid admisions last year. An invitational bridge meet is planned, as is a monthly bridge night for faculty and students.

Playoff games between our champions and intramural champions from Furman, Erskine and Newberry are planned in almost all sports on this year's schedule.

Intramural Football Schedule Announced

Assistant Intramural Co-Chairman Don Warlick announced the following schedule for Intramural football games:

MONDAY
3:00—Boll Weevils vs Bandits
4:30—Oxen vs Alpha Sigs

TUESDAY
3:00—Pi Kappa Alpha vs Sigma Nu.
4:30—Pi Kappa Phi vs Kappa Alpha.

WEDNESDAY

Students Should Apply Now For Scholarship Assistance

Graduate Fellowships of international scope are now available to qualified Presbyterian College graduates, announced Dr. K. N. Carter, chairman of the Faculty Scholarship Committee. Available are Woodrow Wilson, Danforth, National Science, Rhodes, and National Defense Stipends.

All graduating seniors who fill the academic requirements of various graduate schools and who are interested in a scholarship to that school should contact their major field advisor.

WOODROW WILSON

Woodrow Wilson National Fellowships are awarded to graduating seniors in the fields of mathematics and science as a teaching profession. Wilson Fellows are chosen from approximately 10,000 candidates nominated by college faculty members in the United States and Canada.

A Fellow is fully supported for one academic year at a United States or Canadian school. Eligible for nomination are men and women of outstanding intellectual promise and who at the time of graduation are not already enrolled in a graduate school.

RHODES

Competition for Rhodes Scholarships will be held in December, 1963. Scholars-elect will enter Oxford University in October, 1964. Appointment to a Rhodes Scholarship is made for two years in the first instance with a possible third year if the Scholar's record at Oxford warrants such an award.

The Danforth Graduate Fellowship program is open to graduating seniors with outstanding intellectual promise and interest in the field of teaching. Fellowships are open to qualified male seniors in any field of study common to the undergraduate college.

GRANTS-IN-AID

Also available to interested and qualified seniors are the National Science Foundation grants-in-aid and the National Defense Graduate Fellowships.

Seniors interested in these and other scholarships should see Dr. Carter.

Tuition Fees

year. Boarding students will pay $1575 a year as opposed to $1395 before.

Specifically, Dr. Weersing had this to say about the increase:

"We sincerely regret having to increase fees, but we are convinced that you as parents expect Presbyterian College to maintain a high quality of training for our young people. This is possible only by meeting the mounting costs of faculty salaries, and of equipment and facilities which insure first-rate instruction and a broad program of campus activity.

"Presbyterian College has made every effort to realize the most effective use of every dollar in giving the best possible education at moderate cost. As a result, you will find that, even with the increase, our charges remain lower than the national average among institutions of higher learning.

"A student who pays full college charges still represents a considerable net cost to the institution. You have heard this statement before, and it is a well-established fact. During the past year, for example, we spent an average of $450 more per student than we collected in college charges. This differential was more than it had been the previous year.

All of which means that continuing efforts must be made to help underwrite a topflight program as we envision it here at Presbyterian College."

ARTIST'S DRAWING of what PC's new women's dorm will look like. The dorm will be one of three new buildings to be begun here soon. Also to be constructed are a new dining hall and a new science hall.

Marine Recruiter Will Visit Campus

Captain Earl S. Piper, Jr., Marine Corps Officer Selection Officer for South Carolina, is scheduled to visit Presbyterian College on Tuesday and Wednesday, October 8 and 9. While at Presbyterian he plans to interview those students interested in obtaining a Marine Corps commission. At present, vacancies exist for ground and aviation applications.

Captain Piper stated that several excellent programs are offered by the Marine Corps. The Platoon Leaders Class Program is available to Freshmen, Sophomore, and Juniors, while Seniors may participate in the Officer Candidate Course. Marine Officer Training is arranged so as not to interfere with college work and all students are required to receive their degree before being assigned to active duty.

While at the College, Captain Piper and the members of his team will be located in the Douglas House. All interested students may contact him there between 9:00 a. m. and 4:00 p. m.

Definite Building Plans To Be Made

At an October 7th and 8th meeting of the building committee of the board of trustees definite plans concerning the building project will be made. This is a result of the successful Capital Funds Campaign completed last year.

Business manager Ed Campbell said, "A girls' dorm will necessitate more dining facilities, more classroom space, and a change in curriculum. Three buildings—a Girls' Dorm, Science Hall, and Dining Hall will begin construction approximately the same time.

that we had just been drinking and the case histories of a hundred repentant sinners, our two groups parted.

The rest of our walk back to the dorms passed in silence. I had to concentrate a great deal to keep the sidewalk straight, for it kept swaying. Once in the dorm, I made sure that Termite would not forget our plans for the next night. I then woke up my roommate, fell over the bed, and drifted off to sleep in the middle of the floor.

I have just begun a book about the alcoholic problem on college campuses. I certainly am thankful that it does not apply to PC. As long as we have "friends of the college" such as Jean and his wonderful tea, alcohol does not stand a chance at PC.

If you have never been to visit Jean, let me urge you to join me tonight. I will be right in the circle of Jean's close friends, drinking tea with the best of them.

1500 Young People Expected Tomorrow

The Blue Stocking

Distinguished for Its Progress

Vol. XLII — Presbyterian College, Clinton, S. C., October 4, 1963 — No. 3

Approximately 1,500 young people from throughout South Carolina will visit the Presbyterian College campus this Saturday for "Presbyterian Youth Day."

Advanced reservations indicate this will be one of the largest groups yet to participate in a PC program. They represent members of the Senior High Fellowship organizations of the Presbyterian churches of South Carolina.

The young men and women have been invited to be guests of Presbyterian College for this occasion which will feature campus tours, a special program of welcome by PC students, supper and attendance that night at the Blue Hose - East Carolina football game.

The "Presbyterian Youth Day" is scheduled to get underway at 3:30 p.m. Saturday with registration in the Douglas House. Blue Key leadership fraternity will sponsor guided tours from this point and will present a program of entertainment in Belk Auditorium, starting at 4:30 p.m. The latter program will include talks by President Marc C. Weersing and various student leaders as well as numerous musical selections.

Supper under the campus oaks will follow at 5:30 p.m., and then the group will sit as a body in a special section of the grandstands for the 8 p.m. football game on Johnson Field.

College officials expressed enthusiasm today over the response to this inaugural "Presbyterian Youth Day" and indicated it may become an annual affair. Reservations for young people and their adult advisers have been received from all sections of the state, almost equally divided among the eight presbyteries which make up this synod.

Danforth Lecturer To Give Talks Here

Lisa Sergio, specialist and lecturer in world affairs, will be on the Presbyterian campus on October 17 and 18 as a Danforth Visiting Lecturer.

Miss Sergio is recognized on both sides of the Atlantic as one of the ablest and best informed analysts of international affairs. The lecture series through which Miss Sergio comes to PC is sponsored jointly by the Danforth foundation and the Association of American Colleges.

Here at Presbyterian, Miss Sergio will give a chapel lecture on "The Future of Freedom Lies in the East," and a student convocation address on "The Puzzle and Challenge of India." In two informal sessions with students and faculty, she will discuss, "The New Challenge to American Youth" and "The Changing Nature of American Power."

Specific times for these meetings will be announced next week.

Blue Key Taps Five Seniors During Annual Fall Ceremony

Five members of the Senior Class were tapped into the Blue Key Honorary Fraternity in the PC Chapter's annual Fall tapping today. Those tapped were: Russell Strange, Jim Owens, Joe Prickett, Frank King, and Alvin Coley.

The Blue Key is a National Leadership fraternity and its membership is awarded to those judged to exhibit strong leadership in some facet of campus life. In addition the new members must have an over-all average higher than the over-all men's average for the preceeding semester.

President of the Senior class, Strange has also been active in his fraternity and is serving Alpha Sigma Phi as its president. He is a Psychology major from Decatur, Ga.

From Greenwood, Owens has served as President of the IRC for the past two years. During this same period of time he has been Student Mail clerk. He has held offices in Theta Chi fraternity and is a constant Dean's List student.

Active in Military, Prickett is a Company Commander as well as Captain of the PR Drill Unit.

A member of Alpha Sigma Phi fraternity, he serves as vice-president of both his fraternity and the Senior class. Also a Dean's List student, Prickett is the manager of the College Book Store.

King was elected by his teammates as one of this year's football team co-captains. In addition he has held offices in both Kappa Alpha fraternities and his academic class. He is majoring in History and is from Valdosta, Ga.

Another football letterman is Coley, who is serving this year as an assistant coach and scout. From Atlanta, he is Head Proctor and Chairman of the Freshman Control Board.

Eighty-fourth Session Has Twenty States Represented

Recently released by the Registrar's department are the new facts and figures on the 84th session. Enrollment for the academic year of '63-'64 stands at 504 — 471 males and 33 females.

Students represent 20 states and one foreign country. South Carolina and Georgia lead with 237 and 130 respectively, followed by North Carolina with 47, Florida with 46 and Alabama with 11.

Seven students hail from Virginia, 4 from New York, and 3 each from Maryland and Tennessee. Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, and Mississippi each have 2 students as do California, Missouri, New Jersey, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Texas, and West Virginia one each. Equador also has one student on the P. C. campus.

Students are classified as follows: seniors 68, juniors 130, sophomores, 142, freshmen 157, and transfer students, 7.

Teaching leads with 47 as preferred life work followed by business at 33, the ministry 33, law 32, and medicine and denistry with 31 and 19 respectively. Insurance has 10, biology 7, engineering 7; and banking, psychology and social work each have 6.

Presbyterian students have indicated 46 vocations with 208 undecided. Two hundred and twenty four students seek a B. A., 129 a B. S., 31 a B. S. in Business Administration and 70 are undecided.

Church preferences include Presbyterian at 293, Baptist 87, Methodist 69, A. R. P. 2, and 10 others.

New School Catalogues Just Back From Printers

The first edition of the 1964-65 school catalogue has just been published, announced the registrar's office this week. Copies of the catalogue may be obtained by any student from the office of the secretary to the academic dean. The catalogue has a new cover in shades of blue, but other than that, no changes have been made except those relating to dates and to the tuition increase.

Mr. Gunn Announces Cast for First Play

Mr. Wayne Gunn, Instructor in English and organizer of PC's "Drama Movement," announced today that players for the cast of "The Sandbox" have been chosen. The players are Geraldine Haydock, Hoppy Hopkins, Henry Knox, Mike Lowrance, and Jack Greene. "The Sandbox," to be directed by Mr. Gunn, will be presented in chapel on October 21st.

Tryouts for "Act Without Words," a pantomine, are still being held. Mr. Antony E. Brown, Assistant Professor, Instructor in English, will direct the skit.

Technical Director for both performances is George Patat. Dick Wilkinson and Dexter Kessler are in charge of lights and set, respectively.

Dr. Weersing Speaks To Ministerial Club

"What it takes to be a minister" was the theme of Dr. Weersing's address to the Ministerial Club September 26. The new president placed emphasis on intellectual achievements and personal abilities, and expressed interest in those who have chosen the ministry as a future profession.

The Ministerial Club is making plans to send evangelistic teams to churches in this area as they have done in past years. These teams take part in and often lead worship services throughout the state.

Presidents House Nearly Ready For The Weersings

Mr. Edward Campbell, business manager of Presbyterian College stated today that the refurnishing of the President's house is near completion. A new heating-air conditioning system is being installed as well as the addition of two new baths upstairs and a powder room downstairs.

Other changes include new wallpaper, paint, carpets, and curtains. A new sewer line is also being connected to the house.

The whole job is under the supervision of Henry I. Gaines of the Six Associates Incorporated, contractors, of Asheville, N. C. Installation of the gas-furnace heating system and air-conditioning is under the direction of Thad Coleman of Greenville. Arthur Benjamin, a local electrician and plumber, is in charge of the plumbing.

The actual decorating is supervised by Mrs. Mary Gailbrath of the Blue Door in Spartanburg. The Blue Door is an exclusive Knick Knack and Gift shop, specializing in home decorating.

The President's home is located on Broad Street opposite Belk Auditorium. Dr. Weersing and his family should be able to occupy the house around the first of November.

Looking At America

Editor's note: The following is the first in a series of editorials that will seek to analyze and interpret some of the problems of twentieth century America.

The historian-philospher Arnold J. Toynbee has accused America of being a nation based on Christian practice without the necessary Christian faith to back it up. Toynbee predicts that we will ultimately crumble if nothing is done about this lack.

By "Christian practice," Toynbee is refering to what is known as "Western morality" — for instance, the American spirit of supporting the underdog, of being a generally good-natured, friendly people, of being what Europeans often refer to as "naively moral."

We have tended to separate these attitudes and practices from their Christian-religious source. They have become instead merely accepted social and ethical customs, imparted to us almost unconsciously by our environment. Or they are practices that we pick up because we are vaguely aware that they are "right". And there are other ways.

But the point is that we do not tie them to a religion. What are the consequences of this?

Deep thinkers throughout the ages have realized the importance of associating a race or nation's ethical system with a religion. Plato pointed out that for a moral code to have any impact upon an individual, the code should be the will of a just God who punishes transgressors.

If a man does not have to answer for his actions, his morality becomes a surface thing which he can put on or off as he wishes. Anything so easily discarded, quite obviously has no deep roots in a man's being. In other words, one could almost say that such a shallow moralism is almost equivalent to no moralism.

And a man without an ethical code around which to center his life degenerates. Specifically, there seem to be two extremes toward which such people can degenerate.

The first is to become an aimless wanderer, an unproductive drifter — a man who believes in nothing and, consequently, is nothing. The American system dies of a paralysis in this case.

The other extreme is to center one's life wholly around oneself.

To make one's own ego the God who must be appeased. These people are productive. But in the mad scramble for power and glory no price is too great. All of the values and customs which have made our nation strong are disregarded by these people—they do not care what political system America adheres to—just so long as they have the power. The American system here dies of a cancer.

The threat is very real, and is not necessarily the opinion of an uninformed extreme. A national magazine recently echoed it when it published a statement by a leading clergyman that never have the churches been so full and yet never have they had such little influence.

The classic and perhaps hackneyed example of what happens to a nation that abondons its traditional religion and allows its morality to become superficial or nonexistant is, of course, Rome.

We cannot afford to crumble, for we support the free world against communism. The communists with their criminal disregard for the individual, and the unlimited power of their leaders, would throw the world into what could very aptly be called the "second dark ages."

If we are to withstand the almost maniacal zeal of the communists, we must muster an equal zeal. And we cannot do it except that we turn within and deepen ourselves—unless we become a nation based on Christian faith as well as Chritian practice.

Come One, Come All

by BILL LOEBLE

The familiar saying to those of the circus, stage, and theater — the show must go on — has entered another circle of American audiences, the Presidential candidates of 1964. Yes, it is drawing nigh for the election of President of the United States. With time running out, the field is wide open and full of hopefuls, but each possesses that weak spot that could keep them from being leader of the nation.

From the Grand Old Party some faithful supporters still stand with their Richard Nixon but he has learned his lesson twice. Besides he has retired from television. The two top Republicans, however, seem to be Barry Goldwater and Nelson Rockefeller. Goldwater is so conservative that he has been accused of being a John Bircher. Actually this accusation is weakly supported and it looks as if the Republican formula for success is Au plus H2O.

Rockefeller is a millionaire and the nation has already espied how a millionaire works in the White House. A divorce and remarriage isn't a step ahead either. The only way Nelson can be "happy" is to step in his wife's shoes.

It seems all the speculation has been about the Republican Candidate but no one has given thought to the Democrat. The leading candidate, Henry Ford, is a repeat of Rockefeller — a millionaire separating from his wife. Chances are he'll be more busy drafting a divorce than a campaign speech.

Governor Ross Barnett has a great following in his own state but he wouldn't get the Negro vote of the South and that ain't hay.

Senator Strom Thurmond is our own favorite son but in the election he may become an orphan. He does look good on paper, however. He has led the fight against the public accomodations bill in the Senate and has the support of 112 restaurant owners and 16 boarding house proprietors throughout the nation. He is at least assured of a campaign dinner. James Landes, former SEC commissioner and dean of Harvard Law School was a possibility until it was discovered he failed to file income tax returns for five years.

Vice President Johnson would have a chance but nobody has heard of him since 1960. Jack Paar, American television star has even been talked of but he supported Castro in the beginning and many feel we should have taken a tougher line in Cuba. Adlai Stevenson still is with the liberals in the country, but he is a Protestant, and the Democrats are afraid of putting the religious issue in the campaign.

There has been talk that Robert Kennedy also may throw his hat in the ring, but friends point out that Kennedy does not wear a hat. Where does that leave us?

ALPHA SIGMA PHI

The brothers of Alpha Psi whole - heartedly congratulate their football team for remaining undefeated thus far.

An informal drop-in will be held in the fraternity suite Saturday night after the football game. All freshmen and transfer students and their dates are cordially invited.

KAPPA ALPHA

Brothers and pledges of Beta Pi Chapter have planned a party for Saturday night after the game. All freshmen, transfer students, and their dates are invited. Tentative plans were also discussd at the last meeting for homecoming and for a party to be held in Spartanburg on October 18th.

PI KAPPA ALPHA

The brothers of Mu Chapter met on October 1, and plans were discussed for a party to be held on Saturday night after the ball game from 10-12. All freshmen and their dates are cordially invited. The "Nomads" will be the featured band.

Monday night will again be open house for all freshmen.

PI KAPPA PHI

Beta Chapter of Phi Kappa Phi enjoyed entertaining the freshmen and transfer students at its open social last Wednesday night and isues them an invitation to return to the fraternity suite at any time.

Plans were discussed and made final for a party following the PC-East Carolina game. We are looking forward to seeing the freshmen there.

SIGMA NU

At this week's meeting Zeta Theta discussed plans for its part in this week's home game. Plans for Homecoming were also discussed as well as plans for the open Social.

Congratulations to new brothers Mac Cobb, Ed Clowdis, Bunky Hanks, and Steve Watson, also to new pledges Al Todd and C. W. Snyder.

THETA CHI

Beta Psi chapter cordially invites all freshmen and transfer students to an open house in the fraternity room on third floor Neville immediately following the East Carolina game tomorrow night.

Final plans were made for next week's open social with girls coming from several neighboring schools and music furnished by "Moses and His Five Disciples." All freshmen and first semester transfer students will be welcomed.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

Something About a Mask

by ALEX PATRICK

Act Two ended, the theater roared, and life was quiet backstage. The lights, coldly sweet, gave recognition to the actors. The play was over, and Faustus was dead. A young girl wearing no make-up walked off the stage. She played Mesencephalon. A group of cats, cleaning their fur, purred softly outside the EXIT door, as the backstage pet, a white parakeet, sputtered, "I love you—I love you, to the passing actors. A notice glued to the cage announced a Mock Contest. All players, past and present, were invited to enter.

The prize was a vacation, fully planned, to anywhere in the free world." The rules were simple; it was to be a face of modern man. Attached to the top of the notice was the newspaper account of the Western Division winner—a teen-age boy. The article was entitled, "The Greatness of Man", with a picture of the mask in the left-hand corner.

The cast backstage began to sing along with an old Mitch Miller record "Ain't We Got Fun". A few (actors) stopped and noticed the picture with grudging admiration. Some even remarked how much it looked like John or Joe — "you know, that All-American something or other." The parakeet sang harder, "I'm a sweet bird — I love you, I love you." A prop man walked by with a nautilus shell in his hand. He looked at the picture and decided his entry must be modeled after that one. He stopped and removed his left shoe and placed some paper inside — his sole was wearing thin.

A nearby salesman could be heard exclaiming the wonders of a new cold cream guaranteed to remove all traces of make-up. His audience laughed. Why remove it? It would be needed for the next performance. Even if a few eruptions occurred, a little smooth powder would cover it up. Besides, the audience would never see them close-up. A young woman walked up and asked for some. The cats outside began to rummage through the trash cans. The prop man again looked at the picture. Everything was as it should be. And yet, something was not right — the mask had no eyes.

Tennis Poses Question Mark Although Four Netmen Return

The outlook for Presbyterian College's 1963-64 varsity tennis team presents a big question mark even though four of last year's six starters are returning. Bob Harris, Howdy Letzring, Dodge Frederick, and Bill Tyson are all back from the 62-63 outstanding team which tied PC's all-time record of 18 wins and only three losses.

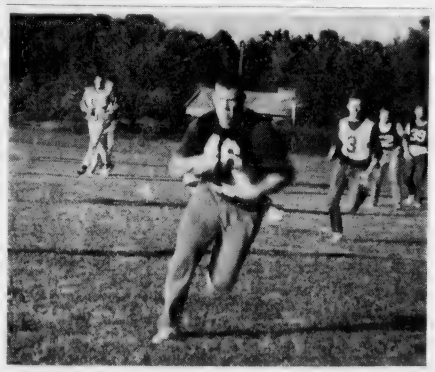
But gone are No. 1 man Tony Wilson and No. 6 man Harold Hope. Wilson was one of the south's top netmen and for three years led the team at the No. 1 position. Tennis Coach Gorden Warden stated that his loss will be impossible to replace.

At the present time, it appears that Harris, Letzring, and Frederick will be fighting it out for Wilson's position. All are Florida boys with years of experience in tournament play. Harris, from West Palm Beach and Letzring from St. Petersburg, formerly held top 20 ranking in the US Juniors, and Frederick, a junior college transfer from Daytona Beach, has been a high ranking Florida Junior.

Bill Tyson from Bainbridge, Ga., is a good bet to be in the first four, but chances are he will have a fight on his hands with Pete Collins of Daytona Beach, a junior college transfer in his first year at PC. Collins is also a former high ranking Florida Junior and with Dodge Frederick won their conference championship in Jr. College.

Returning from last year's squad are Arch Hudgins of Charleston, W. Va., and Mark Braswell of Gainsville, Florida. Both will see action on the team next spring. Bill Gillespie of Newport News, Va., a junior, may be the answer to the problem of depth on the team. Coming out for the first time he may well break into the starting lineup by next spring.

Two freshmen who will give the above mentioned men a fight for starting positions are Al Gerdsen of Cincinnatti, Ohio, and Larry Connelly of Charlotte, N.C. Gerdsen played at Woodward High School in the No. 1 slot. He recently won the All-Campus Tennis Tournament, defeating Connelly in a 3-set finale. Connelly was No. 1 man for Myers Park High School. He won the state doubles championship and was formerly ranked No. 2 in the state Juniors.



With last year's returning lettermen plus four new members of the squad Coach Warden will have 10 experienced players to draw from. However, the loss of Wilson will force all players to move up one position from last year thereby weakening the overall strength of the team. When asked about next year's prospects for a winning season Coach Werden said he feels that we will win more than we lose but that it will be very unlikely that we can come close to the records of the past two years.

Alpha Sigs Undefeated As I-M Play Progresses

One and a half weeks of intramural football are in the record books and already the Alpha Sigma Phis have established themselves as the team to beat for the championship. Behind the passing of Donnie Hardee and the pass snatching of Don Warlick they have jumped off to three wins in their first three games.

Tommy Williams' four touchdown passes have helped the KA's off to two wins and no losses and a tie for second place in the standings with PiKA's, led by Bill Russell. In fourth place, the Bandits are 2 and 1 for the season just in front of the Pounders at 1 and 1.

Tied for sixth place are the Boll Weevils, Pi Kappa Phi, Sigma Nu, and the Oxen. All have failed to pick a win thus far and are 0 and 2 on the season.

The leading scorers through October 2 are: Don Warlick, 27; Pete Collins, 19; Bill Cannady, 14; Tom Blackwell, Tom Hardwick, and Bud Alford; each with 13; Gordon Mayhugh, Walter Birch, and Donnie Hardee, all with 12 points each.

The schedule of Games for the week of Oct. 8-12 is as follows:

MONDAY:
3:00—PiKA vs. KA
4:30—Pounders vs. Sigma Nu

TUESDAY:
3:00—Alpha Sigma Phi vs. Boll Weevils.
4:30—Oxen vs. Pi Kappa Phi.

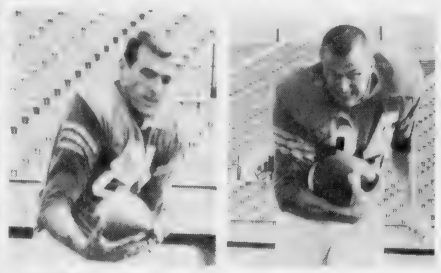
WEDNESDAY:
3:00—Bandits vs. KA
4:30—Pounders vs. PiKA

THURSDAY
4:00—Boll Weevils vs. Oxen

FRIDAY:
3:00—Sigma Nu vs. Pi Kappa

Aerial Attack May Be Crucial In Stopping Pirates Tomorrow

Presbyterian's Blue Hose will have added color in their attack tomorrow night when they play East Carolina's highly favored Pirates. The Hoseman will don their new garnet jerseys for the first time in this game.



But it will take more than pretty uniforms to beat East Carolina, and Coach Cally Gault hopes the extra spark comes through the passing game, which PC hasn't been able to use yet. "We didn't need it in our first game and we couldn't use it in our last game," the head coach reported. Quarterbacks Bill Tyson and Leighton Grantham are the men who will launch PC's aerial hopes, while Jackie Nix stands by as a ready reserve.

Ends Jimmy Bankhead and Garnet Welch are the likely targets for the Hose passes, but a stable full of capable receivers are available in the halfbacks.

East Carolina is in the comfortable position of being 26-point favorites over the Blue Hose, who have been underdogs in both previous games. PC has upset the oddsmakers with its stingy defense however, and the experienced line would like to shove those 26 points down the power rater's throat.

The Pirates rolled up 356 yards against Wofford last week, with Tailback Bill Cline passing for one touchdown and rushing for two more TDs.

PC's two-game statistics read 347 offensive yards, 115 by Don McNeill, and 103 by Randy McCranie. The Hose have picked up 25 first downs compared to 12 by opponents.

LEADING the Pirate attack tomorrow will be end Richard Honeycut and fullback Tom Micheal. The hosemen will have their hands full containing the big, tough ECC team.

Speaking of Sports

with AL PEARCE

Lack of Passing Hurt Hose Try Against Bears

"I think we played a real fine game except for the first three minutes of the 1st quarter. They came out in a formation we were not looking for, and it got our defense temporarily confused."

Passing Almost Useless

Thus did Head Coach Cally Gault sum up what happened last Saturday night as the Lenoir Rhyne Bears defeated the Blue Hose 7-0. The game was played under the most adverse conditions imaginable, but to blame it on the rain or the wind would be unfair. In regards to the weather Coach Gault said, "We could have possibly opened their defense up a bit on a dry field. The passing game was almost useless, and had we been able to pass it would have possibly been a different story."

Wardlaw Wades Through

Even though PC's passing game did suffer, the same rain and wet field was hindering the flashy backs of LR. Much lauded tailback, Craig Wardlaw was hampered by the wet field, in that his speed and cutting were "watered down" some. Still he scored LR's only TD and was their leading rusher. So the results could not be blamed entirely on the weather.

Not By 25

Losing by one early mistake to a team that was supposed to win by 25 points is no disgrace, and everyone realized this. The coaches were proud of the 100% effort the boys put out, and every spectator at the game was proud. The team, too, can hold it's head high.

ECC Uses Single Wing

Tuesday's practice session was another afternoon of single-wing defense work. The visiting East Carolina College Pirates of Greenville, N. C., run the single-wing just as LR did. As a matter of fact, Clarence Stasivich, coach at ECC, was the coach at LR up until 1961, when he took the single wing eastward with him. The hard lesson of single-wing football learned last Saturday night will not be forgotten by tomorrow night. That should help.

Trying to Roll

ECC has been trying to gain "big time" football status since Stasivich came there. They have a 2-1 record to date, losing only their opener to Richmond 10-9. They defeated ACC patsy Wake Forest 20-0; and Wofford 31-7 last week. Their schedule includes The Citadel, LR, Tampa, Chattanooga, and Elon in addition to Wofford. Western Carolina College, Richmond and P. C. It seems their schedule gets rougher each year.

More Than Lenoir Rhyne

ECC is a bigger, faster, tougher team than LR, and Coach Gault and the team realizes this. "If they play hard, scrap some and cut down on mistakes, we'll do fine."

Last Week's Lesson

Saturday night should see better weather and a better game against ECC than last week. The Pirates are rated 26 points over P C, but as last week showed, points are in the newspaper, not on the scoreboard. Another enthusiastic crowd should be on hand to lend support to the Hose effort against the Pirates of ECC. It should be interesting.

Orphanage Has Same Founder As PC

by DEXTER KESSLER

Probably few students realize that the founder of Presbyterian College also founded Thornwell Orphanage—PC's neighboring institution here in Clinton.

Throughout the years, the orphanage has developed an extensive physical plant on its 1800 acre campus. Over 20 cottages dot the grounds and there are 55 buildings in all, including an accredited kindergarten, a grammar school, high school, a gymnasium, a church, and an infirmary.

Dr. Wm. P. Jacobs, Presbyterian's founder, began the orphanage in 1875—five years before he organized the college. Dr. Jacobs was then serving as minister to the 1st Presbyterian Church in Clinton.

Dr. Jacobs founded Thornwell as a home for orphan youths and the children are not up for adoption. Parents may visit their children once a month and take them to their original homes for a month during the summer.

Efforts are made to give the children individual care and self-reliance is stressed. Each child is given the opportunity to earn his own spending money.

The major recreational features include a T. V. set in each cottage, tennis courts, a swimming pool, and several fishing ponds. The Orphanage also maintains the normal spectra of high school sports.

The orphanage is mainly supported by the Synods of South Carolina, Georgia, and Florida and only children from these states are eligible for admittance.

Endowments and memorials also constitute a substantial portion of the school's resources.

Boasting a staff of 85 personnel, Thornwell has turned out many prominent leaders in the business and professional world of medicine, the ministry, banking, engineering, law, and teaching.

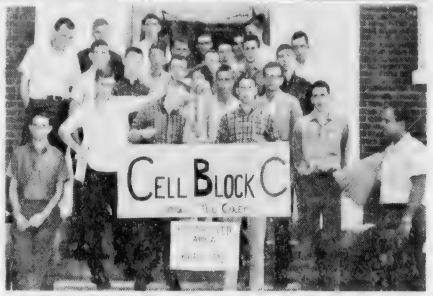
The present president is Dr M. A. Macdonald, PC graduate, who has held his executive position since 1944.

PC's Annual Giving Increasing Steadily

The Presbyterian College annual giving program has now reached $31,300 Alumni and Public Relations Director Ben Hay Hammet announced today.

He said this total has been contributed by 700 donors as the college points for a $75,000 objective for this program in 1963.

Hammet pointed out that an increase of $4,000 in the past two weeks has put the annual giving effort 30 per cent ahead of the 1962 pace at this time. Funds directed to this program are used mainly to help meet current operating expenses, as distinguished from capital gifts for the long-range development of Presbyterian College.



Of the $31,300 given thus far by alumni and friends of PC, $21,300 has been sent to the Living Endowment phase of the program and $10,000 directly to the Walter Johnson Club. Since $3,000 of the Living Endowment figure has been designated for the Johnson Club, the current total for this alumni athletic organization now stands at $13,000.

Still with the problem of finding the right Kennedy for President. Teddy is a bit too young. We've forgotten someone. Who could it be? Oh, of course, Jack. Many Americans have forgotten him as a possibility and we almost did too. Jack, the incumbent, is really going to have a steep hill to climb. That eliminates the Kennedys except for Jacqueline. Really now, who ever thought of a Catholic for President?

The time goes on. Politicians are worrying on both sides of the fence as to the perfect combination of qualities that will mold our 36th President. The question is can the right man be developed by 1964? That remains to be seen, but one thing is clear — The Show Must Go On.

WORDS: THEIR CAUSE AND CURE

Today let us take up the subject of etymology (or entomology, as it is sometimes called) which is the study of word origins (or insects, as they are sometimes called).

Where are word origins (insects) to be found? Well sir, sometimes words are proper names which have passed into the language. Take, for instance, the words used in electricity: ampere was named after its discoverer, the Frenchman Andre Marie Ampere (1775-1836); similarly, ohm was named after the German G.S. Ohm (1781-1854), watt after the Scot James Watt (1736-1819), and bulb after the American Fred C. Bulb (1843-1912).

There is, incidentally, quite a poignant little story about Mr. Bulb. Until Bulb's invention, all illumination was provided by gas, which was named after its inventor Milton T. Gas who, strange to tell, had been Bulb's roommate at Cal Tech! In fact, strange to tell, the third man sharing the room with Bulb and Gas was also one whose name burns bright in the annals of illumination—Walter Candle!

The three roommates were inseparable companions in college. After graduation all three did research in the problems of artificial light, which at this time did not exist. All America used to go to bed with the chickens, and many fine citizens were, alas, severely injured falling off the roost.

Well sir, the three comrades—Bulb, Gas, and Candle—promised to be friends forever when they left school, but success, alas, spoiled all that. First Candle invented the candle, got rich, and forgot his old friends. Then Gas invented gas, got rich, bankrupted Candle, and forgot his old friends. Then Bulb invented the bulb, got rich, bankrupted Gas, and forgot his old friends.

Candle and Gas, bitter and impoverished at the ages respectively of 75 and 71, went to sea as respectively the world's oldest and second oldest cabin boy. Bulb, rich and grand, also went to sea, but he went in style—as a first-class passenger on luxury liners.

Well sir, strange to tell, all three were aboard the ill-fated Lusitania when she was sunk in the North Atlantic. And strange to tell, when they were swimming for their lives after the shipwreck, all three clambered aboard the same dinghy!

Well sir, chastened and made wiser by their brush with peril, they fell into each other's arms and wept and exchanged forgiveness and became fast friends all over again.

For three years they drifted in the dinghy, shaking hands and singing the Cal Tech rouser all the while. Then, at long last, they spied a passing liner and were taken aboard.

They remained fast friends for the rest of their days, which, I regret to report, were not many, because the liner which picked them up was the Titanic.

What a pity that Marlboros were not invented during the lifetimes of Bulb, Gas, and Candle. Had there been Marlboros, these three friends never would have grown apart because they would have realized how much, despite their differences, they still had in common. I mean to say that Marlboros can be lit by candle, by gas, and by electricity, and no matter how you light them, you always get a lot to like—a filter, a flavor, a pack or box that makes anyone—including Bulb, Gas, and Candle—settle back and forswear pettiness and smile the sweet smile of friendship on all who pass!

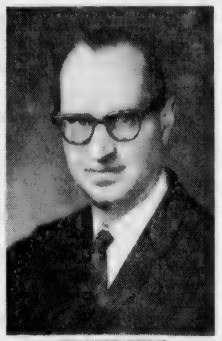
PC Now Interviewing Ga.-SC High Schools

In conjunction with other colleges of South Carolina, Presbyterian is visiting many high schools across the state on a prearranged schedule. Over two hundred formal interviews will be presented by PC's representatives in a period covering seven weeks.

Mrs. Martin, Mr. Ed Campbell, Mr. Tiller, Mr. Warden, and Col. Thackston are the representatives. The state of Georgia is similarly organized, and our representative in this area is Dr. George C. Bellingrath, academic dean emeritus.

In states other than Georgia and South Carolina, PC is represented by the Alumni Association, friends of the college, or by material supplied to the counselors of high schools where students may have an interest in this institution.



The purpose of these visits is to give the colleges an opportunity to tell the story of their respective institution and to leave with those interested students material about the college.

No Cuts Are Granted For Davidson Game

In a Blue Stocking interview with President Weersing Monday it was learned that students would not be excused from classes to attend the Presbyterian vs Davidson game on October 26.

Dr. Weersing brought out several reasons for the decision. The Southern Association of Colleges requires a certain number of hours per semester of its member colleges. The resultant compression of TTS classes or rescheduling of all classes thus makes a previously unplanned holiday unfeasible.

Also the majority of the student body was not in attendance on past occasions where "free cuts" were given. Dr. Weresing stated that in the future the student body through its various organs should present a request for such excused functions well ahead of schedule. "Any requests handled in this manner will receive careful and interested consideration," he said.

SENATOR BELK

Senator Irwin Belk To Speak In Chapel

North Carolina State Senator Irwin Belk will deliver a lecture here on October 28. The talk will be given before the student body during the regular chapel period for that day.

The Belk family has several associations with the college. Senator Belk's brother, Tom, is a member of the PC Board of Visitors. Senator Belk, himself, presided over the dedication services in October of 1960 for the W. H. Belk Auditorium here on campus.

Senator Belk is president of Belk Enterprises of Charlotte, N. C., and is active in business enterprises throughout North Carolina. He is also involved in church, educational, and civic activities throughout his home state.

Recognized Lecturer Gives Four Talks Here

Lisa Sergio, Danforth Lecturer, finished her series of talks yesterday with an informal meeting in Belk Auditorium. Miss Sergio had been on campus since Wednesday and has given a total of four talks on various aspects of the twentieth century world.

At noon Thursday she spoke to a meeting of history students on "The Challenging Nature of American Power." Thursday night she spoke at a convocation on "The New Challenge to American Youth' 'in the Douglas House.

In chapel yesterday she spoke on "The Future of Freedom Lies in The East," and at 11:00 finished up her talks with the informal meeting in which she spoke on "The Puzzle and Challenge of India."

Miss Sergio is recognized on both sides of the Atlantic as one of the ablest and best informed analysts of international affairs. Her rise to prominence occurred through a unique chain of events which led her from archaelogical research to radio, from close association with a dictator to fearless militancy for democracy and individual freedom, and from the invention of a system for teaching languages over the radio to the editorship of a magazine and a world-wide news service.

Lisa Sergio was born in Florence, Italy. Her mother was Margaret Fitzgerald of Baltimore, and her father was a half-Scottish nobleman, Baron Agostino Sergio. Against an aristocratic cosmopolitan background, Miss Sergio was tutored privately, instinctively specializing in subjects, including languages, which later fitted her admirably for her study and evaluation of world affairs.

MISS SERGIO

At fifteen, Lisa Sergio translated a play from French into Italian, and saw it produced. At seventeen, she was associate editor of the only English newspaper in Italy—a literary weekly, "The Italian Mail"—which counted among its contributors many celebrated writers, among them Walter Savage Landor and D. H. Lawrence.

When Miss Sergio was twenty-one, she resigned the editorship to turn to archaeology. She worked on the Roman excavations at Ostia and at Pompeii. (She also has the distinction of having had an ancient tomb at Ostia named in her honor. When it was opened, Miss Sergio was the only person in the archaeological party small enough to enter the tomb and explore its interior.)

Pepsi 'Shinny' At PC May Be On Greenville TV Show

A thirty-minute television show featuring Presbyterian College folk talent will be seen over WFBC-TV, Greenville, if preliminary plans work out.

Sponsored by the Pepsi-Cola Co. of Greenville, the show is set for Sunday, Nov. 14, from 4:30 to 5:00, Channel 4. The program, called the Pepsi-Cola Shinny will include 100 students acting as the traditional "Hootinanny" audience along with student artists and a brief sketch of the college itself. The show will host PC as well as other schools in a series of programs.

Those students and student artists selected for the "Shinny" will be taped in Greneville by WFBC Nov. 18 for the Nov. 24 show.

Mrs. Jean Padgett, Pepsi-Cola Co. program coordinator, and Andy Scott, WFBC-TV's master of ceremonies, will bring a program in chapel, 10:00 A. M., Belk Auditorium, Nov. 8. This program will feature PC's "GLEE-MEN' and Furman University's Ned Odom Boys.

The Ned Odom Boys have made two appearances at Carnegie Hall and on national TV, as well as 43 appearances in major cities throughout the country.

Students interested in auditioning after the chapel program may do so. "As much talent as possible will be uncovered and used on the show," said Mrs. Padgett. Also future appearances at PTA meetings, city clubs, etc., for pay will be lined up for quality performers where possible

"Grandmother grins" as practice for the play, "The Sandbox," by Edward Albee, goes on. The play will be presented in chapel on October 28. L-R: Hoppy Hopkins, Geraldine Haydock, Henry Knox, and Jack Greene.—Photo by Wardlaw.

A high honor has come to Presbyterian College this week with the announcement from Bonn that PC will be the American representative at India's world-wide Winter Festival in January. The invitation was made official Monday when the campus was visited by the Festival Chairman, Emperor "Haile" Selasise, the Lion of Judah.

The Emperor spent the day touring such places of interest in the Clinton area as Lydia Mills, Wilson's All Night Market, the new bowling alley, and the S and H Green Stamp Store in Greenwood. Later in the day he was guest of honor at the Clinton City Council Meeting where he spoke briefly on "Ethiopia in the Space Age."

On Monday night the emperor was honored at a reception in Dougals House. Entertainment was furnished by the local "Citizens for Franco' organization which put on an electrifying exhibition of Flamingo dancing on the roof of Neville Hall.

In a short talk at the reception the Emperor mentioned some of the events which will involve PC. He also gave students and the faculty a preview of just what the Festival will encompass.

The Festival will open on the morning of January 16, 1964, with a gigantic parade. The parade will form in Jerusalem, wind its way through Afghanistan, finally ending up in downtown New Delhi.

Every country will be represented by a special unit consisting of all of its eligible voters, several of its most impressive buildings, and a series of floats depicting each country's favorite war. In case of bad weather the parade will be held indoors at the New Delhi stock yards.

On Monday afternoon outside the city limits a pageant re-enacting the Boer War will be presented. Presbyterian College has been asked to take the part of the Boers. Real bulets will be used in the pageant so that the utmost in realism may be achieved. Citations will be presented to those wounded in any of the major battle and a plaque honoring the PC dead will be placed in the lobby of Douglas House.

On Monday night a series of round table discussions will be held in the New Delhi Civic Center. Leaders of the various discussion groups and their topics will include the following: Juan Peron, world famous diplomat, speaking on "The Poetry of John Donne"; Fidel Castro on "The Influence of the Polish National Catholics at the Seattle World's Fair"; Walter Reuther on "Marco Polo—Good or Bad?", and in the main lobby, Walter Winchell on "Presbyterian College—

Year's Fine Arts Programs Continue Here Monday Night

Seven programs are included in Presbyterian college's 1963-64 fine arts series announced today by Professor Earl B. Halsall, chairman of the faculty fine arts committee.

The series will include three lectures, three concert performances and the appearance of a players' group with a George Bernard Shaw presentation.

Opening lecture of the 1963-64 series were given today and yesterday as Lisa Sergio, Danforth lecturer on world affairs, made four speaking appearances before PC students.

Other programs of the PC fine arts series are: October 21—the Greenwich Quartet, a group of performing artists combining piano, violin and cello; November 6—the Chola Cantorum choral group; January 31 — Whittemore and Lowe, two-piano team; February 13-14 — Brand Blanshard, Danforth lecturer in philosophy, two-times Rhodes Sholar who recently headed the philosophy department at Yale; March 4—Dr. Calvin B. Hoover, lecturer in economics, former dean of the Duke University graduate school; May 6—the Kaleidoscope Players, Shaw's comedy, "Androcles and the Lion," as a performance of the Gary Newton Hardie Memorial Series.

The Movement

WE ARE ALL aware that Joe College wears a Gant, Wee-juns, and Gold-Cups, if he can afford them. He wears them at PC and elsewhere throughout the state. This is part of a tremendous pressure being brought to bear on the college students---the pressure to become a type.

AS WE SEE IT, to be accepted by the mindless masses one must, of course, be all things to all people which involves it seems: being cool---which is to never be openly religious---to laugh at anything or anybody that's different ---to wear beautiful clothes---to have a "blast" at parties---to date only "tough-looking (beautiful) girls, to hide your real self away utterly.

LET'S SEE WHAT we have created. It's a person who is afraid to say what he probably in his deepest roots believes. It's a stupidly intolerant person---a rude boor in other words. It's a pretty colored shell who must be pretty in order to be accepted by his friends.

IT'S SOMEONE who lies to himself---who must often go to parties he doesn't enjoy---laughs at the jokes of people he depises or completely disrespects---and has a real good time all the time.

IT'S SOMEONE who dates a face---not a person---because he is afraid his friends will not think he's "not on the ball" if he turns up with less than Miss College Beauty of 1963. As the poem goes----"and hollow, hollow, hollow all delight."

THE GREAT CRIME here is that peope are afraid to be people. They want to be liked (the human disease) and so they compromise with individuality and build up a front. The horror of it is that in time they cease to be individuals---to be real people---and become the front they have constructed. The inner things---spirituality, sincerity, responsibility, understanding---all dry up because they have been neglected for this surface world.

THE PROBLEM does not apply to everyone, of course ---and it applies to no one completely---but it is applicable enough, for there are quite a few people around with Joe College suits and masks on. The plea is for people to dare to be more themselves---to cease to conform so blindly and so uniformly to come out into the sun a little bit---before they rot.

To The Student Body

Dear Student Body:

ARE YOU SATISFIED with your cheerleading squad? If you are, theres' no need to read any further; if you aren't, well we aren't either. We know what a good squad looks like, how it acts, how it works, and how it cooperates. Between the three of us lies twelve years of cheerleading. Two of us have headed squads and all three of us have attended National Cheer camps and conferences for high school and college cheerleaders. Maybe it's because we know how it's supposed to be done that we can't be satisfied with the shape of things now. The skimpy practices, the so-called "sissy" cheers, the seeming lack of desire to cheer—all these are against basic cheerleading principles. The Citadel cadets in Savannah responded to certain motions by their cheerleaders which our "squad" feels are too sissy to do. The volume of noise from the Citadel side didnt' sound effeminate.

A LOT IS NEW at PC this year and though we've lost some games (never has one school been beaten three games and retained the spirit this one has), we feel that you still want to yell at the games. We feel that you do want a practiced and coordinated squad with more than two or three cheers. We may be wrong. If you like the way the cheering's gone so far and you want to leave the responsibility of your noise-getting to the boys, the boys whose leadership has already been demonstrated—fine by us! We want the situation to be as you want it. If you're happy, fine, okay. We know what it could be, but we can't do it by ourselves. If we can be more effective yelling with you in the stands, that's where we want to be. We're gonna yell wherever we are.

THAT'S MORE or less the problem and you might ask what have we done to solve it. Well, every once in a while we've started yells on our own. Whats' wrong with that? Well, whats' wrong with a sergeant going around a colonel to get something done?

Be a Personality Success

Whoever you are — football player, Episcopalian, factory or office worker, intellectual or Sophomore — you can become more interesting.

When Henry Thoreau was eight years old, someone asked him what he was going to be when he grew up. "Why," said the boy, "I will be I!" He was, too—and that's just what we remember the famous American essayist for today.

Here are five ways that you can show your individuality, be more interesting, and enjoy life more.

1. Get out of that one-track rut. The football player who can think or talk about nothing but his broken neck, the artist or musician whose entire life centers around the appreciation or production of art or music, the rush chairman who becomes so intent upon the attainment of a spotless and perfectly suitable pledge class that he not only wears himself out physically but also denies his Fraternity the right to keep the room filthy. All these are exampjes of men and women who are in a personality rut. They are people who could be charming, useful, interesting students if they would allow themselves to be guided into the expression of other and more varied interests.

How to develop other interests? Take more courses in subjects you know nothing about—Physics, for instance. Join more social orginzations—The League of Women Voters, for example. Go out more to concerts, plays, museums, discussion groups. Take part-time jobs if you can. Participate in the activities of your church, synagogue, or temple.

2. Be different, but not superior. At any social get-together, the liveliest and most interesting person is the one who is the drunkest. The art of being different lies in not antagonizing others unnecessarily. Don't beat up your fraternity brothers. People don't object to "differentness" nearly so much as they object to the attitude of superiority that so often goes with it. If we all granted to one another the right simply to be ourselves, we would be different enough.

3. Be prepared to talk. If conversation is not your forte, arm yourself with some beforehand. Read "Playboy" the day's newspaper, The Journal of Chemical Abstracts, or an up-to-date article in your home encyclopedia, so you'll have something to talk about. But don't come out with esoteric bits of information like the fact that Abraham Lincoln bought a set of Pornographic Pictures for his library in the 1850's. Do try to cultivate a little general knowledge of a lot of things so you'll be able to discuss them intelligently. For example, reading the "Scientific American's" 42- page article on space vehicles by the internationally-famed rocket pioneer Wernher von Braun will give you the necessary facts to be able to participate in an interesting discussion on this timely subject.

If there's a pause in the con-

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor:

We can think of nothing more ridiculous than for a college to invite important people to speak when they cannot be heard.

We can think of nothing more ridiculous than for a college to build an auditorium whose main purpose supports the rear of the anatomy and maybe the head while someone up front mumbles.

To quell this "Height of the Ridiculous" we suggest a PA system.

ALPHA SIGMA PHI

Homecoming activities were discussed at the last brotherhood. Various parties and dropins are planned for brothers, alumni, freshmen and their dates during the weekend. Congratulation to Ron Thompson and Yogi Jones on their recent pinning. Brother of the week: Joe C. Prickett.

KAPPA ALPHA

Congratulations to brother Bill Shearer on his recent pinning to Miss Ann Morse and to Hoppy Hopkins on his pinning to Miss Marie Schianie.

Congratulations also to the football team for remaining undefeated after a victorious struggle with the powerful Alpha Sigs this past Tuesday afternoon.

PI KAPPA PHI

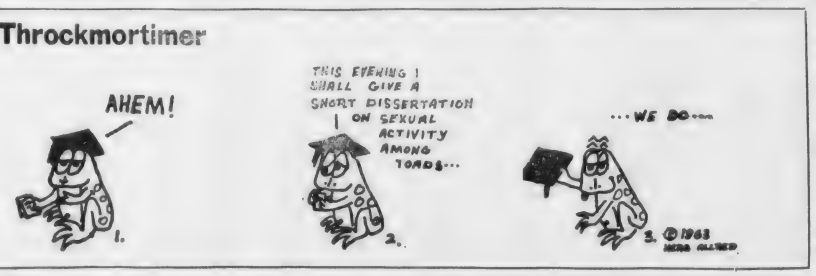
Beta Chapter of Pi Kappa Phi is looking forward to Homecoming Weekend and has made plans for a swinging party with the "Play Boys" supplying the entertainment. We are expecting some alumni to attend and suspect that will add to the entertainment.

Congratulations to Brother Mitchell Dennis on his recent initiation into Brotherhood.

SIGMA NU

After this week's meeting of Zeta Theta, plans for the open social were put into final stages. All Freshmen and new students are invited to the social on Wednesday evening, October, 23 at 7:30 at the Sigma Nu House on Holland Street behind the stadium. Also plans for a party on Lake Greenwood for Homecoming and a Homecoming display were made.

THETA CHI



The brothers and pledges of Beta Psi Chapter would like to thank all Freshmen for coming to its open social last week and making it a great success.

Thursday night has been declared "T. V. Night" in the Theta Chi Suite. All Freshmen and transfer students are welcomed.

Final plans for Homecoming were made. There included parties Friday and Saturday night, homecoming display, and alumni meeting.

Remodeling of the suite has been completed with painting of the walls, new ceiling, and new furniture.

Construction will soon begin on three new buildings for the PC campus. Pictured above are artists' conceptions of the two buildings—the new dining hall (left) and the new chemistry building (right). The third building to be constructed will be a woman's dorm. All three buildings are to be completely air-conditiond.

Press Critics Award Sock First Class Honor Rating

The Associated Collegiate Press has awarded the Presbyterian College Blue Stocking a First Class honor rating for the second semester of the 1962-63 school year.

Editor for that period was Bob Phifer. Bill Gaston was Business Manager.

The ACP judge had this to say about the Blue Stocking: "This is a newspaper the staff and the college can be proud of. Some areas were exceptional—virtually professional. A little more effort in the right direction can achieve marked improvement."

The First Class honor rating —which is second only to the All-American rating, was won by four other papers in the Blue Stocking's category. None of the ten papers judged in the Sock's class achieved the top rating of All-American.

The ACP described the All-American rating as "indicating distinctly superior achievement."—with the first class rating being comparable to excellent.

The score necessary to be rated All-American was 3500 points and the score requisite for First Class was 3000. The PC paper had a score of 3270.

Entering papers are criticized on every aspect of journalism—with the papers of a particular class being judged solely in relation to one another.

Phifer, when asked if he had a comment, pointed out that the paper achievement represented that of a team—each membr of which contributed heavily. The major Editorial Staff for that period was: Walter Wells, News Editor; Glenn Browder and Al Pearec, Sports Editors; Bob Allison, Feature Editor; and Roy Autrey, Photo Editor.

Phifer cited Wells' and Pearce's efforts as being especially diligent, commendable, and appreciated. He also emphasized high quality of photo work done by Autry.

The Blue Stocking received perfect scores on: make-up, headlines, photography, and printing. A near perfect score was achieved on coverage.

Specific areas in which the Sock fell down were: lack of editorials on current events; too many poor lead sentences, extremely poor copy-reading; and weak features.

The Associated Collegiate Press is a nation-wide college newspaper grading service. Judges are all professional news -paper men and women and persons with extensive backgrounds in publication work.

PC Robed Choir Picks Roster For This Year

The traveling Robed Choir fall roster was announced last week by choir president Tom Knox. Made up of 32 members this year, the selections were made on a competitive basis from the PC Chapel Choir.

Trustees Okay Construction Of New East Plaza Buildings

Presbyterian College trustees have authorized the start of construction on three new buildings simultaneously to be ready for use by September, 1965, President Marc C. Weersing announced today.

He said $1,100,000 will be spent to provide Presbyterian College with a new science hall, new dining hall and its first women's dormitory. Construction bids will be taken as soon as the architects have completed detailed sketches of the proposed buildings.

Board action came on recommendation of the trustee building committee and with special emphasis that no Federal funds will be sought as loans to help finance the project. PC conducted a major capital funds campaign in the South Carolina Synod last year and secured subscriptions totaling $1,900,000 for endowment and plant additions. Payments on these pledges thus far have reached $821,879, with $412,467 of this earmarked for endowment and $409,412 now in hand for building purposes.

Dr. Weersing said the trustees expect the remainder of the funds pledged for the building program to be paid during the next two years. They will explore no source other than what can be secured through the gifts of friends.

All three of the new buildings are to be air-conditioned and are to continue the colonial Georgian architectural design of the college facilities. Plans call for erecting these new structures on an east plaza, to be developed in the same pattern as the present west plaza. The two avenues of the east plaza will extend across the campus area now used for intramural and practice athletic fields.

The three proposed buildings were major objectives of PC's 1962 development drive. The Clinton community subscribed $300,000 for the women's dormitory, to be known as Clinton Hall. It will be built to accommodate 120 girls. Cost of the new science hall is estimated at $500,000. And the new dining hall, with a maximum capacity of 800, will cost $300,000.

Robert M. Vance, Clinton banker-industrialist, serves as chairboard of trustees. Its building man of the Presbyterian College committee is headed by J. L. Bruce of Cornelia, Ga.

New History Study Group Organized by Dr. Connelly

Dr. Thomas L. Connelly, Chairman of PC's History Department, announces that an organizational meeting of Historia, a campus-wide history study group, will be held in Douglas Assembly Room Wednesday night, November 23, at 7:30. Officers will be elected and plans will be formulated for the years' work.

Historia is an organiation open to juniors and seniors, whether history majors or not. The purpose of the group is to stimulate interest in history and to further knowledge in history.

Plans call for guest speakers during the year, films, open forums, panel discussions, and other student-led activities. The group will be encouraged to participate in the annual convention of the Southern Historical Association in Asheville, N. C., November 7-9. It is hoped to bring down a guest speaker from that event, but at present confirmation has not been received.

Several speakers have already been lind up for the year 1963-64, and the remainder of the calendar will be filled out by the group. Plans call for talks at some time during the year by these individuals:

(1). Colonel Richard Ulrich. "Changing Concepts of Warfare in the Twentieth Century."

(2). Mr. William Cannon. "The Passing of the Steam Locomotive: A Loss in American Culture"

(3). Dr. Thomas L. Connelly. "The Search for the Army of Tennessee. A Problem in Writing Confederate History."

(4). Dr. Ronald Burnside. "Cole Blease: Southern Demagogue."

(5). Mr. George Clark. "Machiavelli."

Further plans will be completed at the organizational meeting and announcements of additional speakers will be made from time to time. It is hoped that beside these activities, the club will be able to undertake a year project. to be decided at a later date by the members. All interested juniors and seniors are urged to attend this organizational meeting.

Georgia Poet Presents Poems of Southern Life

Marion Montgomery, author of two novels and one volume of poetry, gave a reading of several of his poems during the Wednesday chapel. The selections which he read included "New Song of Chattahoochie," "Lines for Ben Slaughter," "The Second Year," "All Afternoon I Lay Out Flat," "What Things Are About," and "Paradise Lost."

Mr. Montgomery is a native of Upson County, Ga., and his poetry is based on Southern life, both rural and urban, but has definite universal undertones.

Montgomery received his baccalaureate and masters degrees from the University of Georgia and did further graduate work at the State University of Iowa.

While at Iowa he served as managing editor of The Western Review, a literary publication of the University. He had previously worked on the editorial staff of The Georgia Review when in graduate school in Athens.

His published works include many critical articles, one novel, The Wandering of Desire, and Dry Lightning, a collection of poetry. Another novel, Darrell, will be published by Doubleday in 1964 .

As a novelist, the University of Georgia English professor exhibits themes typical of Southern writers. His prose belongs primarily to the gothic school of literature and deals with Southern life.

Will It Beat Russia To the Moon?".

On Tuesday morning a fine arts film competition will be held in the auditorium of the Civic Center. This competition will represent the finest in new films around the world. Representing the United States will be films of the Presbyterian College-Western Carolina College practice football game held in the U. S. in the fall of 1963. Sound effects will be provided by the Bailey Memorial Hospital Drum and Bugle Corps of Clinton, S. C., and the cheering voices of Ware Shoals, S. C., High School.

A complete list of events for the week-long Festival will be made public in the near future. However of special interest to citizens of this area is the Wednesday afternoon sports program which will involve participants from every country in the world. The US will be represented here, as in all other phases of the Festival, by Presbyterian College. The 400,000,000 meter run will open the program. The PC track team will run in this event which will take the participants out of India, through Tibet, around Peking and back. Anyone finishing this race will be mounted and permanently displayed at the Radio City Music Hall in New York City.

A basketball game, billed as the championship of the world, is scheduled for early afternoon. The game will be played between Bombay and Calcutta with no out of bound markers. Each country may have as many players as it wishes and the game will continue until the ball goes into the Indian Ocean. Bobby Kennedy and Fred Astaire will co-captain the U. S. team.

The most spectacular athletic event of the day will be the human tug of war between Red China and Western Europe. All other countries have been invited to chose sides and join us. To the winning team will go Free France, The Ford Motor Company, and Montreal, Canada.

All in all the Winter Festival will be one of the year's outstanding events and all students, alumni, and friends of Presbyterian College may be justly proud that PC was chosen to be the US representative. All who can arrange it are urged to get on down to New Delhi next January and give the school and its teams all the support it deserves.

Miss Sergio

cism was generally regarded as "a good thing for Italy," it was Guglielmo Marconi, "the father of the wireless," who persuaded Miss Sergio to enter the field of radio. She thus became the first woman commentator in Europe, and was heard broadcasting regularly in French and English. These duties were combined with those of being official English and French interpreter for Mussolini.

Her close association with the Italian dictator and his government soon disgusted Miss Sergio with totalitarianism. Carefully at first, and eventually more daringly, she used her unique position to attempt to reveal its dangers. Finally caught, she evaded arrest and escaped to America with the aid of Marconi.

The Danforth Visiting Lecturers project, under which Miss Sergio comes to this campus, is now in its seventh year. It is sponsored jointly by the Danforth Foundation and the Association of American Colleges. Purpose of the program is "to strengthen the intellectual, the religious and the cultural aspects of liberal education in the United States."

Napoleon's Influence Extensive

If you ever run into someone with a Napoleonic complex, be kind. For the real Napoleon has shaped our lives vastly more than most people realize and in amusingly diverse ways, from beets to cognac and from codes to cans.

In 1795, in the midst of a massive European war, Napoleon offered a 12,000 franc award to the first patriot who could devise a method of keeping food fresh and healthful until it reached the front lines.

Nicolas Appert came up with the solution: Food boiled in containers which were then sealed with corks and waxed around the edges. Englishman Peter Durand improved upon Appert's method by using tinplated cans—and thus Napoleon's reward led to the development of the tin can!

Thirteen of our United States either in whole or in part, owe their very existence to a decision of Napoleon. On April 30, 1803 faced with the problem of owning overseas territory but having no control of the seas, Napoleon decided to sell all French holdings between the Mississippi River and the Rockies—a vast 529,911,680 acres—to the United States for approximately 15 million dollars. Today, many an individual piece of real estate in New Orleans alone is worth $15 million!

The French pastry and the brandy which you may enjoy after dinner may well be the same that Napoleon preferred. His favorite pastry was a many-layered, cream-filled confection; we still enjoy thes treats—and call them napoleons.

Napoleon found a restful haven from his world of battles and decrees at the country home of Captain Courvoisier, one of his staff officers, in France's Jarnac county. The Emperor often spent the weekend with the Courvoisiers and grew so fond of the family's cognac that he adopted it as his official brandy. Even today, every bottle of Courvoisier cognac bears the registered phrase, "The Brandy of Napoleon."

"The Little Corporal," as his admiring troops nicknamed him, not only founded the University of France and the huge Bank of France, he also instituted one of the most famous of all distinctions—the French Legion of Honor. Membership in the order, founded in 1802, is awarded for meritorious service to France in military and civil life. A scientist may receive the decoration for some valuable discovery, or a soldier for an act of conspicuous bravery. The Legion D'Honneur may be conferred upon women as well as men.

In art, music, science—name almost any field—Napoleon lives on. Even the table sugar you use every day is the indirect result of a Napoleonic decree. Though a method of extracting sugar from sugar beets was discovered in 1787, cane sugar continued to be the preferred product and was imported from countries which could grow sugar cane in their warm, moist climates.

Perhaps the best-known contribution that Napoleon made to mankind was his Code Napoleon—a code of laws. It was the first clear, compact statement of French law in centuries. The Napoleonic Code became a model for law reformers throughout the world, and is the ancestor of many laws that govern us today.

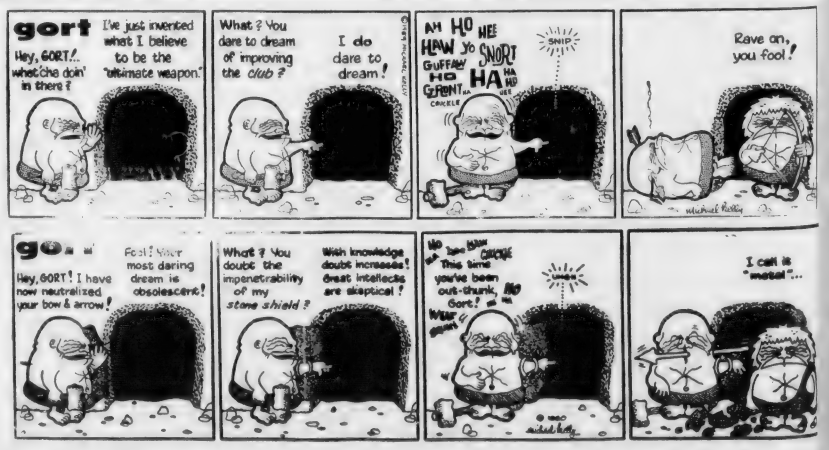
versation, burp loudly. Listen to what's said; take an interest in it; ask questions. You're not being fair if you excuse reticence on the ground that you "don't know anything about current events. Instead, introduce a subject you do know about—sex, for instance.

4. Make others feel important. You'll be surprised how much more interesting you'll become in the eyes of others if you don't make them feel like fools. You can achieve this goal by forgetting a person's stupidity and his likes and dislikes, by asking his advice, and by proposing new ideas as if you were reminding him of something he already knew.

5. When conversing, be natural, cheerful, and truthful—but exercise tact. Hide your cares and worries. No one wants to hear about them. They want to tell you about theirs.



Avoid affected manners of speech; they can ruin your snow—job. Learn to control any nervous mannerisms; spasti twitchings, for instance, can detract from everything else that good about you.

"Running Hose" Should Wear Someone Down

"There's not a team on our schedule we shouldn't beat."

"There are some that will be rough, but none are better than we are. We'll have to be in better shape than our opponents because we aren't blessed with size, but when we lose it will be our own fault. I couldn't ask for a better group of boys than we have here at PC—they're working extra hard. When they leave the gym they're exhausted.

Suck It Up And Go!

"There's not an athlete on our campus who will be in better shape than these boys, because we'll be running all the time—in practices and games. They'll be irritable and hard to get along with these first three weeks, but when a boy is willing to work he surpasses many goals he never thought possible."

Spirit Is Here Too

Just listening to Coach Art Musselman talk basketball makes me feel exhausted—but it's a good feeling. The enthusiastic young roundball coach seems to radiate hustle, desire and confidence as the Blue Hose cagers prepare for the 1963-64 season.

Getting In Top Shape

So I'll just sit back and let the Indiana man do the talking.

"I'm really enthusiastic about PC's program and the reaction to my system. We (the team) know what's expected of us and there's no question about our attitude and training. You can't have 12 men going in 12 different ways, so we'll all have to work together. If anybody's goofing off I'll know it—they won't be able to keep up the pace. There's not a boy on our team who ever worked this hard.

Sound Fundamentals

"We won't go in for any complicated offense this year, we'll just play plain, fundamental basketball. We won't use the shuffle, I don't know anything about it. The main thing in basketball is to put the ball through the hoop; anything else only makes it more difficult.

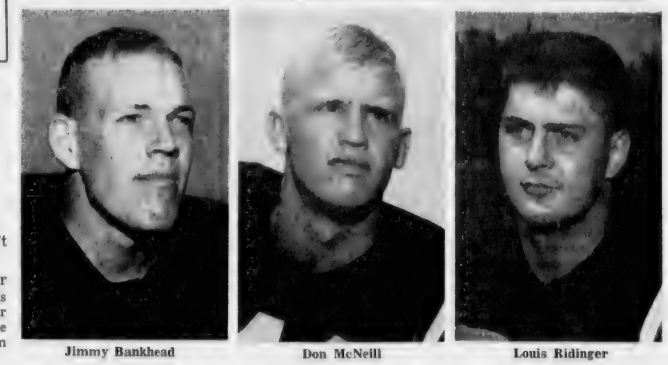
Spectators Delight

"We are going to run the fast break a lot, and we'll play a tough defense. We'll be strong on rebounding—not because of great jumping power, you don't have to have this—we'll just have to be tough.

Logical Reason

"All we're working on now is fundamentals—passing, dribbling, rebounding, defense. This is what wins ball games. Any team can score, but these fundamentals are the important things.

"The reason we are now having closed practices is not because we have a lot of secrets. We just need extreme concentration on basketball.



Can't Wait Till December

"I'm not a Houdini, but if these boys will work, and if we don't run into a bunch of injuries, we'll have a winning season."

PC opens the season December 2 at Belmont Abbey, and plays the first home game here December 5 against College of Charleston. We have 10 games here, and 10 on the road. It should be an interesting season!"

Tampa's "i" Formation Creates Defensive Problems For Hose

by AL PEARCE

With an offense that began to move well last week, and a defense that has proved itself tough when the chips are down, the PC Blue Hose look hopefully toward Tampa, Fla., where they will take on the University of Tampa Spartans today.

The Hose defense, which had a rough time of it at Savannah last week against The Citadel, will have its hands full as they face the "i formation" for the first time this season. The Tampa team, using to the best advantage its swift backfield, runs from this unorthodox formation, with much of its offense geared to end sweeps and the passing game. An additional threat will be the razzle-dazzle punt and kick-off returns that PC students should remember so well. It was one of these fancy kick-off returns for a 99-yard touchdown that beat PC in 1961.

During the first half of the Citadel game, PC's offense began to move well, but the second half was a different story. Almost all of the offensive yardage came during an 18-play, 84-yard sustained drive that ended with a fumble on the Citadel's 4-yard line. The passing of Leighton Grantham, the receiving of Jimmy Bankhead, and the powerful running of Randy McCranie, Wade Stewart, Don McNeill, and Bill Riner kept that drive going. The defensive play of Citadel's outsanding end, Vince Petno, ended it.

Some bright spots did appear through the gloom of the 24-0 defeat. The punting of Louis Ridinger and Jimmy Elliott, and the offensive spark lit by quarterback Grantham in the first half pointed towards better things to come this week at Tampa. Ridinger, a senior end from Charlotte, had three boorning punts in the Citadel game to boost his season's average up to 39 yards per punt for 28 kicks. In addition to his punting and kicking off, he has made 2 field goals, and 2 successful extra points.

The Tampa Spartans have a 1-2-1 record to date, and are rated 8 points above PC in a national power rating chart. Last year the Tampa squad was favored by 10 to defeat the Hose in their homecoming game. Tampa won that game 10-0. This year it is their homecoming again. May history not continue its pattern.

I-M Ping Pong And Swimming Appear As Football Winds Up

The I-M calendar for the upcoming three weeks will be a crowded one, with two new sports slated, and the wind-up of one.

Football should be completed in about two weeks, with each team having played 8 games. An All-Star team, selected by the I-M council representatives, will play the league champions to climax the season. As a post-season special, the PC All-Stars will face All-Star teams from nearby colleges' I-M program.

As of Monday, the second week of the table-pong tournament will be underway. Eight teams are competing for the highly-coveted "Bronze Net," symbolic of the game room's ping dynasty. The Pounders, featuring the '64 Dodge, are 6½ to 3¾ favorites to take the net.

Originally planned for Thursday, October 23, the PC I-M swiming meet has been pushed back for approximately a week or seven days due to water pollution caused by variations in nearby equinoxes. All U. S., Mexican, and Haitian meets will be rescheduled. Dates will be announced over the dining hall speaker system next weekend.

The Intramural football schedule for next week, as announced by the I-M Council, includes:

Monday, 3:00—Pi Kappa Alpha-Boll Weevils.
4:30—Alpha Sigs-Pi Kappa Phi.
Tuseday, 4:00—Kappa Alpha-Sigma Nu.
Wednesday, 4:00 — Pounders-Pi Kappa Phi.
Thursday, 4:00—Bandits-Oxen.
Friday, 4:00 — Alpha Sigs-Pi Kappa Alpha.

The standings in the Intramural football league, including Thursday's games, are:

1. Kappa Alpha, 5-0
2. Alpha Sigs, 4-1
3. Sigma Nu, 4-2
4. Pounders, 4-2
5. Pi Kappa Alpha, 3-2
6. Bandits, 2-3
7. Pi Kappa Phi, 1-4
8. Boll Weevils, 1-5
9. Oxen, 0-5

Seventh Album By Choir To Be Released This Week

The Presbyterian College Choir announces that its seventh recording, The Covenant Story, will be released to the public within the next week. Continuing a tradition established in more than 600 concerts, Conductor Edouard Patte has grouped in this album a new series of anthems and spirituals.

The recording was made in Belk Auditorium in April, 1963, with Paul Woodall as Producer and David Perry as organist. G. Wardlaw engineered and edited the master tapes on the choir's new high fidelity recording equipment. The records were pressed by RCA-Victor.

Through the distribution of this recording, Presbyterian College will be made known throughout the Southern Presbyterian Church. This album will be used by the Board of Christian Education to promote an understanding of God's Covenant with man essential to the new Covenant Life Curriculum. A large number of these records have been purchased for distribution in the Presbyterian Book Stores.

Another first for this seventh recording is found in a significant change in format from the previous recordings. Instead of being entirely composed of musical selections, scriptural readings alternate with anthems and spirituals on the disc. Asked to make a comment, Dr. Patte stated that he felt that the superb readings of Wirt Skinner ('63), are combined with the magnificent renditions of the choir to make a truly unusual recording.

An increase in recording quality makes this pressing the first truly high fidelity transcription produced by the choir. Dr. Patte stated that the quality pressing, coupled with a lovely photograph of the choir in the majestic nave of Greenville's Westminster Presbyterian Church on the jacket, creates a truly impressive package.

Powell Takes Over The Mary Musgrove Hotel

Under new management is the Mary Musgrove, Clinton's largest hotel. The building was leased to Mr. L. Vernon Powell, former dietician of Presbyterian College's Judd Hall, on Sept. 17, 1963.

Many new innovations of both decor and service are underway. Perhaps the most spectacular is The Horse Shoe Room which replaces the hotel's Coffee Shop. This dining area is being decorated with antiques and carries on Mr. Powell's theme of bringing Clinton's yesteryears in as a backdrop to the Musgrove.

Said Mr. Powell, whose quality food and service have gained renown in this area at "Vernon's" on the Greenwood road: "Friendliness is free at the Musgrove and our supply will never run out."

BOOM!

Today, foregoing levity, let us turn our keen young minds to the principal problem facing American colleges today: the population explosion. Only last week four people exploded in Cleveland, Ohio—one of them while carrying a plate of soup. In case you're thinking such a thing couldn't happen anywhere but in Cleveland, let me tell you about two other cases last week—a 45-year-old man in Provo, Utah, and a 19-year-old girl in Northfield, Minnesota. And, in addition, there was a near miss in High Point, North Carolina—an eight-year-old boy who was saved only by the quick thinking of his cat, Fred, who yanked the phone off the hook with his muzzle and dialed the department of weights and measures. (It would, perhaps, have been more logical for Fred to dial the fire department, but one can hardly expect a cat to summon a fire engine which is followed by a Dalmatian, can one?)

But I digress. The population explosion, I say, is upon us. It is, of course, cause for concern but not for alarm, because I feel sure that science will ultimately find an answer. After all, has not science in recent years brought us such marvels as the maser, the bevatron, and the Marlboro filter? Oh, what a saga of science was the discovery of the Marlboro filter! Oh, what a heart-rending epic of trial and error, of dedication and perseverance! And, in the end, what a triumph it was when the Marlboro research team, after years of testing and discarding one filter material after another—iron, nickel, tin, antimony, obsidian, poundcake—finally emerged, tired but happy, from their laboratory, carrying in their hands the perfect filter cigarette! Indeed, what rejoicing there still is whenever we light up a Marlboro which comes to us in soft pack and Flip-Top Box in all fifty states and Cleveland!

Yes, science will ultimately solve the problems arising from the population explosion, but meanwhile America's colleges are in dire straits. Where can we find classrooms and teachers for today's gigantic influx of students?

Well sir, some say the solution is to adopt the trimester system. This system, already in use at many colleges, eliminates summer vacations, has three semesters per annum instead of two, and compresses a four-year-course into three years.

This is, of course, good, but is it good enough? Even under the trimester system the student has occasional days off. Moreover, his nights are utterly wasted in sleeping. Is this the kind of all-out attack that is indicated?

I say no. I say desperate situations call for desperate remedies. I say that partial measures will not solve this crisis. I say we must do no less than go to school every single day of the year. But that is not all. I say we must go to school 24 hours of every day!

The benefits of such a program are, as you can see, obvious. First of all, the classroom shortage will disappear because all the dormitories can be converted into classrooms. Second, the teacher shortage will disappear because all the night watchmen can be put to work teaching solid state physics and Restoration drama. And finally, overcrowding will disappear because everybody will quit school.

Any further questions?

Yes, one further question: the makers of Marlboro, who sponsor this column, would like to know whether you have tried a Marlboro lately. It's the filter cigarette with a man's world of flavor. Settle back and enjoy one soon.

1963 REW Will Poise Question "Meaningfulnes Of God Today"

The 1963-64 Religious Emphasis Week is slated to start Wednesday. The theme for this year's activities is "Where Is Your God," and concerns problems which will be specifically adapted to Presbyterian College.

Hugh Harris, SCA president, commented; "We wan the students to make a self evaluation and question themselves on religious apathy."

Following the premier service on Wednesday, will be chapel services on Thursday and Friday. Classes which normally meet at 10:00 a. m., Thursday, have been re-scheduled for chapel period, 10:00 a. m., Monday, to allow a chapel period on that Thursday.

On Wednesday night, Nov. 20. at 7:30, discussion groups will eb held in the fraternity suites of Alpha Sigma Phi, Kappa Alpha, Pi Kappa Alpha; and also a discussion will be held for the independents in the Douglas House meeting room.

Again on Thursday night, Nov. 21, discusion groups will be held in the fraternity suites of Pi Kappa Phi, Sigma Nu, and Theta Chi. Married students will meet in the Douglas House.

Five outstanding speakers, headed by Dr. Sherrard Rice, will lead the week's activities. They are Dr. Rice, Rev. Jere Hammet, Rev. Edward S. Hopper, Dr. Clarence E. Piephoff, and Rev. Hugh S. Eichelberger.

The author of Let There Be Light, Dr. Rice received his education at Davidson College, Princeton and Union Theological Seminaries, and holds a D.D. from Austin College. The former professor of The School of Christian Education, Richmond, Va., now hails from Columbia where he is pastor of the First Presbyterian Church.

Rev. Jere Hammet, pastor to Presbyterian students at USC, attended Clemson College and Columbia Seminary. He was formerly pastor of Rock Presbyterian Church, Greenwood.

Rev. Edward L. Hopper, pastor of Fourth Presbyterian Church, Greenville, received his A.B. from Davidson and B.D. from Columbia Seminary.

Holidays Begin Soon

Thanksgiving Holidays will officially begin at 6:00 p. m., Wednesday, November 27, and continue through Sunday, December 1. This leaves only 15 days before Christmas Holidays which start December 17 at 6:00 p. m., and end January 2, 1964.

phanage, Presbyterian College, and Columbia Seminary, Dr. Clarence E. Piephoff also holds

A graduate of Thornwell Orphanage & D.D. from this institution. He has taught at PC and Darlington School in Rome Ga., as well as serving as Assistant to the President of Thornwell Orphanage. Dr. Piephoff is presently the pastor of Monaghan Presbyterian Church in Greenville.

Rev. Hugh L. Eichelberger is a graduate of The McCallie School, Presbyterian College, and Columiba Seminary. He is now pastor of Rock Presbyterian Church, Greenwood.

PC Gleemen Perform With Ned Odom Boys

Furman's NED ODOM BOYS joined PC's GLEEMEN November 8 in a chapel program presented by the Pepsi Cola Company of Greenville. The master of ceremonies was Andy Scott of WFBC-TV, Greenville.

Plans have been made for the GLEEMEN to appear on WFBC-TV, channel 4, on November 24 from 4:30 to 5:00 in a program featurnig Presbyterian College. Under the sponsorship of Pepsi Cola, the Pepsi Cola "Shindy," will be taped at the WFBC-TV Studio on November 24.

Seventh Parent's Day Will Be Conducted Here Tomorrow

Presbyterian College will play host to the parents of the present student body at its seventh annual Parents Day this Saturday.

Parents and other immediate family members of the PC students will be guests of the college for supper and the Blue Hose-Troy State football game that night. They also will be entertained with a special student program of welcome, a faculty reception and fraternity drop-ins.

The day's events are scheduled to get underway at 2 p. m. Saturday with registration in the Douglas House. Campus tours, directed by members of Blue Key, national leadership fraternity, will be conducted between 2 p.m. and 3 p.m. Then, at 3 p.m., the students will present an hour-long program designed to give their parents a brief glimpse at campus life, and President Marc C. Weersing will address the group.

The faculty reception is set for 4 p. m., followed by supper in Judd Dining Hall at 5:15 p.m., fraternity drop-ins at 7 p.m., and the football game under lights on Johnson Field at 8 p. m.

This encounter will find the PC squad playing its final home game of the 1963 season and seeking a second victory to better the present 1-6-1 record. The Troy State eleven is rated a one-point favorite by the power-ratings, so the Hosemen have another tough assignment ahead for this weekend.

Likes To Represent PC In Philadelphia

More than 150 campus leaders in the Army, Navy, and Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps (ROTC) will attend the 31st Nationl Convention of the National Society of Scabbard and Blade, in Philadelphia, November 15 and 16.

The local unit of the National ROTC Honorary Society, Company K, 10th Regiment, at Presbyterian College, will be represented by Captain Creighton E. Likes, Jr.

During the two-day Convention, top military leaders of the armed forces will address the Scabbard and Blade delegates from senior ROTC units located at colleges and universities throughout the nation.

Convention business will include discussions of local company activities designed to further public understanding of the military establishment and the needs of national security. The role of ROTC on the American college campus will also be reviewed.

New Rule Curtails Suspended Students

A new ruling on suspended students was passed at the November 6 meeting of the faculty, announced Academic Dean Joseph M. Gettys. In the future students who are suspended will have no cuts upon their return to school following their suspension period.

A change of classes to facilitate Religious Emphasis Week was also announced. There will be no chapel Monday. Instead, there will be a chapel period at 10:00 on Thursday, and the classes which meet at 10:00 on Thursday will be held at 10:00 Monday.

Students May Use Guidance Services

Dr. Claude H. Cooler, Director of the Guidance Center and chairman of the faculty guidance committee, this week mailed to parents of all PC students a letter concerning the college guidance services available to PC students.

Cooler gave the following statement as the purpose for sending the letter: "The members of the Faculty Guidance Committee feel that more college students will use the available guidance services if the students and their parents are informed of the nature of these services and some of the possible benefits that may be derived from their use."

PC's Robed Choir Has Plans For Twenty-Three Concerts

Continuing its musical program on "The Story of the Covenant," the Presbyterian College Robed Choir will give 23 performances before church congregations in five states during the 1963-64 concert season.

The program of sacred music and worship is developed around 13 spirituals and anthems adapted for the 31 male voices of the PC group. It is under the direction of Conductor Edouard Patte, whose leadership of the Presbyterian College choir has extended over 17 years and more than 800 concerts.

The choir will fill Sunday engagements in South Carolina, Georgia, and North Carolina churches and will take a week-long tour in Alabama and Mississippi. Here's the complete 1963-64 schedule:

Nov. 24 — Darlington (morning), Kershaw (evening); Dec. 8—Albany, Ga.; First Church (morning), Moultrie, Ga. (evening); Dec. 9—Waynesboro, Ga.; Jan. 5—Summerville, S. C. (morning), Columbia First Church (evening); Jan. 19 — Clinton (morning); Feb. 2 — Savannah Independent Church (morning), Augusta First Church (evening); March 1—Spartanburg Westminster Church (morning), Tryon, N. C. (evening); March 15—Charleston Frist Church (morning), Cayce, S. C., Congaree Church (evening).

Spring tour: Singing at the First Presbyterian Church in each of these cities: April 1—Cartersville, Ga. (evening); 2—Huntsville, Ala. (evening); 3—Meridian, Miss. (evening); 5—Natchez, Miss. (morning), Hattiesburg, Miss. (evening); 6—Andalusia, Ala. (evening); 7—Bainbridge, Ga. (evening).

April 26—Ocean Drive Beach (morning), Columbia Covenant Church (evening).

No Courses Dropped After November 22

Students who wish to drop a course in which they have a passing mark must do so before or on November 22. Policy requires this deadline to fall two weeks after the last day scheduled for mid-semester exams.

College Group Will Have TV Discussion

Presbyterian College will put on a half-hour television program over WSPA-TV this Thanksgiving. The college will be represented by its president, Dr. Marc C. Weersing, and by a panel of four students, to be chosen at a later date.

The program will be an informal discussion type presentation during which the significance of Thanksgiving, 1963, will be considered. Such things as the meaning of the holiday in terms of a celebration for freedom or for material security will be discussed.

This will be the eighth year that Dr. Weersing has conducted such a progra min conjunction with WSPA. His panels have been composed of such diverse groups as immigrants and ikndergarten children. No definite program time has been announced but it will take place sometime Thanksgiving morning.

Today, foregoing levity, let us turn our keen young minds to the principal problem facing American colleges today: the population explosion. Only last week four people exploded in Cleveland, Ohio—one of them while carrying a plate of soup. In case you're thinking such a thing couldn't happen anywhere but in Cleveland, let me tell you about two other cases last week—a 45-year-old man in Provo, Utah, and a 19-year-old girl in Northfield, Minnesota. And, in addition, there was a near-miss in High Point, North Carolina—an eight-year-old lad who was saved only by the quick thinking of his cat, Fred, who dashed the phone off the hook with his muzzle and dialed the department of weights and measures. (It would, perhaps, have been more logical for Fred to dial the fire department, but one can hardly expect a cat to summon a fire engine which is followed by a Dalmatian, can one?)

But I digress. The population explosion, I say, is upon us. It is, of course, cause for concern but not for alarm, because I feel sure that science will ultimately find an answer. After all, has not science in recent years brought us such marvels as the maser, the bevatron, and the Marlboro filter? Oh, what a saga of science was the discovery of the Marlboro filter! Oh, what a heart-rending epic of trial and error, of dedication and perseverance! And, in the end, what a triumph it was when the Marlboro research team, after years of testing and discarding one filter material after another—iron, nickel, tin, antimony, obsidian, poundcake—finally emerged, tired but happy, from their laboratory, carrying in their hands the perfect filter cigarette! Indeed, what rejoicing there still is whenever we light up a Marlboro which comes to us in soft pack and Flip-Top Box in all fifty states and Cleveland!

Yes, science will ultimately solve the problems arising from the population explosion, but meanwhile America's colleges are in dire straits. Where can we find classrooms and teachers for today's gigantic influx of students?

Well sir, some say the solution is to adopt the trimester system. This system, already in use at many colleges, eliminates summer vacations, has three semesters per annum instead of two, and compresses a four-year-course into three years.

This is, of course, good, but is it good enough? Even under the trimester system the student has occasional days off. Moreover, his nights are utterly wasted in sleeping. Is this the kind of all-out attack that is indicated?

I say no. I say desperate situations call for desperate remedies. I say that partial measures will not solve this crisis. I say we must do no less than go to school every single day of the year. But that is not all. I say we must go to school 24 hours of every day!

The benefits of such a program are, as you can see, obvious. First of all, the classroom shortage will disappear because all the dormitories can be converted into classrooms. Second, the teacher shortage will disappear because all the night watchmen can be put to work teaching solid state physics and Restoration drama. And finally, overcrowding will disappear because everybody will quit school.

1963 REW Will Poise Question "Meaningfulnes Of God Today"

The 1963-64 Religious Emphasis Week is slated to start Wednesday. The theme for this year's activities is "Where Is Your God," and concerns problems which will be specifically adapted to Presbyterian College.

Hugh Harris, SCA president, commented; "We wan the students to make a self evaluation and question themselves on religious apathy."

Following the premier service on Wednesday, will be chapel services on Thursday and Friday. Classes which normally meet at 10:00 a. m., Thursday, have been re-scheduled for chapel period, 10:00 a. m., Monday, to allow a chapel period on that Thursday.

On Wednesday night, Nov. 20. at 7:30, discussion groups will eb held in the fraternity suites of Alpha Sigma Phi, Kappa Alpha, Pi Kappa Alpha; and also a discussion will be held for the independents in the Douglas House meeting room.

Again on Thursday night, Nov. 21, discusion groups will be held in the fraternity suites of Pi Kappa Phi, Sigma Nu, and Theta Chi. Married students will meet in the Douglas House.

Five outstanding speakers, headed by Dr. Sherrard Rice, will lead the week's activities. They are Dr. Rice, Rev. Jere Hammet, Rev. Edward S. Hopper, Dr. Clarence E. Piephoff, and Rev. Hugh S. Eichelberger.

The author of Let There Be Light, Dr. Rice received his education at Davidson College, Princeton and Union Theological Seminaries, and holds a D.D. from Austin College. The former professor of The School of Christian Education, Richmond, Va., now hails from Columbia where he is pastor of the First Presbyterian Church.

Rev. Jere Hammet, pastor to Presbyterian students at USC, attended Clemson College and Columbia Seminary. He was formerly pastor of Rock Presbyterian Church, Greenwood.

Rev. Edward L. Hopper, pastor of Fourth Presbyterian Church, Greenville, received his A.B. from Davidson and B.D. from Columbia Seminary.

Holidays Begin Soon

Thanksgiving Holidays will officially begin at 6:00 p. m., Wednesday, November 27, and continue through Sunday, December 1. This leaves only 15 days before Christmas Holidays which start December 17 at 6:00 p. m., and end January 2, 1964.

phanage, Presbyterian College, and Columbia Seminary, Dr. Clarence E. Piephoff also holds

A graduate of Thornwell Orphanage. Dr. Piephoff is presently the pastor of Monaghan Presbyterian Church in Greenville.

Rev. Hugh L. Eichelberger is a graduate of The McCallie School, Presbyterian College, and Columiba Seminary. He is now pastor of Rock Presbyterian Church, Greenwood.

Seventh Parent's Day Will Be Conducted Here Tomorrow

Presbyterian College will play host to the parents of the present student body at its seventh annual Parents Day this Saturday.

Parents and other immediate family members of the PC students will be guests of the college for supper and the Blue Hose-Troy State football game that night. They also will be entertained with a special student program of welcome, a faculty reception and fraternity drop-ins.

The day's events are scheduled to get underway at 2 p. m. Saturday with registration in the Douglas House. Campus tours, directed by members of Blue Key, national leadership fraternity, will be conducted between 2 p.m. and 3 p.m. Then, at 3 p.m., the students will present an hour-long program designed to give their parents a brief glimpse at campus life, and President Marc C. Weersing will address the group.

The faculty reception is set for 4 p. m., followed by supper in Judd Dining Hall at 5:15 p.m., fraternity drop-ins at 7 p.m., and the football game under lights on Johnson Field at 8 p. m.

This encounter will find the PC squad playing its final home game of the 1963 season and seeking a second victory to better the present 1-6-1 record. The Troy State eleven is rated a one-point favorite by the power-ratings, so the Hosemen have another tough assignment ahead for this weekend.

Likes To Represent PC In Philadelphia

More than 150 campus leaders in the Army, Navy, and Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps (ROTC) will attend the 31st Nationl Convention of the National Society of Scabbard and Blade, in Philadelphia, November 15 and 16.

The local unit of the National ROTC Honorary Society, Company K, 10th Regiment, at Presbyterian College, will be represented by Captain Creighton E. Likes, Jr.

During the two-day Convention, top military leaders of the armed forces will address the Scabbard and Blade delegates from senior ROTC units located at colleges and universities throughout the nation.

Convention business will include discussions of local company activities designed to further public understanding of the military establishment and the needs of national security. The role of ROTC on the American college campus will also be reviewed.

New Rule Curtails Suspended Students

A new ruling on suspended students was passed at the November 6 meeting of the faculty, announced Academic Dean Joseph M. Gettys. In the future students who are suspended will have no cuts upon their return to school following their suspension period.

A change of classes to facilitate Religious Emphasis Week was also announced. There will be no chapel Monday. Instead, there will be a chapel period at 10:00 on Thursday, and the classes which meet at 10:00 on Thursday will be held at 10:00 Monday.

Students May Use Guidance Services

Dr. Claude H. Cooler, Director of the Guidance Center and chairman of the faculty guidance committee, this week mailed to parents of all PC students a letter concerning the college guidance services available to PC students.

Cooler gave the following statement as the purpose for sending the letter: "The members of the Faculty Guidance Committee feel that more college students will use the available guidance services if the students and their parents are informed of the nature of these services and some of the possible benefits that may be derived from their use."

PC Gleemen Perform With Ned Odom Boys

Furman's NED ODOM BOYS joined PC's GLEEMEN November 8 in a chapel program presented by the Pepsi Cola Company of Greenville. The master of ceremonies was Andy Scott of WFBC-TV, Greenville.

Plans have been made for the GLEEMEN to appear on WFBC-TV, channel 4, on November 24 from 4:30 to 5:00 in a program featurnig Presbyterian College. Under the sponsorship of Pepsi Cola, the Pepsi Cola "Shindy," will be taped at the WFBC-TV Studio on November 24.

PC's Robed Choir Has Plans For Twenty-Three Concerts

Continuing its musical program on "The Story of the Covenant," the Presbyterian College Robed Choir will give 23 performances before church congregations in five states during the 1963-64 concert season.

The program of sacred music and worship is developed around 13 spirituals and anthems adapted for the 31 male voices of the PC group. It is under the direction of Conductor Edouard Patte, whose leadership of the Presbyterian College choir has extended over 17 years and more than 600 concerts.

The choir will fill Sunday engagements in South Carolina, Georgia, and North Carolina churches and will take a week-long tour in Alabama and Mississippi. Here's the complete 1963-64 schedule:

Nov. 24 — Darlington (morning), Kershaw (evening); Dec. 8—Albany, Ga.; First Church (morning), Moultrie, Ga. (evening); Dec. 9—Waynesboro, Ga.; Jan. 5—Summerville, S. C. (morning), Columbia First Church (evening); Jan. 19 — Clinton (morning); Feb. 2 — Savannah Independent Church (morning), Augusta First Church (evening); March 1—Spartanburg Westminster Church (morning), Tryon, N. C. (evening); March 15—Charleston Frist Church (morning), Cayce, S. C., Congaree Church (evening).

Spring tour: Singing at the First Presbyterian Church in each of these cities: April 1—Cartersville, Ga. (evening); 2—Huntsville, Ala. (evening); 3—Meridian, Miss. (evening); 5—Natchez, Miss. (morning), Hattiesburg, Miss. (evening); 6—Andalusia, Ala. (evening); 7—Bainbridge, Ga. (evening).

April 26—Ocean Drive Beach (morning), Columbia Covenant Church (evening).

No Courses Dropped After November 22

Students who wish to drop a course in which they have a passing mark must do so before or on November 22. Policy requires this deadline to fall two weeks after the last day scheduled for mid-semester exams.

College Group Will Have TV Discussion

Presbyterian College will put on a half-hour television program over WSPA-TV this Thanksgiving. The college will be represented by its president, Dr. Marc C. Weersing, and by a panel of four students, to be chosen at a later date.

The program will be an informal discussion type presentation during which the significance of Thanksgiving, 1963, will be considered. Such things as the meaning of the holiday in terms of a celebration for freedom or for material security will be discussed.

This will be the eighth year that Dr. Weersing has conducted such a progra min conjunction with WSPA. His panels have been composed of such diverse groups as immigrants and ikndergarten children. No definite program time has been announced but it will take place sometime Thanksgiving morning.

Seventh Album By Choir To Be Released This Week

The Presbyterian College Choir announces that its seventh recording, The Covenant Story, will be released to the public within the next week. Continuing a tradition established in more than 600 concerts, Conductor Edouard Patte has grouped in this album a new series of anthems and spirituals.

The recording was made in Belk Auditorium in April, 1963, with Paul Woodall as Producer and David Perry as organist. G. Wardlaw engineered and edited the master tapes on the choir's new high fidelity recording equipment. The records were pressed by RCA-Victor.

Through the distribution of this recording, Presbyterian College will be made known throughout the Southern Presbyterian Church. This album will be used by the Board of Christian Education to promote an understanding of God's Covenant with man essential to the new Covenant Life Curriculum. A large number of these records have been purchased for distribution in the Presbyterian Book Stores.

Another first for this seventh recording is found in a significant change in format from the previous recordings. Instead of being entirely composed of musical selections, scriptural readings alternate with anthems and spirituals on the disc. Asked to make a comment, Dr. Patte stated that he felt that the superb readings of Wirt Skinner ('63), are combined with the magnificent renditions of the choir to make a truly unusual recording.

An increase in recording quality makes this pressing the first truly high fidelity transcription produced by the choir. Dr. Patte stated that the quality pressing.

Powell Takes Over The Mary Musgrove Hotel

Under new management is the Mary Musgrove, Clinton's largest hotel. The building was leased to Mr. L. Vernon Powell, former dietician of Presbyterian College's Judd Hall, on Sept. 17, 1963.

Many new innovations of both decor and service are underway. Perhaps the most spectacular is The Horse Shoe Room which replaces the hotel's Coffee Shop. This dining area is being decorated with antiques and carries on Mr. Powell's theme of bringing Clinton's yesteryears in as a backdrop to the Musgrove.

Said Mr. Powell, whose quality food and service have gained renown in this area at "Vernon's" on the Greenwood road: "Friendliness is free at the Musgrove and our supply will never run out."

Same difference. But do you blame us when you want to yell and the boys need to hear you? We've brought in some new cheers but haven't found much cooperation in learning to use them. You may ask why don't we cooperate with the boys. Well, if that's what you want, that's fine, 'cause it surely doesn't take much practice or energy to stand on the sidelines and watch a football game! When we've suggested cheers, they questioned "What can you do when the crowd doesn't yell?" (especially at off games). Cheerleaders are taught that a cheer squad is responsible to the team for noise, whether they get it from the crowd or supply it themselves.

WHAT DO WE suggest as an answer? First that the squad be dissolved at the end of this season and the people for the ballot for the next season be chosen by a group of adults who know something about cheering. But having the ability and/or the experience aren't the only qualifications for a cherleader. He should have a projective and pleasing personality and a willingness to practice. He needs to be someone you want out there. We don't see how this method would put a "drip" in front of you. Some boys on a campus may have this particular combination but if they feel in any way that any part of cheering is sissy, then they hinder the squad. Our squad is hindered!!

WE HAVE BEEN accused of "riding high horses" and "staying on the boys' backs." In our efforts to have a top squad this year; maybe we have. But if you feel that we've stepped out of line, then we are ready, willing and able to apologize to you and to the boys and to take our place in the stands alongside of you. We want you to know, though, that we want to yell and that we will lead you in all the short, long, and appropriate cheers as you desire—if you desire. Do we have your support???

Over 1400 Students Here For Youth Day

Over 1400 high school students and 200 advisors attended Presbyterian's Youth Day Oct. 5.

Mr. Ben Hay Hammet, PC Director of Public Relations and Alumni Affairs, said, "Youth Day was a great success. Many letters have been sent to this department and to the President expressing thanks and interest in our collge. Because of the tremendous response this year, Youth Day may become an annual affair."

BOOM!

Today, foregoing levity, let us turn our keen young minds to the principal problem facing American colleges today: the population explosion. Only last week four people exploded in Cleveland, Ohio—one of them while carrying a plate of soup. In case you're thinking such a thing couldn't happen anywhere but in Cleveland, let me tell you about two other cases last week: a 15-year-old man in Provo, Utah, and a 19-year-old girl in Northfield, Minnesota. And, in addition, there was a near miss in High Point, North Carolina—an eight-year-old boy whose was saved only by the quick thinking of his cat, Fred, who rasied the phone off the hook with his muzzle and dialed the department of weights and measures. (It would, perhaps, have been more logical for Fred to dial the fire department, but one can hardly expect a cat to summon a fire engine which is followed by a Dalmatian, can one?)

But I digress. The population explosion, I say, is upon us. It is, of course, cause for concern but not for alarm, because I feel sure that science will ultimately find an answer. After all, has not science in recent years brought us such marvels as the maser, the bevatron, and the Marlboro filter? Oh, what a saga of science was the discovery of the Marlboro filter! Oh, what a heart-rending epic of trial and error, of dedication and perseverance! And, in the end, what a triumph it was when the Marlboro research team, after years of testing and discarding one filter material after another—iron, nickel, tin, antimony, obsidian, poundcake—finally emerged, tired but happy, from their laboratory, carrying in their hands the perfect filter cigarette! Indeed, what rejoicing there still is whenever we light up a Marlboro which comes to us in soft pack and Flip-Top Box in all fifty states and Cleveland!

Yes, science will ultimately solve the problems arising from the population explosion, but meanwhile America's colleges are in dire straits. Where can we find classrooms and teachers for today's gigantic influx of students?

Well sir, some say the solution is to adopt the trimester system. This system, already in use at many colleges, eliminates summer vacations, has three semesters per annum instead of two, and compresses a four-year-course into three years.

This is, of course, good, but is it good enough? Even under the trimester system the student has occasional days off. Moreover, his nights are utterly wasted in sleeping. Is this the kind of all-out attack that is indicated?

I say no. I say desperate situations call for desperate remedies. I say that partial measures will not solve this crisis. I say we must do no less than go to school every single day of the year. But that is not all. I say we must go to school 24 hours of every day!

The benefits of such a program are, as you can see, obvious. First of all, the classroom shortage will disappear because all the dormitories can be converted into classrooms. Second, the teacher shortage will disappear because all the night watchmen can be put to work teaching solid state physics and Restoration drama. And finally, overcrowding will disappear because everybody will quit school.

Smith Elected Head Of New History Club

The organizational meeting of Historia, PC's new history club, saw the election of officers and discussion of a wide range of activities for the year.

Those elected at the club's maiden meeting were as follows: President, DuPont Smith; Vice-Presidents, Hunter Coleman and Howard Bell; Secretary-Treasurer, Jim Owens.

The next meeting of the group will be Friday night, November 8, at 7:30 in the Douglas House meeting room. Any junior or senior interested in joining the club should attend this session.

It will be followed by a presentation by Dr. Haskell Monroe, Professor of History at Texas A&M University. His topic will be the division of the Presbyterian Church into northern and southern units at the outbreak of the Civil War.

All faculty, students and interested guests have been invited by the club to attend this program at 8:00 p. m.

Plans were listed by the club to attend sessions of the Southern Historical Association in Asheville on Saturday morning, November 9. Any students interested in going with the club to these sessions should see Howard Bell as soon as possible. Free cuts will be given in all Saturday casses to those participating in this activity.

The group discussed the possibility of publishing a journal later in the year containing brief articles by the membership. Obtaining films on historical subjects and going on trips to places of historical interest was also considered.

The PC students who will be listed in the 1963-64 edition of "Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges" are: (L-R) Leon Bullard, Tom Currie, Hugh Harris, Janet Maddox, Arthur McQueen, Jim Owens, Bob Phifer, Dupont Smith, and Tommy Williams.

Nine PC Students Designated To Be Recognized In Who's Who

Eight Presbyterian College seniors and one junior have been recognized this year by Who's Who In American Universities and Colleges. The nine students, who will be listed in the 1963-64 edition of the book, are: Leon Bullard, Tom Currie, Hugh Harris, Janet Maddox, Arthur McQuene, Jim Owens, Bob Phifer, (the junior recipient), Dupont Smith, and Tommy Williams.

Selection by Who's Who starts with the Faculty-Students Activities Committee, which is headed by Mr. George Clark, associate professor of history. The Committee, composed entirely of faculty members, draws up a list of candidates which it submits to the entire faculty for approval. The faculty-approved list is then sent to Who's Who, which makes the final selection.

Students listed in Who's Who are chosen on the basis of their over-all contribution to their college. This generally consists of their function as leaders, and high academic achievement is not necessary, although it may be a consideration.

Bullard, a dean's list pre-med student, is editor of this year's Pac Sac. A proctor, Bullard is president of the science club and is a member of the Blue Key honorary leadership fraternity. He is a company commander in ROTC and is a member of the Scabbard and Blade honorary military fraternity.

A dean's list English major, Currie is president of the PC Blue Key Chapter. He is on the ROTC battalion staff and is a member of Scabbard and Blade. He is an associate editor of the Pac Sac and is Treasurer of the senior class.

A member of the Blue Key, Harris is president of the Student Christian Association. An English major, he is in the Scabbard and Blade.

Charleston Pastor Named Alumni Prexy

Presbyterian College alumni have elected Dr. James Edward Graham of Charleston to serve as president-elect of the PC Alumni Association and Dr. Delmar Rhame of Clinton as an alumni trustee representative, it was announced today.

The balloting by mail to name 1964 alumni officials tapped Graham to succeed Tom Addison of Clinton, who automatically moves up from president-elect to president. These two and other officers of the Alumni Association will be officially installed as part of the Homecoming program next Saturday afternoon and will assume their new duties next January.

IFC-Sponsored Chest Drive Reaches Goal

Sponsored by the IFC, the Clinton Community Chest obtained contributions amounting to $100 from students of Presbyterian College. Only $37 was given at this time last year. IFC President, Bill Shearer, pointed out that, "all fraternities worked with the IFC in collecting money." One hundred percent contribution was made by members of Alpha Sigma Phi, Kappa Alpha, Pi Kappa Phi, Sigma Nu, and Theta Chi.

The first big social weekend of the year begins today as PC's Homecoming weekend swings into action. The first event on the agenda is the school-wide dance from 8 to 11 P. M. tonight. This year the dance has been moved from the Armory to Leroy Springs Gymnasium.

Dean Hudson and his band will provide the music, and the faculty will chaperone. The dress is coats and ties for the men and cocktail dresses for the women.

During intermission candidates for Homecoming Queen will be announced and presented to the student body. Immediately following the dance, all fraternities will open with individual parties. All alumni, guests, and freshmen are invited to these fraternity functions as well as to the school dance.

Activities on Saturday will begin with the fraternities putting final touches on their respective displays. Each fraternity is responsible for one. The displays must meet a noon deadline and will be judged by a faculty committee later in the afternoon. First prize is $25, secnod $10, and third $5.

From 8:30 to 11:30 A. M. the polls will be open in the Douglas House for students to elect the Homecoming Queen. In the afternoon fraternities will have a tea dance and again Freshmen are invited. Several fraternities are planning alumni meetings around 4:00.

At 8:00 comes the main attraction of the weekend as PC plays Wofford. At half-time the Homecoming Queen will be crowned, and her court introduced to the student body.

Blue Key members will escort sponsors of the senior football players. The sponsors will be introduced to the student body. Tommy Williams, president of the student body, has assured the school of a "gala half-time show by members of the student body."

Immediateily after the game fraternities will open for individual parties. These are open to all freshmen and transfer students.

Sunday will see the pilgrimage of wearied girls back to their respective schools and homes.

Chapel Services

Chapel srevices for the coming week are as follows:

Monday—Rabbi Edward L. Cohn from Greenville.

Wednesday — Dr. Lynn T. Jones, pastor of the Eastminster Presbyterian Church of Columbia.

Friday—Student program.

Faculty Wife Named Clinton Career Woman Of The Year

Mrs. Eugenia Gurney Carter has been chosen as Clinton's "Career Woman of the Year" in a competition sponsored by the Clinton Business and Professional Women's Club.

Each civic club was invited to nominate a candidate, and Mrs. Carter was judged most deserving of this honor on the basis of achievement and advancement in her career, contribution to civic and humanitarian causes, and participation in church and religious activities. She was nominated by the Clinton Jaycees.

Since graduating summa cum laude from Erskine College with a double major in chemistry and mathematics, Mrs. Carter has taught at Clinton High School, Hiwassee College, Columbia College, and Presbyterian College, where she is currently serving as assistant professor of science.

With her husband, Dr. Nolan Carter, who heads the chemistry department at Presbyterian College, she is co-author of a textbook which is being used in the teaching of college chemistry. Mrs. Carter has also worked as analyst and research chemist in uranium chemistry at the atomic energy plant at Oak Ridge, Tenn.

Mrs. Carter is active in civic affairs as well as the A. R. P. Church, where she is a choir member, teacher of the women's Sabbath School class, teacher in vacation Bible school, and past president of the Women's Society. She has also served as synodical secretary of Christian Education.

"GRAB A PENCIL AND WRITE AN EXAM FOR MR. MUNDY, MR. PRESIDENT!"

Our Good Schedulers

THE BLUE STOCKING would like to do its part in helping to hang either the faculty, the administration, perhaps some student committee, or the athletic department. We say either for we only want to have the guilty party hanged and we don't know exactly who's guilty.

BUT SOMEONE is guilty of almost gross inconsideration and unthoughtfulness in making out this year's schedule. Mid semester exams are the week after Homecoming Weekend. And we protest utterly.

IF THE SCHOOL expects Homecoming to be supported---then this involves a date for the dance Friday and the ball game Saturday. Saturday afternoon is usually spent with one's date too---and the custom also calls for one's date to stay over till Sunday and have Sunday lunch. The weekend is "shot" in other words.

THE WEEK BEFORE Homecoming people are involved getting displays ready and lining up fraternity activities. Also many students---especially upperclassmen, are carrying such a load (English and Science majors, for instance) that during the week it is all they can do to just keep up with the volume and difficulty of the work involved. They need the weekend during which to study ahead and prepare for quizzes.

BUT SOMEONE is oblivious to all of this and has inanely scheduled mid-semesters right after Homecoming Weekend. What makes it even worse---this is not the first time this has happened. This school, in the memory of this writer, has in the past exhibited a remarkable talent for having testing periods coincide with major social weekends.

WE FEEL that this is inexcusable inconsideration and lack of foresight on someone's part. We feel that many people at this school are willing to try to do well and we feel that in a sense, this lack of consideration, is a slap in the face to those peoples' efforts. We do protest and feel that in the future, it would behoove someone to wake up and use some foresight.

The Unpreceived Red Tide

Communism may well bury us some day. And it won't be because we are unwilling to fight it and fight it hard. It would be because the methods of Communism are something beyond our conception to really recognize. We cannot cope with what we do not see or understand.

Europeans call Americans naive—they refer to us as unbelievably friendly, as being, on the whole, a very good-natured people. We are too trusting as a rule—at least too trusting in relation to the rest of the world. We tend to be frank and open—and not subtle or devious. We tend to be honest as a people. W ebelieve in "doing the right thing."

We are a hard-working people on the whole too—our standard of living attests to this—we are not afraid to face a crisis as a nation and have shown in two World Wars that we can throw ourselves completely behind a cause and work and fight hard until it is achieved.

With our general morality and our drive as a people—why should we ever fall to communism? We may not—but if we do—one of the main reasons could well be because the nature of communism is entirely alien to our nature—and we simply cannot conceive of or appreciate that of which we have no knowledge or experience.

Communism advances in an exceedingly treacherous, ambigious and subtle fashion. It is hidden, covert—it is not open. It is not something the American people can point to exactly and say "here—here is the enemy" —or—"there he is."

If we had on ostensible enemy, like the Germans in WWII, to overcome—there would be no problem; but we are not fighting an ostensible enemy. We are fighting one who is deceptive and utterly unscrupulous; Communism feels no compunction to be honest. We cannot see what or where Communism is sufficiently enough to become properly enraged at its inhumanity and its threat to all that the Western world holds sacred.

Communism is viscious — it doesn't care whether it kills your son or your wife or your friend or your parent. It is not interested in you—but in your subjugation. It is working as hard as it is able to some day take away the most precious freedoms we have, for instance—freedom of speech, freedom of religion, right to vote. It is a false ideology which is carried on for the benefit of a few at the expense of many.

It must be recognized as the things. We must never be bullied into forgetting that it is a dread and viscious enemy. We must become more aware of its subtlety, duplicity and other treachery. We must or we will some day find ourselves undermined, weakened, and betrayed and buried

PI KAPPA ALPHA

Plans were completed for the Homecoming Weekend, and everyone is looking forward to a great time.

On Friday night following the school dance all freshmen and transfer students are invited to a drop-in which will be held in the fraternity suite.

On Saturday afternoon the PiKA's are presenting the "Catalinas" from 1:30-5:30. The dance will be held at the Legion Hut.

After the ball game there will be another dance at the Legion Hut, this one featuring The Dynamics.

We would like to invite all freshmen and transfer students to join us in all the festivities of the weekend. We guarantee that you'll enjoy it.

ALPHA SIGMA PHI

All freshmen and transfer students and their dates are cordially invited to share in the fun with the brothers this weekend. Friday night at the American Legion Hut after the school dance there will be a party with the "Joy Jumpers." Saturday afternoon and Saturday night after the game, the fraternity room will be open for dancing, ping pong, and pool. Bring your date, come on up and enjoy yourself. Brothers of the Week: Sam Waters and his "Theatre Room" crew.

THETA CHI

The Brothers and Pledges of Beta Psi Chapter of Theta Chi Fraternity cordially invite all freshmen, transfer students, and their dates to its Homecoming Party in the fraternity suite immediatley after the football game.

Congratulations are extended to Brother Bill Anderson on his recent marriage to the former Miss Jody Carter of Asheville, North Carolina.

Congratulations are also extended to Brother Bill Parks on his recent pinning of Miss Sandra Norris of Clinton.

Congratulations are extended to Brothers Howard Bell, Hunter Coleman, and Jim Owen who were elected officers of the nuewly formed Historia Club.

By Following A Five-eared Worm

by ERNEST LEE THINKEN

In honor of the fact that great masses of people are now being lubricated by Homecoming festivities, it would be nothing short of noble for us to commemorate those who in the past never did quite make it all the way home. And if nothing else, friends, do leave us be noble.

By way of example there is the prime example, as an example, of Henry David Thorough, a young man who was eagerly making his way in 1880 to become a member of Presbyterian College's first freshman class. It seems that on his journey he became diverted through the influence of a five-eared fishing worm, for Henry was a wild naturalist who went beserk at the first hint of any newly discovered specimen.

So absorbed did the attentive observer become that he laboriously followed the creature to its home, which was to be found, as the worm wiggles, several hundred miles away. Henry fought through the very roughest kinds of weather conditions, tunnelled away tons of terrain, and chiseled open two devouring robin read breasts—all this to keep in sight of the wonderful worm's wanderings.

As probably should have been expected, Old Five Ear, after circling around in a highly sneaky way, finally revealed its home to be located in Henry's own seaweed garden. The prospective PCun at that turn of events angrily grabbed the worm by its tail while considering what retribution to administer, but then perceived that one of the supposed ears was simply a birth mark and another was seemingly a naval tatoo from some wormy campaign of long ago: 'twas disappointingly just a three—instead of five-eared variety.

Henry mournfully gulped and then said, "Sorry, fellow—it was all my fault." He shortly thereafter proceeded to write a dissertation on the delectableness of three-eared worm patties and was accordingly awarded a first degree certificate of merit from International Crawling Enterprises.

By the time all this noteworthiness had ended Henry observed in a newspaper important information to the effect that PC was soon having its very first Homecoming, and he fervently recalled the goal of his interrupted journey that had been launched some two months previously. Naively believing that home is where the heart is, he determinedly fitted on a pair of blinders so as not to get off the anticipated track this time, and valiantly made his way to Clinton, where he was sure there awaited academic opportunities for furthering his scientific bent. The college officials had other ideas in mind, however, for they quickly formed the original in a long line of the dreaded absence committees, and decided to make of Henry David Thorough an example by permanently excluding him.

Henry therefore failed to discover any home within the grand halls of PC, and he reportedly never did find the way back to his native hole. This poor fellow was last seen following a stray within the moonlit and mud-filled Wamba River. It can always be hoped that, after all said and done, Henry finally will discover somewhere and in some form his true abode. As on this note, let us all offer a toast "to dear home"—and, naturally, to Henry (all 100 years of him), wherever he may or may not be.

Speaking of Sports

with AL PEARCE

"Rip 'em up
Tear 'em up
Give 'em..."

To a casual visitor at a typical Presbyterian College practice session on Young practice field it would appear from all visible indications that this team you are watching must have an undefeated season going for them. No team could have lost four ball games, three of them by wide margins, and still retain the spirit and desire that this one does. Teams just don't maintain that height of spirit and belief in themselves after going through what this team has often gone through this year. All this is running through the mind of this visitor as he hears the "hollar guys" keep up their regular brand of "uplifting", the subs daring the regulars to stop them on defense, and these same subs daring the defense to stop them when they run the plays. It surely must be some magic formula the coaches have devised to keep the team up week after week . . but it isn't.

Fresh Fire

Many of the boys of this year's team were on the team last year, and they don't mind telling you that the spirit this year is much better than it was last year at this time. Of course part of the reason must be attributed to the improved record this squad has made, but the spirit was here before the first win was recorded. The spirit was here in last year's spring practice sessions, and it must have blazed during the summer, because the fall practice sessions were even more spirited and lively than the spring ones had been.

Burning Together

As goes the team, so goes the student body. The players believed they would win this year, and, they believed it so strongly that the student body began to believe, and before long the whole college believed they would win. The level of excitement and school spirit seemed to be at a new high since 1959, during the first two weeks of school, and the school enthusiasm and desire and beliefs paid off in the first game. It was a fired-up PC team that took the field against Frederick College on the 21st of September and it was a spirited and fired-up student body that greeted them back to campus early the next morning after presenting new head coach Cally Gault his first college victory. For a while this fired-up team and this spirited student body worked together towards a better season. But then the "fair weather" friends began to fail by the wayside as the team lost a couple of well-fought games.

Monthly Minority

Before long some ins in the student body were getting "down" on the team, the coaches, and the athletic department as a whole. Not one of these "bad mouthers" knew what he was talking about; he was merely exercising his right to state an opinion. Those who did speak out against the program were quickly told what their ideas were thought of. Regardless of how hard the team played, some were always on their backs. Fortunately, these were in the minority. They'll always be around, but they don't mean very much.

Town and College Remain "Up"

The large majority of the student body of Presbyterian College, the faculty, administration, and the town of Clinton are not down on the team. In fact they are just as "up" for the team now as they were the week after the Frederick win. The fact that so many "outsiders" are "up" on the team must be a partial explanation of why the team is always in top spirits. The town and college will remain "up" on the team as long as the team is giving the 100% effort called for by the coaching staff, and we feel, personally, that every boy on the field tomorrow night will be giving over 100% for this game.

Just Never Quit

In order for the team to play their best tomorrow night against Wofford, the student body, the faculty, the administration, and the alumni must get behind the team tomorrow night. We need not tell you how you can accomplish this . . . just yell and never quit yelling. Let them know that you are for them all the way.

The coaches will appreciate it, the team will appreciate it, and the results may be surprising.

Talented Terriers Battle Hose Seeking "Little Three" Crown

Presbyterian's Blue Hosemen will go into tomorrow's Homecoming game a touchdown underdog against the Wofford Terriers, but only an idiot would take any bets with confidence.

PC's 1-4-1 record, and Wofford's 2-4 showing mean nothing in this first Little Three game for the Hose, with both coaches expecting a high-scoring, exciting battle.

Presbyterian suffered a double blow this week when kicking specialist Louis Ridinger with a bum leg and halfback Bill Riner with an injured neck were declared out for this game. Both were big offensive guns for PC, but the big damage is on defense where the two stood out.

Wofford on the other hand has a potent and well offense, featuring quarterback Todd Heldreth—who is expected to go over the 1,000 yard mark in this game. The Terriers already have dumped Newberry soundly, and will be aiming for the Little Three Championship tomorrow. A PC win would leave the title up to the Hose - Newberry game Thanksgivnig.

Coach Cally Gault will go with Bill Tyson at quarterback, with Jimmy Elliott at fullback and Don McNeill and Wade Stewart at the halfback posts. This backfield did most of the work up at Davidson last week, gaining 198 yards in the 14-14 tie.

A review of the 49 year old PC-Wofford rivalry shows that compared to 17 Terrier wins, and two foes have scored an average of 24 points in each meet-three ties. PC owns the biggest victory, a 44-0 explosion in 1941. ing; and 22 of the games have

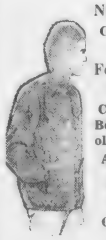
Injuries Haunt Quickened Hose Basketball Practice Race

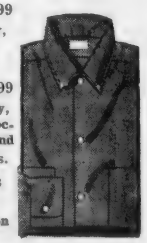
Basketball practice for the 1963-64 Presbyterian College team has picked up considerable speed in the past week, and with it a sudden rash of injuries---both major and minor.

Coach Art Musselman reported yesterday that 4 of his 9 boys have been hit by an assortment of breaks, sprains, and cuts. The injuries are serious in two cases, and not so bad in two others. All of the boys should be ready for the December 3rd opener against Belmont Abbey College.



The most serious injury has hit Danny Charles, a junior letterman guard from Spartanburg. Danny broke the thumb of his right hand two weeks ago and is expected to have his hand in a cast for several weeks. As far as working out with the team goes, that is out until Danny regains the full use of his hand, but he is keeping in top shape by continuing the running that Coach Musselman has emphasied.

Bill Brown, a senior center out for the team for the first time this year, is treading gently on a sprained ankle. The 6 foot, 6 inch "Moose" fell heavily on his ankle near the end of practice last week. He is practicing a little with his ankle tightly taped and is expected to be at full strength in about a week.



Two minor injuries hit the practice sessions earlier this week, but only stitches were required to get Andy Karlsons and John Etchison back on the court. Karlsons, the senoir captain from New York City, had three stitches taken near the corner of his right eye after he caught an elbow in a rebounding drill. Etchison, a sophomore letterman from Indianapolis, Ind., had two stitches in almost the same spot after he had been elbowed in a short scrimmage. Both starters were back in action the next day.

Coach Musselman mentioned that the team had progressed more rapidly than he had anticipated, but the injuries could spell trouble if they don't heal up in a hurry. "The loss of one man—any man—could hurt us badly," he replied when asked about the injuries. 'One man out, at any time, from this small squad, could cost us some games," he concluded.

Texas A&M Professor Will Speak To PC's History Club

Dr. Haskell Monroe, Professor of History at Texas A&M University, will present a program on Friday, November 8, at 8:00 p. m. on the division of the Presbyterian Church into northern and southern units.

Dr. Monroe will attend a meeting of Historia, PC's new history club, at 7:30 after which he will speak in the Douglas House meeting room to all interested students, faculty and guests. After the program Dr. Monroe is interested in talking to students who are considering graduate work in history.

The history club feels his subject is likely to excite both interest and controversy on the PC campus. It will include the initial split which was precipitated by the 1861 departure from the tradition of not entering into political questions. At this time a resolution was prepared stating Presbyterian support for the Union.

Southern Presbyterians reacted strongly and split into the separate unit which has prevailed until the present.

Dr. Monroe will be in the Carolinas area in attendance of the Southern Historical Association meeting in Asheville November 7-9. He is presenting a paper at this conclave entitled "The Personnel of the Confederate Provisional Government: A Consideration of the Motives and Factors Governing Their Selection."

Regarded as one of the outstanding Civil War historians in America, Dr. Monroe has written the volume in the Confederate Centennial Series entitled Yankees a' Comin', and another work, Presbyterian Church in the Confederacy, which is soon to be published by the Princeton University Press.

Along with PC's Thomas Lawrence Connelly, Dr. Monroe is on the editorial staff of the Jefferson Davis Foundation which is engaged in editing and publishing the Confederate President's papers.

Dr. Monroe was born in Dallas in 1931. He received his BA and MS from Austin College, and his Ph.D. from Rice University.

Series To Feature Choral Group Concert

The next concert in the Clinton Community Concert Series will feature the Schola Cantorum of New York, announced the series publicity chairman, Mrs. Lewis B. Hay, this week. The concert will be held in Belk Auditorium at 8:00 p. m. on November 6.

The choral group of twenty-seven members has appeared, since 1909, with the New York Philharmonic under such conductors as Toscanini, Walter, Hitopolous, Rodzinki, and Bernstein. Hugh Ross, musical director and conductor since 1929, has been called one of the world's more foremost choral directors.

The program will include works of Leonard Bernstein, Carl Orff, Puccini, Humperdinck, Bizet, Handl, as weil as various folk arrangements. The program will get underway at 8:00 p. m.

Physicist Chosen To Receive Gold P

Presbytreian College has selected as "alumnus of the year" for 1963 Dr. Colin M. Hudson, a native of Greenville who serves as an outstanding physicist with the Army's guided missile program.

He will receive the Alumni Gold P Award as part of the PC Homecoming program this Saturday afternoon. This award is presented annually by Presbyterian College to an alumnus for "outstanding achievements in his chosen profession.

Dr. Hudson has been a physicist in the office of the chief of ordnance, Department of Army, since 1943. In this capacity he has engaged in secret rocket research and served as advisor to the guided missile systems board.

Academic Scholarship Plans Announced For Coming Year

The program of academic scholarships---with grants ranging up to $5,600 each---is announced for the 1964-65 session at Presbyterian College.

Approximately ten Founder's Scholarships, ranging from $1,200 up to $5,600 each, will be awarded to incoming freshmen next year. Each scholarship will pay from $300 to $1,400 per year for four years to the student who qualifies on the basis of intellect, leadership, character and need. These awards are competitive.

A group of Honor Scholarships, newly instituted this year, is designed primarily for select semi-finalists in the National Merit program.

In addition, Valedictory Scholarships, each amounting to $1,000 for the four years of study, are available to first-honor high school graduates and certain second-honor graduates. And Ministerial Scholarships, also providing $1,000 over four years, are available to candidates for the ministry.

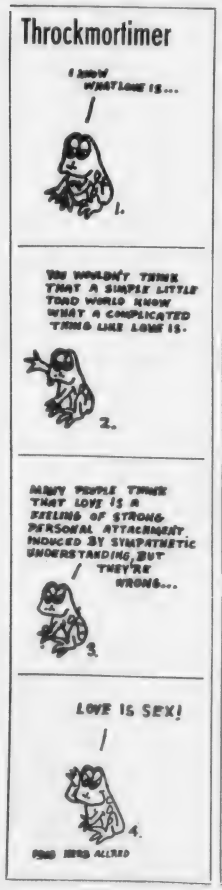
Kiwanis Club Elects Hammet President

Ben Hay Hammet, director of alumni and public relations at Presbyterian College, is the newly elected president of the Clinton Kiwanis Club.

Hammet has served as an administrative officer of Presbyterian College since 1949. He came here after two years with International News Service, as Southeastern Division night editor and later chief of the Alabama bureau in Montgomery.

A 1943 graduate of PC, he served for more than three years with the infantry in World War II. After the war, he received his journalism degree with honors from the University of Missouri and immediately joined International News Service.

Hammet is included in the "International Who's Who in Public Relations," in "Who's Who in American Education," and in the recently published "South Carolina Lives." A native of Allendale, he is married to the former Jane Jenkins of Letohatchie, Ala., and they have three sons, Ben, Jr., Lewis, and Scott.



Service Award Will Be Given Tomorrow

Dr. Marshall W. Brown, recently retired president of Presbyterian College, will be honored by PC alumni this Saturday with the presentation of the 1963 Alumni Service Award.

The board of directors of the Alumni Association selected Dr. Brown for this award as an honorary alumnus on the basis of his long years of service to the institution. Presentation will be made as part of the 3:30 p. m. special program in Belk Auditorium.

Dr. Brown retired on August 1 after serving as president of Presbyterian College since 1945. His close affiliation with PC spanned 39 years and included positions as professor of history and as dean prior to becoming president.

1963 REW Will Poise Question "Meaningfulnes Of God Today"

The 1963-64 Religious Emphasis Week is slated to start Wednesday. The theme for this year's activities is "Where Is Your God," and concerns problems which will be specifically adapted to Presbyterian College.

Hugh Harris, SCA president, commented, "We wan the students to make a self evaluation and question themselves on religious apathy."

Following the premier service on Wednesday, will be chapel services on Thursday and Friday. Classes which normally meet at 10:00 a. m., Thursday, have been re-scheduled for chapel period, 10:00 a. m., Monday, to allow a chapel period on that Thursday.

On Wednesday night, Nov. 20, at 7:30, discussion groups will eb held in the fraternity suites of Alpha Sigma Phi, Kappa Alpha, Pi Kappa Alpha; and also a discussion will be held for the independents in the Douglas House meeting room.

Again on Thursday night, Nov. 21, discusion groups will be held in the fraternity suites of Pi Kappa Phi, Sigma Nu, and Theta Chi. Married students will meet in the Douglas House.

Five outstanding speakers, headed by Dr. Sherrard Rice, will lead the week's activities. They are Dr. Rice, Rev. Jere Hammet, Rev. Edward S. Hopper, Dr. Clarence E. Piephoff, and Rev. Hugh S. Eichelberger.

The author of Let There Be Light, Dr. Rice received his education at Davidson College, Princeton and Union Theological Seminaries, and holds a D.D. from Austin College. The former professor of The School of Christian Education, Richmond, Va., now hails from Columbia where he is pastor of the First Presbyterian Church.

Rev. Jere Hammet, pastor to Presbyterian students at USC, attended Clemson College and Columbia Seminary. He was formerly pastor of Rock Presbyterian Church, Greenwood.

Rev. Edward L. Hopper, pastor of Fourth Presbyterian Church, Greenville, received his A.B. from Davidson and B.D. from Columbia Seminary.

Holidays Begin Soon

Thanksgiving Holidays will officially begin at 6:00 p. m., Wednesday, November 27, and continue through Sunday, December 1. This leaves only 15 days before Christmas Holidays which start December 17 at 6:00 p. m., and end January 2, 1964.

phanage, Presbyterian College, and Columbia Seminary, Dr. Clarence E. Piephoff also holds

A graduate of Thornwell Ora D.D. from this institution. He has taught at PC and Darlington School in Rome Ga., as well as serving as Assistant to the President of Thornwell Orphanage. Dr. Piephoff is presently the pastor of Monaghan Presbyterian Church in Greenville.

Rev. Hugh L. Eichelberger is a graduate of The McCallie School, Presbyterian College, and Columiba Seminary. He is now pastor of Rock Presbyterian Church, Greenwood.

PC Gleemen Perform With Ned Odom Boys

Furman's NED ODOM BOYS joined PC's GLEEMEN November 8 in a chapel program presented by the Pepsi Cola Company of Greenville. The master of ceremonies was Andy Scott of WFBC-TV, Greenville.

Plans have been made for the GLEEMEN to appear on WFBC-TV, channel 4, on November 24 from 4:30 to 5:00 in a program featurnig Presbyterian College. Under the sponsorship of Pepsi Cola, the Pepsi Cola "Shindy," will be taped at the WFBC-TV Studio on November 24.

Seventh Parent's Day Will Be Conducted Here Tomorrow

Presbyterian College will play host to the parents of the present student body at its seventh annual Parents Day this Saturday.

Parents and other immediate family members of the PC students will be guests of the college for supper and the Blue Hose-Troy State football game that night. They also will be entertained with a special student program of welcome, a faculty reception and fraternity drop-ins.

The day's events are scheduled to get underway at 2 p. m. Saturday with registration in the Douglas House. Campus tours, directed by members of Blue Key, national leadership fraternity, will be conducted between 2 p.m. and 3 p.m. Then, at 3 p.m., the students will present an hour-long program designed to give their parents a brief glimpse at campus life, and President Marc C. Weersing will address the group.

The faculty reception is set for 4 p. m., followed by supper in Judd Dining Hall at 5:15 p.m., fraternity drop-ins at 7 p.m., and the football game under lights on Johnson Field at 8 p. m.

This encounter will find the PC squad playing its final home game of the 1963 season and seeking a second victory to better the present 1-6-1 record. The Troy State eleven is rated a one-point favorite by the power-ratings, so the Hosemen have another tough assignment ahead for this weekend.

New Rule Curtails Suspended Students

A new ruling on suspended students was passed at the November 6 meeting of the faculty, announced Academic Dean Joseph M. Gettys. In the future students who are suspended will have no cuts upon their return to school following their suspension period.

A change of classes to facilitate Religious Emphasis Week was also announced. There will be no chapel Monday. Instead, there will be a chapel period at 10:00 on Thursday, and the classes which meet at 10:00 on Thursday will be held at 10:00 Monday.

Likes To Represent PC In Philadelphia

More than 150 campus leaders in the Army, Navy, and Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps (ROTC) will attend the 31st Nationl Convention of the National Society of Scabbard and Blade, in Philadelphia, November 15 and 16.

The local unit of the National ROTC Honorary Society, Company K, 10th Regiment, at Presbyterian College, will be represented by Captain Creighton E. Likes, Jr.

During the two-day Convention, top military leaders of the armed forces will address the Scabbard and Blade delegates from senior ROTC units located at colleges and universities throughout the nation.

Convention business will include discussions of local company activities designed to further public understanding of the military establishment and the needs of national security. The role of ROTC on the American college campus will also be reviewed.

Students May Use Guidance Services

Dr. Claude H. Cooler, Director of the Guidance Center and chairman of the faculty guidance committee, this week mailed to parents of all PC students a letter concerning the college guidance services available to PC students.

Cooler gave the following statement as the purpose for sending the letter: "The members of the Faculty Guidance Committee feel that more college students will use the available guidance services if the students and their parents are informed of the nature of these services and some of the possible benefits that may be derived from their use."

PC's Robed Choir Has Plans For Twenty-Three Concerts

Continuing its musical program on "The Story of the Covenant," the Presbyterian College Robed Choir will give 23 performances before church congregations in five states during the 1963-64 concert season.

The program of sacred music and worship is developed around 13 spirituals and anthems adapted for the 31 male voices of the PC group. It is under the direction of Conductor Edouard Patte, whose leadership of the Presbyterian College choir has extended over 17 years and more than 600 concerts.

The choir will fill Sunday engagements in South Carolina, Georgia, and North Carolina churches and will take a week-long tour in Alabama and Mississippi. Here's the complete 1963-64 schedule:

Nov. 24 — Darlington (morning), Kershaw (evening); Dec. 8—Albany, Ga.; First Church (morning), Moultrie, Ga. (evening); Dec. 9—Waynesboro, Ga.; Jan. 5—Summerville, S. C. (morning), Columbia First Church (evening); Jan. 19 — Clinton (morning); Feb. 2 — Savannah Independent Church (morning), Augusta First Church (evening); March 1—Spartanburg Westminster Church (morning), Tryon, N. C. (evening); March 15—Charleston Frist Church (morning), Cayce, S. C., Congaree Church (evening).

Spring tour: Singing at the First Presbyterian Church in each of these cities: April 1—Cartersville, Ga. (evening); 2—Huntsville, Ala. (evening); 3—Meridian, Miss. (evening); 5—Natchez, Miss. (morning), Hattiesburg, Miss. (evening); 6—Andalusia, Ala. (evening); 7—Bainbridge, Ga. (evening).

April 26—Ocean Drive Beach (morning), Columbia Covenant Church (evening).

No Courses Dropped After November 22

Students who wish to drop a course in which they have a passing mark must do so before or on November 22. Policy requires this deadline to fall two weeks after the last day scheduled for mid-semester exams.

College Group Will Have TV Discussion

Presbyterian College will put on a half-hour television program over WSPA-TV this Thanksgiving. The college will be represented by its president, Dr. Marc C. Weersing, and by a panel of four students, to be chosen at a later date.

The program will be an informal discussion type presentation during which the significance of Thanksgiving, 1963, will be considered. Such things as the meaning of the holiday in terms of a celebration for freedom or for material security will be discussed.

This will be the eighth year that Dr. Weersing has conducted such a progra min conjunction with WSPA. His panels have been composed of such diverse groups as immigrants and ikndergarten children. No definite program time has been announced but it will take place sometime Thanksgiving morning.

Seventh Album By Choir To Be Released This Week

The Presbyterian College Choir announces that its seventh recording, The Covenant Story, will be released to the public within the next week. Continuing a tradition established in more than 600 concerts, Conductor Edouard Patte has grouped in this album a new series of anthems and spirituals coupled with a lovely photograph of the choir in the majestic nave of Greenville's Westminster Presbyterian Church on the jacket, creates a truly impressive package.

The recording was made in Belk Auditorium in April, 1963, with Paul Woodall as Producer and David Perry as organist. G. Wardlaw engineered and edited the master tapes on the choir's new high fidelity recording equipment. The records were pressed by RCA-Victor.

Through the distribution of this recording, Presbyterian College will be made known throughout the Southern Presbyterian Church. This album will be used by the Board of Christian Education to promote an understanding of God's Covenant with man essential to the new Covenant Life Curriculum. A large number of these records have been purchased for distribution in the Presbyterian Book Stores.

Another first for this seventh recording is found in a significant change in format from the previous recordings. Instead of being entirely composed of musical selections, scriptural readings alternate with anthems and spirituals on the disc. Asked to make a comment, Dr. Patte stated that he felt that the superb readings of Wirt Skinner ('63), are combined with the magnificent renditions of the choir to make a truly unusual recording.

An increase in recording quality makes this pressing the first truly high fidelity transcription produced by the choir. Dr. Patte stated that the quality pressing,

Powell Takes Over The Mary Musgrove Hotel

Under new management is the Mary Musgrove, Clinton's largest hotel. The building was leased to Mr. L. Vernon Powell, former dietician of Presbyterian College's Judd Hall, on Sept. 17, 1963.

Many new innovations of both decor and service are underway. Perhaps the most spectacular is The Horse Shoe Room which replaces the hotel's Coffee Shop. This dining area is being decorated with antiques and carries on Mr. Powell's theme of bringing Clinton's yesteryears in as a backdrop to the Musgrove.

Said Mr. Powell, whose quality food and service have gained renown in this area at "Vernon's" on the Greenwood road: "Friendliness is free at the Musgrove and our supply will never run out."

Same difference. But do you blame us when you want to yell and the boys need to hear you? We've brought in some new cheers but haven't found much cooperation in learning to use them. You may ask why don't we cooperate with the boys. Well, if that's what you want, that's fine, 'cause it surely doesn't take much practice or energy to stand on the sidelines and watch a football game! When we've suggested cheers, they questioned "What can you do when the crowd doesn't yell?" (especially at off games). Cheerleaders are taught that a cheer squad is responsible to the team for noise, whether they get it from the crowd or supply it themselves.

WHAT DO WE suggest as an answer? First that the squad be dissolved at the end of this season and the people for the ballot for the next season be chosen by a group of adults who know something about cheering. But having the ability and/or the experience aren't the only qualifications for a cherleader. He should have a projective and pleasing personality and a willingness to practice. He needs to be someone you want out there. We don't see how this method would put a "drip" in front of you. Some boys on a campus may have this particular combination but if they feel in any way that any part of cheering is sissy, then they hinder the squad Our squad is hindered!!

WE HAVE BEEN accuse "riding high horses" and ing on the boys' backs." In efforts to have a top squad year; maybe we have. But if feel that we've stepped ou line, then we are ready, wi and able to apologize to you to the boys and to take our p in the stands alongside of We want you to know, tha that we want to yell and tha will lead you in all the s long, and appropriate chee you desire—If you desire. D have your support???

Over 1400 Students Here For Youth Day

Over 1400 high school students and 200 advisors attended Presbyterian's Youth Day Oct. 5.

Mr. Ben Hay Hammet, PC Director of Public Relations and Alumni Affairs, said, "Youth Day was a great success. Many letters have been sent to this department and to the President expressing thanks and interest in our collge. Because of the tremendous response this year, Youth Day may become an annual affair."

BOOM!

Today, foregoing levity, let us turn our keen young minds to the principal problem facing American colleges today: the population explosion. Only last week four people exploded in Cleveland, Ohio—one of them while carrying a plate of soup. In case you're thinking such a thing couldn't happen anywhere but in Cleveland, let me tell you about two other cases last week: a 45-year-old man in Provo, Utah, and a 19-year-old girl in Northfield, Minnesota. And, in addition, there was a near miss in High Point, North Carolina—an eight-year-old boy who was saved only by the quick thinking of his cat, Fred, who rested the phone off the hook with his muzzle and dialed the department of weights and measures. (It would, perhaps, have been more logical for Fred to dial the fire department, but one can hardly expect a cat to summon a fire engine which is followed by a Dalmatian, can one?)

But I digress. The population explosion, I say, is upon us. It is, of course, cause for concern but not for alarm, because I feel sure that science will ultimately find an answer. After all, has not science in recent years brought us such marvels as the maser, the bevatron, and the Marlboro filter? Oh, what a saga of science was the discovery of the Marlboro filter! Oh, what a heart-rending epic of trial and error, of dedication and perseverance! And, in the end, what a triumph it was when the Marlboro research team, after years of testing and discarding one filter material after another—iron, nickel, tin, antimony, obsidian, poundcake—finally emerged, tired but happy, from their laboratory, carrying in their hands the perfect filter cigarette! Indeed, what rejoicing there still is whenever we light up a Marlboro which comes to us in soft pack and Flip-Top Box in all fifty states and Cleveland!

Yes, science will ultimately solve the problems arising from the population explosion, but meanwhile America's colleges are in dire straits. Where can we find classrooms and teachers for today's gigantic influx of students?

Well sir, some say the solution is to adopt the trimester system. This system, already in use at many colleges, eliminates summer vacations, has three semesters per annum instead of two, and compresses a four-year course into three years.

This is, of course, good, but is it good enough? Even under the trimester system the student has occasional days off. Moreover, his nights are utterly wasted in sleeping. Is this the kind of all-out attack that is indicated?

I say no. I say desperate situations call for desperate remedies. I say that partial measures will not solve this crisis. I say we must do no less than go to school every single day of the year. But that is not all. I say we must go to school 24 hours of every day!

The benefits of such a program are, as you can see, obvious. First of all, the classroom shortage will disappear because all the dormitories can be converted into classrooms. Second, the teacher shortage will disappear because all the night watchmen can be put to work teaching solid state physics and Restoration drama. And finally, overcrowding will disappear because everybody will quit school.

Any further questions?

Yes, one further question: the makers of Marlboro, who sponsor this column, would like to know whether you have tried a Marlboro lately. It's the filter cigarette with a man's world of flavor. Settle back and enjoy one soon.

1963 REW Will Poise Question "Meaningfulnes Of God Today"

The 1963-64 Religious Emphasis Week is slated to start Wednesday. The theme for this year's activities is "Where Is Your God," and concerns problems which will be specifically adapted to Presbyterian College.

Hugh Harris, SCA president, commented; "We wan the students to make a self evaluation and question themselves on religious apathy."

Following the premier service on Wednesday, will be chapel services on Thursday and Friday. Classes which normally meet at 10:00 a. m., Thursday, have been re-scheduled for chapel period, 10:00 a. m., Monday, to allow a chapel period on that Thursday.

On Wednesday night, Nov. 20. at 7:30, discussion groups will eb held in the fraternity suites of Alpha Sigma Phi, Kappa Alpha, Pi Kappa Alpha; and also a discussion will be held for the independents in the Douglas House meeting room.

Again on Thursday night, Nov. 21, discusion groups will be held in the fraternity suites of Pi Kappa Phi, Sigma Nu, and Theta Chi. Married students will meet in the Douglas House.

Five outstanding speakers, headed by Dr. Sherrard Rice, will lead the week's activities. They are Dr. Rice, Rev. Jere Hammet, Rev. Edward S. Hopper, Dr. Clarence E. Piephoff, and Rev. Hugh S. Eichelberger.

The author of Let There Be Light, Dr. Rice received his education at Davidson College, Princeton and Union Theological Seminaries, and holds a D.D. from Austin College. The former professor of The School of Christian Education, Richmond, Va., now hails from Columbia where he is pastor of the First Presbyterian Church.

Rev. Jere Hammet, pastor to Presbyterian students at USC, attended Clemson College and Columbia Seminary. He was formerly pastor of Rock Presbyterian Church, Greenwood.

Rev. Edward L. Hopper, pastor of Fourth Presbyterian Church, Greenville, received his A.B. from Davidson and B.D. from Columbia Seminary.

Holidays Begin Soon

Thanksgiving Holidays will officially begin at 6:00 p. m., Wednesday, November 27, and continue through Sunday, December 1. This leaves only 15 days before Christmas Holidays which start December 17 at 6:00 p. m., and end January 2, 1964.

phanage, Presbyterian College, and Columbia Seminary, Dr. Clarence E. Piephoff also holds

A graduate of Thornwell Orphanage and D.D. from this institution. He has taught at PC and Darlington School in Rome Ga., as well as serving as Assistant to the President of Thornwell Orphanage. Dr. Piephoff is presently the pastor of Monaghan Presbyterian Church in Greenville.

Rev. Hugh L. Eichelberger is a graduate of The McCallie School, Presbyterian College, and Columbia Seminary. He is now pastor of Rock Presbyterian Church, Greenwood.

PC Gleemen Perform With Ned Odom Boys

Furman's NED ODOM BOYS joined PC's GLEEMEN November 8 in a chapel program presented by the Pepsi Cola Company of Greenville. The master of ceremonies was Andy Scott of WFBC-TV, Greenville.

Plans have been made for the GLEEMEN to appear on WFBC-TV, channel 4, on November 24 from 4:30 to 5:00 in a program featurnig Presbyterian College. Under the sponsorship of Pepsi Cola, the Pepsi Cola "Shindy," will be taped at the WFBC-TV Studio on November 24.

Seventh Parent's Day Will Be Conducted Here Tomorrow

Presbyterian College will play host to the parents of the present student body at its seventh annual Parents Day this Saturday.

Parents and other immediate family members of the PC students will be guests of the college for supper and the Blue Hose-Troy State football game that night. They also will be entertained with a special student program of welcome, a faculty reception and fraternity drop-ins.

The day's events are scheduled to get underway at 2 p. m. Saturday with registration in the Douglas House. Campus tours, directed by members of Blue Key, national leadership fraternity, will be conducted between 2 p.m. and 3 p.m. Then, at 3 p.m., the students will present an hour-long program designed to give their parents a brief glimpse at campus life, and President Marc C. Weersing will address the group.

The faculty reception is set for 4 p. m., followed by supper in Judd Dining Hall at 5:15 p.m., fraternity drop-ins at 7 p.m., and the football game under lights on Johnson Field at 8 p. m.

This encounter will find the PC squad playing its final home game of the 1963 season and seeking a second victory to better the present 1-6-1 record. The Troy State eleven is rated a one-point favorite by the power-ratings, so the Hosemen have another tough assignment ahead for this weekend.

Likes To Represent PC In Philadelphia

More than 150 campus leaders in the Army, Navy, and Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps (ROTC) will attend the 31st Nationl Convention of the National Society of Scabbard and Blade, in Philadelphia, November 15 and 16.

The local unit of the National ROTC Honorary Society, Company K, 10th Regiment, at Presbyterian College, will be represented by Captain Creighton E. Likes, Jr.

During the two-day Convention, top military leaders of the armed forces will address the Scabbard and Blade delegates from senior ROTC units located at colleges and universities throughout the nation.

Convention business will include discussions of local company activities designed to further public understanding of the military establishment and the needs of national security. The role of ROTC on the American college campus will also be reviewed.

New Rule Curtails Suspended Students

A new ruling on suspended students was passed at the November 6 meeting of the faculty, announced Academic Dean Joseph M. Gettys. In the future students who are suspended will have no cuts upon their return to school following their suspension period.

A change of classes to facilitate Religious Emphasis Week was also announced. There will be no chapel Monday. Instead, there will be a chapel period at 10:00 on Thursday, and the classes which meet at 10:00 on Thursday will be held at 10:00 Monday.

Students May Use Guidance Services

Dr. Claude H. Cooler, Director of the Guidance Center and chairman of the faculty guidance committee, this week mailed to parents of all PC students a letter concerning the college guidance services available to PC students.

Cooler gave the following statement as the purpose for sending the letter: "The members of the Faculty Guidance Committee feel that more college students will use the available guidance services if the students and their parents are informed of the nature of these services and some of the possible benefits that may be derived from their use."

PC's Robed Choir Has Plans For Twenty-Three Concerts

Continuing its musical program on "The Story of the Covenant," the Presbyterian College Robed Choir will give 23 performances before church congregations in five states during the 1963-64 concert season.

The program of sacred music and worship is developed around 13 spirituals and anthems adapted for the 31 male voices of the PC group. It is under the direction of Conductor Edouard Patte, whose leadership of the Presbyterian College choir has extended over 17 years and more than 600 concerts.

The choir will fill Sunday engagements in South Carolina, Georgia, and North Carolina churches and will take a week-long tour in Alabama and Mississippi. Here's the complete 1963-64 schedule:

Nov. 24 — Darlington (morning), Kershaw (evening); Dec. 8—Albany, Ga.; First Church (morning), Moultrie, Ga. (evening); Dec. 9—Waynesboro, Ga.; Jan. 5—Summerville, S. C. (morning), Columbia First Church (evening); Jan. 19 — Clinton (morning); Feb. 2 — Savannah Independent Church (morning), Augusta First Church (evening); March 1—Spartanburg Westminster Church (morning), Tryon, N. C. (evening); March 15—Charleston Frist Church (morning), Cayce, S. C., Congaree Church (evening).

Spring tour: Singing at the First Presbyterian Church in each of these cities: April 1—Cartersville, Ga. (evening); 2—Huntsville, Ala. (evening); 3—Meridian, Miss. (evening); 5—Natchez, Miss. (morning), Hattiesburg, Miss. (evening); 6—Andalusia, Ala. (evening); 7—Bainbridge, Ga. (evening).

April 26—Ocean Drive Beach (morning), Columbia Covenant Church (evening).

No Courses Dropped After November 22

Students who wish to drop a course in which they have a passing mark must do so before or on November 22. Policy requires this deadline to fall two weeks after the last day scheduled for mid-semester exams.

College Group Will Have TV Discussion

Presbyterian College will put on a half-hour television program over WSPA-TV this Thanksgiving. The college will be represented by its president, Dr. Marc C. Weersing, and by a panel of four students, to be chosen at a later date.

The program will be an informal discussion type presentation during which the significance of Thanksgiving, 1963, will be considered. Such things as the meaning of the holiday in terms of a celebration for freedom or for material security will be discussed.

This will be the eighth year that Dr. Weersing has conducted such a progra min conjunction with WSPA. His panels have been composed of such diverse groups as immigrants and ikndergarten children. No definite program time has been announced but it will take place sometime Thanksgiving morning.

The Trap

THERE ARE many vital fields in America today just crying for someone to come to them---but too many people are selfish and afraid and don't go. Too many of us are too interested in being wealthy or going into jobs that in our minds bespeak status. It is somewhat of the idea that Vance Packhard developed in his book The Status Seeker.

MOST OF this selfishness that grips us is, quite obviously, for appearances sake---just as so much of what we do is for appearances sake. The 20th century has in fact been called the Age of Appearances---for we are in too much of a hurry to ever get to know anyone and so we must judge by appearances and so we must have good appearances.

IT IS THE OLD human desire to be liked by others and, as the great majority of others are materialistically minded and status conscious, we must put the best possible materialistic and status-wise foot forward. In terms of good business or often just good practice, there is nothing wrong with doing this, as long as the individual is clearly aware that putting on a good front is merely a tool to be used in personal relationships.

WHAT IS WRONG is for the individual not to be able to look at it objectively but rather subjectively. For in looking at it objectively, he at once is free from status and materialism and can divorce himself from them at will and become, in profession, whatever he will.

THE PERSON WHO looks at these things subjectively though destroys himself. For to him they are the ultimate reality of his existence. They are what life is all about. Such a person comes chained to the surface of life and, trite as it may be, like a tree with no roots, he or something in him dies and he will be ever unhappy, even though he may not even be aware that he is unhappy. He will never be able to fulfill himself adequately.

WE OWE IT to ourselves to have the courage of our convictions and our interests, and to be whatever the combination of duty, idealism, and ability calls us to be.

In The Name Of Zeus

THE BLUE STOCKING would again pose a question that has been asked many times. When, and we ask in the name of courtesy, Zeus, heaven and Hell, does the administration intend to do something about the inadequate sound system in Belk Auditorium?

THE TIME HAS come for politeness and tact to be thrown aside for the blunt and bitter, the truthful and realistic. The administration has developed a trend of forgetting little smudges on the external image of Presbyterian College. Psychologically this is good for personality conflicts and the dining hall's interpretation of roast beef, but not for the ridiculous and apathetic experience a chapel speaker must endure with our present sound system.

ONE DOES not ask Ferenc Nagy, the last premier of free Hungary; Lisa Sergio, Danforth Lecturer; Ashley Halsey, Saturday Evening Post Editor; to speak in a five hundred thousand dollar, prize-winning, air conditioned auditorium and then slap them with surf and throw sand in their mouths. One really shouldn't ask a minister with a wealthy congregation to put up with such. We wonder also what the "big-mouth---big wallet" type thinks. It is really a finale to the folly of the latter.

QUITE OFTEN the "powers that be" will interpret what is Christian with the finesse and style of a Negro evangelist. Now we ask, sirs, "We just ain't been too Christian to our speakers, have we?" Well, Christian, pagan, pregnant, poor-speaker, bad-speaker, Jew or Gentile ---this student body will no longer be embarrassed by a speaker who talks and is not heard.

WHO EVER HEARD of a professor having to stand up in an auditorium the size of Belk and ask a speaker to talk into the microphone. Before the students' lack of attention is mentioned again, we would like to point out that if the student could hear the speaker, he could listen to him. You know! Stimulus! Organism! Response! Very simple, but someone evidently does not understand.

THE FACULTY IS EMBARRASSED, THE STUDENT BODY IS EMBARRASSED, THE ADMINISTRATION SHOULD BE.

President Comments On New Duties

The following is reprinted from the Spartanburg Herald-Journal

By BILL STORR
Herald Staff Writer

The problems that face a college president are not much different than those encountered by a minister, but they do involve people, according to Dr. Marc Weersing, president of Presbyterian College.

"I've found that it's safest for a college president to spend much of his time during the first year listening rather than acting," he said.

"Although the president's duties lie chiefly in the administrative field, he should have some acquaintance with every avenue of college life, including business, academic, athletic, and student body."

For Dr. Weersing this means a bout with the textbooks just about as grueling as that of a freshman cramming for mid-term exams.

"I've asked the head of each department to supply me with a textbook that is characteristic of his department and the results are that my brains are almost literally retooled," he said.

Because much of his time is spent in dealing with young people, the opportunity for counseling work is limitless, according to Dr. Weersing.

One aspect of his new job which is quite different from his work as a minister is the amount traveling required.

One difficulty that is unique with the PC administrative leader is that he must commute from Spartanburg to the college campus three or four times each week.

Dr. Weersing was reluctant to talk about PC's football team this year which has won one and tied one while losing five.

"We've got several ministers on the faculty but even this doesn't seem to help us much on the football field," he stated.

Dr. Weersing anticipates a number of new problems at Presbyterian College next year.

"The academic level is rising which brings groans from the student body, but this should present few problems.

"Potential students to PC are carefully screened and as a result we have relatively few drop-outs.

An expansion and building program is underway including a new science hall, dining hall and the first of several women's dormitories which are expected to be completed in time for the 1964-65 school year.

"You'll notice I said a women's dormitory," Dr. Weersing remarked. "Although a few women have attended every year, next year Presbyterian will become a co-educational institution in earnest for the first time in its 83 years.

"Going co-educational may present some new problems, but it just might make the college more attractive to the male student body."

"The differences between life as a Presbyterina minister and a college president are happy differences," Dr. Weersing reported, "and it's a very rewarding life."

'One thing it has brought out clearly" he added, "you learn so very much and yet know so very little."

ALPHA SIGMA PHI

At the last brotherhood final plans for Parent's Weekend were discussed. All freshmen are invited along with their parents to an informal drop-in Saturday afternoon from 4:30 to 6:00. The suite will be open after the football game, also.

Brother of the Week: Bill "The Scholar" Megathlin.

KAPPA ALPHA

Brothers and pledges of Kappa Alpha Order, alumni, and freshmen enjoyed an afternoon party at the Greenwood Shrine Club homecoming weekend. Music was provided by the Dynamics. At the afternoon party, Bonnie Burgess was named as K. A. Rose for 1963-64.

Efforts of all brothers and pledges contrbiuting to the construction of the winning homecoming display were appreciated.

Freshmen, transfer students and their parents are cordially invited to a drop-in to be held in the fraternity suite behind Laurens dormitory from 7:00 p. m. until 8:00 p. m., Saturday, November 16 and an open house at 10:30 p. m.

SIGMA NU

Congratulations are in order to brothers Ed Clowdis and Bunky Hanks for their recent pinnings. Also Zeta Theta would like to congratulate the ping pong team for placing first and the swimming team for placing second in these intramural activities.

Rush plans were worked out and Zeta Theta would like to invite all freshmen and transfer students and their parents to visit the fraternity house at any time during Parents Day this coming Saturday. Plans for our Closed Smoker and Christmas dance weekend are also under way.

Tchambuli Tribesmen Play With Dolls, Assert Maleness

In America, Pipe Smoking is regarded as an outstanding sign of masculinity — in fact, some men, non-smokers, carry pipes in their breast pockets just to impress women.

But elsewhere, one of the signs of masculinity is playing with dolls (among the Tchambuli tribe); and in many primitive societies, when the wife is giving birth, the husband stays at home, pretends to be in labor and sighs and groans all day long.

What this shows is that masculinity is, as the anthropologists say, "culturally determined." It depends on where you live, what people around you have been led to believe.

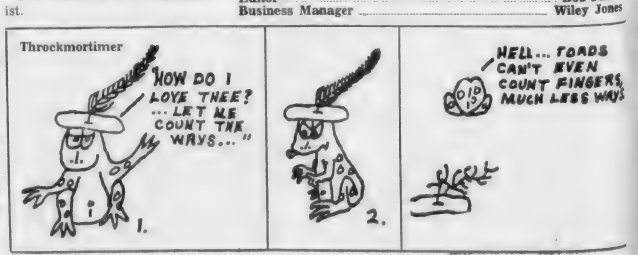
Surprisingly, psychologists say that it's really best for men to have some feminine characteristics; and best for women to have some masculine characteristics.

To form a better idea of what your masculinity quotient is, try yourself out on the following psychological test.

1. Does the word "powder" remind you of "gun" or "rouge"? Now, look at the words on the left below, and choose which of the two words to the right it reminds you of.

A. Garden—Weeds; Flowers.
B. Case—Bottles; Doctor.
C. Make—Money; Dress.

2. Now answer TRUE or FALSE:



A. I enjoy a game better when I bet on it.
B. I would like to be a journalist.
C. If I were a reporter, I would like to report sporting news.
D. I like to be in a crowd that plays jokes on one another.
E. I like Lewis Carroll's Alice in Wonderland.
F. I would like to be a soldier.
3. Answer YES or NO.
A. Are your feelings easily hurt?
B. Do you resent people using nicknames?
C. Do you prefer associating with people more intelligent than you?
D. Do you prefer sports to music?
E. Do you like to buy antique furniture?
F. Do you feel pity for a drowning bee?
G. If the lights went out, would you call an electrician rather than try to fix it yourself?
4. Check those things you dislike and those you like.
A. Climbing the edge of a precipice.
B. Contract bridge.
C. Snakes.
D. Detective stories.
E. Movies about unemployment.

Alpha Sig's Again Reign As 'Mural Football Champs

For the second consecutive year the Alpha Sigma Phi football team reigns as campus intramural champs by virtue of their 14-6 win over the Bandits here yesterday. The title game was played before a loud, chilled crowd on Young Field.

The Alpha Sigs used the running game to take the win as Tommy Herndon scored both TDs on short runs. Throughout the season the passing of Donnie Hardee has been the ASP's main weapon, but yesterday it was all Herndon. The champs scored first, but the game was in doubt up until the last few minutes of play.

Scoring for the Bandits was Freddie Gossett, who took a pass from Tommy Hardwick. Gossett made a fine run for the score, but the extra point attempt failed, and that was the ball game. Both teams were commended for their fine play and good sportsmanship by Intramural Director Gordan Warden, who added that he was very pleased with the

Hardee, Ellisor Lead 1963 I-M All-Star Football Team

The 1963 I-M All-Star football team was announced today by intramural director Gordon Warden and the squad reads like a Who's Who in PC football.

Leading the team for the second consecutive year is quarterback Donnie Hardee of the Alpha Sigs. Hardee has a full stable of good ends and backs for his pinpoint passes as Buddy Ellisor (Bandits) and Pete Collins (Pounders), along with Bill Canady (Alpha Sigs), Buddy Barnwell (Kappa Alphas), and James Salvo (Pi Kapps) made the select nine-man first team.

The leading linemen average about 200 pounds as Bob Morris (Kappa Alpha) and Mac Cobb (Sigma Nu) anchor the forward wall.

Voting was not even close for the Most Valuable Player Award as the Bandits' Buddy Ellisor easily took that honor. Ellisor is a tall, swift end who specialized in making the "impossible" catch at the right time to pace the Bandits this season.

Wiley Jones, Alivn Coley, Mac Cobb, and Dodge Fredrick were voted the top officials by the players in the league.

Amalgamation Takes Top Swimming Honors

A group of boys who called themselves the P E O's, for obvious reasons, took top honors in last week's I-M swimming meet. The squad, made up of Theta Chis, Pi Kappa Phis and Independents, defeated the Sigma Nus, Alpha Sigs and PiKAs.

Kappa Phis and Independents, defeated the Sigma Nus, Alpha Sigs and PiKAs.

Pacing the P E O's were Jim Barnhardt, Jim Ownes, Bill Beddington, George Lewis, Jim Ritchie, and Dave Welborn. This team chalked up 6 first places, 1 second, and 2 fourths to total 35 points. The Sigma Nu had 28 points, the Alpha Sigs 20, and the PiKAs had 13. Other entered teams were the KA's and the Pounders.

Because the P E O's are not an organized, regular I-M entrant they will get no "trophy points"

Six PC Seniors Play Final Home Game Against Troy Tomorrow

Six outstanding senior football players will make their last Walter Johnson Field appearance tomorrow night as Presbyterian will face Troy State of Alabama before an expected Parents' Day crowd of 3,000. The game, climaxing the day's activities, will begin at 8:00 p. m.

PC is given only a slight chance to defeat the Maroons who beat Tampa earlier in the season. Tampa defeated PC several weeks ago, 26-0, so things don't look all rosey in the PC camp. This week's practice sessions have been spirited and profitable ones, so an upset could be in the making.

Heading the PC contingent will be these six senior gridmen who are determined to make their exit a winning one. Five of the seniors will start and one will use his "educated toe" if the need arises. If the Hose can win, it will be the first home victory in two years.

Starting seniors for PC will be tackle, Frank King; guards, Randy Fitzpatrick and Pat Sudduth; center Keith Richardson; and quarterback, Bill Tyson. End Louis Ridinger will be used primarily for kicking off, extra points, and field goals. Louis has been hampered by a leg injury for the past several weeks, and Coach Gault will not risk re-injury to the kicking specialist by starting him at his usual end position although he may start on defense.

Along with Tyson, Richardson, King, Fitzpatrick, and Sudduth, at halfback, and Randy McCranie at fullback, along with Jimmy Bankhead at ends, and John Harvey Edwards at tackle. Don McNeill and Wade Stewart will start Garnet Welch and PC will complete the backfield.

Speaking of Sports

PC May Join Three Top Teams In Little S.E.C.

There's a very strong rumor being circulated around the football centers of the country that the Southeast will soon see a new conference---The Little Four.

This new conference would be composed of PC, Georgia Tech, Wake Forest, and South Carolina.

Wofford is said to have been considered, but PC vetoed that school because the Terriers beat the Blue Hose this year. Valdosta (Ga.) High was invited, but decided not to make the scholarship cutbacks required for a college conference.

Dainty Deacons

PC's Athletic Director disclosed during an interview that the Hose have taken more than their share of bad luck this year, and "we think we can improve our national reputation by playing these three intersectional powers."

Wake Forest, currently engaged in another year of building character instead of winning ball games, issued a public announcement that the Demon Deacons were pleased to be affiliated with "these other religious schools and PC."

Terrible Ted

South Carolina's fighting Gamecocks, the third member of this new conference, proved their qualifications two weeks ago when they held a powerful Tulane team to a 20-7 win.

There are rumors that South Carolina will drop football soon, but reliable sources from this Atlantic Coast powerhouse say the Gamecocks dropped football at the start of the season.

Although the Little Four is supposed to be only in the planning stages, Georgia Tech has already announced its intention of withdrawing from the Southeastern Conference in order to play more national teams. The powerful Georgia Tech eleven specialize in an exciting, wide-open brand of football with very offensive ends.

Cast of Characters

PC will open its season at Grant Field in Atlanta next year, that game being televised nationally by CBS Fight of the Week. The next game will find Tech entertaining Wake Forst and South Carolina at the same time.

Perhaps the most impressive phase of this new Little Four Conference is the rules committee, headed by Alvin Coley from PC, Ted Davis for Tech, Widemouth Bass for Carolina, "Lucky" Hildebrand for Wake Forest, and Dodge Fredrick for the Pounders (an independent moderator). At this committee meeting, several regulations were established.

One requirement for scholarship aid to either of these four institutions is that the player has to play football—preferably for the school which he attends.

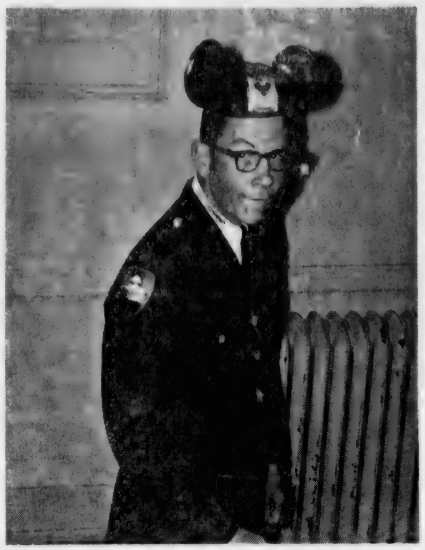
Another proposal that the player be required to spell his name in order to be considered for a scholarship was violently opposed by Tech.

Football Capital

Alvin Coley PC's representative, made a two-point suggestion: 1—that the U. S. Marine Corps be invited to join the conference at a later date; and 2—that all four schools be required to move to Atlanta. This move was blocked by all three other members, and a committee was set up to consider the possibility of moving Wake Forest, South Carolina, and Georgia Tech to Clinton.

This appears to be a golden opportunity for PC to really make a name for itself nationally. Let's all get behind the conference and let the world know that the Little Four is on the move!

Historia Travels To North Carolina



Led by Drs. Thomas Connelly and Ronald Burnside, and Professor George Clark, the newly organized Historia Club of Presbyterian College traveled to Asheville, N. C., on Saturday, November 9, for the annual convention of the Southern Historical Association.

The delegation from PC left campus early Saturday morning, attended various lectures and seminars in several Asheville hotels, and returned to campus Saturday night.

Accompanying the group was Dr. Haskell Monroe, professor of History at Texas A&M University. Dr. Monroe had addressed the Historia Club on Friday evening on the Presbyterian Church's 1861 views on the Civil War, and left from Asheville for Houston, Texas. Dr. Monroe had come to Clinton especially to address the club.

At the convention several PC students talked with eminent heads of graduate schools in the south on the possibilities of going on to graduate work at the represented colleges and universities in the field of history and related subjects.

Attending the meeting from PC were: Glenn Browder, Al Pearce, Jim Owens, Howard Bell, Read Smartt, and Hugh Wilson.

PC Will Have More Coeds Next Year

Girls in increasing numbers will be accepted at Presbyterian College, starting next September, as the college prepares to usher in a new era of full co-education.

Plans are underway to admit 35 women resident students as fershmen for the 1964-65 session. They will be housed in temporary facilities during the first year, looking to the completion of PC's first women's dormitory by the fall of 1965.

At that time, an additional 50 girls will enter as freshmen and join the earlier group as the first residents of the new dormitory. The building's full capacity of 120 students will be achieved in 1966, thus providing for the balanced admission of women over a three-year period.

Presently, there are 33 women registered for the 1963-64 session, including 10 resident students, housed in a campus home.

Beyond the first dormitory, a second women's dormitory is included in future projections to bring the enrollment of resident girls to 240. Combined with the expected day student enrollment of 60 girls, the women's total will reach 300 among the ultimate 900 students for Presbyterian College.

Girls have been associated with PC, in limited degree, almost continuously since its founding. Three women students composed the first graduating class to receive degrees from Presbyterian College back in 1883. They were day students from the local community, like most of the other women students who have followed in their wake.

This fact points up a tradition of educating women at PC within the framework of the liberal arts program for men. Now, responding to the request of church leaders, Presbyterian College seeks to provide further for the increasing educational needs of our young women.

This test, incidentally, is based upon the Minnesota Multiphasic Personality Inventory and the male-female index developed by Dr. Lewis Terman and Dr. Catherine Cox Miles. But it is only a guide and may be invalid in your case. However, a person considered perfectly masculine in our soicety would have answered as follows:

1. Powder — gun; garden — weeds; case — bottles; make — money.

2. True. B. False. C. True. D. True. E. False. F. True.

3. A. No. B. No. C. No. D. Yes. E. No. F. No. G. No.

4. A. Like. B. Dislike. C. Like. D. Like. E. Dislike. F. Dislike. G. Like. H. Dislike.

A woman, by the same scoring, must have answers opposite from those listed if she is to be considered perfectly feminine in our society.

But don't take your score to heart. According to psychologist R. B. Amber, after all, unhappily married women often have too many feminine traits and unhappily married men too many masculine traits.

Registrar's Office Gives Pre-Registration Schedule

Information concerning pre-registration was released by the registrar's office this week. Registration material will be provided to advisors on November 22 and they will notify students by mail-box cards of when they should meet with the advisors.

Juniors and seniors will be seen before December 4 and freshmen and sophomores will be seen before December 10. On December 13, chapel period will be used to complete pre-registration. Professors will notify all advisees not yet to appear during this chapel period at a place designated by them.

Students who have not pre-registered will be given an absence in chapel if they do not appear. Students who have already pre-registered will not be required to attend chapel.

HOW SMALL CAN YOU GET?

Today let us address ourselves to a question that has long rocked and roiled the academic world: Is a student better off at a small college than at a large college?

To answer this question it is necessary first to define terms. What, exactly, do we mean by a small college? Well sir, some say that in order to be called truly small, a college should have an enrollment of not more than four students.

I surely have no quarrel with this statement; a four-student college must unequivocally be called small. Indeed, I would even call it intime if I knew what intime meant. But I submit there is such a thing as being too small. Take, for instance, a recent unfortunate event at Crimscott A and M.

Crimscott A and M, situated in a pleasant valley nestled between Philadelphia and Salt Lake City, was founded by What, exactly, do we mean by a small college?

A. and M. Crimscott, two brothers who left Ireland in 1625 to escape the potato famine of 1841. As a result of their foresight, the Crimscott brothers never went without potatoes for one single day of their lives—and mighty grateful they were! One night, full of gratitude after a wholesome meal of French fries, cottage fries, hash browns, and au gratin, they decided to show their appreciation to this bountiful land of potatoes by endowing a college. But their generosity contained one stipulation: the enrollment of the college must never exceed four students. They felt that only by keeping the school this small could each student be assured of the personalized attention, the camaraderie, the esprit, that is all too often lacking in larger institutions of higher learning.

Well sir, things went along swimmingly until one Saturday a few years ago. On this day Crimscott had a football game scheduled against Minnesota, its traditional rival. Football, as you can well imagine, was something of a problem at Crimscott, what with only four undergraduates in the entire college. It was easy enough to muster a backfield, but to find a good line—or even a bad line—baffled some of the most resourceful coaching minds in the nation.

Well sir, on the morning of the big game against Minnesota, its traditional rival, a capricious fate dealt Crimscott a cruel blow—in fact, four cruel blows. Sigafoos, the quarterback, woke up that morning with an impacted incisor. Wrichards, the slotback, flunked his taxidermy exam and was declared ineligible. Beerbohm-Tree, the wingback-tailback, got his necktie caught in his espresso mschine. Yuld, the fullback, was stolen by gypsies.

Consequently, none of the Crimscott team showed up at the football game, and Minnesota, its traditional rival, was able to score almost at will. Crimscott was so cross after this humiliating defeat that they immediately broke off football relations with Minnesota, its tradtional rival. This later became known as the Sacco-Vanzetti Case.

So you can see how only four students might be too meagre an enrollment. The number that I personally favor is twenty. Why? you ask. Because, I reply, when you have twenty students and one of them opens a pack of Marlboro Cigarettes, there are enough to go around for everybody, and no one has to be deprived of Marlboro's flavor, of Marlboro's filter, of Marlboro's staunch and steadfast companionship, and as a result you have a student body that is brimming with sweet content and amity and harmony and concord and togetherness and soft pack and Flip-Top box.

That's why.

The drama of rush season reached its height yesterday afternoon as those with bids signed for the fraternity of their choice. As in the top pictures on the left, there was hoping and waiting as the brothers of KA (right) and PiKa (left) watch to see if over two months of time and effort are going to pay off. There was decision (bottom picture—left) as the "bidded" registered for their future fraternity. And there was the warmth that always surrounds pledge day, seen as a new Alpha Sig pledge (furtherest man on the right in the right hand picture) first greets his new brothers as a member of their organization.—Photos by Yarborough.

Fifty-Two New Greek Pledges Culminate '63-'64 Formal Rush

Fifty freshmen and transfer students brought formal rush to a close yesterday as they chose the fraternities of their choice.

Sixty-three of the 104 men in the freshman class and seventeen of the 21 male transfer students had required pledge grades.

Pi Kappa Alpha led the six fraternities in number of pledges, with eleven freshmen accepting its bids. Second was Kappa Alpha Order with ten pledges; Alpha Sigma Phi and Pi Kappa Phi vie for third place with 9 pledges each. Sigma Nu pledged 8 new men and Theta Chi, 3.

Freshmen who pledged are as follows: Pi Kappa Alpha: Don C. Blanchard, John N. Glover, Thomas W. Hardwick, Jr., Edward A. Harris, James H. Johnson, Bruce McK. Lawrence, Daniel L. Montgomery, Howard O. Protinsky, Jr., Daniel S. Smart, Robert W. Warren, and Larry Yonce.

Kappa Alpha: Richard H. Carpenter, Jr., Rutherford C. Dees, Thomas C. Edwards, James C. Humphries, Charles S. Jernigan, Brown W. Johnson, David H. Knowlton, Christie L. Patterson, Roy V. Squires, III, and Hugh W. Weldon, Jr.

Pi Kappa Phi: John C. Askew, Peter B. Collins, George S. Dempsey, Calvin I. Guthrie, David C. Howell, Charles G. Hughes, Neill W. McKay, Jack R. Mahon, and William E. Smith.

Alpha Sigma Phi: James L. Bruce, William W. Hall, Jr., William W. Hanger, John C. Jones, Steven B. Knoche, Grady A. Marshall, Larry A. Platt, William B. Scott, and Morrow B. Thompson.

Sigma Nu: David S. Bordner, Laurence M. Connelly, E. R. Crim, III, Robert W. Herlong, George W. Lindsey, Owen F. Markette, Jr., Harold C. Richardson, Jr., and Joe B. Stevens.

Theta Chi: Henry L. Booker, Anthony B. Miller, and Robert D. Whitehurst.

I. F. C. President Bill Shearer stated, "This year's rush activty has not deviated significantly from the norm for PC's campus except in the relatively few number of freshmen who were eligible to pledge. All fraternities are pleased with the number and caliber of their respective pledges, but all of us have hopes for more pledges after the end of the semester, as well as next year."

Earl B. Hallsall and Kenneth N. Baker, members of the faculty committee on fraternities, both felt that this year's rush was quite successful. Said Mr. Halsall, "I am pleased with the cooperation of the six fraternities and the IFC. The 55% participation this year is certainly

PC Students Go Politicing In State Capital At SCSL

Representing Presbyterian College in the seventh annual South Carolina Student Legislature in Columbia December 5-7, were Henry Lovett, David Davies, Arthur McQueen and James Settle. Designed to acquire a higher caliber of future Southern politicians, the Legislature was represented by colleges throughout South Carolina.

The Legislature was a model of the United States Congress. It was divided into two houses —a Senate and a House of Representatives. For every two hundred and fifty students at a college, the institution has one member of the House of Representatives. Each college, however, sent two Senators. PC was allowed two members of the House of Representatives. They were Henry Lovett and James Settle. The two Senators representing PC wer Arthur McQueen and David Davies.

A Governor and a Lieutenant Governor are elected at the end of each Legislature to be in charge of the organization of the preceding Legistiature.

The history of student legislature has at times been stormy, according to 1963 Governor James E. Truesdale of the University of South Carolina Law School. Not organized as a student legislature until late 1957, it was the result of a number of student movements.

Two years later it was going strong but in debt. Outside contributions were not enough, but Columbia Elks paid off the debt and have remained the student legislature's only economic benefactors.

PC's House member Lovett acclaimed the Legislature as a College Receives $3,000 From Esso

Presbyterian College has received a $3,000 grant from the Esso Educational Foundation, President Marc C. Weersing announced today.

He said the funds are given as part of the national program of financial aid to higher education conducted annually by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. Presbyterian College has shared in this program a number of times in recent years, having received $2,000 from this source last year.

Dr. Weersing pointed out the Esso grants are given without restriction as to their use by the college.

Newberry Blue Key Will Visit College

The PC chapter of the Blue Key will play host to the Newberry chapter at the January 16th chapel program. This program precedes the PC-Newberry basketball game on the 15th.

PC Blue Key members will present the chapel program at Newberry February 7 before the game on the 8th.

The hgihlight of the Newberry program last year was the Collegians combo and its two female vocalists.

History Professor Writes Spoof On Civil War Days

"Will Success Spoil Jeff Davis: The Last Book About the Civil War," has just been published as the contribution of Presbyterian College Professor T. Lawrence Connelly to the ever-increasing literature about this period.

With accompanying illustrations by Campbell Grant, one of America's best-known whimsical illustrators, the book pokes lighthearted fun at the professional Confederate of today and some aspects of the war itself.

"Will Success Spoil Jeff Davis" was brought out for the Christmas book season by McGraw-Hill Book Company. It already has received favorable mention in the New York Times book review section and other national notice.

Dr. Connelly joined the Presbyterian College faculty this fall as chairman of the history department. He is a long-time Civil War buff himself who had three great-grandfathers to fight for Annual Giving Approaches $50,000; Efforts Intensify

Presbyterian College annual giving moved close to $50,000 today as alumni itensify their efforts to establish a new record for this program in 1963.

President Marc C. Weersing said the total currently stands at $48,874 contributed by 1,067 alumni and friends so far this year. The previous high established by the annual giving program came in 1961, when PC received $65,254 through this source. Last year, the annual giving effort produced $55,134 at the same time that a special capital funds campaign realized $1,800,000 in subscriptions.

Dr. Weersing pointed out that the 1963 annual giving program is moving well ahead of the pace of last year at this date. With six weeks remaining and given the usual increased tempo of December interest, all indications suggest a new record this year.

A breakdown of the annual giving figure thus far shows $32,700 contributed to the PC Living Endowment and $16,174 given directly to the Walter Johnson Club. Included in the Living Endowment total, is $4,870 earmarked for the Johnson Club, thus increasing the amount for this alumni athletic organiation to $21,044.

Christmas Schedule

Christmas holidays will begin on Tuesday, December 17, at 1:00 p. m., and will end on Thursday, January 2, at 6:00 p. m. Classes will begin at 8:00 a. m. on January 3, announced Academic Dean Dr. Joseph M. Gettys this week.

Requiem

WHEN THE PRESIDENT was murdered a wave of shock moved quickly across the world. Everyone, or at least everyone who has the slightest degree or sensitivty and feeling of patriotism, grieved either because of what John F. Kennedy meant to him personally or because of what any United States President represents. We all wondered what kind of justice and fairness could allow a dynamic, personable young man to be snatched from us. There are few who can comprehend a hatred so deep, so bitter, so violent as that responsible for the death of Mr. Kennedy.

AND YET THE NATION lives, and the Presidency lives in the person of a different man, a man who is doubtlessly qualified for the task.

The nation had to go on. That is a part of living, a part of death. But first its citizens had to stop for a day of tribute to this good and great man. The nation had to stop, but "the dogs go on with their doggy life." And PC went on without making any real tribute.

SURE, THE ROTC flag yet flies at half-staff; and because of the actions of primarily one student, there was an impressive and meaningful chapel service. Student attendance was not required, but an estimated eighty per cent of the student body was there, to the noticeable chagrin of the administration. And let us not forget that two classes were suspended.

WE BELIEVE IT worthwhile to note here that the administration originally scheduled the suspension of the 12:00 classes only; but because of increased pressure from the student body and the faculty, and because of an error in the announcement broadcast over the local radio station, the administration finally agreed to allow both 11:00 and 12:00 classes to be suspended for the day.

AT ANY RATE, no real tribute was allowed. We had hoped that perhaps the administration of an intellectual and scholarly institution (a college is supposed to be both of those, we believe) would have seen fit to set aside bigotry and rise above petty politics for at least one day and honor both a man killed while serving our country in the highest possible capacity and the proclamation of the man who assumed that same highest office.

THE CROWNING BLOW, however, was not the apparent indifference of the administration towards the grave situation, nor was it any of the several "reasons" given as explanations for continuing classes as if nothing of import had happened. After agreeing to flaunt a Presidential proclamation on Monday, our leader told us in chapel Wednesday that we should be so proud of being Americans that our spines would tingle whenever we saw the flag of this great country or heard the strains of the National Anthem raised on high. Hardly anyone realized that there was a vast and almost unforgiveable discrepancy between what was officially done on Monday and what was said in chapel only two days later.

HOWEVER, WE ALL (and especially newspaper columnists must remember the great maxim PC students are taught: We owe deference to at least the offices of our administrators, just as all Americans must respect the country, the President, and his official proclamations, whether we agree with them or not. Furthermore, we must always remember that those in authority believe that they are acting in the best intersts of those they govern.

Many of President Kennedy's policies were unpopular and especially here in the South. Likewise, many of the policies of PC's administrators are unpopular, as was the decision to hold classes on the day of the President's funeral.

PRESIDENT KENNEDY always believed that he was acting for the greatest good for the greatest number of people. This too, we must hope but also doubt, was the belief of those who decided that at PC all classes but two should be held on th day of procaimed national mourning.

BUT WE WILL ALWAYS wonder why our administrators were unable to give sufficient motives for their decision. Moreover, we will always wonder why the decision was so long in coming. But confusion seems to characterize best everything that happens in that building at the other end of the plaza. Perhaps we will eventually become accustomed to it.

Viva La Difference!

The difference between men and women is even greater than you may think.

By examining any one of the body's approximately 30 trillion cells, a scientist can tell if it belongs to a man or a woman.

A man's brain is slightly heavier than a woman's, and the average red-blooded American male has 10 per cent more red blood cells than his feminine counterpart. A woman's heart beats eight to ten times more per minute than that of her current heart-throb; if both live average life spans she'll tick off some 300,000,000 more heartbeats than he will "Striaght from the shoulder" is a male attitude. A man's arms do hang that way; in women, there a definite bend at the elbow so that the lower arm extends outward at an angle. Similarly, a man's thighs and legs are in a straight line while a woman, by comparison, seems knock-kneed; her legs bend inward at the knee.

Relative to a man, a woman has a longer head, but a shorter neck; shorter limbs, but a longer trunk; a seated woman is relatively taller than a seated man. Her thumb is comparatively shorter, her index finger longer, and her wrist swivels with more ease—explaining why women excel at delicate manual work.

Though a man's vocal cords are longer and thicker than a woman's, she apparently gets in not only the last word, but the first one, too. Girl babies tend to speak a little earlier than boys, and to utter words more comprehensibly to their doting parents. Studying children in the same social brackets, psychologists found that little girls use longer sentences than little boys! Speech therapists say that stuttering is two to ten times as common in males as in females.

Heres' an interesting fact to remember next time you get involved in an argument with your sweetheart or spouse: each sex tends to hear its own voice better! A woman's hearing is keener than a man's in the higher frequency ranges, while men's ears pick up low notes more rapidly.

It may also be useful to recall the experiment made by two eye specialists who fastened narrow stirps of filter paper to the lower yeelids of 231 men and women. The dampness of the paper after five minutes revealed the individual's capacity for tears. Guess what? The female tear ducts proved almost twice as active as those of the men!

Color blindness affects one man in every 25, but only one woman in 250. Even as tiny babies, females are apparently more color-conscious; in tests made on infants aged five and a half months to 24 months, more girls than boys grabbed for the brightly colored discs in preference to the gray ones.

Differences in male-female psychology showed up interestingly on a multiple-choice word-association test administered to a test group by psychologists. It was found that the word "closet" reminded most male subjects of "door," most women of "clothes." "Charm" tended to make women think of "beauty" and men of "snake." When the word "home" was mentioned, women thought sentimentally of "happy", men more prosaically of "house."

Which sex is really smarter? In general intelligence, men and women seem about equal, according to those who have studied results of modern IQ tests. However, more men than women seem to be found at either intellectual extreme. More males fall into the "feeble-minded" category. But in a survey of exceptionally gifted children (IQ's of 132 and over (psychologist Terman found about 120 boys for every 100 girls that met the minimum requirement.

Women, according to Dr. Justus J. Schiffers in the Family Medical Encyclopedia, are more easily hypnotized than men. They are somewhat more apt to suffer from migraine headaches: a typical migraine victim, according to Dr. Schiffers, is a little woman with fine hair, a smooth complexion — and perfectionist tendencies! Women are sick about 20 per cent more often than men, yet at any age, the female death rate is at least 25 per cent lower than the male's

Is it ever a man's world? Yes —few people realize that 105 boys are born for every 100 girls.

Letters To the Editor

Dear Editor:

The president of the United States was shot, the nation stunned, the world in unbelief. We at Presbyterian were affected in this same way. The "we" refers not to a select few but THE student body which was concerned about the tragedy.

The new President asked Monday, November 25, as an official day of mourning; most nations declared at least a week, PC gave (after much urging by students) about two others.

The disgrace to the students was the fact that the administration gave only two hours of official, recognized mourning for the late President. The reason given was that only a few students were concerned.

It was really quite a shocking thing to learn that "Christian" PC gave almost two hours and the Godless state universities complied with the President's decree giving the whole day in official mourning.

RAYMOND SUMMERLIN, JR.

Dear Editor:

Be ye Republican or be ye Democrat, should not we honor the death of a President of such a great nation? I must answer this question affirmatively. President John F. Kennedy was assassinated on November 22. Certain college officals decided, on a truly "American" basis, that since Washington did not mourn the death of a Presbyterian College professor, Presbyterian should not mourn the death of our President. This seems to me to be a basis that would perhaps be used by a ten year old, not an elder and leader of students. Perhaps we the students are the true leaders. I think, without the slightest doubt, this fact has been proven true.

This statement was made in chapel not long ago—We today have a truly great American heritage. We are all Americans

Speaking of Sports

with AL PEARCE

'Fun, Fellowship And A Lot Of Good Basketball'

"Although we've lost three games I'm not disappointed. I have to learn the boys and they have to learn me, and they have to learn my system. We have a lot of games left and we'll do allright."

The Lieutenant

Art Musselman handled the basketball a second, bounced it once and let fly with a jump shot that seemed to have radar in it. The shot didn't touch the rim, but when you heard the unmistakable "swish" you knew that Art Musselman hadn't lost the touch or the form that made him one of the greatest basketball players ever to play at The Citadel. The Huntington, Ind., native, who played at the Charleston school from 1956 to 1960, was a Lieutenant for three years in the Marine Corps before he came to PC this past June; and his performances in service ball was as spectacular as his collegiate career.

Experience In Action

"I believe that if you are going to do anything you might as well do it right, or not at all," says the popular head coach. To Art Musselman this is not just a nice saying to put up in his office or to file in the back of his head in case the occasion arises when he can use it to impress someone. This is the way he plays basketball and this is the way he teaches others to play. This can best be seen any afternoon from 3:00 until after 6:00 when Musselman can be found on the basketball court with his ten-man squad. This head coach is not the kind to stand around and just tell you how to form up on a defensive jump or how to force a man out of bounds without fouling him—he is the kind who works up a good sweat showing you how to do it.

Highest In Years

Because of his ability to actually show his players how to do the things he feels are vital in winning basketball games, the players and the student body respect Art Musselman. He is strict and requires much of his boys, but no one has regretted anything they have had to do for him. Through his enthusiasm and his sincerity the players have suddenly gotten the spirit and desire that marked the opening of the basketball season and carried on throughout the losing season. After the win against the College of Charleston a week ago the spirit was at a high point not seen in years at LeRoy Springs Gymnasium.

Excited Over No. 1

One of the seniors in the student body, and, incidentally, one who is an avid sports follower of PC, said after that game that he had had more fun and enjoyed the game more than he had at any time in his four years here. This was seconded by many of the fans outside the gym waiting for "that bell" to be brought out. Finally, after three years of basketball frustrations, the students were excited over a single win, but the excitement was not so much over the win, but over how it was won and the atmosphere in which it was won.

Lot of Fun Monday

This atmosphere of "fun, fellowship, and a runnin' gunnin, basketball team" will obviously prevail here Monday night against St. Andrews College. Coaches Musselman and Warden (the short one) have collaborated to bring innovations into the gym that will bring in the fans and give them a good time, if not a win. Not the least of these innovations is his ten-man "track team" that will run from the tip-off until the final buzzer. And they'll score a lot, too. Come out Monday night and see.

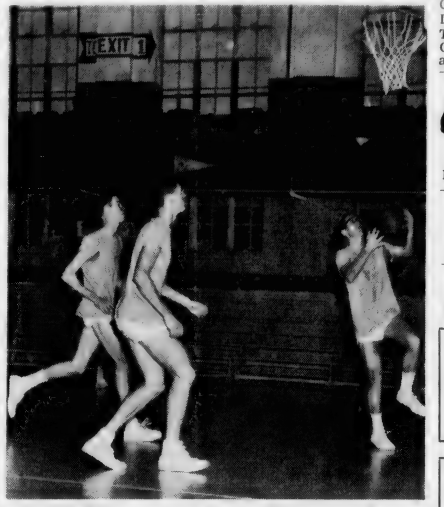
Hose Face St. Andrews in Final Pre-Holiday Home Encounter



The Knights of St. Andrews College will bring a veteran team with a well-balanced scoring attack into the LeRoy Springs gymnasium Monday night to take on the Blue Hose in an interstate basketball game. Tip-off time will be 8:00 for the second home game of the young season.

Starting four seniors and a sophomore, Coach Boyd Spencer has three boys hitting in double figures, one just below the double figure mark, and a floor leader who doesn't score much but "runs the team." Leading the North Carolina Presbyterians will be Joe Buckner, a senior from Belmont, N. C., who is scoring at 18 points per game. With Buckner will be Benny Brockwell, a sophomore from Durham who is hitting at 14 points per game.

The other starters will be Jerry Dawson, a 12 points per game performer from Fayetteville, N. C.; George Britt, a senior from Newport News, Va., who is scoring at 8 points per game; and Tommy Jessup, a 5 points per game senior from Bath, N. C.

Probably starting for PC will be Andy Karlsons, Bill Brown, Doug Allen, Gordan Adam, and Bill Tallent. Last season PC defeated St. Andrews both times they met, 81-60 here and 82-77 at Laurinburg. The Knights have neverbeaten PC.

St. Andrews has a 2-3 record coming into the Monday night's game with wins over Methodist College of North Carolina and Lynchburg College of Virginia. They lost to Campbell College, Guilford College, and Pembroke, all of North Carolina.

Citadel Romps To Easy Win Using Strong 2nd-Half Surge

The Citadel, bothered all night by a scrappy and fighting PC squad, used a late second half surge to defeat the Hose 97-61 in Charleston last night. The loss left PC with a 1-3 record going into Monday night's game with St. Andrews here.

Leading 45-44 with 14:30 left to play in the game, the Hose hit a cold streak when they could only score 2 points to the Citadel's 16, and the taller Cadets used that drought to make the close game a rout. Up to that time the game had been a close, hard fought struggle, with a 36-32 lead belonging to the Citadel at the half. The last 14 minutes saw the Cadets score 53 points while PC could tally but 16.

Pacing the PC attack was Gordan Adam who hit for 22 points, including 9 straight points at the first part of the second half to keep PC in the game. Following Adam was Doug Allen with 11 points and 7 rebounds, Andy Karlsons with 7 points, Billy Petty with 6, Bill Tallent with 5, Bill Brown with 4 points and 5 rebounds, Jimmy Bankhead with 3, Danny Charles with 2, and Jimmy Wooten with 1. PC was out rebounded 57-39.

The game was somewhat of a homecoming for head Coach Art Musselman, who played outstanding ball for the Citadel for 4 seasons. Musselman was not as disappointed with the performance of the Hose as one might expect, for the Bulldogs were heavily favored in the game. As Evan Bussey, Sports Editor of the Charleston News and Courier stated via long-distance to the Blue Stocking office late Thursday night, "Your boys just scrapped and scrapped and played fine ball, then gave out."

PC Student Council Busy With Several Varied Jobs

Presbyterian College has a ten-man student council, which, according to student body president Tommy Williams, often does more behind the scenes than the students probably realize.

In an interview with Williams, he said, "It is a known fact that the student is not thoroughly informed of all the functions carried on by the Council. We want the student body to feel that its council is doing a responsible and worthwhile job and I welcome this opportunity to bring closer to student notice some of the facets of council activity."

Williams stated that at the first of the year, the student council aided the Student Christian Asociation in freshman orientation. Following this, it assumed its normal functions of conducting elections, presiding over honor court cases, and carrying on correspondence with other schools in the area on the subject of student government.

Williams further stated that this year the council is meeting on every other Monday night. On the "off" Monday night, a special committee is studying the school constitution in order that any ambiguous or "archaic" parts may be clarified or brought up to date as necessary.

The council is constantly working with the faculty and administration on matters pertaining to student activity. Also, representatives were sent to the South Carolina Student Legislature which was held in Columbia last week.

As a closing statement, Williams had this to say, "The student council is organized for the benefit of the students, and it is only through your aid and constructive suggestions that we function. We welcome any suggestions any student has to make and we wish to be continually aware of your desires for your school and your student government."

Dear Editor:

I'd like to take this opportunity to express the appreciation of the members of the Tau Phi Pi Science Society to Academic Dean Gettys and the other members of the administration who have made the decision for early dismissal of laboratories prior to the Christmas holidays.

In the past, we have felt that the science majors and those other students who happened to have a lab course on the day of dismissal were being unfairly punished, in a manner of speaking. While other students were loading their cars, catching buses, trains or planes to their homes, the science students were busy in their laboratories preparing exotic concoctions of chemical cookery, gazing quite disconcertedly at some microscopic animal floating around in some liquid, or downstairs computing their horsepower or the rate of expansion of some metal. These labs benig required prevented many students from getting early rides to their destinations and sometimes resulted in the student's arriving home late at night, or very early the next morning.

For the past two years, the Tau Phi Pi has recommended study of the procedures for deciding when to start a holiday be made and if a change could be made, make it so that no longer would the science students be denied the privileges that the other students seemed to have . . . that of leaving earlier than the designated time.

We were really surprised and pleased that the administration had accepted our suggestions and after making the study had decided to allow the early dismissal. We feel that not only the students but also the science department professors join with us in giving our grateful thanks to the administrative officers and especially to Dr. Gettys.

Sincerely,
—LEON BULLARD,
President,
Tau Phi Pi

great success and said that among the most memorable events of the Legislature was a speech given by South Carolina Governor Russell. Lovett added, "Governor Russell emphasized the need for the return of the intellectual to the political scene. The Governor used Winston Churchill as an xample of an intellectual who has made a magnanimous effect on world politics."

The legislature voted on bills ranging from increasing sales tax to consolidation of public schools.

Lovett noted also that humor was not missing from the legislature. He gave as an example, the attempted impeachment of the legislature's Governor, Truesdale, who tested the legislature's patience by vetoing a near-perfect bill. However, both actions were in good humor and the impeachment was never effected.

If you have been reading this column—and I hope you have; I mean I genuinely hope so; I mean it does not profit me one penny whether you read this column or not; I mean I am paid every week by the makers of Marlboro Cigarettes and my emolument is not affected in any way by the number of people who read or fail to read this column—an act of generosity perfectly characteristic of the makers of Marlboro, you would say if you knew them as I do; I mean here are tobacconists gray at the temples and full of honors who approach their art as eagerly, as dewy-eyed as the youngest of practitioners; I mean the purpose of the Marlboro makers is simply to put the best of all possible filters behind the best of all possible tobaccos and then go, heads high, into the market place with their wares, confident that the inborn sense of right and wrong, of good and bad, of worthy and unworthy, which is the natural instinct of every American, will result in a modest return to themselves for their long hours and dedicated labors—not, let me hasten to add, that money is of first importance to the makers of Marlboro; all these simple men require is plain, wholesome food, plenty of Marlboros, and the knowledge that they have scattered a bit of sunshine into the lives of smokers everywhere; if, I say, you have been reading this column, you may remember that last week we started to discuss Christmas gifts.

We agreed, of course, to give cartons of Marlboro to all our friends and also to as many total strangers as possible. Today let us look into some other welcome gifts.

Do you know someone who is interested in American history? If so, he will surely appreciate a statuette of Millard Fillmore with a clock in the stomach. (Mr. Fillmore, incidentally, was the only American president with a clock in the stomach. James K. Polk had a stem-winder in his head, and William Henry Harrison chimed the quarter-hour, but only Mr. Fillmore, of all our chief executives, had a clock in the stomach. Franklin Pierce had a sweep second hand and Zachary Taylor had seventeen jewels, but, I repeat, Mr. Fillmore and Mr. Fillmore alone had a clock in the stomach. Some say that Mr. Fillmore was also the first president with power steering, but most historians assign this distinction to Chester A. Arthur. However, it has been established beyond doubt that Mr. Fillmore was the first president with a thermostat. Small wonder they called him Old Hickory!)

But I digress. To get back to welcome and unusual Christmas gifts, here's one that's sure to please—a gift certificate from the American Chiropractic Society. Accompanying each certificate is this winsome little poem:

Merry Christmas, Happy New Year,
Joyous sacro-iliac!
May your spine forever shine,
Blessings on your aching back.
May your lumbar ne'er grow number,
May your buckbone ne'er dislodge,
May your caudal never dawdle,

Upcoming Danforth Lecturer Called 'Philosopher's Philosopher'

Dr. Brand Blanshard, a well-known scholar whose writings and lectures have gained him the reputation as "the philosopher's philosopher," will be on the campus of Presbyterian College on February 13 and 14 as a Danforth Visiting Lecturer.

While here at Presbyterian, Dr. Blanshard will give a lecture at noon Thursday in the Douglas House meeting room on "Kierkegaard: A Reappraisal." In the meeting room at 7:30 Thursday night, he will speak on "The Life of the Spirit in the Machine Age." Friday, in chapel, he will discuss "The Present Tensions in Philosophy." At noon on Friday, also in chapel, he will speak "In Defense of Rationalism."

Born in Ohio, Dr. Blanshard received a B. A. degree from the University of Michigan in 1914. He took his M. A. at Columbia University in 1918, a B. S. from Oxford University in 1920, and his Ph. D. from Harvard in 1921. During this period he was a Rhodes Scholar from 1913 to 1951, and again from 1919 to 1920. He was a Guggenheim Fellow from 1929 to 1930.

Dr. Blanshard's first faculty appointment was at the University of Michigan in 1921 as assistant professor of Philosophy. In 1925 he was named associate professor of philosophy at Swarthmore College, and promoted to the rank of professor in 1928. In 1945 he joined the Yale University faculty as professor of philosophy. He was chairman of the department to 1950, and again from 1959 to 1961. Beginning in 1956, he held the Sterling Professorship of Philosophy, one of the University's most distinguished chair. Since his retirement in 1961, he has spent a year in research and writing as a Fellow of the Advanced Studies

Math Department To Host USC Prof

Presbyterian College's math department will host the head of the University of South Carolina's math department Thursday, February 14. Dr. W. L. Williams will give two classroom lectures and a talk at a supper that night.

The first classroom lecture will be held in Neville 110 at 10:00 and the second will be at 12:00 in Jacobs 101. S. Taylor Martin of the PC math department stated that all interested students are invited.

The supper that night will be open only to math majors. Also, approximately thirty area high school math teachers will be in attendance. Dr. Williams comes to Presbyterian under the auspices of the National Science Foundation.

Record Mark Set By Giving Program

Presbyterian College's annual giving program established another record of $66,478.20 in 1963, President Marc C. Weersing announced today.

Today's final report for 1963 shows $40,376.64 given by 840 alumni and $26,101 given by 333 PC Associates (friends and non-alumni parents). Twenty-eight per cent of the alumni participated last year as compared to 25 percent in 1962.

Dr. Weersing pointed out the Living Endowment division of the program accounted for $42,638.66, of which $6,761.01 was designated for the Walter Johnson Club.

South Carolina District One, within PC's state-wide alumni organization, led all others with $14,323.58. Laurens County set the pace here among the five counties (Abbeville, Greenwood, Laurens, McCormick, Newberry, with $13,532.58 of which $12,836.58 came from Clinton.

Greenville County, running second among all counties with $5,491, led District Two (Anderson, Greenville, Oconee, Pickens) to the number two spot among districts on the strength of $7,553.50 contributed. District Three (Cherokee, Chester, Lancaster, Spartanburg, Union, York) followed with $4,925.50.

The top ten counties, behind Laurens and Greenville, included: Spartanburg — $2,336.50; Charleston—$1,856; York—$1,426; Sumter—$1,372; Pickens — $1,152.50; Richland—$1,095.50; Anderson—$810; and Greenwood — $670.

President Weersing said the annual giving program is a vital part of the financial operations of Presbyterian College. It is headed by Ben Hay Hammet, director of alumni and public relations. Alumnus Ross Templeton, Charlotte business executive, has directed the Johnson Club division as its president for the past several years.

State Department, OPC Hold National Editors Conference

The White House, State Department, and Overseas Press Club played host to over 200 college editors January 31-February 3 at the Sixth Annual International Affairs Conference for College editors. Alex Patrick and Bob Allison represented The Blue Stocking at the convention which was held in both Washington, D. C., and New York City.

Senator Kenneth Keating (R-N. Y.) spoke at an Overseas Press Club reception which included speeches by Cornelius Ryan, author of "Longest Day," and foreign correspondent; and John Wechsler, editor of the the New York Post. Seminars were held on six critical areas in international affairs by some of this country's most eminent journalists and educators as well as foreign officials.

David Halbertsam, New York Times corrsepondent who first broke the official U. S. government line on Viet Nam, spoke on the responsibility of the press at an OPC luncheon Saturday. Mr. Halbertsam was followed by Robert Trumbull, Bob Considine, and Harrison Salasbury on a most interesting agenda.

The part of the conference held in the nation's capital saw a historic gathering of prominent State Department officials including Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Undersecretary Averell Harriman, Assistant Secretaries G. Mennen Williams, Frank Coffin, Robert Manning, and Harlan Cleveland. The Secretary of State and his assistants submitted to questions by the nation's collegiate press.

As a fitting climax to the convention President and Mrs. Johnson held a reception for the editors at the White House. Mrs. Johnson introduced actor Hal Holbrook who gave an impersonation of Mark Twain in the East Room. The President interrupted the performance for a short speech and then returned to his office. The First Lady and her daughter, Lynda Byrd, received in the East Room and coffee followed in the State Dining Room accompanied by the famous Marine Corps Band. As the afternoon drew to a close the first two floors of the mansion were open to those who wished to wander through the nation's most famous house.

Allison and Patrick said that much material presented by the conference would appear in future issues of The Blue Stocking.

Annual WF Meeting Has February Date

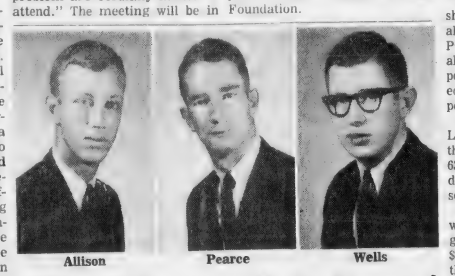
The annual Westminster Fellowship Conference will be held this year at Camp Longridge February 21-23. The conference will explore the dialogue taking place in our time between theology and other disciplings of thought, such as philosophy, psychology, natural science, and art. Also, our involvement on campus in this dialogue will be discussed.

Among those participating in the conference will be Rev. Robert Martin, assistant to the president at Union Theological Seminary; Dr. L. T. Phillips of the Science Department of USC; Dr. J. J. Prince of the psychology department of Wofford; and Dr. Z. Q. Shaffer of the philosophy department of Coker College.

Registration by any interested students must be done by the 14th. of February. Those interested should contact Jim Stanford for an application.

Clinton School Principal Will Speak At College

The principal of the Bell Street School will speak to the Ministerial Club on Thursday, February 14. He will discuss the questions and problems related to the social changes of the twentieth century.



Group president John Boyer stated, "All members and others interested in discussing this problem are cordially invited to attend." The meeting will be in Neville 106 at 7:30 that night.

Clinton Chronicle Honors PC Prof

An autograph party for Dr. T. Lawrence Connelly, chairman of the Presbyterian College history department and author of the popular "Will Success Spoil Jeff Davis?" was held at the Chronicle Publishing Company this afternoon.

The party, held by Mrs. W. W. Harris, owner of the Chronicle, was open to the public.

Dr. Connelly's book, published just before Christmas, pokes light-hearted fun at the professional Confederate of today. Dr. Connelly was present at the party and autographed copies of his book which were available for those who wished to purchase one. His book is also on sale in the PC book store.

Allison — Pearce — Wells

Allison, Pearce, Wells Named For Top Stocking Positions

The heirs-apparent to the next two semesters of The Blue Stocking are students with considerable experience and association with the paper.

Running for co-editors are Bob Allison and Walter Wells. The business manager candidate is Al Pearce. The three are unopposed in the upcoming elections to be held Wednesday, February 13, from 9:00 to 2:00 in the Douglas House Lounge.

The election will only be a token one, and must be held in order to satisfy the conditions laid down by the school constitution.

Commenting on the fact that the three are running unopposed, the current editor, Bob Phifer, stated, "It doesn't matter a bit—these three men are the ones for the job. They have a very deep and loyal feeling for The Blue Stocking and they are extremely capable and know what they're doing. Really, enough cannot be said about the enthusiasm and talent that this trio brings to their job. Theirs could well be the best paper that PC has seen in many a year."

Both of the co-editor aspirants are English majors and rising seniors. Allison is from Atlanta and has worked on the paper as both feature and news editor. Wells, from McConnells, has served on The Blue Stocking as reporter, assistant news editor, and news editor.

A native of Rocky Mount, N. C., Pearce has worked with the paper as Sports Editor for the past three semesters. For the past semester he has served as the paper's press director, working with the printers in putting the paper together. Pearce is a rising senior and a history major.

Hasta la Vista

"Yes, Virginia, there is a BLUE STOCKING"—and believe it or not there will be one in regular production week after next. Our apologies to the student body and our regrets to Organic Chemistry. May it all rest in peace.

I wish to thank all the staff for their extremely cooperative efforts. I would like to especially cite a few hard-working helpers—namely Bob Allison, Walter Wells and Al Pearce. Wells and Allison have each been two of the best News Editors I'm sure the paper ever had and have stuck with it consistently and well.

Few people, I'm sure, realize the tremendous amount of time and energy that Al Parce has poured into the sports page and into the paper in general. Pearce is probably the best Sports Editor the Blue Stocking has ever had. He always met his deadlines well and wasn't afraid to give it all he had—with the result that he often was up at three Friday morning finishing the Sports page heads.

He was practically indispensible this year in the work he did at the publisher's getting the paper together and seeing that it got out on time.

I wish to thank Mr. Ben Hay Hammet for the many long hours of assistance and advice that he willingly rendered. I also wish to thank Mr. Ed Campbell for his aid to the paper.

I also wish to thank whatever events and people were responsible for making me editor. It has truly been one of the most fascinating experiences of my life.

Guess Who?

In a country of extreme publicity and exhausing news reporting, dwells a large percent of unconcerned citizens. Every American is born with citizenship. Citizenship is a treasure to have, hold and cherish. When such a great portion of Americans konws nothing of the world situation let alone the crises on the home front, it is time to consider. To not even know who is President shows that we must stop and re-evaluate our traditions and ideals of freedom in a cultured civilization. We as citizens have a responsibility to stay informed to preserve and protect our freedom. There is no excuse to be INDIFFERENT TO INDIFFERENCE.

I myself knew little of how people actually know nothing (or very little) of the word situation until reading the results of the following poll.

In Trenton, New Jersey, a reporter took a news picture of President DeGaulle and President Johnson standing side by side. He used it to see whether the men in the street could recognize two of the top men in the world. He checked thirty people. The results were both shocking and pathetic.

Eleven recognized both men. Four others recognized both men but couldn't think of Johnson's name. Seven knew Johnson but not DeGaulle. Four recognized DeGaulle as Nikita Khrushchev.

One man said "That's DeGaulle. This is the president of one of those European countries, but I don't remember which."

One woman said she knew DeGaulle was famous and asked, "Is he the Pope or something?"

A luncheonette proprietor identified one man as his grandfather and the other as his uncle. Five recognized neither.

After looking at this cross-section on one town, can we assume an entire nation of so called "well-off" people is in such a miserable frame of knowledge? Here on our own college campus a similar poll would not produce such drastic results, but still the answers would be shocking. From the rich to the poor, from the intelligent to those of lesser knowledge, from the enslaved to the free, let us reconsider our obligatins to our heritagle of freedom. Let us strive to preserve and know well of our land and world of God given freedom.

A Challenge To Help

by BILL LOEBLE

Next week celebrates the 54th anniversary of Boy Scouting in America. It has gone a long way since those first days. In common with our ancient and traditional American customs, it has been thoroughly organized. Organization is essential to care for the 5½ million persons now directly involved in Scouting.

Scouting teaches high ideals, good citizenship, clean morals, courage, loyalty, integrity, and consideration of the rights and property of others. It provides a means for boys to acquire resourcefulness. Its premise is to "learn by doing." Every boy should get into Scouting, but every boy doesn't because there are too few men and women willing to give the time and energy necessary for Scout leadership. Scouting cannot exist without dedicated, inspired leadership.

Why mention it on campus? Probably 75 per cent of the student body at one time or another was affiliated with Scouting. Some went to the top; others had only a brief story. Long or short, there is a need and a challenge for college men to help in Scouting.

There are thousands of summer job openings in Scout camps throughout the nation. More needed are college boys to work with local troops. If only one hour a week is sacrificed, then a great service has been rendered to Scouting. Right here in Clinton there are at least three troops just waiting for leadership from the college group.

Scouting is for the college campus as well as the outdoors. Many college applications ask for one's status with the Boy Scouts. The most noted of these is the weight carried by the United States Naval Academy toward such a question. Then there is Alpha Phi Omega. This is a service fraternity.

As yet PC has no such fraternities, but if and when the time comes, then Alpha Phi Omega should be the first of the fraternities to form. This is different from our social fraternities. A student may be a member of both types. A.P.O. offers a chance of organized service to Scouting in the local town. Also, there are recreational and social activities, not conflicting with the social fraternity.

Everyone knows full well how much fun is poked at Scouting. But everything worthwhile in the world is attacked by some misguided souls. I know full well that Scouting has not attained complete perfection, but it is the one major, concerted effort in the world to teach boys to be men of character, while having a mighty good time in the process. More leaders are needed; more boys need to be in Scouting. It is open to all races, all religions, and all economic levels. Scouting is accomplishing much. It can accomplish more if adults will only help!

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

Letter to the Editor

Dear Student Body:

I certainly appreciate all the support you have given us thus far this season. Recently we have met with some success, but we always felt you were behind us when we lost. From a coaching standpoint I honestly feel that your enthusiasm and spirit has meant the difference in a number of ball games. The College of Charleston game of February 4, is only one example. The team doesn't feel they can let you down when you are working so hard. It is difficult to illustrate every example where you play an important part, but please keep up the good work.

There are only two words that I can compose that take it in full, and they are sincerely meant. Thank you.

Sincerely,
Coach Musselman

Cagers Rolling After Coach Uses Platoons

For the first time in several long years we can mention to outsiders that we are PC students without having to explain our basketball record as a bunch of bad breaks or saying our team is a club of "real hustling scrapper."

"Century Express"

The Blue Hose cagers now have a four-game winning streak—the longest here since the 1958-59 season; and last week they topped the 100-point mark twice, a scoring feat absent from the past four campaigns.

It's hard to explain the change in the team—it's the same coach and club which lost seven of the first eight games. The only explanation is to use a trite expression and say they have "jelled."

"Observant Coach"

Young Coach Art Musselman, who spent a frustrating orientation period, attained his majority as a full-fledged, fighting coach in the College of Charleston game when he drew his first technical foul since coming to PC. His baptism came when the officials failed to notice that three Maroon players were amusing themselves by beating on Bill Tallent's head

"Handy Andy"

An unorthodox plan which has been effective, and popular with the fans, is Musselman's two-platoon system, which gives everyone on the team a rest and wears down the opponent. Every player on the squad has had his moments of stardom, but Andy Karlsons has been a mainstay on offense and defense. Karlsons, senior captain, will get his last crack at Newberry's Indians as a Blue Hoseman tomorrow night. Another steady performer has been Danny Charles, who leads the club in field goal accuracy at 57 per cent and free throw tosses with 81 percent.

"Kentucky Wildcat"

But the big man in the last few games has been Gordon Adam, a 5 foot-9 inch guard who's leading the team in scoring. Adam has been a starting guard for PC since coming out for basketball on his own as a freshman last year. He scored 45 points in the 102-point wins last week, and was picked by The State as South Carolina Player of the Week. Adam also leads the team in assists and has picked the ball away from opponents 38 times.

Big Man

"Over To Newberry"

It would really give the team a big lift if the students showed they were behind the Big Blue by going over to Newberry tomorrow night. About 45 fans made the trip to Charleston Tuesday to cheer the accelerating Hose to victory.

"Spring Shorts"

The tennis schedule has been drawn up by Coach Gordon Warden, with 15 matches and the state tournament slated here at PC . . . Spring football practice began this week, minus a few experienced and needed tackles, plus a few hopeful newcomers . . . Baseball practice is right around the corner, and Coach Billy Tiller, who last season led PC to its first winning campaign in over ten years, says there are several open positions in the lineup. Anyone interested in trying out should get in touch with Coach Tiller.

PC Takes First Steps To Gain Carolinas Conference Charter

Presbyterian College has made written application to officials of the Carolinas Conference regarding admission to the athletic union. The action has been approved by the Athletic Council, the Executive Council of the Walter Johnson Club, and the Board of Trustees.

Dr. Weersing contacted the Conference several weeks ago stating PC's desire to become a member in the eight-school organization, and this proposal will be brought up and voted upon by the Conference. The meeting of the Conference will be held in Salisbury, N. C., in May, with representatives of PC attending. It is assumed PC's bid will be approved.

Should Presbyterian become the second South Carolina school in the Conference, it will begin scheduling Conference teams at the beginning of the 1965 football season. The 1964 Blue Hose football schedule has been completed, with three CC teams slated. To qualify for the Conference championship in football, a team must play at least five Conference teams.

The Carolinas Conference places a limitation on the number of athletic scholarships to be granted in the three major divisions. Football may offer twenty-five aids, basketball eight, and all spring sports will be allotted two. In PC's case, the two in spring sports will go for tennis.

Potent Hose Face Newberry Seeking Fifth Straight Win

Presbyterian will try to make it five in a row against Newberry tomorrow night, and judging from the past week's results, the Blue Hosemen should gain revenge for the two-point defeat hung on them in LeRoy Springs Gymnasium earlier in the season.

The fast-rising Hosemen, who lost seven of their first eight games, now have won five of their last six and own a four-game win streak. Newberry lost to Erskine and Wofford in its past two performances.

The big guns the Hose will face tomorrow night are Phil Musgrave and David Hawk, both of whom contributed heavily to their team's win over PC. Musgrave is among the top ten scorers in the state, and Hawk is nationally ranked in field goal accuracy.

Pacing PC's scoring parade after 14 games is Gordon Adam with a 14.3 point average. He'll carry a heavy portion of the Presbyterians' attack against the Indians tomorrow night. Right behind him is Captain Andy Karlsons with 13.9 points per game. The other probable starters against Newberry are, with their scoring averages, Danny Charles (7.9), Jimmy Bankhead (6.1), and Doug Allen (5.9). Allen leads in rebounding with 115—8 per game.

Among the members of the "second platoon," Bill Tallent is tops with a 10.6 average.

Included among PC's past four victims were Georgia State (twice), College of Charleston, and Pembroke—the last team had topped the Hose earlier. But as far as Coach Musselman and the players are concerned, Pembroke should be the first sniff in the sweet smell of revenge. After Newberry, PC plays Erskine here Tuesday in an attempt to avenge a setback at Due West. Wofford follows Thursday night at Spartanburg, and nothing needs to be said about the Hose-Terrier rivalry.

Scholarship Honors Veteran Physics Prof.—Neil Whitelaw

A scholarship honoring Dr. Neil G. Whitelaw, veteran chairman of the Presbyterian College Physics Department, is being established here by PC alumni, it was announced today.

The alumni board of directors voted to set up an annual $500 award, to be given as a merit grant to a member of the rising junior class at PC. It will begin next fall.

Funds for the Neill G. Whitelaw scholarship are to come through the annual giving program conducted among alumni and friends of the college. The plan calls for subscriptions to pay the grant amount each year until sufficient additional funds can be set aside for endowing the scholarship. Each award will be made for one year to a junior "on the basis of general scholarship, need and future promise of superior performance."

The directors named the scholarship for Dr. Whitelaw in recognition of his 29 years of outstanding service as a teacher at Presbyterian College. It was pointed out that he has made an important contribution to the college and to the world of science through the students who trained under his guidance here — several of whom today play a responsible part in the nation's guided missiles program.

Dr. Whitelaw himself was sought during World War II by the Oak Ridge Project then completing development of the atomic bomb, but he decided to remain at PC. A native of Kidder, Mo., he came to Presbyterian in 1935 from the faculty of the University of Wisconsin, where he had received both his masters' and doctorate.

Through the years, Dr. Whitelaw has been considered PC's toughest taskmaster. He also has been considered one of the campus' most sympathetic student advisers. The combination has paid dividends, and it is this career which alumni applaud in establishing the Neill G. Whitelaw Scholarship.

PC Literary Journal Plans Reach Organizational Stage

Plans for a student journal-magazine are well underway through the efforts and sponsorship of a group of seven students and the advice of Doctors Connelly, Cate and Burnside. The group hopes to have the first issue published by the end of March.

DuPont Smith, leader of the group of students, stated that the journal would be "campus-wide in scope and as interesting as possible to the student body. To achieve this, we're trying to obtain articles from as many fields as possible."

The magazine will contain articles of almost any variety, and any student who is interested should submit term papers and reports from former courses, original and creative articles, stories, and poems written independently, or papers that will be finished during the early part of the current semester. Students who are not writing papers for specific courses but who are interested in contributing material resent sound work, follow con- for consideration should contact Glen Browder, Jim Owens, or Walter Wells, members of the editing committee.

Criteria on which papers will be judged are (1) that they rep- ventional rules of clarity and co- herence, and demonstrate logical style; and (2) that they be of interest to at least some students outside the field or department in which they are written. Several papers have already been received and are now under consideration.

The group will appreciate any assistance students are willing to give, Smith said. "Not only do we need articles, but also we will have to have typists, proof readers, and other helpers."

Articles should be submitted to a member of the editing committee as soon as possible. Any student interested in helping with the journal should also get in touch with one of these members or with DuPont Smith.

known teachers among Yale students. His lectures to some 400 students in the introductory philosophy course became famous for a variety of reasons, not the least of which was his ability to lecture without notes and conclude precisely at the 50-minute limit. During the last few years before his retirement the number of philosophy majors at Yale more than doubled.

In 1952-53 Dr. Blanshard delivered the famous Gifford Lectures in Scotland, one of the few Americans ever selected. He was named the Paul Carus Foundation Lecturer in 1959, thus sharing with John Dewey the distinction of being the only American philosophers who have ever held both the Gifford and Carus Lectureships. He was also the William Belden Noble Lecturer at Harvard in 1948, Hertz Lecturer of the British Academy in 1952, Adamson Lecturer at the University of Manchester, England, in 1953 and the Whitehead Lecturer at Harvard in 1961.

Dr. Blanshard was president of the Eastern Division of the American Philosophical Association from 1942-44, and later served as chairman of the board of the three divisions of the Association. He is a member of the American Philosophical Society of Philadelphia, a former president of the American Theological Society, a Corresponding Fellow of the British Academy, and an Honorary Fellow of Merton College, Oxford.

The Danforth Visiting Lecturers project, under which Dr. Blanshard comes to this campus, is now in its seventh year. It is sponsored jointly by the Danforth Foundation and the Association of American Colleges. Purpose of the program is "to strengthen the intellectual, the religious and the cultural aspects of liberal education in the United States." Dr. Blanshard is one of sixteen outstanding scholars and specialists from this country and abroad selected by the Foundation and the Association's Arts Program for campus visits during the 1963-64 academic year. The tours planned for him will take him to campuses of thirteen colleges and universities in several sections of the nation.

1964: YEAR OF DECISION

Well sir, here we go into 1964, which shows every sign of being quite a distinguished year. First off, it is the only year since 1954 which ends with the Figure 4. Of course, when it comes to Figure 4's, 1964, though distinguished, can hardly compare with 1444 which, most people agree, had not just one, not just two, but three Figure 4's! This, I'll wager, is a record that will stand for at least a thousand years!

1444 was, incidentally, notable for many other things. It was, for example, the year in which the New York Giants played the Philadelphia Athletics in the World Series. As we all know, the New York Giants have since moved to San Francisco and the Philadelphia Athletics to Kansas City. There is a movement afoot at present to move Chicago to Phoenix—the city, not the baseball team. Phoenix, in turn, would of course move to Chicago. It is felt that the change would be broadening for residents of both cities. Many Chicago folks, for example, have never seen an iguana. Many Phoenix folks, on the other hand, have never seen a frostbite.

There are, of course, certain difficulties connected with a municipal shift of this size. For instance, to move Chicago you also have to move Lake Michigan. This, in itself, presents no great problem, what with modern scientific advances like electronics and the French cuff. But if you will look at your map, you will find Lake Michigan is attached to all the other Great Lakes, which in turn are attached to the St. Lawrence Seaway, which in turn is attached to the Atlantic Ocean. You start dragging Lake Michigan to Phoenix and, willy-nilly, you'll be dragging all that other stuff too. This would make our British allies terribly cross, and I can't say as I blame them. Put yourself in their place. What if, for example, you were a British costermonger who had been saving and scrimping all year for a summer holiday at Brighton Beach, and then when you got to Brighton Beach there wasn't any ocean? There you'd be with your inner tube and snorkel and nothing to do all day but dance the Lambeth Walk. This, you must agree, would not help make you NATO-minded!

I appeal most earnestly to the residents of Chicago and Phoenix to reconsider. I know it's no bowl of cherries going through life without ever seeing an iguana or a frostbite, but I ask you—Chicagoans, Phoenicians—is it too big a price to pay for preserving the unity of the free world?

I feel sure that if you search your hearts, you will make the right decision, for all of us—whether we live in frostbitten Chicago, iguana-infested Phoenix, or narrow-lapelled New Haven—are first and foremost Americans!

But I digress. We were speaking of 1964, our new year. And new it is! There is, for one thing, new pleasure in Marlboro Cigarettes. How, you ask, can there be new pleasure in Marlboros when that fine flavorful blend of tobaccos, that clean efficient Selectrate filter, have not been altered? The answer is simple: each time you light a Marlboro, it is like the first time. The flavor is such that age cannot wither nor custom stale. Marlboro never palls, never jades, never dwindles into dull routine. Each puff, each cigarette, each pack, each carton, makes you glad all over again that you are a Marlboro smoker!

Therefore, Marlboros in hand, let us march confidently into 1964. May good fortune attend our ventures! May serenity reign! May Chicago and Phoenix soon recover from their disappointment and join our bright cavalcade into a brave tomorrow!

IFC Proposes New Rush Rule

The I.F.C. working in conjunction with the Faculty Committee on Fraternities has announced plans to enact changes in the constitution in regard to rush season. The purpose of these changes will be to shorten rush season so that it will last no later than Thanksgiving. The I.F.C. feels this will benefit all students, freshmen and upperclassmen alike. Each fraternity has been asked to elect one man to serve with the I.F.C. on this project.

The I.F.C. also has begun planning for a Greek weekend which will probably be held during the first part of May.

Organist Tryouts Held This Week

A two-day tryout session was begun on Thursday afternoon, February 13, to choose the winners of the Accompanist-Organist Scholarships of the Presbyterian College Choir. Two scholarships, one for an Accompanist-Organist and one for an Assistant, were awarded at the close of the competition on Friday morning.

Dr. Edouard Patte, Director of the Choir, announced that one PC student and three future students competed for the scholarships. They met first with members of the administration and later with the Robed Choir. Each participant had a student guide while a guest of the college. Names of the winners were not available at press time.

The first tryout session was held in the Choir Room of the Douglas House and consisted of accompanying the Choir, transposing scores, and sight reading. On Friday morning, February 14, members of the College Community and Administration listened while each presented numbers by Bach and more modern composers on the organ at Belk Auditorium.

Artillery Captain Joins PC Staff

Capt. Robert H. Howe has joined the Presbyterian College ROTC department as assistant professor of military science, Lt. Col. Richard Ulrich announced today.

The new addition came to PC upon completion of the advanced artillery officers' course at Fort Sill, Okla., and Fort Bliss, Tex. Before that, he had been stationed in Germany for three years (1960-63) with the 3rd Armored Division. His earlier service included a year at the Armor School, Fort Knox, Ky., after two years (1956-57) with the 1st Armored Division at Fort Polk, La.

A native of Rock Hill, Capt. Howe received his BS degree from the Citadel as a distinguished military graduate in 1955 and immediately entered US Army service. He is married and has three children.

Dr. Patte Concludes Nearly Twenty Years This Semester

DR. PATTE

Dr. Edouard Patte has announced his retirement from his professional duties as head of the Sociology Department and as a professor in that department effective June 1, 1964. This will conclude nearly twenty years of service to Presbyterian College. Of special interest to his colleagues and students is the fact that he will resume some activity at the college within the retirement regulations.

While being officially retired he will continue in the leadership of the Presbyterian College Robed Choir. He will also continue to teach his Music and Art Appreciation classes, and both he and Mrs. Patte will devote their time and services to the PC Art Studio.

The Department of Sociology, which he organized and headed for many years, has developed from an occasional one-semester course to eleven varied courses. The Department now has two professors and a program of major concentration in Sociology. Several imporatnt "firsts" of significance have come during his professorship.

One of the most outstanding is his course in Marriage and Family. A second important "first" has been his course in Sociology of the South in which problems peculiar to the southland are discussed.

In his own words, his motive and purpose in the classroom have been, "to bring to my students, facts in an unbiased fashion whatever they might be and then, to place them within the Christian context."

Dr. Patte brings to PC an interesting background. His academic preparation was made in Europe where, after obtaining his B.A. degree at seventeen years of age, he remained at the University of Geneva for post-graduate work in Sociology, Theology, and Anthropology. He is an ordained minister in the Presbyterian Church, U.S. and a past moderator of Enoree Presbytery.

Dr. Patte was called to PC from Fairview Presbyterian Church in North Augusta, which he founded after having settled down in this country at the termination of his duties as an International Y.M.C.A. Secretary and Chaplain to prisoners of war in America.

Dr. and Mrs. Patte will remain in their home on Calvert Ave. and look forward to many more happy years in Clinton and with students of Presbyterian College. In his capacity as minister of music, he will continue to bring to his students and members of his future choirs an appreciation

Military Posts New Drill Changes For This Semester

Second semester seems to be the turning over of a new leaf for the Military Departmnt. There has been a general shake-up and switching of positions as a majority of the positions were switched in order that men in administrative jobs could have experience in jobs of leadership.

The new additions to the staff include 1st Lt. Paul Watts, assistant S1; Cadet Captain Leon Bullard, S2; Cadet Captain Mike Lowrance, S3.

The new company officers are as follows:

"A" Compnay. Company Commander, Cadet Capt. Tommy Braswell; 1st Platoon Leader, Cadet 2nd Lt. Brad Campbell; 2nd Platoon Leader, Cadet 1st Lt. Ronnie Collins.

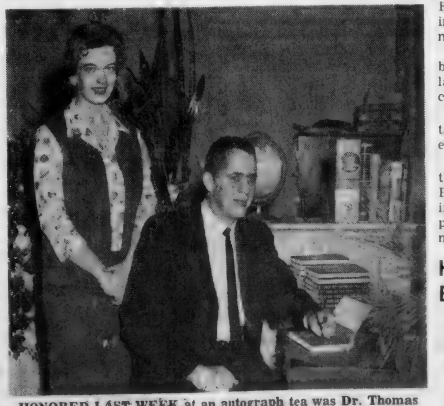
1964 Military Ball Slated For Leroy Springs Gym



The annual Military Ball will be held in the Leroy Springs Gymnasium on March 6th. This will be the first time that the Ball has been held on the campus and the change in atmosphere should add to the success of the dance.

The Senior Cadet officers and their dates will be presented in the traditional saber arch to highlight intermission. The arch for this colorful ceremony will be formed by members of the Wysor Rifles. There will also be a drawing for door prizes during intermission.

The dress for the cadets will be class A with white shirts. The ladies will wear short formals or cocktail dresses.

All students not taking Military are welcome to attend. Tickets will be on sale at the door.

The Ball is put on each year by the Society of Scabbard and Blade. Much planning is going into the event this year and it promises to be an enjoyable evening.

Honor Fraternity Born At Florida

Blue Key National Honor Fraternity is the result of Dean B. C. Riley's faith in the sincerity and ability of college men. The Fratrenity had its foundation first in his idea that real American college and university student leaders are God-fearing, law-abiding citizens who believe that worthwhile progress can best be achieved through the orderly processes of evolution, not revolution; second, in his belief that students are men and must be treated as such; third, that they are men willing to accept responsibility, willing to work with their fellow-students, willing to cooperate with faculty, and capable of advancing ideas and creating the right attitudes which will do much to improve student life and welfare.

Blue Key had its beginning at the University of Florida in 1924 when Dean Riley organized the first group to meet an emergency. Dean Riley selected twenty-five outstanding student leaders, who by election or attainment held places of prominence and confidence in the student body to plan and coordinate a combined Parent's Day and Homecoming. The group was so successful that it was requested to meet regularly. The progress and the results obtained by this group were amazing and there arose the need for exchange of ideas with similar groups on other campueses. From this need there arose Blue Key Honor Society.

Ten years after its founding date a convention was held in Chicago to change this loose federation into a closely-knit fraternity. After this convention Blue Key gained much in strength and prestige. At the beginning of World War II, the Fraternity had a total of seventy-eight active chapters with a membership of more than 20,000 men. Now the Blue Key has over 4,000 members in some 120 chapters from the University of California to the University of South Carolina.

Blue Key has been active at PC since 1932. In 1931, President Marshall W. Brown, then Dean, along with Colonel R. E. Wysor, Jr., PMS&T, and C. W. Grafton, English professor, established an honorary fraternity on the campus called the Archons. The Archons joined another honorary society and received a charter from Blue Key in 1932.

Haley And Turner In Lenten Season

All Saints Episcopal Church will present its second special preaching service of the Lenten season on Wednesday evening, February 19, at 8:00.

The sermon will be delivered by the Reverend Jules Haley, whose subject will be "The Call," which will have significance for lay churchmen of all denominations. Mr. Haley is a native of Greenville, and a graduate of The Citadel.

The Wednesday evening worship service will be conducted by the Reverend John Rivers of All Saints, and the evening lesson from the Gospel according to St. Matthew will be read by R. Michael Turner of the All Saints Vestry.

Interested persons of this area are cordially invited to attend this service and the coffee hour immediately following the service. Trained care will again be provided for young children in the parish house.

Why Blue Key At PC?

BLUE KEY IS America's largest general honor fraternity for outstanding upperclassmen. The motto of Blue Key, "Serving I Live," is emblematic of its goal, which is service. As members of the Presbyterian College chapter of the Blue Key, we feel that we are able to and have served this institution and its student body in a variety of campus endeavors.

WHERE THERE IS a need for action which can make a solid contribution to campus life, Blue Key is ready to serve. However, Blue Key does not set itself up as a campus crusaders club nor do its members try to make busy-jobs to fill time. This is not the purpose of Blue Key.

DURING THIS PAST semester we have represented the student body and college by acting as hosts for the first High School Day in the history of P. C., for Homecoming, for Parent's Day, and for the men of Enoree Presbytery. We have sponsored exchange chapel programs with Wofford and Newberry Colleges to help keep the competitive spirit between the participating schools limited to the athletic contests and to provide a change of pace for Friday chapels.

REGISTRATION AND Freshman Orientation are two other areas in which we have been able to serve the college. We have also appeared, as Blue Key members, before several of the Faculty Self-Study committees to answer questions on subjects ranging from student housing to student organizations.

WE HOPE THAT our activities for this past semester have earned the support of the student body for any task which Blue Key will undertake this semester.

Sitting Sad And Lonely

by LEON BULLARD

The splat, splat, splat of the racket meeting the ball in a perfectly executed tennis stroke reached his ears as he sat at his desk in the late winter afternoon. This brought recognition of the fact that the tennis team was working out in preparation for another season, to begin in a few weeks. He sympathized with the player as he muffed a shot and uttered a few choice words that carried through the chill afternoon into the dismal room. He wondered to himself if the college business office would find the necessary funds to purchase the new fluorescent light fixtures for the whole dorm. He doubted it. He returned his thought to the term paper he was composing, with the help of several reference books; using the fatiguing hunt and peck system on his beat-up portable really strained him. Over in the rack, he could hear his room-mate snoring up the lounge zzzzzzz in preparation for another long evening down in the lounge logging hours on the tube. If his roomie could not learn anything else, he showed a remarkable aptitude for memorizing the daily television schedules. He lost the attention he had been giving to the paper, and pondered the question of his roommate. What could be done about a college student who didn't want to study? This guy had to study this semester; he needed at least a 2.00 to graduate. The rate he was going, he would not even break the 0.50 mark. Oh, what the hell, why should he worry about the dumb clod; was he his brother's keeper, and all that jazz? But this could be taken two ways; besides being his roommate and fellow human, this character was also his fraternity brother. He supposed that they should stick together, but they were worlds apart.

Why did he feel the way he did about girls. Take that pretty girl from the Verse: every time he saw her, his animal passions simply took control and this caused him a great deal of discomfort. He was never sure that he could trust himself on a date with a nice dish like that girl.

But, these daydreamings were not getting the paper written. He classified himself as a first class mullet for jumping into that history course. He should have known that the term papers would be too much for him to handle. Imagine, having to write 5 term papers in a single semester. No other professor had ever made him work and he didn't like being pushed in his last semester. Well, when he finished this paper, he would be through for a couple of weeks. Then he could concentrate on the courses that he really liked. He wished that the college offered more of those courses, but they didn't, so he had to be satisfied with what was offered. Too bad his old man had not let him transfer after the end of his freshman year, like he had wanted to do. Those state universities were cheaper, more fun, easier to pass, and required less of their students. With his old man's money, he could have had a real ball at State.

He reached into his pocket and pulled out a cigarette; so what, he thought as he inhaled the rich tasting smoke into his lungs. So what if the government had spent millions of dollars to finance a study by experts to tell him something that he already know. He felt that cigarettes were a cause of cancer, so why had the government wasted his father's good money to tell him again and again. Those dumb federal men would probably place a prohibition on cigarettes. In a way, he hoped they would. It would be more fun to smoke, if it were illegal. Thinking of the illegality of some of his actions, he remembered the trip to the mountains. He had intended to learn to ski, but the hot toddies had seen to it that he never strayed more than ten feet from the fireplace all weekend. He relished the memory of the pleasant feelings he had felt as he sat, gazing into the flickering flames, and getting stoned. The whole weekend was a blast. The only thing bad was the Monday morning hangover that he had carried up to lunch time.

It was agonizing for him to recall the feelings he had had as he walked down to the auditorium for what he supposed a short chapel, only to find some jerk was to lecture on the current situation in Viet Nam. He attempted to fall asleep, which would have been no problem, if Beta Psi Chapter is looking forward to the Military Ball Weekend. The Brotherhood is eagerly awaiting the "Swamp Party" sponsored by the Pledge Class.

Recognition is extended to the basketball team for its continuing perfect record. The Brother of the week is Parliamentarian Bill Culp.

Sigma Nu

The brothers enjoyed the Sadie Hawkins party that was planned and decorated by the pledges. The setting was very much like Dog Patch even though that was not the name given it. Feb. 22 is the date for the Beatnic Party.

Tuesday night the fraternity enjoyed a steak and bean supper. Steaks were given to those who had a 2.5 ratio or better and beans for those below it.

Pi Kappa Phi

At the last meeting of Beta Chapter plans were discussed for parties to be held during Military Ball Weekend. Brother Durwood Owens, the executive secretary of the National Office, was present. He led an enlightened discussion on the changing role of fraternities in college life.

Congratulations are extended to our intramural basketball team on being undefeated so far in intramural play.

Pi Kappa Alpha

Plans were completed for the annual pledge party to be held this Friday night. Plans were also started and discussed for the Military Ball weekend.

All brothers and pledges are planning to attend the district convention to be held in Charlotte on Feb. 21 and 22.

Brothers of the Week are Leighton Grantham and Rut Galloway.

Kappa Alpha

The brothers and pledges of Beta Pi are looking forward to the upcoming dance weekends. The highlight of the year, the Annual Old South Ball, will be held this year in Augusta the second week in March. The Sabers will play at a Tea Dance to be held Saturday afternoon of Military Ball Weekend.

Congratulations to all the pledges who made their brotherhood grades.

Alpha Sigma Phi

The Alpha Sigs will have a Valentine party Friday night in the fraternity suite.

It is good to see all the pledges visiting the brothers around the campus.

Brother of the week is Parliamentarian DuPont Smith.

September of '65 will mark the beginning of a new era at P. College. The girls will be here and there will be a few changes made. Can't you see PC when . . .

Freshman Orientation is now complete with a lecture on where to sit in the gym and how.

A coed team, coached by Dodge Fredricks, wins the intramural football championship.

Mr. Prater tries to teach John Donne without mentioning SEX and has a nervous breakdown.

Dr. Patte intergrates girls into both the Choir and his Marriage and Famliy class. (And Dante's Inferno freezes over.)

The Bible Department adds a course on the book of Ruth.

A Wednesday Chapel speaker speaks on "Can a girl who wears short shorts be saved?"

Jacobs Hill is declared off limits for student automobiles between the hours of 7:00 p. m. and 7:00 a. m.

The canteen stocks hose instead of gold-cups, lipstick instead of shaving cream, and has a special on engagement rings and metracal milkshakes

PC's best advertisement, the weekend bucker, is a thing of the past.

The student council is forced to revise the campus minimum dress rule.

Curtains are required on all dorm windows and night watchmen are added to the college staff.

Dance weekends end at 12:00 on Saturday night.

The R.O.T.C. Department adds a WAC company who double as the P. College Hoseretts.

Dating a coed becomes a status symbol and peanut butter is banned in the Dining Hall as too fattening.

Mr. King makes his 8:00 classes on time and smiling.

Rat Season is cut to one day during which the freshmen must wear rat hats and cute little signs.

The Blue Stocking runs a "Dear Abby" column.

The Education and Economics Departments together offer a major in Home Economics.

Vetville triples in size.

There is no trouble with crowded classrooms or finding a table in the Dining Hall.

Key Gridders Ramble Thru Sport Shorts, Praise Spirit In Annual Issue

Spirit Is High

These three words found in our fight song are a perfect description of the spirit found on the campus here at PC. For the past three years "spirit" was a word that had meaning only to those students involved in their Bible courses. Now the students here at PC are beginning to realize that spirit at a small college, such as ours, is an essential and necesary element.

It is a magnet that draws students together and has created an attitude that makes all students realize that this is their school and they have something to be proud of. So let's keep it rolling and don't let up for a minute. Remember, spring sports are on their way and they'll need the same enthusiastic support that you've displayed for basketball, so let's get out and keep the spirit high.

Offense vs. Defense

The intramural basketball tournament will begin at the end of February. As in the past, the top four teams in each league will meet in a double elimination tournament.

This obviously will be a battle of the offensive power of the Red League vs. the defensive prowess of the Blue League. Paced by the Sigma Nu's 66.2 per game average, the top four teams in the Red League are scoring at a pace of 53.6 points per game. In contrast to the top four teams in the Blue League are allowing opponents an average of 29.7 points per contset.

Two years ago when the league may have been at its strongest the intramural scoring leaders averaged slightly over 14 points per game. This year, with Jackie Nix's 21.7 average, there are six players that top the former record. Of the six, five are in the Red League.

Former PC Gridders

A visitor to the PC campus this week was Ken Webb, a former PC star now playing with the Clevland Browns. Webb started every exhibition game and the first league game before being sidelined with an injury. As a running mate to the great Jim Brown he said he was used primarily as a blocker.

Webb, approaching his seventh season as a pro, has played in all four playoff bowl games since they were organized in 1960. In three games he was a member of the Detroit Lions and then this past year was with the Browns. His big day in the Miami classic came in 1963 when he scored both Lion touchdowns.

Forty-Niner

Another former PC gridder doing well in the pros is quarterback Bobby Waters of the San Francisco Forty-Niners. Waters, who drew several starting assignments last season will be moving into his fifth season as a professional. This is a significant step for pro gridders as they then become eligible for the five-year pension plan provided by the players' association.

A name more familiar to PC students is that of Bobby Joiner, a 1962 graduate. Joiner played semi-pro ball in Grand Rapids, Mich., last year and is employed by Proctor and Gamble in that city. After his unsuccessful tries with the Green Bay Packers and Philadelphia Eagles we wish Bobby better luck in 1964.

Improvement of Athletic Facilities

The Athletic Department is working to improve the facilities of Leroy Springs Gymnasium for the student body. In a few weeks the weight room will be ready for use. The room has been repainted, new benches and racks have been built, new weights are being purchased. Work is also being done to improve the section of the gym that contains the swimming pool.

PC Choir's New Recording Gets Church Wide Backing

The new record album of the Presbyterian College robed choir has been adopted by the Board of Christian Education of the Presbyterian Church, US, as part of its promotion of the Covenant Life Curriculum, it was announced today.

A mailing piece entitled "The Covenant Story in Music and Dramatic Narration" was distributed by the Board to all ministers and directors of Christian education throughout the General Assembly. The pamphlet explains:

"With the launching of the Covenant Life Curriculum, a new interest in the biblical Covenant is sweeping the church. Aware of this interest and caught up in it themselves the members of the Presbyterian Choir decided to make their seventh recording an interpretation of the Covenant in song. The record they cut is so fine that it is being made available through our Presbyterian Book Stores."

Dr. Edouard Patte, now in his 17th year as conductor, directs the 31-voiced male group in this high-fidelity recording pressed by RCA Victor. The program ranges from the depth of Bach to the simplicity of the Negro spiritual in 13 enduring selections rendered by the tenor-bass choir.

Sitting Sad

the guy had not been cracking slick jokes and keeping the clods around him laughing.

This Viet Nam sounded like something of a fairy tale to him as this excellent orator expressed it. However, he knew that Viet Nam was altogether different. He himself had lost a brother, a Marine Captain, whose helicopter had been shot down by the Viet Cong a little over a month ago. He wondered why the commies could not have shot this jerk, leaving his brother alive, and saving the student body from the torture they were semi-silently enduring. Maybe he should ask one of the thinking professors on the faculty why his brother, a young man with plenty of promise had had to die. But it was too much trouble. If he ran into one in the canteen, then he could ask him.

He gazed at his watch, stubbed out his cigarette, and walked over to shake his roommate. Together, they walked by the mail room, his box was empty as usual, and went to the chow hall. There they stood in line, like a bunch of refugees, he thought to himself, to receive their daily dole with the other idiots. He was only slightly surprised when he found for a change, they were to be served roast beef and potatoes.

After supper, his roommate went into the TV room and he wandered on up the stairs to his room. The three flights of steps always seemed like a nuisance to him; he wondered why the architects had not considered the use of an elevator. Entering his room, he prepared himself to study. After opening a book to the proper place, he found he could not concentrate and sat, simply staring out of the window. The sky was turning gray with the coming of night and the promise of rain. The ringing of the telephone awakened him from his daze, and he waited for someone to answer it. After the tenth ring, he decided that no one would answer it, so he got up and trotted down the hall to the phone. He was pleasantly surprised to find that it was for him. This was his first call in over a month. In a semi-daze, he heard his father tell him that he was needed at home. His mother, who had never recovered from the shock of losing her first-born son, was not expected to live through the night. He was bitter, because this was the first that he had known known of her being ill. He returned the phone to the hook; walked into his room; packed a bag and left a note for his roommate to give to his father, who was coming for him. Then walking to the end of the hall, he calmly stepped through the window and fell three stories down to the concrete parking lot. He had finally found the peace he had been searching for.

Dr. Patte To Host PC Art Festival

A Fine Arts Exhibition at the Presbyterian College Art Studio has been announced by Dr. Edouard Patte for February 20 and 21. The studio is located on the second floor of Dr. Patte's faculty residence at 301 South Adair Street. The exhibition will be open to the public from 4:00-6:00 P. M. on these days.

There will be oil paintings, water colors, and pencil drawings representing six or seven artists belonging to the PC faculty and student body. Dr. Patte indicated that an emphasis has been placed on modern abstract canvasses this season.

Sophomore Cadets Win History Awards

Two sophomore cadets of the Presbyterian College ROTC battalion have received academic awards for posting the highest scholastic averages in military history.

They are David G. Davies, Jr., of Panama City, Fla., and Walter B. Todd, Jr., of Clinton, who received copies of the book "American Campaigns" by Matthew F. Steele in recognition of their achievements. The books are a gift of the Association of the United States Army.

On Campus with Max Shulman

(Author of "Rally Round the Flag, Boys!" and "Barefoot Boy With Cheek.")

SHOULD AULD ACQUAINTANCE AND JAZZ LIKE THAT

I am now an elderly gentleman, full of years and aches, but my thoughts keep ever turning to my undergraduate days. This is called "arrested development."

But I cannot stop the healing tide of nostalgia that washes over me as I recall those golden campus days, those ivy-covered buildings (actually, at my college, there was only ivy: no bricks), those pulse-tingling lectures on John Dryden and Cotton Mather, the many friends I made, the many deans I bit.

I know some of you are already dreading the day when you graduate and lose touch with all your merry classmates. It is my pleasant task today to assure you that it need not be so; all you have to do is join the Alumni Association and every year you will receive a bright, newsy, chatty bulletin, chock-full of tidings about your old buddies.

Oh, what a red-letter day it is at my house, the day the Alumni Bulletin arrives! I cancel all my engagements, take the phone off the hook, dismiss my resident osteopath, put the cheetah outside, and settle down for an evening of pure pleasure with the Bulletin and (need I add?) a good supply of Marlboro Cigarettes.

Whenever I am having fun, a Marlboro makes the fun even more fun. That filter, that flavor, that yielding soft pack, that firm Flip Top box, never fails to heighten my pleasure whether I am playing Double Canfield or watching the radio or knitting an afghan or enjoying any other diverting pursuit you might name—except, of course, spear fishing. But then, how much spear fishing does one do in Clovis, New Mexico, where I live?

But I digress. Let us return to my Alumni Bulletin and the fascinating news about my old friends and classmates. I quote from the current issue:

"Well, fellow alums, it certainly has been a wing-dinger of a year for us old grads! Remember Mildred Cheddar and Harry Camembert, those crazy kids who always held hands in Econ II? Well, they're married now and living in Clovis, New Mexico, where Harry rents spear-fishing equipment, and Mildred has just given birth to a lovely 28-pound daughter, her second in four months. Nice going, Mildred and Harry!

"Remember Jethro Brie, the man we voted most likely to succeed? Well, old Jethro is still gathering laurels! Last week he was voted 'Motorman of the Year' by his fellow workers in the Duluth streetcar system. 'I owe it all to my brakeman,' said Jethro in a characteristically modest acceptance speech. Same old Jethro!

"Probably the most glamorous time had by any of us old alums was had by Francis Macomber last year. He went on a big game hunting safari all the way to Africa! We received many interesting post cards from Francis until he was, alas, accidentally shot and killed by his wife and white hunter. Tough luck, Francis!

"Wilametta 'Deadeye' Macomber, widow of the late beloved Francis Macomber, was married yesterday to Fred 'Sureshot' Sigafoos, white hunter, in a simple double-ring ceremony in Nairobi. Many happy returns, Wilametta and Fred!

"Well, alums, that just about wraps it up for this year. Buy bonds!"

rganists Chosen; Start Next Year

rgan tryouts resulted in three organists for the upcoming semester and scholarships ve been offered to each.

First organist and official accompanist of the choir will be m Holland from Lancaster. lland is an accomplished pian- and organist and will very equately fill the position now ld by Dave Perry.

To replace Tom Knox as assistant organist will be Scott mith from Quincy, Fla. His andin will be Bob Gettman om Hendersonville, N. C., who ll help when necessary. All ree of the organists are famil- r with piano and both the elec- onic and pipe organ.

Dr. Patte feels very confident at the high degree and quality music will be retained with the ility of these three men.

Yeldell Scholarship Established Recently

President Weersing announced that a scholarship in memory of George Sheppard Yeldell, Jr., was given to Presbyterian College by his mother, Mrs. George S. Yeldell of Greenwood.

Mrs. Yeldell said her $1000 contribution was for a qualified student in need of financial assistance.

George S. Yeldell, Jr., received his B.A. degree from P. C. in 1933 and his law degree from the University of South Carolina law school. He practiced in Greenwood and served as magistrate there from 1947 until his death in 1962.

Civil Rights Bill By-Passes Frats

Washington (CPS)—The House recently voted a ban against any inquiries by the federal Civil Rights Commission into membership practices of internal operations of college fraternities and sororities, fraternal organizations, private clubs, or religious organizations.

It accepted by voice vote an amendment to the recently House-passed federal civil rights bill that would keep the commission and its advisory committees out of the area.

"Everyone agreed when the commission was formed it had no right" to such investigatory powers, Rep. George Meader (R.-Mich.) said recently. He was one of the co-sponsors of the motion as it appeared in final form.

Rep. Edwin E. Willis (D.-La.) had posed the original motion which was later amended by Meader.

Meader said there was universal agreement on the intent of the motion but that there were some objections to the wording.

No Student Tax Credit But The Fight Goes On

WASHINGTON (CPS) The controversial tax credit proposal for college students, sponsored by Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., was defeated in the Senate last Tuesday (Feb. 4), but the issue is far from dead.

In addition to Sen. Ribicoff's pledge to bring the same bill up again next year, a similar tax allowance will be included in the amendment to extend the National Defense Education Act (NDEA) during the current session of the House.

According to Rep. Edith Green, D-Ore., chairman of the House Subcommittee on Education and sponsor of the NDEA extension, her new proposal would allow a deduction from the total income on which tax is based, thus lowering the income tax bracket of the individual. The Ribicoff amendment would have subtracted a deduction from the amount of the tax to be paid.

Mrs. Green conceded that her proposal has little chance of passage in the House, where it will come up for debate following the current committee hearings on the entire NDEA amendment.

A tax credit for college students and their families has aroused outspoken opposition from leading education figures.

The primary objection to the Ribicoff amendment stemmed from the nature of the proposal itself, as a tax relief for middle-income families. Mrs. Green calling it a "middle-class scholarship bill," charged that it does nothing to help those students who most need help. "Low income families do not pay enough taxes to benefit from this type of credit allowance," she said.

Francis Keppel, U. S. Commissioner of Education, declared that the question was one of priority and the "first priority is to even out the chances for education." The most pressing need in the area of federal aid to education, "the opportunity for low-

Plans For Journal Near Final Stages

Plans for publishing a student journal here at Presbyterian College have progressed to a definite stage during the past week with the election of an editor-in-chief and the work of the editing committee.

Glen Browder, newly elected editor, reports that the administration has agreed to sanction the project by allocating funds to defray the cost of printing. Dr. Marc Weersing, PC President, hailed the forthcoming publication as "a very significant endeavor' in a recent letter to Historia, which is sponsoring the work.

The editing committee is now at work on a number of articles which have already been submitted for review, but students who are interested in contributing material may still do so by contacting Walter Wells, Jim Owens or Browder. Articles from any subject field may be submitted for consideration

Two Alumni Given Navy Commissions

Two P. C. graduates were commissioned as Ensigns in the U. S. Navy on February 7, 1964. Frederick Lamar Williams and John Griffin Helwig received their commissions after completing training at U. S. Naval Officer Candidate School in Newport, Rhode Island.

Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Williams, Jr., of Rock Hill, South Carolina, graduated from P. C. in 1963. He will be stationed on the USS Dahlgreen.

Helwig, a 1963 graduate, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George T. Helwig of Tampa, Fla. He will report to the Naval Air Station, Pensacola, Florida, for flight training

Experienced Staff And Changes Mark New Sock

An excellent staff, well experienced in the various phases of campus reporting and publication, and a few physical changes characterize the Blue Stocking under its new administration.

Co-editors Wells and Allison stated that they believe that the men working under them on the Sock constitute one of the most able staffs the Blue Stocking has had in several years. Heading the team of sub-editors is Managing Editor Bill Loeble, a junior from Waynesboro, Va., who is majoring in chemistry. Loeble has served previously as reporter and feature editor for the newspaper.

Supporting Loeble are Frank Hendrix, news editor; Glen Browder and Al Pearce, sports editors; and Gary Crawford, feature editor. All four are juniors and bring a great deal of experience to the newspaper.

Hendrix, from Lenoir, N. C., is an English major who has had several years of newspaper experience in high school. Assisting him in editing news articles is Dave Veneklasen, a sophomore who hails from Jacksonville, Fla.

Both Browder and Pearce have been associated with the Blue Stocking before as sports editors. They will continue in this capacity, and Pearce is also working as Business Manager.

Gary Crawford, a junior and another English major, brings to the staff much needed experience in the area of creative writing.

These major editors are all backed by strong staffs, capable of writing good articles and producing work efficiently.

The most noticeable physical change is, of course, the different style name-plate which appears on the first edition under the co-editorship. The Old English name-plate is being returned to the top of page 1 of the Blue Stocking after a 24-year absence.

Allison and Wells gave several reasons for making the change in name-plates. First, they felt that the Old English style is more in keeping with the eighty-four year tradition of the college and with the Georgian architecture of the campus. The Old English

Choir Will Sing Thru Five States

Dr. Edouard Patte, director of the Presbyterian College Robed Choir, has announced the choir schedule for second semester.

Two weekend trips are scheduled for the month of March. March 1 the choir appears in Spartanburg at the Westminster Presbyterian Church and in Tryon at the Tryon Presbyterian Church. On the 14th and 15th of March they will perform in Charleston at the First Presbyterian Church and in Cayce at Congaree Presbyterian Church.

Details of the spring tour, on which the choir will travel throughout Georgia, Alabama, and Mississippi, will be released at a later date.

The choir concludes its schedule on April 25 and 26. On the 25th they will sing at the First Presbyterian Church in Ocean Drive Beach and on the 26th in Columbia at the Covenant Presbyterian Church.

Chapel Services

The chapel schedule for the coming week is as follows:

Monday, Feb. 24 — Rev. W. Robert Martin, Union Seminary.

Wednesday, Feb. 26—William Kuykendall.

Friday, Feb. 28—Westminster Fellowship.

Policy Outlined

THE EDITORS of The Blue Stocking during its 44-year history have exercised wise judgment and have had a sense of responsibility about the newspaper and what it contained. They have thereby left us with a tremendous responsibility to publish a newspaper worthy of this tradition and of the students at PC.

IN ASSUMING the office of editor, we realize our responsibility and do not shirk from it. We promise to maintain the tradition but not by compromising truth.

IT WOULD BE EASY to publish a newspaper filled only with meeting schedules, publicity releases, and statistics. But we think that a college newspaper should be more than this and that PC students deserve more than this.

OUR DESIRE AND INTENTION is to print all the facts for your evaluation and action. Of course, we at times may deem it wise to lead action on issues, for this too is a part of the purpose of a newspaper.

POLICIES OF STUDENTS, the faculty, or the administration may at times become subject to editorial criticisms or praise. Both are necessary, sometimes simultaneously.

LETTERS AND GUEST EDITORIALS will be welcomed, but we must reserve the right to edit or withhold them from publication if necessary. And the publication of a letter or an editorial does not constitute our endorsement of it.

An Improvement

TWO WEEKS AGO President Weersing announced that the college had made the first step toward joining the Carolinas Conference. In past years the Blue Stocking has advocated that the college become a member of the Conference because its limitations on athletic expenditures seem more in line with the purposes of a small liberal arts college than did previous athletic policies of PC.

OF COURSE, it's unfortunate that scholarships for spring sports must be cut so drastically, but the advantages of anything are always accompanied by disadvantages.

WE CONTINUE to suport the administration in this movement, which we consider another step in the dawn of the new era at PC, and we hope that the college will be granted full membership.

And We Praise

MR. HALSALL and the members of the faculty committee on fine arts have certainly performed worthily this year in securing for the school two speakers of the magnitude of Miss Lisa Sergio and Dr. Brand Blanshard.

WE HAVE BEEN informed by Mr. Halsall that two more programs are scheduled later this semester. We hope that the coming programs will be as interesting as the latest two were.

AND, PERHAPS, in time we will be able to have more than three or four special programs each year.

Not So Safe

A SOMEWHAT different but nonetheless extremely penetrating note on the cold war situation was struck in this week's Newsweek. General Thomas D. White, USAF retired, brought up a rather alarming point concerning the stated American policy that "Our arms will never be used to strike the first blow in any attack . . ." This could mean that some 30 million Americans would die if we knew that an atomic attack was planned and yet had to wait.

He also brought out that it is fallacious to think that we are safe just because there is a power stalemate among equals. The idea of a balance indicates that a "precarious equilibrium" is involved, which could be upset by a breakthrough in any one of a dozen military technologies. He concluded that safety is not to be had in a stalemate, but in an imbalance—"with the vast preponderance on our side."

Side Comments

Thanks Go Out Changes Come In

Organization of the staff and revision of several aspects of the Blue Stocking under its joint editorship has been a project which all have enjoyed. As managing editor I would like to acknowledge on behalf of Co-editors Wells and Allison the many people who have helped us in getting underway.

Mr. Ed Campbell has given much help in the administrative department, and Mr. Ben Hammet has always been ready to help us with advice and suggestions. Thanks go to Mr. Beaty and his maintenance crew for his help in remodeling the Sock office.

The new Greek column head was designed and drawn by Mr. Freeman of the Biology Department. Also we want to express deep appreciation to Mr. Layton of The Chronicle for his giving many hours of practical advice and information about publication. Mr. Layton was also chiefly responsible for helping us prepare the Old English style nameplate.

Two other improvements have also been made in the Blue Stocking. The first is that the newspaper is now a member of the Collegiate Press Service, a cooperative news service similar to the Associated Press in operation. It functions in a completely professional, busines-like manner in providing complete coverage of student and youth fields and well-written articles on such diverse and important subjects as issues in higher education, student welfare, and fraternities.

The articles are mailed to the Blue Stocking every three days. Many of them have never ap-

Washington Visit

THE WHITE HOUSE reflected an unusually bright January sun as we approached the East Portico entrance. Nevertheless, an air of melancholy hung about for little more than two months had passed since that cruel and horrible November in Dallas---a city so far away in distance, yet an action so near in the human heart.

A UNIFORMED MAN motioned to us, and through the door we passed into an experience that even time could not render forgotten.

MUSIC ECHOED down a marble staircase and called us to follow up to the main floor which throbbed with excitement and laughter. A naval officer in full dress showed us to what we already knew was the East Room. A red velvet stage was set up, and we waited with wonder and anxiety. Minutes later the room rang with applause and in came a woman who was not in need of introduction.

LADY BYRD JOHNSON motioned for us to take our seats with a look that said you really shouldn't have bothered to stand. Her pleasant Southern drawl welcomed our group of college editors, and a slight smirk prefaced, "I was once a college journalist, but someone came between me and a permanent career."

THE FIRST LADY introduced actor Hal Holbrook who performed an impersonation of Mark Twain. In the middle of his performance a loud and almost country accented voice was heard from the hall, "Mind if I interrupt in here for a moment?" The President of the United States grasped the actors' hand and said: "I always wanted to meet Mark Twain." Then he reminded his student audience of the words of a fellow Texan, Mirabeau B. Lamar. "An educated mind is the only guardian genius of democracy, the only dictator that free men recognize, the only ruler free men desire." The chief excutive continued and as the words "in search of knowledge, truth, and peace . . . to live together in a world that is free from war," faded so did the President bid us farewell with a typically Western wave of the hand.

AS THE AFTERNOON drew to a close, we each met Mrs. Johnson and Lynda Byrd, had coffee in the State Dining Room, and leisurely wandered about the first two floors as if the whole affair had been a neighborhood cocktail party.

THERE WAS A TRAIN to be caught and bags to pack, yet it was with great regret that we said farewell. Leaving through the North Portico we could still visualize the cason and horses of November, but there was a new confidence. It was not exactly political satisfaction but just a strange feeling that perhaps something would be done about the sad affairs of our time, that we really could learn "to live together in a world that is free from war."

Panama: Conflict and Crisis

by ALEX PATRICK

Dissent between the United States and Panama over the Panama Canal has been of major importance in recent international affairs. Because of the differing interests of the two countries involved, it is quite natural that their goals conflict. The Republic of Panama has primrally been concerned with the benefits it can receive from the canal whereas the U. S. feels that it has an obligation to operate the canal efficiently and securely and intends to honor that obligation.

The foundation of the controversy dates back to the very creation of the Republic of Panama. More particularly, it is centered around the very source from which the country of Panama receives the majority of her national income. The crisis concerning this strategic area is not a product of the present but has been generated by events during the past 61 years.

To comprehend the present events one must first remember historical facts and implications The treaty for the creation of an international maritime facility was signed . . . in 1903, a month after Panama had gained her independence from Colombia. In fact, U. S. recognition played a vital role in helping Panama to secure her independence from Colombia.

The treaty granted to the U. S. perpetual authority over a 10-mile strip across the isthmus for the construction of a canal. In return, Panama was made a de facto protectorate, thus insuring her independence and was granted other compensations. The treaty was revised in 1936 and again in 1955. More concessions have been made recently by the U. S. to appease the Panamanian government.

The Canal Zone was quiet since the 1959 rioting; then in January of this year riots were pro-

Local Yokels' Annual Invasion No New Thing

On page two of this issue of The Blue Stocking is found the editorial policy of the new co-editors of the paper. The statement is a straightforward, clear picture of the ideals, goals, and beliefs the staff holds as it begins to publish a weekly college newspaper. It is not only the policy of the editorial staff, it is the credo of the entire staff.

Our Policy

Among other things, the statement announces that, "policies of students, the faculty, or the administration will at times become subject to editorial criticism or praise.

"This is to be the policy of the sports editors and their staff, just as it is the policy of the editorial writers. Since we are pledged to praise if the opportunity is seen and to criticize when the need arises, we shall always attempt to do just that."

Clinton's Pride

For years Clinton has prided itself on being the tennis capital of the State. This is partially a result of the excellent teams the College produced in the years when the question of athletic scholarships was not limited by the Athletic Council's recent decision. Part of the civic pride in Clinton tennis has been nurtured by the outstanding players produced here. The townspeople play tennis every possible chance they have. Several leading citizens of Clinton may be found, without fail, at the College tennis courts late every spring and summer, and even fall, afternoon. The town has a "thing" about tennis—it wants to play it every chance it gets. Unfortunately, for the town, the College feels the same way.

High School Matches

The problem is not new to the town and it certainly is not new to the College. It is a basic fact of life around the campus that almost every student at Presbyterian College wants to play tennis at any time. With far too few courts for everyone enrolled at the College to use—students, faculty, administration and varsity players—the additional high school students, townspeople, and high school varsity players creat a problem that is not getting any better. The recent announcement that the high school will use the College courts for their "home' matches adds fuel to the fire that burns in every college tennis fan when a high school kid is on the College courts. It's funny, but they never seem to be in any great rush to use the College library—only the tennis courts.

No Funds

Just before you get to the high school, on the right side, is a large cleared area of red clay. It looks just about large enough to accommodate four tennis courts—composition, clay or concrete. The high school was planning to builds its own courts here, but when funds for the job weren't produced officials decided to use the College courts. Apparently they don't realize that the students of the College like to play tennis, too. The daily influx of tennis players from the high school would faithfully show up last year as soon as school was out. You could almost count on the courts being occupied by them as soon as a College student would walk off—even for a water break. When he got back, even though his racquet was left there, he'd have to run the high school kids off in order to resume his game. Often this was easier said than done, but, thank Forest Hills, no one was over hurt in the withdrawal.

No Violence

The students of the College, on the whole, don't enjoy making high school students leave the courts when the question of possession is sounded. The persuaders thus far have only been mild threat, with no force necessary. Maybe this "cold war" will not be so cold one warm spring day. It is felt that if a student pays his $1,750.00 (ugh!!) he should be permitted to use the facilities of the college. When he is playing tennis he at least feels he is getting something for his money—as the catalog puts it, "six all-weather tennis courts that rank among the best in the South."

No Easy Solution

We realize the problem is not an easy one to solve. There is a vagueness concerning just who built and paid for the courts. If the courts were built and paid for by college funds, then there should be no question as to who has court priority at any time—the College students, faculty and administration. If, as is thought, the City helped build and finance court number 6, then the College community will certainly concede that court to the townspeople whenever they want it—if that is the only one they want.

The situation is not a new one. The officials of the high school and of the College should have made provisions for the tennis population explosion long before now. The question of who can use what is not present now, but as soon as the courts are in shape, and the weather improves, the question will be raised every afternoon from 3:30 until sunset.

Why doesn't someone decide now, what the answer is going to be?

Miami, Duke, Harvard Among Tennis Foes For '64 Season

An 18-match tennis schedule, including 15 home contests and the annual State Tournament, was announced today by Gordon Warden, tennis coach. The first match will have PC entertaining Pennsylvania University on Friday, March 13, and again on Saturday, March 14. The State Tournament will be held here on the 23rd and 24th of April.

It has been learned from the Athletic Department that the smaller schedule was due to faculty action regarding all scheduling. A limit has now been set upon the number of games (or matches) any PC team may schedule. The 18-match schedule for this spring is in contrast to the 23-match schedule of 1962, and the 21-match schedule of 1963.

Counted on heavily to lead the squad will be returning lettermen Bob Harris of West Palm Beach, Fla.; Bill Tyson of Bainbridge, Ga.; Dodge Frederick of Ormond Beach, Fla.; Howard Letzring of St. Petersburg, Fla.; Archie Hudgins of Charleston, W. Va.; and Mark Braswell of Atlanta, Ga. Freshmen out for the squad include Al Gerdsen of Cincinnati; John Appleby of Sumter; and Larry Connelly of Charlotte. Pete Collins, a transfer student from Ormond Beach, Fla., and Bill Gillespie, a sophomore from Newport News, Va., are also out for varsity positions.

The schedule is, typically, a tough one. Over the years PC has maintained its tennis reputation by defeating such teams as Miami, Harvard, Princeton, Clemson, Georgia, Duke, Yale, Georgia Tech, Florida State, Rollins, and Dartmouth. The 1964 schedule will include many of these teams, namely Duke, Miami, Georgia (2), Harvard (2), Pennsylvania University (2), Citadel (2), Furman (2), Florida State, Alabama, Indiana, Williams College, Grove City College, and the University of South Carolina. Conferences represented include the Atlantic Coast, Southern, Southeastern, Ivy League, and the Big 10.

Although the scheduling in the last two seasons has been among the most rugged any PC tennis team has faced, these two spirngs have been among the most successful PC has enjoyed. In Coach Warden's freshman year of 1962 the Blue Hose netmen compiled an 18-5 record, losing only to Miami University (2), Princeton University, Georgia, and State champ Clemson. In 1963 PC had an 18-3 mark, losing again to Miami, Georgia, and ACC powerhouse North Carolina.

6 Lettermen Form '63 Squad Add To '64 Baseball Hopes

by ED HENDERSON

Presbyterian's baseball team will look towards its second consecutive winning season this spring as twenty-two hopefuls are reported out for position. Of these twenty-two, only eight return from last year's squad. Six are lettermen.

Returning for his fourth season as a PC regular is Tommy Williams, a senior shortstop from Pensacola, Fla. Teaming with Williams, and beginning his third season as a starter is second baseman Jackie Nix, a junior letterman from Bainbridge, Ga. Wiliams and Nix formed the nucleus around which the entire infield functioned, and their double-play combination was outstanding.

Another letterman who is expected to carry a big stick this season is Wade Stewart, a sophomore from Picayune, Miss. Stewart, who played in the outfield last year, is being switched to catcher for the 1964 compaign. Henry Lovett, letterman sophomore from Kingstree, will retain the outfield post he earned last year as a freshman.

Pitchers Leighton Grantham and Jimmy Cape, both lettermen juniors, and both from Easley, will be the top hurlers on the squad. It was not uncommon last spring to see one Easley pitcher relieve another Easley pitcher when the game got tight.

Winding out the eight returnees are George Lokey, a junior from Thompson, Ga., and Dave Dunlap, a sophomore from Jacksonville, Fla. Both boys are figured on prominently in the 1964 plans for the Blue Hose.

Coach Billy Tiller, starting his second season as the PC mentor, announced that practice will officially begin on March 2nd, although the boys are individually working out now to get into top shape. Tiller feels that the squad has a great deal of work ahead if they hope to retain their Little Four crown and better the 9-6 record of last spring. "A lot depends on the replacements we have and on improved hittin," the coach concluded.

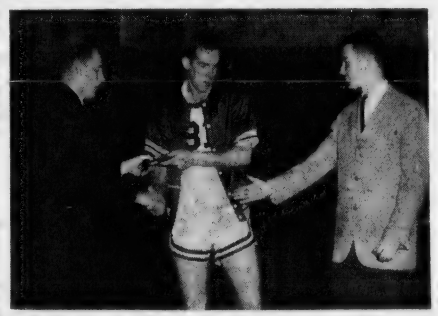
The 1964 schedule closely resembles last year's, with only East Carolina College not appearing again. Tusculum College of Alabama will replace the Pirates. PC will face traditional foes Erskine, Newberry, Wofford, Furman and Belmont Abbey, as well as The Citadel, Virginia Military, and Mercer. The season will open here on March 25 with Tusculum, and a total of nine home games will be on the seventeen game slate.

PC Hosts Second Intramural Tourney

The Presbyterian College Invitational Intramural Basketball Tournament, an event that met with great success last winter, is slated to return to LeRoy Springs Gym the nights of March 11 and 12. The tournament is sponsored by the Intramural Council and is thought to be the only one of its kind in the State.

Again coming to PC to play in the event will be the All-Star basketball teams from the Newberry, Erskine, and Furman intramural leagues. P. C., who hosted the first tournament last season, will field a team selected by the players in our basketball leagues. Last year Erskine defeated PC for the tournament championship and Newberry won over Furman for third place.

The two-night event last year met with great success because of the surprising spirit showed by the participating schools. Over 1,000 fans saw the two nights of play, and the three "visiting" teams brought large followings to each of their games. Statewide press coverage was provided by several large State daily papers.



Trophies will be presented at the conclusion of the championship game to all participating teams, and an All-Tournament team will be selected by the officials, the press and the director of the tournament.

Karlsons Closes Out Hot Career As Hose

Andy Karlsons closed out his basketball career last night by lifting his four-year total at PC to 1,162 points.

Presbyterian lost the game, as well as a berth in the NAIA Tournament, but Karlsons clinched his third consecutive scoring leadership for the Blue Hose. His 17 points, high for PC, upped his season total to 297, and raised his average to slightly below 15-points-per-game.

His freshman year he tallied 196 points, followed by 289 his second season. Last year he scored 380 points. With this campaign, he bows out with 1,162 points as a four-year starter at Presbyterian

National Aid Program Helps Dollar-Short College Student

Washington (CPS)—Powerful administration and congressional support is building up for a sweeping national aid program to help capable but dollar-short students through college.

The plan is a result of congressional compromises last year, Treasury Department opposition to another program and a skirmish in President Johnson's war on poverty.

Current chief sponsor of the program is Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., who introduced the plan in the Senate last week (Feb. 3). The Senate Education subcommittee is scheduled to start hearings on it Feb. 11.

Basically the program would do three things:

—Furnish federal undergraduate scholarships of up to $1,000 for competent but needy students.

—Create federal campus jobs where students could earn to pay for what they learn.

—Create more long-term student loans and provide federal insurance for commercial loans made by students.

Hartke said his plan would cost the government $353.5 million to help 900,000 students the first year. By 1968, he estimates a $650 milion cost to aid 1.3 million students.

The basic ideas of the program can be traced to Rep. Edith Green, D-Ore., chairman of the House Special Subcommittee on Higher Education. Generally, it was the same program Mrs. Green attempted to push through last year's "education Congress" in the guise of an expanded National Defense Education Act (NDEA) program.

At that time, the plan had the firm support of higher education officials, but was dropped in give-and-take compromise sessions between the House and Senate while shaping their victory for the college facilities program and a simple extension of the NDEA program of loans for college students.

Panama

voked by the refusal of high school students in the Canal Zone to comply with the previous understanding regarding the joint flying of the U. S. and the Panamanian flags.

The ensuing riots were not a rebellion against American authority but an expression of the Panamanian students that their opinions be heard. The major issues concerned were only embodied in the flag-raising incident.

What motivated the riots is of primary importance. They can be primarily attributed to the loss of faith in the U. S. policies concerning Panama. The majority of Panamanians feel that these policies are not in the best interests of their country and its future. Also to a certain degree, the recent death of President Kennedy added to this loss of confidence.

One of the primary reasons the Panamanians have been pushing to achieve revision of the existing treaty is that they depend so greatly on the Canal as their major source of livelihood. Thus, this overdependence, the stimulation by Egypt's nationalizing the Suez Canal in 1959, and a growing trend of nationalistic feeling have caused the Panamanians to desire more participation in the affairs of the Canal Zone.

We have as yet been unable to satisfy the Panamanians' aspirations regarding the Canal. To do so would require a major change in the existing treaty, which seems doubtful with the attitude of the State Department at the present time.

Yet, the deep-seated resentment of the Panamanians, whose country is bisected by an American-controlled sector where the living standard is far higher than theirs, can be easily understood. The majority of the people there have no desire to make a choice between the U. S. and Russia as far as their ideologies are concerned. What they are personally concerned with is Panama and her place in the sun.

There have been errors on both parts but the U. S. in her dominating role has had to assume the responsibility for most of them. The seeming unawareness of the executive branch of our government appears pronounced; this is not true, however.

The lights were on in State Department offices until 5 a. m. during the recent crisis not because there was no policy but because officials were trying to decide how the existing policy could be carried on so as to strengthen world peace. But the irresponsible evacuation of the American embassy in Panama three days after the riots began cannot be condoned. Diplomats completely shirked their duty of providing refuge and safety for American citizens and property and left at the first sign of danger.

In conclusion, there is one thing we must realize in our dealings other countries. We cannot go into another country and force our opinion on its populace, as Sen. Goldwater would have us do. We cannot even give them definite answers to their problems when they can clearly see that we do not have the answers to our own internal problems.

What can be done? One proposal is that we include students as advisors on our embassy staffs. These students would be responsible for advising the U. S. about the student situation in a country since this is where so much of the dissension arises. Even more applicable would be for the U. S. to acquire a more respectful attitude in our relations with other nations. We are not God Almighty and must be willing to listen to other nations and their cries.

The general opinion is that the Panamanians do not actually want the U. S. out of the Canal Zone. They realize that the presence of the U. S. is necessary for the operation of the canal They only want to feel and know that they have a greater voice in the control of the canal and of the Canal Zone.

Freshmen Receive Qualification Badges

Freshman cadets completing rifle qualifications in January were awarded Qualification Badges at drill on February 6.

Two cadets received expert ratings. They were Evan Pamplin and James Bell. Cadets receiving Sharpshooter ratings were John Askew, David Knowlton, Royce Boone, and Darryl Smith.

Marksmanship ratings were given to James Lumley, Glen Beckham, Brown Johnson, William Gates, Charles Toland, Fred Gossett, Edward Henderson, and George Foster.

Warden Predicts '64 Good Season For Hose Golfers

The twelve match 1964 Presbyterian College golf schedule was released today by Coach Gordon Warden. The slate includes four home matches, the State Tournament, and matches with teams from North Carolina and Georgia.

Comenting on the outlook for the season Warden said, "I feel we can have about as good a team as last year and we may even be better balanced. I think we'll do real well by State Tournament time.' Warden, beginning his third year at the helm of the Blue Hose golfers, also stated that it would be very difficult to replace the three men from last year's squad who are not back.

Returning to lead the PC team will be sophomore Bill Kellam of Virginia Beach, Va. Kellam, who placed third in the State meet last spring as a freshman, is expected to play the number one position. With Kellam will be Jack Westall, a sophomore letterman of Asheville, N. C., and Bill "Moose" Brown, a senior letterman of Gaffney. Others out for the team include Larry Preston of Atlanta, Bunky Hanks of Hampton, Bruce Lawrence of Greenwood, Neill Lindsey of Fayetteville, N. C., and Johnny Morrison of Concord, N. C.

Last year's squad, which placed third in the State meet, defeated Southern Conference teams Furman and Citadel on the way to a 9-7 record, the best in the school's history. These two teams appear again on the PC schedule, as well as South Carolina, Belmont Abbey, College of Charleston, Wofford and Mercer. PC will play in the State Meet at Hampton just after mid-season.

"If I had it to do over again, would I take Army R.O.T.C.?

My wife and I are in Panama at the moment. She likes it. You know, Officers' Club, dances—that sort of thing. I like it, too. But whether I stay in the Army or not, the question is: Would I take Army R.O.T.C. if I had it to do over again? Yes, I certainly would. In spades, I didn't realize how lucky I was. At the time I figured: Okay, so I'll get my degree—get an Army commission, too, and pick up some extra money along the way! I wasn't the leadership type, I thought. I was wrong. Boy, was I wrong! Looking back on it, I wouldn't trade the leadership training I got for anything! Take my word for it, leaders are made—not born! Whether I stay in the Army or not, nobody can take away what I've learned. And let's face it, where can anybody my age step out of college and walk into a standard of living this good? Look, if you have already invested two years in college ROTC, take it from me: Stick it out! It'll be one of the smartest things you ever did. I say so.'

The GREEKS

EDITED BY ALEX PATRICK

ALPHA SIGMA PHI

The Valentine's party at the fraternity suite on Feb. 14 was enjoyed by all brothers, pledges and their dates.

The pledges did an excellent job of decorating. Many thanks to R. L. Seiple's crew.

The new officers are gaining experience as plans are in the making for Military Ball Weekend.

KAPPA ALPHA

Final plans have been made for Military Ball Weekend and KA's annual Old South Ball. The Sabers will entertain Saturday afternoon of Military Ball. Old South will be held in Augusta, Georgia, March 13-14. The chapter wishes to commend Brothers White and Sheffield on their hard work as respective chairman and co-chairman of the Old South Committee.

Congratulations are in order to Brother Pat Brown upon his election as KA's I F C representative for next year.

SIGMA NU

The brothers and pledges of Sigma Nu are looking forward to the annual White Star Ball and the Military Ball at which they will have the Tams.

Sunday, the chapter observed their annual memorial service by going in a body to All Saints Episcopal Church.

PI KAPPA ALPHA

Mu chapter of Pi Kappa Alpha had a very successful party for their pledges this past weekend at the legion hut. The brothers who did such a fine job in making it a success were voted Brothers of the week along with the President of Mu Chapter, Aymar Manning.

Final plans for attending the District Convention in Charlotte this weekend were drawn up and many brothers planned to attend

Plans for the Military Ball Dance Weekend were discussed. The Pikes plan to have a party on that Friday night.

PI KAPPA PHI

The brothers and pledges of Beta Chapter would like to take this opportunity to congratulate the members of the Blue Key on their excellent annual issue of the "Blue Stocking.'

Brother John Dickerson, recently a member of the Army, visited with us on Tuesday. Brother Dickerson is planning to work for Consolidated Credit of Laurens, S. C. All the members of Beta were glad to see Brother Dickerson.

THETA CHI

Beta Psi Chapter is looking forward to Military Ball Weekend with parties both nights in the fraternity suite.

Brothers and pledges are anticipating Rebel Reunion to be held at the University of Alabama.

Congratulations to the basketball team for its splendid victory over the KA's.

also further indicates the relationship between the College and its main supporter, the Presbyterian Church, U. S.

Furthermore, both editors agree that there is an older and worthier tradition for the Old English style banner than there is for the "streamlined" style. The nameplate was in Old English letters until 1940, when it was changed to be in keeping with journalistic movements of the years immediately before World War II.

However, the "streamlined" style is used by few newspapers today, and most of them retain either the Old English or a Gothic block-letter style banner.

Few other physical changes have been made except for the different Greek column heading. Wells and Allison believed in making the change of Greek heads, that the Spartan, war-like spirit suggested by the new heading more nearly exemplifies the spirit of fraternity men on the PC campus than previous headings for the column.

Fine Arts Exhibit A Grand Success

by ALEX PATRICK

The second annual fine arts exhibit of the Presbyterian College Studio was opened to the public on Thursday, Feb. 19, and runs through tomorrow. The exhibit is located in the art studio above Dr. Edouard Patte's home at 301 South Adair and will be open until 10:00 tomorrow night.

The three rooms of the studio have modern and conservative paintings mixed, but the majority of the work is modern. The exhibit consists of classical oils, charcoal sketches, wood carvings, modern oils, and a bronze statue, all of which were done by members of the college community. The versatility of the artists is very pronounced, especially with the work of Neal Stanley.

"Awaking," by Edouard Patte, projects the feelings of a young girl who is entering adulthood. The girl's full torso is shown, and her hands are resting on the back of her head. She is wondering what life ahead will hold for her. Her head and shoulders are those of a little girl, but the rest of her body has matured. The confusion and frustration she is experiencing is reflected vividly by the mood of the painting.

Carl Freeman's "Rejection," a bronze figure depicting a man and his feeling of the meaninglessness of life, is the most interesting work of the show. The man's arms are drawing his legs into his chest, thus suggesting that he has drawn everything into himself after his desires have been rejected by the world. This creation is the most provocative work displayed.

A bold and daring abstract called "Dream," by Dexter Kessler, is also an interesting canvas. It depicts a man asleep, with his dream portrayed above his head. The man is obviously experiencing a dream of thunderous anguish.

Rising from a seeming wasteland and sky-rocketing upward is the city in Neal Stanley's "Untitled." The bright oranges and reds used to suggest the power associated with a large metropolis are paralleled by a bridge which spans the length of the painting.

Donna Nabors' "Still-life in the Dark" shows a wheel, a jar, and a pot that have been abandoned. The oil, done entirely in brown, is a good work employing very dark color.

A work by Mrs. Marshall Brown displays a Mexican peasant plodding to the market with a load of chickens. The man in "Chickens for Sale" is bracing himself against a stiff wind, which seems to be adding to his troubles in life.

The purpose of the exhibit is to increase interest in art on our campus. It also provides a mean by which the artists can show their work to the public. Through painting and other forms of art the individual is given a chance to express himself when words are inadequate.

The exhibit is a significant step forward in the art program here at P. C. Although none of the work is professional, it would be worth the time of every student to visit the show and examine the works for himself.

Tax Credit

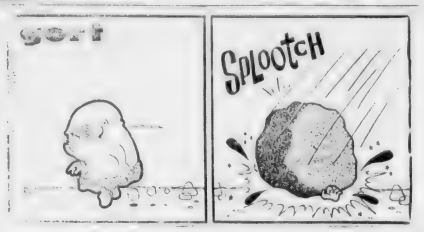
income families to send their children to college," is ignored by the original proposed tax credit.

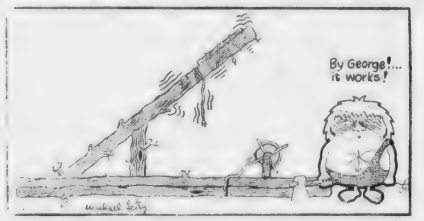
Mr. Keppel also pointed out that a tax credit might have the reverse effect of raising tuition, thus "making higher education even more unreachable for low-income families.

Sen. Ribicoff retorted that the bill was not designed as a substitute for any other form of aid to higher education, but was directed toward the "underprivileged middle class." According to Ribicoff, middle class students are not eligible for scholarship aid to the same extent that low-income students are, and yet they bear a financial burden in paying for higher education.

Opponents of the measure feel that direct aid through scholarships, loans and work-study were fairer ways of meeting the spiraling tuition costs of higher education.



The Ribicoff amendment, which would have allowed a tax credit of up to $750 a year for payment of tuiton, other fees, books and supplies, was delayed by a vote of 48-45. A second amendment, sponsored by Sen. Winston Prouty, R-Vt., would have allowed a comparable tax credit to working students. It was defeated by 47-47 vote.



"Stolen Hours" Casts Susan Hayward As Rich Playgirl

Filmed in the playgrounds of the international jet set, against a backdrop of the social whirls of England's Mayfair and the danger—death races at Monza, "Stolen Hours" opens Monday at the Broadway Theater and stars the lovely Academy Award Winner, Susan Hayward. "Stolen Hours" is the story of a promiscous woman's discovery of the gifts of real love.

Miss Hayward compares her role in "Stolen Hours" to that one in "I Want To Live" that won her an Oscar. Co-staring with her is English star Michael Craig and Diane Baker of America.

Don't miss "Stolen Hours," a portrait of a wealthy and capricious American palygirl who gradually discovers that she is suffering from an incurable disease. Laura Pember's story is simple and at times disgusting, yet it draws sympathy and pity from those who see and hear it.

Jean Weersing: New First Lady

by GARY CRAWFORD
FEATURE EDITOR

Occupying a position almost of grandeur among the scattered oaks of a familiar lawn, the home of the president of Presbyterian College is a stately structure. Yet for the average student it is a remote one, in that for the past few years it has been a part of the college seldom frequented by students.

Since Dr. Weersing's acceptance of the presidency of the college, however, the house has undergone a thorough renovation and is now almost completely furnished. Students who will witness in the near future a change in the social policies of this home will be delighted to discover its hostess as genial and as of much interest as that afforded by a tour of her home.

Many are disillusioned with the idea that the majority of preachers' wives are insipid and chubby, resulting primarily from an overdose of Sunday platitudes and fried chicken. Although Mrs. Weersing is no longer officially the wife of a pastor, she was only a short time ago; and, as I had recently the opportunity to discover, it would indeed be a cardinal error to categorize her acording to the popular notion aforesaid.

For the mother of two children, Marsha, a sophomore at Converse, and J. Barry, a student at Blue Ridge in Hendersonville, N. C., the transition from being the wife of a pastor to being the wife of a college president, not to mention the change of residence from Spartanburg to Clinton, incredibly enough, posed no insolvable problems. Because of her husband's affiliation with the church Mrs. Weersing was already acquainted with the college, its problems and its aims for the future.

While admitting in some instances Clinton's inadequacy as a shopping center, Mrs. Weersing commended its hospitality and asserted that, unlike many towns of its size, it was not plagued by a narrow outlook. It is interesting to note that some of Mrs. Weersing's sympathies are analogues to what many students would consider exclusively their own.

Predominant among them is an annoyance caused by the local trains, which, along with their engineers, conductors and passengers, have earned many a long-winded invective from students who were blocked while hurrying to or returning from a date. Withstanding this other problems, the family's assimilation within Clinton was facilitated by the general cooperation and beneficence of the community.

In addition to meeting the requirements of a demanding social curriculum, Mrs. Weersing devotes some of her time to the hobbies of reading, sewing and gardening. A former English major at Agnes Scott, Mrs. Weersing hopes to audit a course in philosophy in the future.

When asked to comment upon the change which will be effected by an increase in co-eds at P. C., Mrs. Weersing replied that due to the gradualness of the additions, no radical change will be noticeable; she did predict, however, that women would ultimately be added to the faculty.

At present Mrs. Weersing is anxiously awaiting the arrival of the furniture necessary for the completion of the furnishings of her home, at which time their home will be open on occasions for students and faculty drop-ins, at at this time other students will also discover that the home of the president is one in which they are justified in taking pride.

The Wysor Rifles Newest Organization On PC Campus

The Wysor Rifles have been organized at Presbyterian College to replace the Pershing Rifles Drill Team. This new organization is named in honor of Col. Robert E. Wysor who served for eight years as PMS of Presbyterian College. Col. Wysor was very active in many phases of college life and was among the faculty members responsible for bringing the Blue Key to this campus.

In his name, a saber is presented by Mrs. Robert E. Wysor to the senior who has been the best company commander. The Wysor family also awards a medal to the best drilled freshman member of the Corps of Cadets. Both Wysor awards are endowed.

The Wysor Rifles are composed of the freshmen, sophomore, and junior cadets who demonstrate outstanding proficiency in dismounted drill.

Capt. J. S. Maupin is serving as the Unit Advisor and Cadet Capt. Joe Prickett is the unit's comander.

THE CURSE OF THE CAMPUS: NO. 2

As was pointed out last week, one would think that with all the progress we have made in the education game, something might have been done by now about roommates. But no. The roommate picture has not brightened one bit since Ethan Goodpimple founded the first American college.

(Contrary to popular belief, Harvard was not the first. Mr. Goodpimple started his institution some 75 years earlier. And quite an institution it was, let me tell you! Mr. Goodpimple built schools of liberal arts, fine arts, dentistry, and tanning. He built a lacrosse stadium that seated 102,000. Everywhere on campus was emblazoned the stirring Latin motto CAVE MUSSI—"Watch out for moose." The student union contained a bowling alley, a clock, and a 16-chair barber shop.

...and as for shaving, they didn't

(It was this last feature—the barber shop—that, alas, brought Mr. Goodpimple's college to an early end. The student body, being drawn from the nearby countryside, was composed chiefly of Pequots and Iroquois who, alas, had no need of a barber shop. They braid their hair instead of cutting it, and as for shaving, they don't. The barber, Tremblatt Follicle by name, grew so depressed staring all the time at 16 empty chairs that one day his mind finally gave way. Seizing his vibrator, he ran outside and shook the entire campus till it crumbled to dust. This later became known as Pickett's Charge.)

But I digress. We were discussing ways for you and your roommate to stop hating each other. This is admittedly difficult but not impossible if you will both bend a bit, give a little.

I remember, for example, my own college days (Berlits, '08). My roommate was, I think you will allow, even less agreeable than most. He was a Tibetan named Ringading whose native customs, while indisputably colorful, were not entirely endearing. Mark you, I didn't mind so much the gong he struck on the hour or the string of firecrackers he set off on the half-hour. I didn't even mind his singeing chicken feathers every dusk and daybreak. What I did mind was that he singed them in my hat.

To be fair, he was not totally taken with some of my habits either—especially my hobby of collecting water. I had no jars at the time and just had to stack the water any-old-where.

Well sir, things grew steadily cooler between Ringading and me, and they might have gotten actually ugly had we not each happened to receive a package from home one day. Ringading opened his package, paused, smiled shyly at me, and offered me a gift.

"Thank you," I said. "What is it?"

"Yak butter," he said. "You put it in your hair. In Tibetan we call it gree see kidstuff."

"Well now, that's mighty friendly," I said and offered him a gift from my package. "Now you must have one of mine."

"Thank you," he said. "What is this called?"

"Marlboro Cigarettes," I said and held a match for him.

He puffed. "Wow!" he said. "This sure beats chicken feathers!"

"Or anything else you could name," I said, lighting my own Marlboro.

And as we sat together and enjoyed that fine flavorful Marlboro tobacco, that pure white Marlboro filter, a glow of good fellowship came over us—a serene conviction that no quarrels exist between men that will not yield to the warmth of honest good will. I am proud to say that Ringading and I remain friends to this day, and we exchange cards each Christmas and each Fourth of July, firecrackers.

Vol. XLII - No. 11 | Clinton, South Carolina, February 28, 1964 | Founded 1920

Annual Meeting Next Week Of PC Board Of Trustees

The annual meeting of the PC Board of Trustees will commence next week here on the campus. The twenty-eight man board is composed of ministers and laymen elected by the Synods of South Carolina and Georgia.

Heading the board is Robert Vance of Clinton. Dr. Eugene T. Wilson of Atlanta is vice-chairman and Ferdinand Jacobs, also of Clinton, is secretary.

On Monday the Board will meet in the Belk Auditorium meeting room in the form of committees for the purpose of proposing new legislative matters. The committees will be concerned with the financial, building, self-examination, instruction, and administrative aspects of the school.

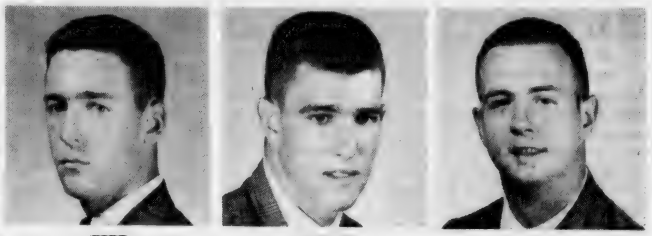
On Tuesday the Board will meet as a body and present actions to be voted on. A two-thirds majority vote is necesary to activate any legislative changes. Since PC as a whole is going through a period of self-examination, the Trustees also plan to examine themselves and this will be a major focal point of the session.

Special attention will be given to the fact that there is a $100 deficit per student each year that is not met by current tuition fees. This large amount is financed from endowment funds, and is a controlling factor in the size and number of scholarships granted.

The Board controls all the various financial budgets of the college, such as that of the dining hall. The ROTC program is also under Board supervision.

Dave Dunlap Holds State WF Position

New insights into the relevance of Christianity to current progress in a number of fields were sought by P. C. students who attended the state Westminster Fellowship conference this past weekend at Camp Longridge near Ridgeway.



The purpose of the WF conference was to explore the dialogue taking place in our time between theology and other disciplines of thought—philosophy, psychology, natural science and art—and to study our involvement in this dialogue on the acedemic campus.

Dr. W. Robert Martin, Jr., Director of Admissions and Scholarship of Union Theological Seminary, was the keynote speaker.

Following elections, past moderator Susan Snook of Winthrop stepped down to Anne Brown of Columbia College. Other newly elected officers include Dave Dunlap of Presbyterian, vice moderator; Ann Williams of Winthrop, secretary; Lilla Johnson of Winthrop, treasurer; Mary Kelbaugh, of U. S. C., editor; and Bob Richards of Clemson, ecumenical relations chairman.

Attending the conference from P. C. were Jim Stanford, Dave Dunlap, Melinda Gaines, Jim Ritchie, Earlie Rash, Raymond Summerlin, Eric Johnson, Bill Hanger, and Marion Boozer.

Mr. R. E. Fakkema, advisor to P. C.'s W. F. and to the state W. F. Council, helped plan the conference and led some of the recreation activities.

Cobb, Greene, Hagood Selected As Candidates For S. C. A. Head

Candidates for the office of President of the S C A were announced today by the officers and senior members of the Association. They are Ike Cobb of Decatur, Ga., Sandy Hagood from Easley, and Jack Greene of Spartanburg.

Elections will be held Wednesday, March 4th, in Douglas House between the hours of 9:00 A. M. and 2:00 P. M. and will be under the supervision of the Student Council.

The three candidates gave the Blue Stocking statements concerning their proposed policies and platforms.

Said Cobb, "I would like to thank the S C A cabinet and the other officers for the time and effort which they have given to the projects and activities of the organization in the past year.

'Our college is undergoing a period of transition. Changes are being made evident in almost every phase of campus life, and most of them have as their immediate end a goal higher than the goals attained in previous years.

'With this ideal in mind, I would like to cite specific goals which I envision for the forthcoming year for the S C A.

"Plans should be made now to secure outstanding men as speakers for next year's Religious Emphasis Week. Changes must be made in RE Week to make it more meaningful to all the students and faculty. Also, I would like to see the S C A undertake a project such as the sponsorship of a Korean war orphan for next year.

'Freshman orientation, the spring pcinic, and the fraternity sing should be carried out in the spirit of past tradition and should be given full cooperation from the student body.

"Most of all, I would like to see more participation from the student body in the activities of

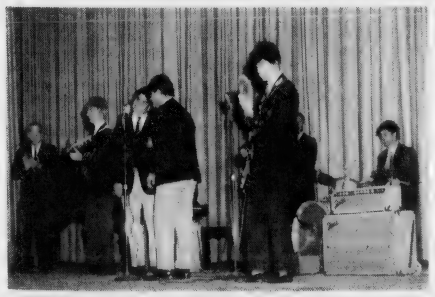
Brigadier General Likes, Sr. To Be Ball's Guest Of Honor

Military Ball, one of the social highlights of the semester, is scheduled for Friday, March 6, between 8:00 and 11:30 in Leroy Springs Gymnasium. Music for the affair will be provided by Norman Count's Orchestra.

The focal point of the evening will be the traditional saber arch in which senior cadets and their escorts will be presented. The Wysor Rifles will form the arch for this colorful event promptly at 9:30.



The guest of honor, Brigadier General Creighton E. Likes, Sr., will be presented with Scabbard and Blade Commander Creighton E. Likes, Jr., and President and Mrs. Marc Weersing at the door. All persons attending are asked to introduce themselves and their dates to General Likes in this purposely shortened reception line.

Several innovations are being introduced this year. Door prizes totaling $45 will be given away during the evening and the winners msut be present to claim the prizes. Another difference is that formal invitations will be sent to the dates of all cadets who attend.

Dress for the cadets will be Class A uniforms with white shirts. Their dates will wear either formal or cocktail dresses.

Commander Likes stated that the local unit of Scabbard and Blade "has worked very hard

Dean's List Dinner Set For April 24th

Academic Dean Joseph M. Gettys announced today the annual dinner for those attaining Dean's List will be held April 24th, 7:30 P. M. in the dining hall. Honors Day will be observed at chapel the morning of the 24th.

Guest speaker for the two programs is Dr. Bernard H. Boyd, chairman of the department of religion of the University of North Carolina. Dr. Boyd is an alumnus of and former professor at P. C. He is in great demand as a speaker and has been featured on several television progarms in Chapel Hill in recent years.

Inauguration Of President Scheduled For 5th of May

The inauguration committee appointed by Trustee chairman Robert M. Vance has announced that Dr. Marc C. Weersing will be inaugurated as 14th president of Presbyterian College in special ceremonies scheduled for May 5.

The committee is composed of these members: Dean Joseph M. Gettys, chairman; Dr. Delmar Rhame of Clinton, trustee and alumni representative; Dr. K. Nolan Carter, chemistry department chairman; Dr. Hollis Cate, acting chairman of the English department; Dr. Thomas Connelly, history department chairman; John S. Glover, acting chairman of romance languages; and Ben Hay Hammet, director of public relations.

PC students, alumni, and friends are extended a cordial invitation to attend the inauguration. This preliminary announcement will be followed by more detailed information.

Dr. Weersing assumed his duties as president last August 1, when he succeeded the retiring Dr. Marshall W. Brown. It is customary for the official inauguration ceremonies to follow months after a president has taken office.

Mr. Halsall Attends Conference in N. C.

Mr. Earl B. Halsall' PC's assistant professor of political science, is today attending a conference at North Carolina State College in Raleigh, N. C. He will meet with representatives of colleges in the Southeast on "bloc booking" of fine arts speakers. Their purpose is to ascertain whether further economics are possible in scheduling speakers.

On Saturday, Feb. 29, Mr. Halsall will attend a symposium on the "Soviet Impact on International Law School.

Well known authorities in the field will lead the discusions of this program, which serves as the annual conference of the Association of Student International Law Societies and the southeastern regional conference of the American Society of International Law" at Duke University.

Among those apearing on the program will be: representatives of the U. S. State Department; Commerce Secretary Luther B. Hodges; representatives from Harvard and Yale law schools; and Victor P. Karpov, first secretary of the Russian Embassy.

8 Granted Degrees After 1st Semester

Eight students completed degree requirements and became eligible for graduation at the end of first semester, the Registrar's Office announced Wednesday.

Four students completed requirements for the degree of B. S. in Business Administration. They are Roland Butler of Orlando, Fla., Charles Hopkins of Waycross, Ga., Fred Meyers of Hinsdale, Ill., and Mark Sullivan of Kershaw.

Milton Fulton of Walterboro and William Russell from Charlotte received B. A. degrees in economics. Fleda Chandler of Spartanburg received her B. A. in history, magna cum laude, and Thomas Morrison of Asheville, N. C., completed his B. A. in English.

In Hope Of Reform

SINCE THE CONCEPTION of this institution some eighty-four years ago the problem of a required chapel has long been a very real issue. In past decades student criticism has increased and, in the last decade, joined forces with a general disapproval among the faculty. Any chapel will show that this criticism will soon reach a climax. It is an immediate problem that must be answered now before we starve in the dearth that is now our chapel.

MANY OF US DISAGREE with the idea of required religious services and on very reasonable grounds. But let us face the facts that Davidson and Trinity now realize. We cannot expect a radical change because required chapels are an accepted dogma in church-supported schools.

THUS LET US TURN to an alternate course toward improvement of chapel, for to be unaware of the low state of chapel is to be totally unaware of its audience. The lack of student attention is clearly demonstrated three times a week by closed eyes, unfurled newspapers, open books, and contorted postures. In regard to the faculty and administration, empty seats are in themselves explanatory. When these seats are filled sleep is not always confined to the student body.

BUT WHAT CAN BE DONE about a mechanical and painful thrice-weekly experience? Many questions need to be asked, and we hope that a concerted effort will be made to answer them.

CAN STUDENTS BE motivated by sermons based on emotion and blind faith when they are taught to reason in courses of philosophy, psychology, modern theology, and other thought provoking fields?

IS RELIGION MADE "hum drum" by too great a concentration of the non-secular? Can more funds be allotted to outstanding lecture series?

THE BLUE STOCKING will present what we hope are constructive suggestions in our upcoming issues. These suggestions will be based on inquiry of a cross-section of the student body.

THIS AND FUTURE editorials are not intended to express discontent for sake of rebellion, but discontent in the earnest hope of improvement. We plead for a period of experimentation. We have everything to gain and nothing under the present circumstances to lose.

CHAPEL has been "hoist by its own petard" and at a time when P. C. faces a new era. This question must be met, and we stand ready.

Six Day Moratorium

To Relieve a dire situation that greets all students at the end of every semester, individual students, a few classes, and several professors are reviving a suggestion that was formerly heard often. The propoal is that we have no papers due or quizzes during the week (6 class days) prior to the beginning of exam week.

As it has done before, the Blue Stocking is supporting the proposal and hoping that this time a few more instructors will listen more attentively to it.

Reasons for the suggestion should be obvious. Instructors would have a chance to read papers, score quizzes and return results to students. It seems that professors, too, have been pushed during that last week.

Secondly, the student would have time to prepare and take his final quiz without working under the immediate tension of exams. Most students can't afford to let the preparation for the fourth quiz go and begin studying for finals

And the result is that he usually walks into the exam fortified with little or no sleep, some hastily gulped meals, and several eagerly swallowed pep pills. In other words, he's in a really great condition to wade through a comprehensive exam on the past four and a half months' work.

In the third place, the administration of late has seemed eager to raise the academic level of P. C. What better way than to give the student a chance to prepare for a detailed quarterly quiz, to rest and prepare in advance for exams. Whether he takes that chance is of no concern here; the point is that he should be allowed to have it.

The only objection heard so far, (and a weak one it is), is that this system would leave material unquizzed. The objection borders on the ridiculous because there wouldn't be that much material—4 or 5 lectures at the most. Furthermore, the student would have time to see the professor and clear up questions, and the professor would have time to answer these questions.

The administration does leave the assignment of fourth

NIH Blasts Hard-Drinking Alibi

Washington (CPS) — The National Institute of Health (NIH) last week shattered the college student's alibi that a hard-drinking, hard-loving campus life is needed to escape the pressure of studies.

If you're worth your salt, you'll wallow happily in academic crises and burden yourself with as many challenging situations as are available.

At least that is what the NIH's national institute of mental health reports.

The findings are all part of an NIH-sponsored study of how humans deal with stress.

Mental health investigators carefully screened through exhaustive interviews of 14 volunteers making the transition from high school to college life.

Researchers said the volunteers were "competent," with good academic backgrounds before starting their four-year stint on the college campus.

"Competent college students seek out the stimulation of challenging and potentially stressful situations and, in coping with them, actively explore the resources in their environment," the report said.

"Findings refute the prevailing belief that students strive merely for relief of tension," the report added.

To the students questioned, the report said, campus life was far from an ivy-walled rat race.

"The students all had successful academic records, close and meaningful interpersonal relationships and clear self-images as achievers," the investigators reported.

Part of the self-satisfaction came from home where their middle-class families placed high value on Junior's college life.

While researchers didn't call it parental rath, they did say "the social milieu was found to provide and reinforce techniques for the student's problems."

The report said, "most of the students developed new skills; they learned to size up a situation, budget their time wisely, and strive for attainable goals."

But the joy of the raccoon-coat life was not completely left behind, the report said. "Alternative means of gratification came through extra-curricular activities.

The successful students were given a big help from "friendships and heterosexual relationships."

The report said. "the ability to make and maintain friendships

Letter To The Editor

There are really some fine structures on the campus of Presbyterian College. Take for instance, that work of genius called a fire escape located on the north side of Neville. It is made up of a platform of wood, on top of four wooden poles with a wooden ladder tacked on to the side. And it is approximately two stories high. (Neville hall is three stories.) It's also located in a good place—out of the way.

Rock Rides Again; New Farce Comedy

For the first time in a career that includes 46 film roles and the position of being the number one male box office star in Hollywood, Rock Hudson has wrapped himself up in a farce comedy.

The comedy is "Man's Favorite Sport?", opening at the Broadway Theater Monday, March 2nd. Of course, comedy is no new experience to Rock. He has enjoyed tremendous box office success with such comedies as "Pillow Talk," "Come September," and "Lover Come Back." However, these films were sophisticated comedies. In "Man's Favorite Sport?" one finds slapstick comedy in which Rock falls into lakes, streams, gullies, and bedrooms.

The issuing of last semester's eligibility list began a new and brief spurt of rush as several fraternities began issuing bids. Even though the excitement of first semester pledging was absent, the questions of "Who got bids?" and "Which way do you think they will go?" were still present.

New Pi Kappa Phi pledges are Tommy McPhail, Leonard Campbell, and John Morrison. Those announced by Kappa Alpha are Alex Batton, Scooter Holcombe, Evan Pamplin, and Ricky Sjoholm.

Final plans are being formulated for Military Ball among the individual fraternities. With the exception of the PiKA's, who are having an informal party at the Legion Hut, the majority of the fraternities will hold parties in their suites after the Ball Friday night.

The KA's and Sigma Nu's wil hold afternoon parties on the Saturday after the Ball. The Tams will entertain the Sigs at the Musgrove as will the Sabers the KA's at Lake Greenwood.

All six fraternities plan parties for Saturday night. As a general rule attendance by non-members is primarily by invitation only except for the two afternoon parties.

The I F C has decided to hold elections earlier this year because of the new rush plans. Bill Gaston of Pi Kappa Alpha and Robert Banks of Theta Chi join the list of new I F C representatives.

The only fraternities having a brother lose his pin this week was Alpha Sigma Phi; Lewis Hay pinned Miss Ginny McCown, a sophomore at Coker College.

Theta Chi representatives will go to the University of Alabama on April 3-5 for the annual Rebel Reunion Regional Conference. The first part of April will see the Sigma Nu's annual White Star Ball also.

Those honored as "Brothers of the Week" are Bill Humphries of Alpha Sigma Phi and Kune, Miller and Todd of Pi Kappa Alpha.

Students Want To Limit Campus Positions--But How?

by GARY CRAWFORD

A couple of weeks ago the student council conducted a poll soliciting student opinion about the feasability of establishing a system to limit campus offices held by one student. An overwhelming majority of those voting indicated that they were in favor of such a system.

The circumstances inducing the council to consider the formulation of a point system are many, but may not be attributed solely to immediate problems. The possible advantages of a system would be twofold: It would afford more potential leaders an opportunity to hold campus offices and secondly, it would negate, as far as possible, any situation of a student's not being able to meet his academic commitments resulting from an excess of extra-curricular responsibility.

Every institution using such a system has made it adaptable to its own situation and thus the question arises — exactly what kind of system would be best for P. C.? Some systems provide that campus offices be categorized into major and minor offices and that no one student may hold more than one major

Injury May Be On The Level, But Doubtful

Nobody will ever trick me into paying five dollars to see Sonny Liston fight Cassius Clay for the heavyweight championship of the world!

Sure, there is a chance that all the acts in that three-ring circus just happened, but it was too much of a farce for me. To make matters worse, I lost 25 cents on the fight.

Whoever heard of a heavyweight champion of the world who wouldn't fight because his shoulder hurt? That's just not done. Carmen Basilio used to look like a raw hamburger patty in his fights, but he never gave up. It's just un-American for a sports champion to be a quitter.

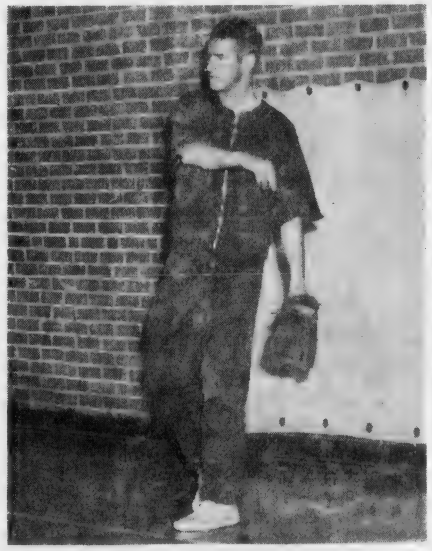
Strong Doubts Valid

Liston said he hurt his shoulder in the first round. But if it were so painful, why did he wait for the seventh round to throw in the towel? Doctors have already proved that he was injured, but what puzzles me is how he rocked Clay so convincingly twicice in later rounds. I wouldn't fight him if he didn't have any arms, but it seems strange for a champion to be afraid to come out of his corner.

The Louisville Lip

Now for the Louisville Lip. You have to give him credit for being a top-notch publicity agent, since every time he opened his mouth he was sucking money into his pot. An example of his original literature: "If Cassius says a cow can lay an egg, don't ask how—just grease the skillet." Nobody does what Clay did in that fight. He actually laughed at Liston and invited a premature funeral with his strategy. And that bit about Liston putting liniment on his gloves is ridiculous.

A Perfect Setup



Now let's take a look at the overall picture. It was a perfect setup. The newspapers built it up into a matter of concern to everyone. Even nice sweet, bedridden grandmothers wanted to see Liston pound Clay into a bloody pulp. For a brief period there in the seat of knowledge peanut butter and jelly sandwiches were forgotten as the big fight approached. For the first time since probably the founding of the school in 1880 the television sets were turned off.

The Rabbit Hunt

Then came the fight and the decision which is about as realistic as rain on drill day. I've seen better performances than that take place in the television room in Bailey Hall.

Suppose Liston would have slaughtered Clay, as he should have done. The result would have been a dead-end for boxing, since there would have been no one left for the ugly bear to fight. He couldn't fight Clay again any time soon, and I doubt if Patterson will ever come near him again. As Cassius said, "The Liston-Patterson fight wasn't a fight: that was a rabbit-hunt."

Clay is the new heavyweight champion of the world, but I'll still put my moncy on Liston when they meet again.

All-Star Basketball Team Named; Dates For Tournament Released

A starting team that averages just under 16 points per game per man and an outstanding bench are the qualifications for the 1964 Intramural All-Star basketball team. The 20-man squad was selected Thursday night after the final regular games.

The team, which will represent PC in the up-coming Invitational Tournament with Furman, Newberry and Erskine, is led by Leighton Grantham, Jackie Nix, Bill Tyson, Frank Markette, and James Salvo on the 1st team. Grantham is the only repeater on the 1st team from the All-Star squad of last year, and is scoring over 17 points per game. Nix, a fine outside shot, is hitting for 21 points per game and is leading the league in that category. Tyson, completing his fourth year as an outstanding I-M player, is scoring almost 12 points per game. James Salvo, also completing his fourth season of ball, is hitting for almost 13 per game, and Frank Markette, the only freshman on the first team, is scoring over 16 points per game. The average height of the first five is a shade over 6 feet even.

The other members of the select circle include Don Blanchard, Mike Donovan, Dodge Frederick, Bill Gillespie, Harold Holmes, Jim Johnson, Frank King, Grady Marshall, Gordan Mayhugh, Larry Preston, John Smith, Pat Surruth, Don Warlick, Bernard West, and Tommy Williams. The coach of the PC All-Stars is Bill "Adolph" Tallent, himself an outstanding basketball player for the PC varsity.

Because of a conflict in the schedule for use of the gym, it will be necessary to wait until March 16 to begin the round-robin, double elimination tournament to name the 1964 I-M champions. The Military Ball decorating committee will be in the gym all next week, the Invitational Tournament will be played the latter part of the following week, so the playoffs will begin later than usual.

The eight-team field for the I-M tournament is made up of the top four teams in each league. In the Red league the Pounders (6-1), the Sigma Nu's (6-1), the Alpha Sigs (5-2*) and the Wrecks (3-4) have earned the right to play in the event. In the Blue league the Pi Kappa Alphas (7-0), the Pi Kappa Phis (5-2), the KA's (4-3), and the Pi Kappa Alpha second team (4-3) will be in the playoffs.

PC Coach Gault Lists Ten Foes For '64 Football Team

A ten-game schedule for the 1964 Presbyterian College football team was released today by Cally Gault, head football coach and Athletic Director. Four home games are on tap for the Blue Hose.

The only major changes made in the schedule will be in the "place" and "time" elements. An afternoon homecoming is going to be observed this fall for the first time in several seasons.

The complete schedule is as follows:

Date	Opponent	Place	Time
Sept. 19	Frederick	Clinton	8:00
Sept. 26	Lenoir Rhyne	Hickory, N. C.	8:00
Oct. 3	Wofford	Spartanburg	8:00

Ruckus Over Tennis Courts Solved (?) By Compromise

by AL PEARCE

A joint communique issued this week by officials of the college and high school athletic departments proposed an apparent solution to the tennis court problem. The arrangement is hoped to alleviate the over-crowded conditions typical of the spring tennis playing.

A furor was raised last week when it was announced that the high school would use the college's courts for their "home" matches. Because the college varsity team will play only four matches away from Clinton this spring, and because the varsity must use most of the courts for their practice sessions, it was felt that the added inconvenience of giving up the courts for high school matches was unfair. The high school is still going to use the courts, but the way they explain it is supposed to soothe the tempers of the PC tennis fans. In a way, it should.

The way things are now scheduled to be aranged, the College varsity will use courts 1 through 3 for their practice matches. This was a foregone conclusion, and nothing was expected otherwise. Court number 6 will be reserved for the townspeople, including anyone from town who wants to play. Courts number 4 and and 5 will be reserved exclusively for the College students, faculty and administration. These will be on a first-come, first-served basis. It is set up so that a time limit will be put upon the singles and doubles matches played. The players waiting for a court will be then allowed to play for the same length of time.

It is planned that the high school team will continue to play their matches using our courts, but they will not be allowed to practice on them—that is unless the entire team wants to practice on number 6. The team will not have special priority to number 6 over any other "townsperson," but they will have priority to it over the college students.

Military Dep't. Announces Plans For Summer Camp

Plans were announced today by the Senior ROTC unit of Presbyterian College concerning the 6 week summer camp program for M-S III and IV cadets. The outing is a requirement for all advanced military students, and is supervised by CONARC.

The camp dates will be 14 June through 24 July, and it has been arranged through the Academic Dean that any student wishing to enroll in the second session of summer school will be allowed to report to school a few days late. This is in contrast to the "leave" extended by CONRAC last summer for students accepted at summer schools. In the arrangement last year the cadet would miss just under a week of camp, while arriving at school on time. This year the situation is reversed.

All cadets will receive travel pay from their home to Fort Bragg and return. The Army will calculate the distances from all cadets' homes to Fayetteville, and the standard "five cents per mile" will be issued. In addition to pay to and from camp will be $44.37 (less all applicable taxes) for the first 14 days at camp, and $66.56 (less all applicable taxes) for the period from 1 July until 24 July. The total summer camp will make the cadets $110.93 richer.

The special drill schedule for all M-S III and IV cadets is attempting to prepare the PC cadets for the camp experience. The practical exercises here are similar to those the cadets will face at Ft. Bragg, and Capt. Joe Maupin suggested that all cadets planning on summer camp would do well to get in top physical shape before they get to camp.

Eight PC cadets in the M-S IV section will be awarded commissions at the end of the six-week training period. They will be: Creighton Likes, Hugh Harris, Read Smartt, Tom Singleton, Brad Campbell, Harold Holmes, DuPont Smith, and Walter Burch office and a said number of minor offices.

Others limit the number of offices held by one student by assigning to the offices numbers which would be commensurate with the responsibility required of them, and that the number of offices held by one student be determined by his grade point ratio; for example, if the office of president of the student body were assigned as a two-point office and the office of SCA treasurer were a one-point office, anyone having a 2.5 overall grade point ratio could not simultaneously hold both offices.

One could imagine the problems presented by an attempt to design such a system for PC; namely, if the system were formulated according to major and minor offices, how can these be determined; could ROTC offices be included within such a system; and ultimately will a point system work at PC?

The council is at present wrestling with these and other pertinent problems in an attempt to arrive at a competent and workable solution and furthermore solicits any suggestions from the student body relevant to this matter.

appeared related to the ability to solve problems in other spheres.

"Friends assured the student of his self-worth, and acted as models of behavior, sounding boards and sources of support. The students' increasing confidence enabled them to overcome anxiety in meeting stiffer academic requirements of college."

One of the key reasons for the study was to help investigators find why some students can't cope with college life. The failures will be put under the microscope during the latter part of the continuing study.

When they compile the reasons for both success and failure, scientists hope to equate the ideal campus for all.

"Once the factors influencing the ability to cope are identified," the report said, "the environment can be modified so as to be most supportive to successful coping."

Making the report were Dr. George V. Coleho, adult psychiatry branch at the NIH; Dr. David Hamburg, Psychiatry Department at the Stanford Medical Center; and Elizabeth Murphey, of the Walter Reed Medical Center in Washington.

Chapel Services

The chapel schedule for the coming week is as follows:

Monday, March 2—Dr. Moorefield.

Wednesday, March 4—Rev. Neil Leach, First Presbyterian Church, York.

Firday, March 6—Block "P."

Lenten Services Feature Maxwell

All Saints Episcopal Church will present its fourth special preaching service of the Lenten Season on Wednesday evening, March 4, at 8:00.

This week, the sermon will be delivered by the Reverend George M. Maxwell, whose topic, "Patient Waiting," will be of interest to churchmen and laymen of all faiths.

Clinton Episcapalians are glad to welcome Rev. Maxwell back this year; he has formerly delivered sermons both in All Saints and at Presbyterian College.

The Wednesday evening worship service will be conducted by R. Michael Turner, Senior Warden of All Saints, and the evening lesson from Jeremiah will be read by John Glover, lay leader and mission committeeman.

All interested persons of this area are cordially invited to attend this service and the coffee hour immediately following the service. Trained care for young children will be provided in the Parish House adjoining the church.

quizzes to the discretion of the individual professor, but this article does not imply that the professors have intentionally set the status quo. Some of the faculty have in the past been very considerate in scheduling quizzes and papers ahead, and to these men go our thanks. However, in the freshman and sophomore survey courses, the situation is a close one most of the time.

Already in several of the history and philosophy courses this suggestion has been activated and the professors have moved paper deadlines up from the scholastic finale. The purpose of the article is to ask that the change be campus-wide so that all the students may at least be given the chance.

the S C A and in other campus-wide organizations.

"The purpose of the S C A is to aid in the development of Christian character and the molding of well-rounded personalities which will enable us to command the love and respect of others.

"To this end, I dedicate my time and effort."

According to Greene, "The work of the S C A on our campus this year has been excellent. Indeed, Hugh Harris and his associates are to be highly commended for their diligence.

"The S C A publications have shown vast improvement over past years. I would like to see continuation of this good work.

"As members of the S C A, we, the student body, are all to ignorant of its contributions to campus life. I would like to see more over-all student participation in its activities next year.

"Perhaps plans for broadening the scope of the organization's realm of activity may be entertained. In order to most efficiently do this, I will listen receptively to student opinion. For if we are to expect more student participation the student himself must have a voice in the planing and execution of all activities."

Hagood stated, "I would first like to commend Hugh Harris for the outstanding job he did this year as president of the S C A. It was a privilege to work under such a person and if elected, I hope to do as creditable a job.

"Because this is a Christian institution, I feel that the S C A should have more student participation. This could be accomplished by the organization being seen more on campus through various projects—such as service projects.

"Religious Emphasis Week is the largest function handled by the S C A. If elected president, I would try to make this week more interesting and beneficial by treating problems of a more pragmatic nature.

The S C A is in charge of one chapel a week. If elected, I shall endeavor to integrate in the S C A chapel programs more programs of a secular nature, particularly emphasizing student participation."

PC Trustees Adopt Record Budget, Approve Building Plans

Presbyterian College trustees Tuesday adopted a record budget for the next fiscal year, gave final approval to new building plans and named four persons to receive honorary degrees at the 1964 commencement exercises.

The governing board, in two-day session here for its regular March meeting, adopted the budget report designating $1,289,555.50 to cover operations for the 1964-65 fiscal year. It compares to a budget of $1,100,606 for the current year, with much of the increase earmarked for faculty salary adjustments.

Acting on its building committee report, the board decided to move forward immediately with construction of a new science building, dining hall and PC's first women's dormitory. Detailed plans of the architect are to be placed in the hands of contractors around April 1, and it is hoped a contract for the three buildings can be let by May 15.

The new structures, to be built simultaneously on a newly formed east plaza, are scheduled to be completed in time for the school year starting in September, 1965.

Four honorary doctor of divinity degrees will be awarded at the May 31 commencement exercises, according to another action of the Presbyterian College trustees. They will go to these ministers:

The Rev. James Edward Graham, PC alumnus who serves as pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church of Charleston; the Rev. David Lee Williamson, another PC alumnus who has been a missionary to Brazil for the past 36 years; the Rev. Benson Sloan, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Union and moderator-elect of the South Carolina Synod; and the Rev. George H. Smith, executive- secretary of church extension for Atlanta Presbytery.

Interview Schedule

The following representatives will be on campus for interviews with seniors seeking employment:

Deering-Milliken, March 9.

Wachovia Bank, Tuesday, March 10.

Trust Co. of Georgia, Wednesday, March 11.

U. S. Marine Corps Grad School of Laurel Bay, S. C., Friday, March 13, 2:30 P. M. (1 hour only).

The board also completed revision of the college by-laws as part of the general self-study now being made of all areas of the PC program, and approved an enabling act to provide certain charter changes after submission

Ike W. Cobb Elected New SCA President For '64-65

Ike Cobb in a closely contested election, was named president of the Student Christian Association over Jack Greene and Sandy Hagood.

After his election Cobb, a junior from Decatur, Ga., and member of Kappa Alpha order, stated, "I am honored to have been elected president of the SCA. I sincerely thank the student body for their support and confidence. I shall strive to fulfill the obligations of this office and to live up to the trust which has been placed in me.

"We have set high goals for the ensuing year and it is my hope that they will be attained through the efforts of the SCA Cabinet and the entire student body.

"Plans will be underway next week for R. E. Week and for projects which the S. C. A. will undertake."

Elections will be held Wednesday, March 11th, in the Douglas House between 9:00 and 2:00.

Said President Hugh Harris: "I wish to thank the members of the S. C. A. for work they have done for the activities undertaken this year. It certainly would not have been possible without the support given by the members of the cabinet.

"There were many problems that were not solved but progress was made and improvement is certainly possible. We feel that information and experiences gained this year will certainly be helpful to the incoming officers and cabinet members.

"Again I wish to thank the entire student body and the Cabinet for the cooperation they have given me this past year."

Nominations for the remaining offices were made by the cabinet and senior members of the S. C. A.

Running for Vice-President are Melinda Gaines, Sandy Hagood, and Jim Stanford.

Candidates for Treasurer are Jim Bankhead, Phil Olmert, and Dan Taylor; and for Secretary are Dave Dunlap, Nancy Harvey and Carroll Jones.

Chapel Services

The chapel schedule for the coming week is as follows:

Monday, March 3 — Rev. George M. Cooley, Member of the Board of World Missions, Nashville, Tenn.

Wednesday, March 5—Rev. Eugene Daniel, Member of the Board of World Missions, Nashville, Tenn.

Friday, March 7—Ministerial Club.

Case Of The Crafty Cross Remains Wrapped In Mystery

by DAVE PERRY

The sudden and equally mysterious appearance of a lighted cross in the unused organ chamber during last Wednesday's chapel service has been a source of discussion.

According to G. Edward Campbell, Business Manager of the College, the cross belongs to the Synod of South Carolina. It is used for the Friday night consecration service of their Leadership School held on this campus each summer.

Usually stored in the basement of Belk Auditorium, how the cross got into the organ chamber, and how it was suddenly lighted, is a mystery. Neither Dr. Weersing nor his staff knew anything about the incident and were as surprised as anyone else.

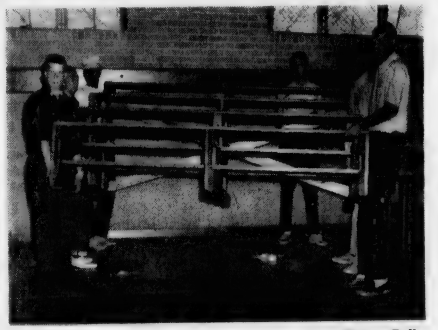
There hasn't been this much amused controversy, it is safe to assume, since that infamous night when the lights went out.

The Blue Stocking, eager as usual to serve the campus, offers this solution: The cross incident was arranged by a roving band of angry young evangelists, who hoped by this aid to the religious life of the college to secure lodging for the night.

Tau Phi Pi Meeting To Be Monday Night

The monthly meeting of the Tau Phi Pi Science Club will be held Monday, March 9 in Douglas House Meeting Room. The meeting is scheduled for 7:00. At this time officers for the coming year will be elected. New members will be given their certificates of membership.

At 7:30 the entire student body is cordially invited to join with the club in a unique program. Four of PC's outstanding professors will lead a panel discussion on the "Relationship of Science and Religion." Serving on this panel are Doctors Moorefield, Whitelaw, Stump, and Hay. Moderator will be Leon Bullard, president of the club.



Queens Students Act In Rights Movement

From THE QUEENS NEWSLETTER

A group of Queens students is planning to take part in a joint civil rights march Monday, March 2, with students from Davidson College and Johnson Smith University. Other colleges that may be represented are Livingstone College in Salisbury, Belmont Abbey, Catawba College, Barber-Scotia College in Concord, and Charlotte College.

The marchers will carry a petition supporting the pending Civil Rights Bill. They will follow a route from Johnson C. Smith University to the main post office on Trade Street in Charlotte. Copies of the petition are now being circulated on the campuses of the participating colleges, including Queens. At the end of the march they will be mailed to President Lyndon Johnson, asking him to support the bill "with every constitutional and personal power" at his disposal.

Any student wishing to sign petition or participate in the march may put a note in Box 2, campus mail.

Weekend Festivities Begin Tonight With Ball In Gym

The annual Military Ball is slated for tonight at 8:30 in Leroy Springs Gymnasium. Scheduled to play for the event is the Norman Count Orchestra.

The formal dance will begin at 8:30 with a receiving line. Those receiving are Brigadier General Creighton E. Likes, Sr., guest of honor, Scabbard and Blade Commander Creighton E. Likes, Jr., and President and Mrs. Marc C. Weersing.

A clock radio, a $10 gift certificate and two steak dinners for two are being offered as door prizes. Students are reminded that winners must be present to claim their prizes.

The highlight of the evening's festivities will be the annual saber arch. The Wysor Rifles will form the arch to present senior cadets and their sponsors.

Change In Holidays

Academic Dean Joseph Gettys has announced a change in the Easter holiday schedule.

Easter holidays will begin at 1:00 p. m., Thursday, March 26, instead of 6:00 p. m. as stated in the college catalog and the student calendar. The change will cancel the drill scheduled for that Thursday.

Peace Corps Tests

The Peace Corps has announced that placement tests will be given March 14. Those interested can take the tests at the following locations: in Columbia at the Main Post Office; in Spartanburg, Main Post Office; Greenville, Room 220, Main Post Office, 600 West Washington Street; and in Greenwood, Room 25, Federal Building.

Jean Weersing: New First Lady

by GARY CRAWFORD
FEATURE EDITOR

Occupying a position almost of grandeur among the scattered oaks of a familiar lawn, the home of the president of Presbyterian College is a stately structure. Yet for the average student it is a remote one, in that for the past few years it has been a part of the college seldom frequented by students.

Since Dr. Weersing's acceptance of the presidency of the college, however, the house has undergone a thorough renovation and is now almost completely furnished. Students who will witness in the near future a change in the social policies of this home will be delighted to discover its hostess as genial and as of much interest as that afforded by a tour of her home.

Many are disillusioned with the idea that the majority of preachers' wives are insipid and chubby, resulting primarily from an overdose of Sunday platitudes and fried chicken. Although Mrs. Weersing is no longer officially the wife of a pastor, she was only a short time ago; and, as I had recently the opportunity to discover, it would indeed be a cardinal error to categorize her acording to the popular notion aforesaid.

For the mother of two children, Marsha, a sophomore at Converse, and J. Barry, a student at Blue Ridge in Hendersonville, N. C., the transition from being the wife of a pastor to being the wife of a college president, not to mention the change of residence from Spartanburg to Clinton, incredibly enough, posed no insolvable problems. Because of her husband's affiliation with the church Mrs. Weersing was already acquainted with the college, its problems and its aims for the future.

While admitting in some instances Clinton's inadequacy as a shopping center, Mrs. Weersing commended its hospitality and asserted that, unlike many towns of its size, it was not plagued by a narrow outlook. It is interesting to note that some of Mrs. Weersing's sympathies are analogues to what many students would consider exclusively their own.

Predominant among them is an annoyance caused by the local trains, which, along with their engineers, conductors and passengers, have earned many a long-winded invective from students who were blocked while hurrying to or returning from a date. Withstanding this other problems, the family's assimilation within Clinton was facilitated by the general cooperation and beneficence of the community.

In addition to meeting the requirements of a demanding social curriculum, Mrs. Weersing devotes some of her time to the hobbies of reading, sewing and gardening. A former English major at Agnes Scott, Mrs. Weersing hopes to audit a course in philosophy in the future.

When asked to comment upon the change which will be effected by an increase in co-eds at P. C., Mrs. Weersing replied that due to the gradualness of the additions, no radical change will be noticeable; she did predict, however, that women would ultimately be added to the faculty.

At present Mrs. Weersing is anxiously awaiting the arrival of the furniture necessary for the completion of the furnishings of her home, at which time their home will be open on occasions for students and faculty drop-ins, at at this time other students will also discover that the home of the president is one in which they are justified in taking pride.

The Wysor Rifles Newest Organization On PC Campus

The Wysor Rifles have been organized at Presbyterian College to replace the Pershing Rifles Drill Team. This new organization is named in honor of Col. Robert E. Wysor who served for eight years as PMS of Presbyterian College. Col. Wysor was very active in many phases of college life and was among the faculty members responsible for bringing the Blue Key to this campus.

In his name, a saber is presented by Mrs. Robert E. Wysor to the senior who has been the best company commander. The Wysor family also awards a medal to the best drilled freshman member of the Corps of Cadets. Both Wysor awards are endowed.

The Wysor Rifles are composed of the freshmen, sophomore, and junior cadets who demonstrate outstanding proficiency in dismounted drill.

Capt. J. S. Maupin is serving as the Unit Advisor and Cadet Capt. Joe Prickett is the unit's comander.

The CHRONICLE

On Campus with Max Shulman

(Author of "I Was a Teen-age Dwarf", "The Many Loves of Dobie Gillis", etc.)

THE CURSE OF THE CAMPUS: NO. 2

As was pointed out last week, one would think that with all the progress we have made in the education game, something might have been done by now about roommates. But no. The roommate picture has not brightened one bit since Ethan Goodpimple founded the first American college.

(Contrary to popular belief, Harvard was not the first. Mr. Goodpimple started his institution some 75 years earlier. And quite an institution it was, let me tell you! Mr. Goodpimple built schools of liberal arts, fine arts, dentistry, and tanning. He built a lacrosse stadium that seated 102,000. Everywhere on campus was emblazoned the stirring Latin motto CAVE MUSS!—"Watch out for moose." The student union contained a bowling alley, a clock, and a 16-chair barber shop.

...and as for shaving, they didn't

(It was this last feature—the barber shop—that, alas, brought Mr. Goodpimple's college to an early end. The student body, being drawn from the nearby countryside, was composed chiefly of Pequots and Iroquois who, alas, had no need of a barber shop. They braid their hair instead of cutting it, and as for shaving, they don't. The barber, Tremblatt Follicle by name, grew so depressed staring all the time at 16 empty chairs that one day his mind finally gave way. Seizing his vibrator, he ran outside and shook the entire campus till it crumbled to dust. This later became known as Pickett's Charge.)

But I digress. We were discussing ways for you and your roommate to stop hating each other. This is admittedly difficult but not impossible if you will both bend a bit, give a little.

I remember, for example, my own college days (Berlitz, '08). My roommate was, I think you will allow, even less agreeable than most. He was a Tibetan named Ringading whose native customs, while indisputably colorful, were not entirely endearing. Mark you, I didn't mind so much the gong he struck on the hour or the string of firecrackers he set off on the half-hour. I didn't even mind his singeing chicken feathers every dusk and daybreak. What I did mind was that he singed them in my hat.

To be fair, he was not totally taken with some of my habits either—especially my hobby of collecting water. I had no jars at the time and just had to stack the water any-old-where.

Well sir, things grew steadily cooler between Ringading and me, and they might have gotten actually ugly had we not each happened to receive a package from home one day. Ringading opened his package, paused, smiled shyly at me, and offered me a gift.

"Thank you," I said. "What is it?"

"Yak butter," he said. "You put it in your hair. In Tibetan we call it gree see kidstuff."

"Well now, that's mighty friendly," I said and offered him a gift from my package. "Now you must have one of mine."

"Thank you," he said. "What is this called?"

"Marlboro Cigarettes," I said and held a match for him.

He puffed. "Wow!" he said. "This sure beats chicken feathers!"

"Or anything else you could name," I said, lighting my own Marlboro.

And as we sat together and enjoyed that fine flavorful Marlboro tobacco, that pure white Marlboro filter, a glow of good fellowship came over us—a serene conviction that no quarrels exist between men that will not yield to the warmth of honest good will. I am proud to say that Ringading and I remain friends to this day, and we exchange cards each Christmas and each Fourth of July, firecrackers.

Wherever you or your roommate may be—on any campuses in any city, town, or hamlet in any state of the Union—you will find Marlboros at your favorite tobacco counter—soft pack or flip top box.

Is The Price Too High?

THERE IS LITTLE tangible evidence but the general mood of things in Washington seems to suggest a relatively easy passage of the strong civil rights bill by the Senate.

To be sure, Southern Senators still are promising their constituents that they will invoke all their powers of filibuster in a last-ditch effort to block the bill. But their statements seem to have a somewhat hopeless ring.

MANY OBSERVERS FEEL that this time, even before the fight has begun, the Southerners realize that opinion and politics are weighted too heavily against the chance for any sort of dramatic success for them.

And the only compromise that Southern Senators could accept, in all good faith to their people, would be total defeat of the measure. The bill has too many sharp fangs for the South to pull all of them.

SO IT IS EVIDENT that Senators will face great pressure when they begin debate on the legislation, as Republican Senator Everett Dirksen already has for his softening opposition to certain sections of the bill.

It is clear that the civil rights groups have superior resources and talent to use in the Senate battle. Their victory in the House several weeks ago came only after some of the most intensive lobbying ever seen in Washington.

NOW THAT THESE GROUPS of lobbyists, united under the name of the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights, have behind them their experience with members of the House, their system will probably work even more smoothly in the Senate.

And Majority Leader Mike Mansfield has assembled a fearful team to lead the fight on the Senate floor. It includes Majority Whip Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, Joseph Clark of Pennsylvania, Warren G. Magnuson of Washington, and Phili Hart of Michigan.

ALL OF THESE FACTS seem to point to one conclusion: the bill is essential to President Johnson and his party, especially with November so near at hand, and the Democrats intend to push the bill through as rapidly as possible.

Some Democrats will pause, however, when they realize that a significant and dangerous precedent will be set if an all-or-nothing bill is passd under threat.

ONCE THE PROCESS of deliberation falls to force and intimidation, the nation will have lost the orderly means to reconcile genuine differences. And then how will people of different backgrounds, beliefs, and ambitions be able to live together harmoniously?

—WALTER WELLS

For Better Speakers...

THE CHAPEL PROBLEM was discussed in its own home ground by Dr. Moorefield Monday, and we congratulate him on his fair evaluation. The Blue Stocking hopes that we too may contribute constructively in the same responsible manner. This week we discuss our Wednesday worship service.

THE BASIC OBJECTIONS to our formal worship services concern the quality of our guest ministers. In the past years we have had good speakers, but they were the exceptions. We have between fifteen and eighteen worship services in a semester, and it would seem that quality control could be easily exercised.

WHAT KIND OF SPEAKER do we want? Obviously it would be impossible to choose a speaker who would suit all, but we present here what we believe is a good cross-section opinion.

THE PRIMARY QUALIFICATION of a speaker must be his ability to motivate the student. This year we have a faculty that teaches an analytic and intelligent approach to their subjects. The ability to discern and disallow, to absorb and assimilate as it is applied to our courses must also be applied to religion.

WE CANNOT BE MOVED by Sunday sermons that are not related to the student. Loud voices and "hell fire" do not move us but merely repulse us. Pointed fingers are for farm boys caught with their pants down behind the hay stacks, not college students.

ON THE WHOLE we are not fundamentalists, and we don't particularly care for analogies about dogs and cats.

IF OUR WORSHIP SERVICES are to be meaningful to the students, and we believe this is the goal, then we must acquire speakers who have the ability to motivate us. We would like to hear such men as Jimmy Stewart, Hugh Eichelberger, William Klein, Lucius DuBose, Neely McCarter, and the many other men of their caliber. A minister from Spartanburg, Marc Weersing, made a big hit two years ago.

IT IS POSSIBLE that we have acquired guest ministers to generate interest in this institution. However, we cannot expect to gain their support if they are presented our typical chapel audience, nor can we expect to interest the student when he is confronted with a poor chapel speaker.

GIVE US GOOD SPEAKERS as a rule, not an exception, and we shall give them an appreciative audience.

—BOB ALLISON

Expression: Essence of Freedom

by RAYMOND SUMMERLIN

We say that America is the land of freedom, a country where individual expression is permitted to the fullest, where newspapers pride themselves on their "right" to print any and all views they see fit to express, but is this really true?

Russia is characterized as the country where newspapers, radios and even the artists give the government slant to every form of communication or expression.

We have come through the public schools with the thought drilled in us that America was built by leaders who wore halos. Thank God, we are told, that we are not forced to live "in that awful country of Russia' under Communistic suppression.

This country is also tolerant of anyone's religious views; for after all, wasn't the attempt to escape religious persecution one of the main reasons this country was settled?

This is what we have been told, but what are the conditions that exist? Would we at P. C. actually allow an atheist to explain his beliefs? The cry would go up, much as it did when one came to Davidson, that he was destroying the faith. What faith? Isn't belief in God something the individual decides for himself? If this is true (and we are told it is), then it would seem that we have the choice of accepting God or not, that is, becoming an atheist if this appears the right choice.

Actually, we let people have freedom only as long as they agree with our way of thinking, or at least don't vary too much from it. The prevailing attitude is that a person can promote communism just as long as he stays in Russia and does not come to influence people in this free land.

The NAACP and other such groups talk about "freeing the colored man from his chains of yesteryear." They forget that the Indians, Cubans, Mexicans and Puerto Ricans have the same claim to these rights that they are so loud in saying the Negro should have. Why is the Indian left out of any of the NAACP's actions?

Again we hear the VFW and the Foreign Legion saying in loud voices that some of their members have died for the cause of freedom. They are also in the

Letter To The Editor

Dear Sirs:

In regard to the recently revived turmoil over present practices concerning chapel, it seems to this author that everyone, students, faculty, and administration alike, can see certain disadvantages. On the other hand, very few can see reasons for its necessity. The most obvious one, of course, is that, since P. C. is a Christian College, we must have chapel. There is no need to discuss here just how chapel is defeating its own purpose: a great deal has been said already. But my point is this: there should be more qualifications to the title of "Christian College" than a mere thrice-weekly chapel service. The catalogue states that PC'uns are taught that "Every vocation can be a means of Christian Service," that "Any field needs Christian direction if it is to reach its full capacity." This writer, for one, has observed very little evidence of such instruction. The only religious feature on this campus which reaches the entire student body, other than actual academic subject matter, is—you guessed it—CHAPEL! Would you, dear reader, say there is hypocrisy afoot? Or would you merely come out and say in all honesty that the catalogue states a lie?

Then, one asks, if the religious life is dead here, why don't we just admit it and try to correct the situation. It's simple, say some people. We would lose the financial support of the Presbyterian Church. It seems then that we have chapel simply for money's sake. At the risk of being idealistic, I close by referring to the passage in the twenty-first chapter of Matthew in which Our Lord drove the money changers out of the temple in Jerusalem.

Grant And Hepburn Make 'Charade' Tops

by CHARLIE JORDAN

It's more apparent than ever that there are no limits to the entertainment heights that can be reached on the screen by Cary Grant. Just as everyone was sure that he had achieved the ultimate in "That Touch of Mink," Cary makes "Charade," which tops anything that he has done before.

In "Charade" one finds Cary Grant at his best, Audrey Hepburn at her finest, and story-telling in its most perfect form.

From its opening shots at the smart ski resort at Megeve in the Swiss Alps to its sophisticated night life in Paris, "Charade" is a cinematic charmer, a suave story that is full of witty dialogue and smooth love making.

Step by step through famous Paris one stumbles over mysterious bodies, meets hard-boiled hoods, dines and wines with two utterly intriguing people in love in a game that defies solution until the very last scene.

Peter Pan Peanut Butter- The Holy Savior of Judd

by JIM STEWART

"Praise the Lord and pass the Peter Pan," while not the most religious or serious of all graces, has been heard frequently as the crowds of students settle for their thrice-daily repast at Judd Dining Hall.

Before the producers of this popular dish try to exhort testimonials as to why their creamy smooth peanut butter is preferred to the unlimited variety of Southern cuisine at Presbyterian College, an unbiased survey may prove interesting.

If a student were asked what his favorite dish happened to be, and a quick reply of "roast beef and potatoes" was heard, it would be advisable for the Peter Pan people to slip by without questioning him because this is surely a happy and a satisfied man. This student would never be able to testify his love of peanut butter because at least five times a week he gleefully sits down and blesses his beloved menu with ardor and sincerity.

Another testimonial given special dishes by several students has been, "I've never tasted anything like it!" A few of the specialties praised above are ham loaf, amazingly tasteless chicken pot pie, tangy barbecue sandwiches and wonderful combinations such as hot dogs, English peas with onions and broiled carrots. Really, the imagination necessary to prepare such meals must be praised.

After these praises have been heard and the multitudes of satisfied diners have been weeded out, the small number of unhappy consumers would be perfectly eager to praise the quality

Gault Sees Hope As Spring Grid Work Is Done

Coach Cally Gault is the kind of man who doesn't mind showing his enthusiasm and satisfaction over a job well done. Conversely, he's not the type to keep pent up inside the displeasure and annoyance at a poorly done job. After the rugged scrimmage of his Presbyterian College football team on Tuesday afternoon under a warm sun he couldn't possibly hide his satisfaction. This, indeed, had been a job well done.

Optimism And Uncertainty

Almost a hundred appreciative students came out to Walter Johnson Field at 2:00 to see the Blue Hose hold a most unusual and different type of practice. What they saw was cause for great optimism on the one hand, and reserved uncertainty on the other. The "fans" were quick to see flaws in the line play, and were almost as quick to see the potential in the backfield. The men who saw it best were pleased.

More Than Our Share

Just as the look on the face of Cally Gault after the practice scrimmage revealed his satisfaction with the afternoon's work, so his voice gave away his enthusiasm for the coming season and the remainder of the spring practice. "If attitude and enthusiasm can win ball games then we'll win more than our share this fall," commented Gault. "We think we're a better ball club than last year's, and we're going to go out and prove it. The staff and the boys are looking forward to the season," he concluded.

Frosh Linemen Needed

There was an obvious lack of depth at the tackle and interior line positions Tuesday. There were boys at tackle who had never played that position before the scrimmage, and there were boys at guard and center who had never played any interior line before. But the boys had done the best they could, and that was all the staff asked of them. It's never been a secret that the interior line is lacking in depth. The staff commented that the rising seniors have done a fine job in plugging many of the holes left in the line. The major need now is to find freshmen linemen who can help the team from the first game right on through to the conclusion of the 1964 10-game schedule.

Backfield Looks Good

If the line presents a problem, the backfield may be the equalizer. With three lettermen quarterbacks out, three lettermen fullbacks out, and five lettermen halbacks out, the backfield looked as good as it ever had at this stage of the practice schedule. If the line can open some holes the backfield is more than capable of using them. Then all the line has to do is to plug up some holes and the season'll be a good one.

Second PC Invitational Tourney Slated Here For March 11 and 12

Elaborate plans were released today by Gordon Warden of Presbyterian College concerning the 2nd annual Presbyterian College Invitational Basketball Tournament to be played at LeRoy Springs Gymnasium on March 11 and 12. The tournament will have host team PC entertaining All-Star teams from Furman University, Erskine College, and Newberry College.

Erskine, the defending champions, will face Newberry at 7:30 on Wednesday night, the 11th to open the first round play. At 9:00 host team Presbyterian will take on Furman in the feature game of the evening. On Thursday night, the 12th, the losers in the first round play will meet at 7:30 for consolation honors, and the winners will battle it out at 9:00 for the Tournament's championship. Last year it was Erskine over PC in the finals and Newberry over Furman for third place.

PC will be represented by its All-Star team, which was selected at the close of the final league game last week. The squad, which averages 17 points per man per game is led on the starting team by Jackie Nix, Leighton Grantham, Frank Markette, James Salvo and Bill Tyson. The other members of the squad are Don Blanchard, Mike Donovan, Dodge Frederick, Bill Gillespie, Harold Holmes, Jim Johnson, Frank King, Grady Marshall, Gordan Mayhugh, Larry Preston, John Smith, Pat Sudduth, Don Warlick, Bernard West, and Tommy Williams. Bill "Adolph" Tallent is the coach of the All-Stars.

Music, which proved to be a highlight of the event last March, will again be presented before each game and at half time of each game. The well known "Playboys" of PC will entertain both nights, and some of the "most ugliest and unusual cheerleaders in the world" will be there. This same arrangement last year proved to be a great success, and this year it is expected that the tournament will be even better.

All fans at the game will become eligible for a $25 door prize to be given away at the end of the final game on Thursday night. Ticket stubs will be retained, and several lucky numbers will be drawn. The winner must be present to win.

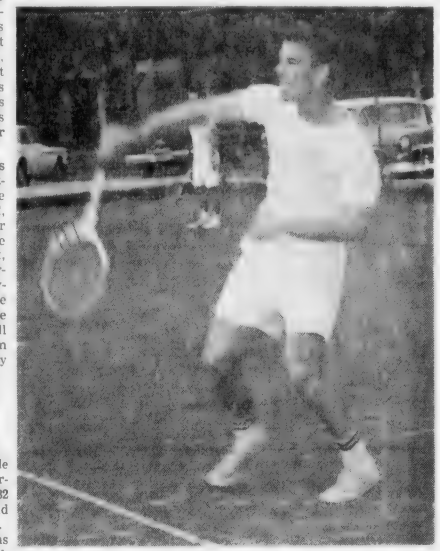
An All-Tournament team will be selected by the press, the officials and the Tournament Director. Large trophies will be presented to the teams in the tournament, and individual tokens will be given each player.

Spring Sports Has 58 Events On Tap

The PC spring sports schedule released this week seems tailor-made for Blue Hose fans, with 32 events in track, tennis, golf and baseball slated here at Clinton.

This spring's schedule opens March 13 with a tennis match against Pennsylvania here, and includes a total of 58 meetings in the four sports. Fourteen of the first 15 contests will be held on PC's home grounds.

This year's teams face a rough challenge in trying to better last spring's 37-20 overall record, and they face a rugged lineup of foes representing the Southern, Atlantic Coast, Southeastern, and Big Ten Conferences, plus an assortment of independents and Ivy Leaguers.



The overall schedule includes 19 tennis matches, 17 baseball games, 13 golf tilts and 5 dual track meets. Tennis will again be the top attraction, with 15 matches and the state tournament to be held here.

Furman and Wofford appear on the PC spring slate more than any other teams, each with six battles again the Hose. As for conference foes, the Southern Conference is tops with 15 events on Presbyterian's schedule

Other schools PC will face during the upcoming season are listed below:

South Carolina, Clemson, College of Charleston, Newberry, Erskine, Pennsylvania, Grove City (Pa.), Tusculum, Indiana, Williams, Alabama, Harvard, VMI, Belmont Abbey, Georgia, Davidson, Mercer, Augusta, Emory, Lenoir Rhyne, Florida State, Duke and Miami.

Side Comments

P. C. Enviroment One of Negligence

South Carolina schools may be improving their standards but many lesser known factors overshadow reforms. Any student would promptly admit that PC is getting rough academically but what about her surroundings?

South Carolina is flatly the 50th state of the union in education and this position offers no help for private institutions in the state, like ours, hoping to become top-notch. Such backward states as Alaska, Maine, and Hawaii make our glamorous Land of Palmettos look educationally sick.

The status is not attributed to a lack of schools, but to negligence of state legislators. As for schools, South Carolina has such fine small institutions as PC, Lander, Coker, Limestone, Wofford, Erskine and Columbia. For large schools we have U. S. C., Clemson, Furman, and Winthrop. The Citadel is the state's military institution. Newberry exists also but without accreditation. And there is also a medical college in Charleston.

What have our legislators done? Very little. First, the House is expected to reject the Senate-passed budget bill which seeks a higher pay increase for teachers. Second, Senate represenatatives protested a budget item of $75,000 to open an educational television channel for the center of the state.

It is the second item that clearly shows why we are an also-ran in the field of education. The Senate voted 20 to 10 to table the amendment cutting out the $75,000 item.

Senator J. Ralph Gasque of Marion told the Senate, "Now gentlemen, I think we ought to include ping pong on our television, and we'll get better audiences than we will for Shakespeare."

Other anti-Shakespeareans were Senators Roger Scott of Dillon, Edward M. Lepard of Chesterfield, John Long of Union, George W. McHown of Cherokee, and King Dixon of Laurens.

A large per cent of our student body migrates to South Carolina from Georgia for an education. If such narrow-mindedness in state government toward education persists, they would do well to stay home and learn. After all, Georgia is above this state education-wise, nationally.

Shakespeare would have summed up the situation with a line from his Titus Andronicus. "These words are razors to my wounded heart."

Expression and Freedom

forefront when it comes to suppressing textbooks that are "Communistic."

The fear of the "John Birchers" is that Communistic expansion some day will destroy our freedom. What we actually are afraid of is that the people will choose this way of life if given the choice and we cannot afford to give them this opportunity. Therefore we suppress any ideas we disagree with because the people might accept them much as Russia does, although perhaps not to the same extreme.

Religious freedom, before the Supreme Court ruling, meant freedom as long as you accepted some religion, preferably that of the majority, Protestanism. What religious freedom does not mean is freedom from religion as it ought to.

Perhaps one's faith would be a vital element in his life if he were given a choice, instead of being told beforehand what to believe. We might be more active in the church if we were given the chance to decide for ourselves instead of being forced to accept what those before us have promoted as right.

Freedom, then, means allowing all sides to express themselves, letting opposing stands be given and then permitting the listener to make up his mind. To permit one to express himself even though we may disagree with his thoughts is the essence of freedom.

to the controlling Synods of Georgia and South Carolina.

Among other actions of the trustees during this meeting, they authorized renovation work on Smythe Dormitory to be done during the summer months., gave official approval for PC to apply for membership in the Carolinas Conference, heard reports from administrative officers, and re-elected these officers of the board: Robert M. Vance of Clinton, chairman; the Rev. Eugene T. Wilson of Atlanta, vice-chairman; and J. F. Jacobs, Sr., of Clinton, secretary.

Student Questionnaire

Today in chapel students received a questionnaire concerning student opinion on various aspects of the college.

Members of the self study commtitees request that students thoughtfully and seriously complete the forms and return them to the several designated places on campus.

The GREEKS

by ALEX PATRICK

With the roll of drums, the mixing of Brasso and Coke, and the clash of sabers the fraternities begin their march into the Military Ball Weekend. Until the dawn's early light Jacobs' Hill will undoubtedly see a great deal of field action.

As was announced last week, the only fraternity not having a party in their suite after the dance is Pi Kappa Alpha. Instead, they will go to the Legion Hut for a record party.

Saturday afternoon the Sigs will be at the Mary Musgrove with the Tams providing the music. KA's will be at their house, where the Sabers will play. PiKapps will go to Peck's Ranch Saturday night, and the PiKA's will be at the Legion Hut again for the entertainment of the Play Boys. The Alpha Sigs will go to the Laurens Country Club with the Joy Jumpers playing for them. Theta Chi's Sigma Nu's, and KA's will party in their fraternity suites.

With the exception of the A S P's, attendance to the parties by non-members is by invitation only.

Voted into brotherhood and to be initiated in the near future are for Sigma Nu, Howdy Letzring and Doug Allen, and for Kappa Alpha, Peyton Carter and Mike Lowrance.

New Pi Kappa Alpha pledges are Mike Donovan, James Smith, Kit Regnery, Jim Helms, and John Monk. Theta Chi announces that Gene Bowie was initiated as a new pledge.

Two frats reported the election of officers for the coming year. Gary Crawford will lead the PiKA's, with Sandy Hagood as vice-president, Tommy Hearon, secretary; Cleve Jacobs, treasurer; Richard Harvey, chaplain, and Jimmy Stewart, master of ceremonies.

The K A's elected as their future No. I John Sheffield, No. II Bud Alford, and Dee Hodges No. III.

Joe C. Scott, the national president of Pi Kappa Alpha, and John Horton, district advisor, visited the local chapter this past past week.

The pledges of Alpha Sigma Phi have planned for a pledge week-end on March 21. Final plans for the K A Old South Ball next weekend have also been made.

Honored as Brother of the Week are John Smith, A S P, and the newly elected officers of PiKA.

Peanut Butter

and merits of their faithful standby, the peanut butter sandwich. It has been said that out of the necessity Presbyterian College students have discovered more combinations of peanut butter with jelly, honey, syrup, mayonnaise and an occasional mustard than any other group. It was also noted the ration of milk which is graciously allowed at breakfast and supper.

As if the meals during the week had not taken their toll in diarrhea, a refreshing menu of succulent mystery meat, a cold slab of cheese, and potato chips is topped with a serving of the musical fruit to completely destroy the appetite in the most iron-clad stomach. If nothing else could be changed, this disgraceful meal should either be done away with or improved upon.

While in this article there are slight exaggerations, there is a general feeling of discontentment concerning the diet here in our peaceful college community, and this could be considered a mild protest when compared to dining hall riots which have occurred at many schools. And while the persons lodging these complaints should really be glad to have anything to eat when so many people are starving in Europe, it would suffice to say that they are not in Europe or starving—thanks to Peter Pan.
